HIGHLIGHTS: Senate debated second supplemental appropriation bill. Senate passed supergrades bill. House Rules Committee rejected reconsideration motion on farm bill, and cleared bill to authorize marketing orders on pears. House committees reported highway authorization and housing bills. House subcommittee approved Redwood National Park bill.

HOUSE

1. MARKETING ORDERS. The Rules Committee reported a resolution for the consideration of H. R. 10564, to authorize marketing orders for pears for canning or freezing. p. H5604

2. FARM PROGRAM. The "Daily Digest" states that the Rules Committee rejected a motion for reconsideration of a rule on H. R. 17126, the farm bill. p. D598

3. HIGHWAYS. The Public Works Committee reported with amendment H. R. 17134, the highway authorization bill (H. Rept. 1584). p. H5604

4. HOUSING. The Banking and Currency Committee reported without amendment H. R. 17989, to assist in the provision of housing for low- and moderate-income families, and to extend and amend laws relating to housing and urban development (H. Rept. 1585). p. H5604

Rep. Rogers, Colo., inserted an article, "Historic Housing Bill Merits Support." p. H5603

5. FLAG. Concurred in Senate amendments to H. R. 10480, to prohibit desecration of the flag. This bill will now be sent to the President. pp. H5390, H5434

6. VOCATIONAL REHABILITATION. Concurred in Senate amendments to H. R. 16819, to amend the Vocational Rehabilitation Act to extend the authorization of grants to States for rehabilitation services, to broaden the scope of goods and services available under that Act for the handicapped. This bill will now be sent to the President. p. H5390

7. APPROPRIATIONS. Concluded general debate on H. R. 18037, Labor-HEW appropriation bill, and began reading for amendments. pp. H5390-429

8. INFORMATION. A subcommittee of the Government Operations Committee approved for full committee action H. R. 14287, amended, to extend for ten years the authorization for appropriations for the gathering of U. S. history. p. D598

9. REDWOOD PARK. A subcommittee of the Interior and Insular Affairs Committee approved for full committee action H. R. 10951, amended, to establish Redwood National Park, Calif. p. D598

10. TECHNICAL SERVICES. A subcommittee of the Foreign Commerce Committee approved for full committee action H. R. 16824, to extend for an additional year the authorization of appropriations under the State Technical Services Act. p. D598

11. TRANSPORTATION. A subcommittee of the Public Works Committee approved for full committee action S. 2658, to raise the allowable limits of motor vehicle weights and width limitations now under Federal control of the Interstate System. p. D598

12. POVERTY. Rep. Berry spoke in support of legislation to provide a tax incentive to promote industry on Indian reservations. p. H5388

13. FEDERAL PROGRAMS. Rep. Roth and others discussed the findings of his "research effort designed to ferret out and obtain meaningful information about the myriad federally operated programs providing assistance to the American public." He inserted the catalog including a chapter listing and describing USDA programs. pp. H5434-585

14. FOOD STAMPS. Rep. Halpern commended the operation of the food stamp program in New York and expressed support "for increased funding authorization" for the program. p. H5585

HOUSING AND URBAN DEVELOPMENT ACT OF 1968

JUNE 25,1968.—Committed to the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union and ordered to be printed

Mr. PATMAN, from the Committee on Banking and Currency, submitted the following REPORT

[To accompany H.R. 17989]

The Committee on Banking and Currency, to whom was referred the bill (H.R. 17989) to assist in the provision of housing for low and moderate income families, and to extend and amend laws relating to housing and urban development, having considered the same, report favorably thereon without amendment and recommend that the bill do pass.

INTRODUCTION

The Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968 as approved by the committee reaffirms our national housing goals and makes extensive modifications and additions to our housing programs to accelerate progress. Since the declaration in the 1949 act that our national objective was "a decent home and a suitable living environment for every American family" our country has invested heavily in the production of housing for low and moderate income families and in the improvement of our towns and cities. While we can take pride in these accomplishments, they have fallen far short of today's needs. Progress has been repeatedly interrupted by periods of tight money and budgetary pressures on the Federal Government. Moreover, population growth and migration to our cities has continued at a high rate, offsetting much of the progress which has been made. A basic factor in the magnitude and urgency of our present housing problems has been the failure to include all parts of our population in the general rise in incomes and wealth. In fact this growth of prosperity has accentuated and may have even widened the gap between the poverty of the approximately 6 million families who still live in substandard housing and the affluent majority. Because of this contrast and the unrest it has created, the task of our housing and urban development programs is more critical than ever.

The committee bill is designed to add substantially to the production of housing for low and moderate income families. The bill also serves the important objective of making major improvements in our present housing programs. The bill places major emphasis on homeownership for low and moderate income families with its concomitant values of pride and dignity to the individual family and stability and improvement for the community. The bill also carries forward the objective of providing within our housing programs maximum employment opportunity for disadvantaged workers in the community. In addition, the bill continues the emphasis of recent years of increased reliance on private sponsorship under our housing programs and participation by private enterprises in the financing and production of housing.

MAJOR FEATURES OF THE BILL

H.R. 17989 is one of the most comprehensive and forward-looking bills in the field of housing and urban development ever proposed. Its many provisions perfect nearly every one of our existing programs in this field and it contains a number of imaginative new approaches. Here are the highlights of the bill.

Aid for homeownership

The bill would authorize a new program of interest subsidies to low and moderate income families to purchase new or existing homes which they could not otherwise afford (sec. 101).

Liberalized FHA financing

The bill would establish a special high risk insurance fund in FHA (sec. 104) to encourage FHA to approve home loan applications from buyers who cannot meet full standards (sec. 102) and to make insured loans available in neighborhoods which do not meet present FHA requirements (sec. 103).

Aid to housing sponsors

The bill would authorize interest-free loans to cover preconstruction expenses of nonprofit housing sponsors (sec. 106) and would also create a National Homeownership Foundation to provide grants or loans to housing sponsors (sec. 107).

Aid to rental and cooperative housing

The bill would authorize a new program of interest subsidies in behalf of low and moderate income occupants of rental and cooperative housing (sec. 201).

Neighborhood development program

The bill would authorize an alternative form of urban renewal under which a community could elect to carry out a project on the basis of annual budgeting over the period required for completion in place of the present lump sum commitment for the entire project (sec. 401).

Rehabilitation loans and grants

The bill extends the areas eligible for 3-percent rehabilitation loans and rehabilitation grants and increases the maximum rehabilitation grant for low income homeowners from $1,500 to $3,000 (secs. 403 and 409).

Low and moderate income housing

The bill would require that a majority of the housing units provided in the future in urban renewal projects redeveloped for residential purposes must be for low and moderate income families, including at least 20 percent of all units for low income families (sec. 413).

FNMA secondary market

The bill would place FNMA's secondary market operation in a new privately owned corporation and FNMA's special assistance and management and liquidating functions would be retained in a new GNMA within the Department of HUD (title VII).

Rural housing

The bill would authorize the Farmers Home Administration to make direct and insured loans available to low income families in rural areas and small towns with interest rates as low as 1 percent. It also authorizes a new program of grants and loans to aid self-help housing (title IX).

Urban riot insurance

The bill would authorize a new program of Federal reinsurance for private insurance companies to encourage them to write property insurance in areas threatened by riots and civil commotion (title X).

Flood insurance

The bill would authorize a new program of Federal assistance to private insurance companies to encourage them to provide property insurance coverage for flood hazards (title XI).

Mortgage insurance for hospitals

The bill authorizes a new program of FHA mortgage insurance to cover the construction and equipping of nonprofit hospitals (title XII).

Model cities

The bill authorizes an additional $1 billion for fiscal 1970 for the model cities program and also authorizes additional planning funds (sec. 1401).

College housing

The bill would supplement the existing program of 3-percent direct loans for college housing by a new program of interest subsidies for privately financed college housing which would reduce the effective rate to the college to 3 percent (sec. 1405).

BACKGROUND OF THE BILL

The administration's proposals in the field of housing and urban development were submitted to the Congress on February 26, 1968, and introduced as H.R. 15624, the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968, and H.R. 15625, the National Insurance Development Corporation Act of 1968. Four weeks of hearings on these and related bills were held by the Subcommittee on Housing from March 12 through April 4. On April 25 and May 1, the subcommittee met in executive session to consider pending legislation on urban riot insurance, including H.R. 15625 and H.R. 14263. A bill was approved by the subcommittee on a vote of 12 to 1 and introduced as H.R. 17003. The Subcommittee on Housing met in executive session on housing legislation on May 21, 22, and 23 and approved for full committee consideration an omnibus housing bill subsequently introduced as H.R. 17651. The urban insurance bill had not been acted on in the full committee and, therefore, was included in H.R. 17651. The omnibus bill was approved by the subcommittee by a vote of 12 to 1.

The full committee on Banking and Currency met in executive session to consider H.R. 17651 on June 3, 4, 5, 6, 11, 12, 13, 17, 18, 19, and 20. Among other amendments to H.R. 17651, the committee added the national flood insurance program provided for in S. 1985 (with an amendment) as discussed in the text on title XI in this report. On June 19, H.R. 17989 was introduced as a "clean" bill reflecting the amendments adopted, and on June 20 this bill was approved by a vote of 22 to 6.

"RED TAPE" IN FEDERAL PROGRAMS

In reference to the several programs administered by the Department of Housing and Urban Development, including those which would be extended by the bill, the committee desires to call attention to the continuing dissatisfaction, within the Congress and outside, with excessive redtape, extensive delays in processing applications, inordinately cumbersome and complicated procedural requirements. The committee's hearings reveal considerable evidence of this.

The committee strongly urges the Department to redouble its efforts to achieve a greater degree of uniformity and standardization in program requirements, to simplify procedures, to expedite the consideration of proposed projects, to provide more useful and specific assistance to communities, organizations, and individuals seeking to utilize the programs, and to enable potential beneficiaries to adapt programs more specifically to their individual needs.

The committee is concerned that, in the absence of more effective efforts to eliminate these problems, the various programs we have enacted will tend to benefit exclusively those communities and groups which can afford to employ high priced staffs and consultants whose expertise gives them a disproportionate advantage over other applicants in availing themselves of Federal assistance.

At a time when limited resources and compelling needs combine to increase competition for available Federal help, the committee believes the Department must take extraordinary measures to assure both equitable treatment of applicants and the maximum effectiveness, in terms of visible results, of its programs.

EXPLANATION OF THE BILL

SHORT TITLE

Section 1 of the bill cites the bill as the "Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968."

DECLARATION OF POLICY

Section 2 of the bill reaffirms the national goal as set forth in section 2 of the Housing Act of 1949 of "a decent home and a suitable living environment for every American family." In addition, the Congress finds that this goal has not been fully realized for many of the Nation's lower income families and states this is a matter of grave national concern. The Congress further declares that the programs authorized by this act are designed to give the highest priority toward meeting the housing and employment needs of those families for which the national goal has not become a reality. In addition, the Congress declares that in carrying out the programs contained in this bill the fullest practical utilization of the resources and capabilities of private enterprise and of individual self-help techniques should be employed.

JOBS IN HOUSING; EMPLOYMENT OPPORTUNITIES FOR LOWER INCOME PERSONS IN CONNECTION WITH ASSISTED PROJECTS

Section 3 of the bill provides that, in administering housing programs authorized by section 221(d)(3), and the proposed new sections 235 and 236 of the National Housing Act; the low-rent public housing program of the U.S. Housing Act of 1937; and the rent supplement program under section 101 of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965, the Secretary of HUD shall require, to the greatest extent feasible, that opportunities for employment arising in connection with construction or rehabilitation of housing assisted under such programs be given to lower income persons residing in the area of such housing and, thereby, provide not only housing but also jobs for these persons. In addition, the Secretary of HUD should seek to achieve the same objective in other federally assisted programs, such as urban renewal, that provide long-term employment opportunities for low and moderate income residents of the inner city.

IMPROVED ARCHITECTURAL DESIGN IN FEDERAL HOUSING PROGRAMS

Section 4 of the bill expresses the committee's concern that present federally assisted housing programs for low- and moderate-income families have not utilized fully or contributed to architectural standards of good design. In recent years, FHA has recognized that good architectural design is a necessary and desirable component of the housing built under its nonsubsidized mortgage insurance programs. However, too often reluctance has been expressed about encouraging or making use of innovations in architectural standards, as well as good design in general, in not only such programs as the 221(d)(3) below-market interest rate program but also in such other programs as public housing and the direct loan elderly program. Such reluctance has frequently sprung from a concern that good design must necessarily cost more than poor or mundane design and that, therefore, it would be inappropriate to expend public funds for that purpose.

It was never the intention of the committee to inhibit the interest of architects and private developers in federally supported projects because of their anticipation that superior designs for living, within statutory budget limitations, would be rejected if it were found that these projects could be build more cheaply through the elimination of useful or attractive features. On the contrary, the intent of the committee has been to encourage the best possible design which, within the framework of prudent budgeting, would contribute to the general betterment of living.

This section, therefore, declares that, in administering housing programs which assist in the provision of housing for low- and moderate-income families, emphasis should be given to encouraging good design as an essential component of such housing. Further, emphasis should be given to developing housing of a quality which reflects its important relationship to the architectural standards of the neighborhood and community in which it is situated. The committee believes that this declaration of congressional intent is especially important because of the new housing programs provided in this bill and because of the increased funding provided for existing programs. The committee expects that, within applicable statutory cost limitations, program administrators will accept proposals incorporating design features and materials which, while avoiding extravagance, contribute to better living, more efficient maintenance, or improvement of the surrounding environment. Therefore, reasonable costs attributable to design considerations should be approved if justified by achievement of these goals.

Title I—Low and Moderate Income Housing

HOMEOWNERSHIP FOR LOW AND MODERATE INCOME FAMILIES

Section 101 of the bill would establish a homeownership assistance program for low and moderate income families in a new section 235 of the National Housing Act. The homeownership assistance would be provided in the form of periodic payments to the mortgagee which would serve to reduce interest costs on a market-rate home mortgage or a cooperator's share of a cooperative association's mortgage. In addition, the provisions of the present section 221(h) of the National Housing Act, in expanded form, would be incorporated into the new section, and the nonprofit organization sponsoring the project, as well as the individual low and moderate income purchasers, would be eligible to receive the benefits of assistance payments. The committee expects, however, that the section 221(h) program would be utilized to the greatest extent practicable until the new section 235 becomes fully operational and adequately funded, but the sale of any individual units held by a nonprofit mortgagor under section 221(h) could be financed under the new program.

To bring the monthly payments under the market-rate mortgage down to a level which a low and moderate income family could afford, the Secretary of HUD would make periodic assistance payments on behalf of the homeowner to the mortgagee in an amount necessary to make up the difference between 20 percent of the family's monthly income and the required monthly payment under the mortgage for principal, interest, taxes, insurance, and mortgage insurance premium. In no case, however, could the payment exceed the difference between the required payment under the mortgage for principal, interest, and mortgage insurance premium and the payment that would be required for principal and interest if the mortgage bore an interest rate of 1 percent.

The amount of the subsidy would vary according to the income of the homeowner. This enables the assistance to be based on the homeowner's need, and enables the program to help a broad range of lower income families. For most of the Nation, families with incomes in the general range of $3,000 to $7,000 will be able to buy homes under this program and, thus, benefit by it. Since income of most of these families is expected to rise, the bill provides for income to be recertified at least every 2 years and appropriate adjustments to be made in the assistance payment to reflect any changes. Many assisted homeowners can thus be expected to be able ultimately to afford the full monthly payment under their mortgages.

In calculating the gross income of the homeowner on which the 20-percent computation will be made, there will be deducted $200 for each minor child who is a member of the homeowner's immediate family and living with him. Also, income of minors will not be included in the homeowner's income for this computation.

The families who will qualify for assistance under this new program could not have incomes in excess of these prescribed by the Secretary of HUD for the area in which they seek to purchase a home. These limits, dependent on family size, would be determined in part on the general basis of the cost, in the area, of standard, new single-family homes of modest but adequate construction. In keeping with this principle, the amount of the mortgage could not exceed $15,000 ($17,500 in high-cost areas). These limits would be increased to $17,500 and $20,000, respectively, for larger families. No assistance under this program would be given to assist a family purchasing a home which is extravagantly designed or is clearly too large for the present or future needs of the family. Also the Secretary would be required to prescribe regulations to assure that the consideration paid for homes under this program is not increased above the home's appraised value. This would prevent the price of the unit from being increased because of the availability of the subsidy assistance.

The following table shows the probable range of assistance payments for various income levels and mortgage amounts, assuming a 6¾ percent, 35-year mortgage with a one-half of 1 percent mortgage insurance premium.

Source: Department of Housing and Urban Development.

The amount of estimated monthly assistance payment, for example, for a $14,000 mortgage would be $46.52 for a family with an annual income of $4,200, and $26.52 for a family with a $5,400 income. No entry is made for the amount of the assistance payment if it appears inadequate to enable the family to afford the mortgage payment. Thus, it is not expected that a family with a $3,000 annual income would purchase a home under this program requiring a mortgage of $14,000. The exact cutoff points used for purposes of this table are merely illustrative, however, and not absolute.

In order to achieve the substantial increase in the number of dwellings available to low and moderate income families that is sorely needed, the committee expects that assistance under this new program will be oriented toward new or substantially rehabilitated units, or, in the case of condominium or cooperative units, those completed no more than 2 years prior to the filing of the application for assistance payments and previously unoccupied, except for the family who is to receive the assistance. The existing supply of good, low-cost housing is entirely inadequate and shows little tendency to improve without the impetus a program such as this can give it. As under FHA's regular home mortgage program (sec. 203), homebuilders could plan the housing and have it approved by FHA prior to the beginning of construction, thereby enabling the builder to obtain construction financing on the basis of FHA conditional mortgage insurance commitments.

Existing housing units, however, would be eligible under this program if the units meet standards prescribed by the Secretary. The committee expects that the Secretary will allocate contract funds between existing and new housing units in a manner which furthers the long-range housing goal of providing a decent living environment for all American families. It further expects that, in areas where the housing market is tight and added demand for existing housing could seriously inflate prices, the Secretary will generally permit assistance only with respect to new or substantially rehabilitated dwellings.

Also authorized for assistance under this new section are those families acquiring their dwelling unit in a rental project receiving rent supplement assistance or one covered by a mortgage under the new section 236 of the National Housing Act (proposed by sec. 201 of the bill). Assistance would also be available to a family purchasing a two-family dwelling with the assistance of a nonprofit organization where substantial rehabilitation of the property is necessary and has been approved prior to the beginning of the rehabilitation. The family naturally would have to occupy one of the units.

A preference would be given in allocating contract funds to displaced families (those displaced from an urban renewal area, displaced as a result of governmental action, or displaced as the result of a major disaster), families with five or more children, and families occupying low-rent public housing.

Mortgages with respect to which assistance would be made under this section would generally meet the requirements of either section 221(d)(2) sales housing for low and moderate income families; section 234 condominium housing; section 213 cooperative housing; or the provisions of section 221(h) incorporated into this section (subsection (j)). In addition, families eligible for insurance under the above sections (except sec. 213), but who must obtain insurance under section 237 (proposed by sec. 102 of the bill) because of their credit or income ratings, would be eligible for assistance payments under this section. The downpayment requirements for purchasers of single-family homes and condominium units under section 235(i) would be at least $200 for a displaced family and 3 percent for all others.

For cooperative members receiving assistance, the payment would be based on their proportionate share of the obligations under the project mortgage and using the same formula as for individual mortgages. The assistance payment in all cases, whether an individual mortgage or a project mortgage, would cease when the family for whom the assistance payment is being made ceases to occupy the home, condominium unit, or cooperative unit, except that assistance payments could continue when the mortgage on a home, purchased from a nonprofit organization under subsection (j), is assumed by an eligible purchaser.

Subsection (j) of the new section 235 would authorize insurance of blanket mortgages of nonprofit organizations to assist them in acquiring housing for subsequent resale to low- and moderate-income purchasers, as is possible now under section 221(h) of the National Housing Act. Under subsection (j), the bill would provide for the purchase by a nonprofit sponsor and resale of existing standard units as well as the purchase, rehabilitation, and resale of deteriorating or substandard units; permit the inclusion of two-family dwellings if one of the units is to be occupied by the owner; reduce the minimum required number of dwelling units covered by the blanket mortgage of the nonprofit sponsor from five to four (where housing not in need of rehabilitation is purchased, the mortgage of the nonprofit association may cover as few as one unit); and authorize the blanket mortgage to cover four or more units in a multifamily structure under a condominium ownership plan. The income levels would be the same as those authorized for other purchasers under section 235, instead of the present limit to low-income purchasers.

The nonprofit organization during any rehabilitation would pay interest, on the advances made, at the market interest rate, as is done at present under 221(h). If there are any units still under the nonprofit organization's blanket mortgage when it is time to finally endorse the mortgage for FHA insurance, the mortgagor would make monthly payments of principal and interest as if the mortgage bore a 1-percent interest rate, with the difference between this payment and the required payment for principal, interest, and mortgage insurance premium under its market rate mortgage being paid to the mortgagee by the Government.

Mortgages insured under section 235 would be the obligation of the new Special Risk Insurance Fund (proposed by sec. 104 of the bill).

Since many of the families who would be assisted have had little experience in the proper care of a home and the budgeting of income to meet regular monthly payments on a mortgage, this section would authorize appropriate counseling, either directly by HUD or by contract with public or private agencies, to assist these families in meeting their new responsibilities. Appropriations would be authorized for this purpose.

This section would provide authority to enter into assistance payment contracts, as approved in appropriation acts, in the amount of $75 million annually in fiscal year 1969. This amount would be increased by $100 million in fiscal year 1970, and by $125 million in fiscal year 1971. This would be enough to enable nearly one-half million families to become homeowners.

Assistance under this new section 235 would be available in both urban and rural areas. However, insofar as the administration of this section in rural areas is concerned, the Secretary would be directed to transfer a reasonable proportion of the approved contract authority to the Secretary of Agriculture for the implementation thereof as agreed upon by the two Secretaries. Section 513 of the Housing Act of 1949 would be amended by section 903 of the bill to authorize appropriations to pay for Agriculture's administrative expenses in connection with any such assignment.

Section 101 would also make several changes to the section 221(h) program to maintain it as a viable program and to increase its effectiveness. First, insurance of mortgages up to $15,000 would be authorized for the rehabilitation or improvement (and the refinancing of any existing indebtedness) of dwellings originally purchased by the owner-occupant from a nonprofit organization of the type eligible under section 221(h). Second, an interest rate as low as 1 percent would be authorized (the present minimum rate for below-market mortgages under 221(h) is 3 percent) for purchasers whose income is low enough to warrant the lower rate. As a result, the individual mortgages under section 221(h) would bear interest between 1 and 3 percent, depending on the incomes and needs of the homeowner. Third, the limit on the aggregate principal balance of all mortgages executed by nonprofit sponsors and outstanding at any one time would be increased from $20 to $50 million.

Other provisions of section 101 of the bill would (1) increase the mortgage limits on single-family dwellings under section 221(d)(2) of the National Housing Act to correspond to the limits provided in the new section 235, (2) permit a mortgagor under section 221(d)(2) (and, therefore, also one eligible under sec. 235) to contribute the value of his labor to the acquisition cost of his dwelling, (3) authorize the Secretary to reimburse the mortgagee for his expenses in handling a 235 mortgage, and (4) make the labor standards of section 212 of the National Housing Act applicable to work financed under blanket mortgages of nonprofit organizations insured under section 235 to the same extent as now applicable to such mortgages insured under section 221(h) of such act.

CREDIT ASSISTANCE

Section 102 of the bill would authorize, through a new section 237 of the National Housing Act, FHA mortgage insurance for those families of low and moderate income who cannot qualify for mortgage insurance under existing FHA housing programs because of their credit histories or irregular income patterns, but who the Secretary of HUD finds are reasonably satisfactory credit risks and capable of homeownership with the assistance of budget, debt management, and related counseling.

Mortgages insured under this program would have to meet the basic requirements under one of the various FHA home mortgage programs (including the new programs authorized by sec. 235, proposed by sec. 101 of this bill, and by sec. 221(i), proposed by sec. 105 of this bill). The credit and income requirements of the particular section would not apply, however, and the principal obligation of the mortgage could not exceed $15,000 ($17,500 in high-cost areas). However, the lower mortgage limits prescribed under subsections (h) and (i) of section 203 would govern, when mortgage insurance is sought pursuant to them.

Insurance would not be authorized under section 237 unless the monthly mortgage payments for principal and interest, including payments for local real estate taxes, could be paid with 25 percent or less of the mortgagor's average monthly income, computed over the previous year or the previous 3 years, whichever is higher. The interest rates and mortgage insurance premiums would be the same as those under the existing programs.

The purpose of section 102 is to provide assistance to families of modest means who aspire to purchase homes but cannot obtain mortgage financing because of flaws in their credit histories or instability in their earning records. The Secretary would be required to search behind these flaws to determine whether delinquent accounts were ultimately paid or involved extenuating circumstances, or whether irregular employment and income patterns were due to such factors as seasonal employment, with income otherwise at levels of eligibility over the previous 2 years. Consideration would be given to any other factors which would indicate that the families could maintain homeownership.

An important element in this program is the counseling, either directly or by contract with public or private organizations, the Secretary would provide mortgagors and to prospective homeowners who lack sufficient funds to supply a downpayment. While many families who would be eligible for mortgage insurance under this section have strong aspirations to become homeowners, their experience in handling large financial responsibilities may be meager. Through counseling, these families can be helped to use their resources efficiently in meeting homeownership responsibilities.

Preference under the new program would be given to families living in public housing and especially those required to leave because their incomes have risen beyond the maximum prescribed by the local housing authority, as well as those eligible for public housing residence who have been displaced from federally assisted urban renewal areas.

The proposed program would be essentially experimental, and there would be no change in FHA insurance of home mortgages at or below the maximum mortgage limits prescribed by this section. Those who now qualify would continue to qualify, and only those who would have been rejected in the past as marginal credit risks would have their mortgages insured under the new section 237.

In authorizing this new program, it is not the intention of the committee to have local FHA directors use the new section 237 program as an excuse for careless underwriting practices, arbitrarily placing all marginal applicants into the special risk fund without concern for the real worthiness of the case. Contrariwise, the committee believes that the FHA should sharpen its underwriting tools and improve its ability to judge the true merits of various applicants for insurance, particularly those of low and moderate income. In general, the committee believes that existing FHA rules for credit approval should be made more realistic and workable for low and moderate income families. The credit requirements are often applied too stringently in reviewing credit histories. Thus, the credit report of a prospective purchaser or cooperative member may indicate that at some time in the past he had difficulties in meeting certain obligations, which frequently occurs among lower income families. Yet, this should not be a bar to homeownership or cooperative membership if it can be demonstrated that the person had a good record in meeting comparable monthly charges for housing during recent years.

The principal balance of all mortgages insured under section 237 and outstanding at any one time would be limited to $100 million. There are large numbers of families in the low and moderate income brackets whose living conditions would be substantially improved through homeownership which many can afford if only helped to allocate their resources properly. This program would generate the experience necessary to help these families help themselves.

RELAXATION OF MORTGAGE INSURANCE REQUIREMENTS IN CERTAIN URBAN NEIGHBORHOODS

Section 103 of the bill would amend section 223 of the National Housing Act, by adding a new subsection (e), to give FHA more flexible authority in providing financing for the repair, rehabilitation, construction, or purchase of property located in older, declining urban areas. Under the amendment, FHA would be able to accept for insurance mortgages on properties which may not, because of the area in which they are located, be able to meet all of the normal eligibility requirements. Acceptance of these mortgages would be permitted where FHA is able to establish that the area is reasonably viable, giving consideration to the need for providing adequate housing for families of low and moderate income in the area, and that the property is an acceptable risk in view of such consideration.

Under a 1966 amendment to section 203 of the National Housing Act, the Secretary of HUD is authorized to insure mortgages for one- to four-family properties located in an area where rioting or other disorders have occurred or are threatened, without regard to economic soundness, provided the properties are an acceptable risk, giving consideration to the need for providing adequate housing for families of low and moderate income in that area. The provision, waiving the economic soundness requirement, enabled the FHA to insure mortgages on housing in some of the older, declining urban areas, but it has not provided the flexibility required to finance all of the types of housing needed in all such areas.

The provision of adequate housing in these areas involves the repair, rehabilitation, and construction of a variety of housing types. The 1966 amendment to the FHA section 203 home mortgage program, only provides financing for one- to four-family housing and is limited to areas identified with riots or other disorders. This proposed amendment would permit the FHA to expand the use of its various other housing programs in these areas. It would also expand the areas, in which exception would be made, to all older, declining areas without regard to riots or disorders.

Section 103 would permit FHA to waive any other statutory limitation on such items as loan to value, size of dwelling unit, or maximum mortgage amount, if such limitation would prevent the insurance of an otherwise acceptable risk to carry out the purpose of this section. However, the labor standards of section 212 of the National Housing Act would continue in effect and could not be waived. In addition to one- to four-family sales units, financing could be provided for rental or cooperative projects and for individual ownership of apartments in a condominium project.

Because of high risks involved in insuring mortgages in such areas mortgages insured pursuant to this new authority would be the obligation of the new Special Risk Insurance Fund (proposed under sec. 104 of this bill).

This amendment is being proposed as a substitute for section 203(l), the provision added in 1966, and, therefore, includes repeal of the 1966 provision since it would no longer be needed.

SPECIAL RISK INSURANCE FUND

Section 104 of the bill would establish, through a new section 238 of the National Housing Act, a "Special Risk Insurance Fund," which would not be intended to be actuarially sound and out of which claims would be paid on mortgages insured under the new sections 235—homeownership assistance (proposed by sec. 101 of the bill); 236—assistance for rental and cooperative housing (proposed by sec. 201 of the bill); and 237—credit assistance (proposed by sec. 102 of the bill); as well as those mortgages insured pursuant to the authority contained in the amendments to section 223—properties in older, declining urban areas (proposed by sec. 103 of the bill) and section 233—development of new technologies for lower income housing (proposed by sec. 108 of the bill).

The fund would be established with a $5 million advance from the general insurance fund, which would be repayable at such time and at such interest rates as the Secretary of HUD deemed appropriate. Since these programs cannot be expected to be operated on an actuarially sound basis if the insurance premium charge is to be set at a reasonable level, appropriations to the fund would be authorized to cover any losses sustained by the fund in carrying out the mortgage insurance obligations of these programs. The term losses, as used in this provision, is the same as presently appears in a similar authority under section 221(f) of the National Housing Act. In both instances, it is intended that the Secretary be able to obtain appropriations to cover anticipated or projected losses as well as actual losses, in order to provide adequate operating funds during the long period required to liquidate properties.

Insurance benefits would generally be similar to those authorized for mortgages insured under secton 221 of the National Housing Act. Payments on claims would be made either in cash or debentures and could be in an amount equal to the unpaid principal balance of the loan plus any accrued interest and any advances made by the mortgagee with approval of the Secretary and under the provisions of the mortgage, where permitted in the regulations prescribed by the Secretary. Income such as insurance premiums and service charges in connection with the covered programs would be deposited in the new fund. Administrative expenses in connection with these programs and expenses incurred with respect to defaults would be charged to the fund.

The programs using this new fund would generally involve some form of subsidy for families of low and moderate income and those families who are poor credit risks or who wish to buy property in areas where mortgage insurance would not normally be available. However, it is also intended for use under section 237 for families who would receive no subsidy but who would not otherwise be eligible for insurance because of inability to meet credit requirements. The regular FHA mortgage insurance reserves cannot be expected to absorb these several new programs without impairment. The establishment of a special insurance fund would be consistent with the intent to provide a subsidy element for these families by operating with supplemental appropriations, where necessary.

CONDOMINIUM AND COOPERATIVE OWNERSHIP FOR LOW AND MODERATE INCOME FAMILIES

Section 105 of the bill would amend section 221 of the National Housing Act, by adding new subsections (i) and (j), to provide another mechanism by which low and moderate income families could attain an ownership interest in their dwellings. It would do this by permitting section 221(d)(3) below-market interest rate rental projects to be converted to condominium or cooperative ownership.

Under the new subsection (i), a low or moderate income purchaser could purchase an individual family unit and an undivided interest in the common areas and facilities of the project at a price not in excess of the appraised value of the property. At least a 3-percent downpayment would be required, which could be applied in whole or in part toward closing costs.

The purchase could be financed with a mortgage, with a maximum term of 40 years, which bears an interest rate no less than the below-market interest rate in effect with respect to 221(d)(3) projects at the time the commitment to insure the mortgage is issued. The mortgage would contain a provision permitting the Secretary to increase the interest rate, up to the maximum permissible under section 221 at the time the mortgage commitment was issued, upon determination that the mortgagor's annual income had increased to an amount permitting payment of a greater rate of interest. If the original mortgagor ceases to occupy the property, the rate would also increase to the highest rate permissible at the time of commitment, unless the property is sold to a nonprofit purchaser approved by the Secretary or to a low or moderate income purchaser whose income is within the limits established for occupancy in a below-market interest rate project insured under section 221(d)(3).

Under the new subsection (j), a cooperative, with membership open only to low and moderate income families meeting income limits prescribed for section 221(d)(3) below-market interest rate projects, could purchase the project for an amount not exceeding the appraised value of the property for continued use as a cooperative at the below-market interest rate in effect at the time the commitment to insure the mortgage is issued. However, occupants of the project at the time of conversion, whose incomes had increased over the applicable limits, could be allowed to become members of the cooperative under special terms set by the Secretary of HUD.

Under both of these new sections the Secretary would be authorized to waive all or part of the premium, since the mortgages would carry a below-market interest rate and would serve families in the same general income bracket as those served under subsections (d)(3) and (h) of section 221 for which similar authorityt now exiss.

ASSISTANCE TO NONPROFIT SPONSORS OF LOW AND MODERATE INCOME HOUSING

Section 106 of the bill would authorize the Secretary of HUD to undertake a program of technical assistance, with respect to the construction, rehabilitation, and operation of low and moderate income housing to nonprofit sponsors of such housing. It would also authorize the Secretary to provide financial assistance, in the form of 80-percent interest-free loans, to cover certain preconstruction costs of nonprofit sponsors in connection with their low and moderate income housing undertakings under federally assisted programs, and would establish a revolving fund, entitled the low and moderate income sponsor fund, for this purpose, with an authorization for appropriations of $7.5 million in fiscal year 1969 and $10 million in fiscal year 1970.

Much of the Federal housing policy for low and moderate income families has been geared to the use of the nonprofit sponsor. However, despite the authority in the law to utilize nonprofit sponsors under many of the existing programs, the experience so far has not been satisfactory. Often, nonprofit sponsors have been lacking in experience and technical capacity to develop housing. An effective program of technical assistance to nonprofit housing sponsors is essential if they are to play a vital role in the production of housing for low and moderate income families. Such a program would deal with problems of sponsor-builder relationship, principles for planning, financial responsibility, and allied matters, and would emphasize the human aspects of involvement with the community and development of management that is responsive to tenant needs. The assistance could be provided either directly or by contract with public or private organizations.

The provision of loans to cover certain preconstruction costs is essential if nonprofit organizations are to have a significant role in the expanded low and moderate income housing program. Current practice requires the sponsor to pay for market surveys, architectural and engineering needs, land options and acquisition, and other preconstruction costs, before the Federal loan or insured financing can be obtained. These must be paid in advance and often create a hardship on the small nonprofit organization. The costs covered by these loans would be included in the final financing and would be returned to the revolving fund when the financing becomes available. However, the Secretary would be authorized to cancel any part or all of a loan that he determines cannot be recovered from the proceeds of the permanent financing. The Secretary would be required, prior to making a loan, to determine that the nonprofit organization meets such requirements with respect to financial responsibility and stability as he may prescribe.

The housing goals sought to be obtained under the new legislation proposed in sections 101 and 201 of the bill will rely in a good part on obtaining good nonprofit sponsorship. The new authority provided by this section for technical and financial assistance to nonprofit organizations, involved or interested in such sponsorship, will help to achieve that goal. The assistance authorized by this section would also be available to nonprofit sponsors under other programs, such as, for example, the section 221(d)(3) BMIR program, the section 231 senior citizens housing program, and the section 515 rural housing program.

NATIONAL HOMEOWNERSHIP FOUNDATION

Section 107 of the bill would create a National Homeownership Foundation, the purpose of which is to provide technical and limited financial assistance to private and public organizations which desire to organize for the purpose of assisting in providing housing and homeownership opportunities for lower income families. The Foundation would consist of an 18-member Board, 15 of whom would be appointed by the President with the advice and consent of the Senate. The remaining three members would be the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development, the Secretary of Agriculture, and the Director of the Office of Economic Opportunity. This section also authorizes the appropriation of $10 million to be used by the Foundation in carrying out its prescribed functions which are detailed below. The section also requires the Foundation to make an annual report to the President and the Congress on its activities and findings, and the financial activities of the Foundation would be subject to GAO audit.

Although the provisions of the bill establishing the National Homeownership Foundation are contained in title I of this bill, it should be pointed out that homeownership is not the only purpose of the Foundation. The Foundation would have broad authority to provide assistance to improve housing conditions for lower income families and would extend beyond the federally assisted homeownership programs contained in this title.

The committee felt that one of its responsibilities was to encourage private sector involvement in all aspects of our Nation's housing problems. There is ample evidence that the private sector is anxious to participate in the solution of our housing problems but that it finds it difficult to know how it can help. The National Homeownership Foundation provides a mechanism whereby the private sector can make such a contribution.

In order to encourage the increased development of organizations which would approach housing and homeownership programs for lower income families on a private basis, the committee recommends the establishment of the National Homeownership Foundation. The Foundation could be a principal vehicle through which local community and neighborhood organizations would be able to undertake programs of housing and homeownership opportunities for families of lower income. The Foundation would encourage the establishment of such community-based organizations and would continue to play a vital role in standing ready to assist these organizations in the development and implementation of housing and homeownership programs.

The Foundation would be a Government-chartered, nonprofit corporation. Its 18-member Board of Directors would emphasize private sector membership with representation from such fields as finance, business, organized labor, State and local public agencies, local nonprofit organizations actively involved in the fields of housing and community development, and the general public. Members of the Board would serve for 3-year staggered terms and would be appointed by the President with the advice and consent of the Senate. In order to facilitate cooperation with Federal agencies, the Board would also include as ex-officio voting members the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development, the Secretary of Agriculture, and the Director of the Office of Economic Opportunity.

The Foundation would be required to submit to the President and to Congress an annual report on its activities. In addition, the committee felt that the Foundation should also advise Congress whenever in its judgment the general unavailability of money in the mortgage market is sufficiently serious to deter the Foundation from carrying out its objectives of expanding housing and homeownership opportunities for lower income families.

In order to avoid duplication of effort, the Foundation would be required to coordinate its activities with all Federal agencies involved in housing programs.

Functions

The committee feels that if local community and neighborhood organizations are to be used successfully in helping to solve the problems of substandard and inadequate housing for lower income families, they should have technical and financial assistance available to them. Some limited assistance is now available through existing Federal programs. However, to meet the considerable needs of these organizations in a more coordinated fashion, the Foundation would be permitted to make technical and financial assistance available to them.

It is contemplated that the Foundation will not borrow money. However, to meet emergency situations, the Foundation is permitted to borrow, using for the principal and interest on this borrowing only donated funds and interest from the loans it has made.

The foundation could provide technical assistance to the organizations in order to—

1. Encourage local public and private programs of housing and homeownership opportunities for lower income families.
2. Assist in establishing such programs, including the establishment of local development funds.
3. Assist these organizations in finding the proper personnel to implement successfully these programs.
4. Assist these organizations in obtaining financing and mortgage insurance for these programs.
5. Assist these organizations to establish a counseling service to help lower income families gain access to job training and manpower programs.
6. Arrange for (or provide on a limited basis) training for personnel.
7. Encourage research and innovation in the housing and homeownership field and establish an information program on housing opportunities.

The committee also recognized that on a limited basis there was a need for financial assistance to assist these organizations. It was the feeling of the committee that the local organizations should use to the maximum extent feasible Federal programs, but grants and loans would be available from the Foundation to fill unmet needs, to experiment, and to initiate new programs when not available from Federal sources. Such financial aid would be limited to—

1. Organizational and administrative expenses incurred in commencing the operation of a program, or in expanding an existing program, to the extent that the activities are related to providing homeownership and housing opportunities for lower income families.
2. Necessary preconstruction costs incurred for architectural assistance, land options, application fees, and similar items.
3. The costs of carrying out programs providing counseling and similar services to lower income families for whom housing is being provided in such areas as home management, budget management and home maintenance, in order to enable these families to achieve and afford adequate housing.

However, any application for a grant and loan must be submitted to the local governmental body for its recommendations and these recommendations would be required to be considered by the Board of Directors before any award is made.

Financing

This section of the bill would authorize an appropriation of $10 million to carry out the activities of the Foundation. It was felt that the private sector could demonstrate its willingness to assist in providing housing and homeownership opportunities by making private contributions to the Foundation.

NEW TECHNOLOGIES IN THE DEVELOPMENT OF HOUSING FOR LOWER INCOME FAMILIES

Section 108 of the bill would encourage the development of new housing technologies and their testing on a large scale. The purpose of this experimentation is to find ways of providing decent housing at low cost. The cost of conventional materials and methods of construction has steadily spiraled beyond the reach of lower income families.

Under this program, the Secretary of HUD would evaluate plans submitted by qualified public or private organizations for the large-scale development of housing for lower income families, using new and advanced technologies adaptable to mass production methods. Approved plans would be carried out with private financing, but mortgage insurance would be provided under section 233 of the National Housing Act—the experimental housing insurance program.

Projects carried out under section 233 demonstrating new technologies have been of small scale involving relatively few units. As a result, no definite evaluation has been possible of the cost reductions obtainable from economies of scale or mass use of prefabricated assembly. To insure experimentation on an adequate scale, this section limits the number of approved plans to no more than five, but requires that each plan be capable of producing at least 1,000 units a year over a 5-year period, so that each plan would be tested in depth.

Because of the limited number of plans that can be approved under this program the Secretary would be expected to exercise his discretion to choose only those which would best demonstrate the feasibility of significantly lowering the cost of housing construction and which are backed by adequate financial resources. The committee wishes to emphasize that the Secretary is under no direction to approve any plan unless it is clearly qualified.

Once a plan has been carried out, the Secretary would evaluate it with a view to determining (1) the detailed cost breakdown per dwelling unit, (2) the environmental quality achieved in the units, and (3) the effect which local housing codes and zoning regulations have, or would have if applicable, on the cost per dwelling unit. At the earliest practicable date, the Secretary would report his findings to the Congress, together with any recommendations for legislation to expand the supply of housing for lower income families provided through the use of the new technologies tested.

To assure that adequate land is available, this section authorizes the transfer of excess Federal property from the General Services Administration to the Secretary for use in this program. Land thus transferred could be sold by the Secretary, under a delegation of authority from GSA, at its fair market value and in accordance with the regular provisions of law governing the disposition of excess Federal property.

Housing constructed under this program could involve either rental or sales housing, single-family or multifamily housing. Although the mortgages would be insured under section 233, the Secretary would have the same authority with respect to any project that he would have if the project met the requirements of another housing program, including the subsidy programs such as the proposed section 235 homeownership program, the proposed section 236 rental housing program, rent supplements, and the section 221(d)(3) below-market interest rate program. For example, experimental housing for lower income families meeting the requirements of the section 235 program would be eligible to receive the benefits of homeownership assistance payments in the same manner and from the same funds as housing insured under section 235. This authority would apply to all housing built with mortgages insured under section 233, not just under the plans authorized by this section.

The committee believes that the proposed experimental housing program should eventually lead to cost reductions in housing that will greatly improve living conditions among lower income families and reduce the extent to which governmental expenditures are needed to help these families secure decent housing. However, in view of the broad experimentation that would be encouraged and emphasis on providing housing for lower income families, any losses incurred under this new program would be the obligation of the new Special Risk Insurance Fund proposed by section 104 of this bill.

INSURANCE PROTECTION FOR HOMEOWNERS

Section 109 of the bill would authorize the Secretary of HUD, in cooperation with the private insurance industry, to undertake a study and to develop a plan for the establishment of an insurance program to help homeowners meet their mortgage payments in times of personal economic adversity. In addition, this section of the bill requires the Secretary to report to the Congress, within 6 months following the date of enactment, on his actions under this section and recommend to the Congress such legislation as he deems appropriate to authorize him to enter into agreements with insurance companies to provide home mortgage insurance protection for homeowners.

The committee considered limiting the Secretary's responsibility to report only on Government-assisted mortgages but finally agreed that a study should be made of the feasibility of preparing a plan of insurance for all mortgagors; but if, in the judgment of the Secretary, the only possible plan would apply to Government-assisted mortgages, the committee would consider as satisfactory a report covering only such mortgages.

The committee believes that in developing such a plan, the Secretary should bear in mind that insurance should be provided against such contingencies as foreclosure due to curtailment of income resulting from factors beyond the effective control of the homeowner including such elements as death, disability, illness, and unemployment. The committee also feels that such a program should be designed to be actuarially sound through the use of premiums, fees, extended or increased payment schedules, or other similar methods in conjunction with such Federal financial participation as may be necessary.

In preparing his recommendations, the Secretary should consult with all other Federal agencies which insure or guarantee home mortgages in order that his recommendations may afford equal benefits to mortgagors participating in such programs.

Title II—Rental Housing for Low and Moderate Income Families

Part A—Private Housing

RENTAL AND COOPERATIVE HOUSING FOR LOW AND MODERATE INCOME FAMILIES

Section 201 of the bill would add a new section 236 to the National Housing Act to establish an assistance program for rental and cooperative housing for low and moderate income families. The assistance would be provided in the form of periodic payments to the mortgagee on behalf of the mortgagor which would serve to reduce interest costs on a market rate project mortgage.

The interest reduction payments could reduce payments on the project mortgage from amounts that would be required on a market rate mortgage to amounts that would be required on a mortgage bearing an interest rate of 1 percent.

This new section 236 is derived from the below-market interest rate program authorized under section 221(d)(3) of the National Housing Act in 1961. That program was designed to provide rental and cooperative housing for families whose incomes were too high for public housing but too low for standard housing available on the market.

The 221(d)(3) program has been successful in providing much-needed rental and cooperative housing for these families. However, it has the limitation of depending on direct Federal lending from the special assistance funds of FNMA to support its 3-percent mortgages. The limited availability of these funds will not permit the production of the large volume of rental and cooperative housing for low and moderate income families needed to meet the goals contemplated by this bill. It is therefore necessary to obtain financing from the private mortgage market. This would be done under the new section 236.

The new 236 program is intended to replace the 221(d)(3) BMIR program as well as the program of direct 3-percent loans for the elderly and the handicapped authorized under section 202 of the Housing Act of 1959, but only after the new program is fully operational and adequately funded. It will be better able to serve low and moderate income tenants because the rents attainable under it will be lower than those possible under the other two programs. This is possible because the mortgagor could make monthly payments for principal and interest under the mortgage as if it bore an interest rate of 1 percent. The difference between this amount and the monthly payment due under the mortgage, which will bear a market interest rate, for principal, interest, and mortgage insurance premium will be paid to the mortgagee on behalf of the mortgagor by the Federal Government.

These interest reduction payments would reduce rentals to a basic rental charge, determined for each unit on the basis of operating the project with such payments, and a tenant or cooperative member would either pay the basic charge or such greater amount as represented 20 percent of his income, but not in excess of the fair market rental charge which would be determined on the basis of operating the project without any interest reduction payments. The interest reduction payments to the mortgagee would not vary, in order to avoid administrative complexities, but rental charges collected by the mortgagor in excess of the basic charges would be returned to the Secretary for deposit in a revolving fund for the purpose of making other interest reduction payments.

Thus, like the homeownership program proposed in section 101 of the bill, this program will be able to provide decent housing for many low and moderate income families who cannot afford it now. This will be possible because of the identical 1 percent floors for subsidy purposes. Also, under the 236 program the effective amount of the subsidy would vary, because of the provision for recapture of the rental charges in excess of the basic rental charge collected by the mortgagor, in accordance with the income of the tenant or cooperative member, and therefore, his need for assistance. Incomes would be reexamined at least every 2 years and the rent charged the tenant adjusted accordingly.

The Secretary would establish maximum family income limits for eligibility for admission to this new housing, just as he does now for the 221(d) (3) and 202 programs.

The following table shows the range of rental reductions for various income levels, according to the mortgage amount attributable to the unit.

In view of the added administrative details that can be expected with respect to these mortgages, the Secretary would be authorized to reimburse the mortgagee for its expenses in handling the mortgage.

Interest reduction payments would be authorized not only for projects financed with mortgages insured under section 236, but also similar projects financed under a State or local program providing assistance through loans, loan insurance, or tax abatements and which, prior to completion of construction or rehabilitation, are approved by the Secretary for this purpose. The committee expects the Secretary to maintain adequate control over these projects through appropriate provisions in the contract with the mortgagor providing for the interest reduction payments. It also expects the Secretary to approve only those projects which provide rentals reasonably equivalent to what could be achieved by a project with a mortgage insured under section 236.

To qualify for mortgage insurance under this section, a mortgagor would have to be a nonprofit organization, a cooperative, or a limited-dividend entity of the types permitted under section 221(d)(3) of the National Housing Act. In addition, the mortgage limitations with respect to maximum mortgage amount and the amount of the mortgage attributable to each dwelling unit would be the same as those for mortgages insured under section 221(d)(3).

Mortgages insured under this section would bear such interest, not in excess of 6 percent, as the Secretary finds necessary to meet the mortgage market. However, pursuant to the provisions of section 315, which would amend Public Law 90–301, recently passed by the Congress, the Secretary would be authorized up to October 1, 1969, to set the interest rate in excess of 6 percent if he deemed it necessary to meet the mortgage market.

Mortgage insurance would also be available under this section to enable a cooperative or private nonprofit organization to purchase a project from a limited-dividend mortgagor. In such a case, the Secretary would be authorized to insure the purchaser's mortgage in an amount not exceeding the appraised value of the property at the time of purchase, thereby making it possible for the cooperative or nonprofit organization to borrow, under a single mortgage, the funds needed to obtain ownership, while enabling the limited-dividend seller to realize a net amount out of the sales proceeds in many cases sufficient to recover its cash, land, and other investment and to retire the outstanding mortgage. This will be especially useful in connection with the goal of attracting large amounts of private-equity money into the provision of low and moderate income housing through the establishment of national partnerships (proposed by title VIII of the bill). It will give the limited-dividend mortgagor a ready means of disposing of his project, thereby making his investment more liquid and attractive.

A project insured under this section could include such nondwelling facilities as the Secretary deemed adequate and appropriate to serve the occupants of the project and the surrounding neighborhood, as long as the project was predominantly residential and any nondwelling facilities contributed to the economic feasibility of the project, with due consideration being given to the possible effect of the project's commercial facilites on other business enterprises in the community. The regulations of the Secretary would require that any commercial facilities in the project be rented generally at not less than the prevailing rental in the community for similar facilities. The extra receipts, thus derived from these facilities, would be used to reduce the cost of operating the project and thereby reduce the basic rental charges needed to be established for the project.

Where a project was designed primarily for occupancy by elderly or handicapped families (as defined in section 202 of the Housing Act of 1959), it could include related facilities for use of such families, such as dining, work, recreation, and health facilities.

Individuals of low and moderate income under 62 years of age would be eligible for occupancy in a project, as long as no more than 10 percent of the dwelling units in the project was so occupied. Since the term "elderly or handicapped family" means an individual of 62 or over or a handicapped individual of any age, an unrelated individual living with such an elderly or handicapped individual as a companion or for the purpose of assisting such a person in his daily activities would not count against the 10-percent limitation. In addition, up to 20 percent of the units in any one project could be occupied by tenants receiving rent-supplement benefits under section 101 of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965. The rent supplement for each tenant would be that amount necessary to bring the amount the tenant is able to pay up to the basic rental charge for his unit.

This section would also change the percentage of income a rent supplement tenant must pay toward his rent from 25 percent to 20 percent. As a result, the low or moderate income tenant under the new section 236 program and the low-income tenant under the rent supplement program would be treated comparably in the proportion of their income required to be contributed toward housing expense.

With the approval of the Secretary, a mortgagor could sell the individual dwelling units to low or moderate income purchasers, including elderly or handicapped, and these purchasers could qualify for individual assistance payments under the provisions of the new section 235.

Because of the lower rentals achievable under this program, authority is provided to transfer to, or refinance under, this section, below-market interest rate projects under setcion 221(d)(3) of the National Housing Act which have not been finally endorsed for insurance and projects under section 202 of the Housing Act of 1959 which are still in the development stage or have just been completed.

Mortgages insured under section 236 would be the obligation of the new Special Risk Insurance Fund (proposed by section 104 of the bill).

To provide authorization to assist in the construction or rehabilitation of about an estimated 450,000 units of housing for lower income families over a 3-year period, this section would provide authority to enter into contracts for assistance payments, subject to approval in appropriation acts, in the amount of $75 million annually prior to July 1, 1969. This amount may be increased by $100 million on July 1, 1969, and by $125 million on July 1, 1970.

As under the new section 235, assistance under this new section 236 would be available in both urban and rural areas. However, insofar as the administration of the section in rural areas is concerned, the Secretary would be directed to transfer a reasonable proportion of the contract authority to the Secretary of Agriculture the implementation thereof as agreed upon by the two Secretaries. Appropriations would also be authorized, pursuant to section 903 of the bill, to pay for Agriculture's administrative expenses in connection with any such assignment.

This section would amend section 207 of the Appalachian Regional Development Act of 1965 to permit the loans and grants available under that section to nonprofit sponsors of 221(d)(3) housing in the Appalachian region to be also available to such sponsors under the new section 236. It would also amend section 305(i) of the National Housing Act to permit the same type of construction financing, available under the FNMA special assistance program for 221(d)(3) mortgages, to be available for 236 mortgages.

The success of the new section 236 rental and cooperative housing program will depend to a great extent on local communities taxing projects which will be financed under this program realistically, taking into consideration the intent of these projects to provide housing for low and moderate income families. It has recently come to the committee's attention that similar type projects financed under the FHA 221(d)(3) program have been subjected to high tax assessments inconsistent with the purpose of the program. The committee commends those States which now provide tax abatement and hopes that States and municipalities will exercise restraint in assessing these types of properties and to provide, where possible, for tax abatement and other tax reduction methods which recognize the important purpose of these programs. It therefore urges that the States and their localities take action along these lines so that the effort to provide adequate housing for the Nation's low and moderate income families will be a true joint effort on the part of both the Federal Government and the States and their local governments.

RENT SUPPLEMENT PROGRAM

Section 202 of the bill would make available an additional $40 million in contract authority for rent supplement payments in fiscal year 1970, and an additional $100 million in contract authority in fiscal year 1971.

The final increment of $45 million of contract authority authorization under the rent supplement program provided by the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965 will become available July 1, 1968, bringing to $150 million the cumulative authorization under that act. Through the current fiscal year, $42 million of contract authority has been approved in appropriation acts, leaving $108 million still available. The budget for fiscal year 1969 requests approval of $65 million of contract authority. If this amount is approved, $43 million of the original contract authority authorization will remain available at the end of fiscal year 1969.

The rent supplement program is rapidly acquiring momentum and proving its worth. By the end of fiscal year 1969, 384 rent supplement projects with nearly 27,000 supplemented units located throughout the country are expected to be ready for occupancy. The remaining 18,000 units provided under approved contract authority through fiscal year 1968 are expected to be ready for occupancy in fiscal year 1970. The budget request of $65 million in approved contract authority for fiscal year 1969 would provide about 55,000 units of supplemented housing. The total of $83 million anticipated for fiscal year 1970 would provide about 71,500 units. The requested $100 million for the following year would provide about 82,500 additional units.

The committee feels that the rent supplement program has demonstrated that it is a strong and flexible instrument emphasizing private ownership, private financing, and private management. It has also been strongly endorsed by private industry. The need for a vastly expanded supply of housing for low-income families is well recognized and the administrative procedures for the rent supplement program are now efficiently organized for prompt action to help meet this need.

Section 202 would also authorize rent supplement payments on behalf of qualified tenants to eligible housing owners of projects financed under a State or local program which provided assistance through loans, loan insurance, or tax abatements, if the project is approved by the Secretary for rent supplement benefits prior to the completion of construction or rehabilitation. Under present law, rent supplement payments are restricted to projects financed with mortgages insured under sections 221(d)(3) or 231 of the National Housing Act or projects financed by a direct loan under section 202 of the Housing Act of 1959.

This provision would, in effect, provide for a joint Federal-State-local sharing of the costs of subsidizing rentals for low-income persons. Since it applies only to new construction or rehabilitation, it would be consistent with the purpose of the rent supplement legislation to provide additional housing units for persons of low income in privately sponsored projects.

The committee expects that adequate control over these projects will be maintained by the Secretary through appropriate provisions in the rent supplement contracts to insure conformity with the requirements of the rent supplement program. It also expects the Secretary to exercise his discretion in approving these projects for assistance to assure that the Federal assistance is not made available in connection with projects which receive State or local assistance of little significance in helping to reduce the cost of providing the housing.

Part B—Low-Rent Public Housing

Increased low-rent public housing authorization

Section 203 of the bill would increase the authorization for annual contributions contracts for the low-rent public housing program by $100 million on the date of enactment of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968, to be added to the $47 million coming available on July 1, 1968, and by $150 million on July 1 in each of the years 1969 and 1970.

This increased contract authorization would provide approximately 375,000 low-rent dwelling units over the 3-year period for the public housing program, the basic federally assisted program for supplying housing to the lowest income members of our society. Under the program, there are now in operation about 680,000 units with another 55,000 units under construction or soon to be put under construction.

Major emphasis under this new authorization will be placed on production under the turnkey method, with about half of the units expected to be so provided. Emphasis will also be placed on the leasing of units in existing housing as well as the outright acquisition (with or without rehabilitation) of existing housing. This new authorization will also provide funds to continue the extensive modernization program now being carried out for older existing public housing.

The turnkey method, with its emphasis on the involvement of private enterprise in the production of public housing, has substantially expanded the productive capability of the public housing program. Under this method private developers who own, or have an option to buy land or improved property can contract to build housing on the land, or rehabilitate the property, for eventual sale to a local housing agency. This is the reverse of the standard method under which the housing agency first acquires the property by purchase or eminent domain, has the construction plans and specifications prepared by its own architects, and then has the construction done by general contractors.

Under turnkey, a low-rent project can be constructed in less than half the time traditionally required for public housing. It frees the builder from complicated and cumbersome procedures and stimulates his initiative to develop imaginative and well-designed buildings at a lower cost. The Department of HUD reports that the response of developers and local housing agencies to the turnkey concept has been enthusiastic, as evidenced by the fact that the number of turnkey units in some stage of development increased from 13,000 on January 31, 1967, to over 44,000 by January 31, 1968, with additional units in the application stage. The turnkey concept has already been extended to enable private industry not only to build public housing developments, but also to manage them.

The increased use of existing housing, by way of leasing private accommodations and the acquisition, with or without rehabilitation, of existing housing, has also enhanced the public housing program's ability to provide housing for low-income families in a timely manner. The new leasing program has already produced, as of February 1, 1968, over 30,000 dwelling units under annual contributions contract, about 10,000 of which were occupied or available for occupancy by low-income families. On the same date there were 7,700 acquired units under management.

Applications for public housing, in terms of number of units, are being submitted by local housing agencies at an increasing rate, demonstrating that the demand for public housing units will be great and continuing during the next decade. HUD reports that the number of units in the status of application pending has grown from about 35,000 in February 1966, to 68,000 in February 1967, to 125,000 in February 1968. In addition, there are about 96,000 units in the status of program reservation, and the remaining authorization from the 1965 act will cover only about two-thirds of these. Applications for additional units are being submitted at an annual rate of about 140,000 units.

This authorization will further permit the Department of HUD to accelerate its efforts to provide homeownership opportunities for public housing tenants. Homeownership for the lowest income families on Indian reservations has been achieved through a combination of "sweat equity" in construction, self-maintenance, and public housing assistance. The "turnkey" method has made it possible to secure the participation of private developers in Indian self-help developments and also the production of such housing by a "community action" type organization involving apprenticeship and home maintenance training with Office of Economic Opportunity assistance.

HUD has also undertaken a major effort to shift this type of activity to other than Indian areas where self-help in construction is possible, such as rural areas and smaller communities. Most recently, HUD has developed a further modification of this program for those situations where a significant amount of self-help in construction is not possible. This program would provide homeownership to those low-income families who can build up an equity through self-maintenance of their homes and through payments which they can afford as their incomes increase and which can be applied to reduce the debt on their homes.

Additionally, HUD has been promoting homeownership under the leased housing program by devising methods whereby private owners will be encouraged to provide lease-purchase rights to low-income families. Specific proposals of this type are now under consideration together with related proposals involving cooperative ownership.

This section also would modify the existing authorization for public housing loans. Under existing law, the Department of Housing and Urban Development is authorized to borrow $1,500 million from the Treasury to be used for low-rent housing loans. This ceiling has had the effect of limiting the amount of Federal loan commitments as well as the amount of loans actually disbursed, which does not reflect the fact that loan commitments do not normally result in the disbursement of funds but are used by the local housing agency as a backup to borrow private funds. This section would revise the existing law so as to make it clear that the $1,500 million ceiling would apply only to Federal loans which the Secretary estimates will actually be disbursed, and not to Federal commitments which are not expected to result in actual outlays. This would provide the same flexibility as is presently authorized with respect to urban renewal loan commitments under section 102(e) of the Housing Act of 1949.

It has come to the committee's attention that too often low-rent public housing assisted by the Federal Government is stigmatized in the eyes of its residents and the community by the unfortunate manner in which these housing projects are named. Although the term "project" is a technical term used in the law and by persons working in the field of housing to describe the physical plant of a housing undertaking, the committee believes that it is not necessary to use this term in naming such housing. It would seem quite appropriate to name these housing undertakings in the same way nonsubsidized apartments are named and, thereby, avoid the possible stigmatization that may occur when the word "project" is used. It therefore urges the Department of HUD to encourage all local housing authorities to follow a more imaginative practice in naming the housing financed with assistance under the low-rent public housing program.

UPGRADING MANAGEMENT AND SERVICES IN PUBLIC HOUSING PROJECTS

Section 204 of the bill would authorize the Secretary of HUD to enter into grant contracts with local housing authorities to assist them, where necessary, in upgrading their management activities and providing tenant services to families living in low-rent housing projects, and would authorize appropriations in an amount not to exceed $20 million in fiscal year 1969, and an additional $40 million in fiscal year 1970, for this purpose.

Local housing authorities desiring financial assistance under this authorization would be required to submit applications to the Secretary, and these would be reviewed and acted upon on a case basis. The Secretary would have to be satisfied that the activities and services are needed and are beyond those which the local authority has provided or can provide with project income.

Many local housing authorities have been providing some management-related services to their tenants. However, the extent to which services can be provided is limited by the relatively small amounts of money available from project revenue after other project expenditures have been satisfied, and these underfunded programs have not met the real needs of tenants in improving their economic status and adjusting to urban life. This is especially true in the larger cities where the need for tenant services is the greatest and most urgent. The need for additional services because of the constantly increasing number and concentration of lower income, multiproblem families in public housing has been brought to the committee's attention on several occasions during recent hearings on housing and urban development legislation.

This authorization would provide funds to permit local housing authorities to play a basic role in seeing that coordinated services are provided tenants so as to help them achieve increased self-sufficiency and improvement of their economic and social situation, and facilitate the efficient and effective use of Federal, State, and local community program resources. The funds would be used to fill gaps where needed services are not available to public housing residents. They would also serve as seed money to stimulate the development by the community of new programs which would broaden services to public housing tenants.

Among the services to be provided would be counseling and referral services to advise low-income families and individuals as to the resources for job training and placement, education, welfare, health, and other services in the community, and to refer them to agencies with the appropriate expertise were necessary. Many families are also in need of counseling on such matters as housekeeping and diet practice, money management, and child care.

The local housing authority would work with community agencies and organizations so as to bring their activities and services to public housing neighborhoods. The local authority in turn would provide services which are not being provided by public and private agencies in the community and which are directly related to meeting tenant needs and providing a wholesome living environment, such as organization of youth group activities, senior citizen clubs, and credit unions. These services would not duplicate activities and programs in the community provided under Office of Economic Opportunity or Department of Health, Education, and Welfare sponsorship or other Federal departments and agencies.

This authorization would also permit local housing authorities to participate in activities directly concerned with improved tenant-management relationships. These would include encouraging and assisting tenants with the establishment of resident organizations, involving residents in those aspects of management policies and practices which affect their daily lives, and planning with the tenants a program of community activities and services. Because of the committee's belief that tenant participation is essential to the proper provision of the services and the operation of the programs that would be funded under the amendment, it has provided that preference shall be given to programs providing for the maximum feasible participation of the tenants in the development and operation of the services and programs.

PURCHASE OF UNITS BY TENANTS

Section 205 of the bill would amend section 15(9) of the U.S. Housing Act of 1937 to broaden existing law to permit local housing authorities to sell any low-rent housing units to tenants if such units are suitable for individual ownership. Existing law permits tenants to purchase only detached or semidetached units. This would permit the sale to a public housing tenant of any property owned by a local housing authority so long as the property sold has sufficient individual identity (including cooperative or condominium units) to make it suitable for sale to, and occupancy by, the public housing tenant.

PUBLIC HOUSING IN INDIAN AREAS

Section 206 of the bill would amend the U.S. Housing Act of 1937 so as to permit public housing assistance for Indian families without regard to the present limitation which does not permit public housing programs to include a site which is on a farm or is an appurtenance to a farm. The existing limitation has presented difficulties in connection with conventional low-rent housing and mutual-help housing programs for Indians. Problems have developed concerning the location of a particular housing site, the use to which adjacent land is put, and the means of livelihood of the Indian participants in these programs. In some cases, the present limitation has the effect of permitting the use of certain sites, and prohibiting others, in connection with the same project on an Indian reservation. This amendment is intended to apply to all Indian reservations, whether they be State or National.

LIMITATION ON HIGH-RISE STRUCTURES IN LOW-RENT PUBLIC HOUSING PROJECTS

Section 207 of the bill would provide that the Secretary of HUD shall not approve high-rise, elevator-type, public housing projects under the U.S. Housing Act of 1937 for occupancy by families with children unless he makes a determination that there is no practical alternative to such projects. It is the view of the committee that high-rise, elevator structures provide an undesirable environment for family living and should be developed for families with children only in those situations where site availability or cost considerations preclude the provision of housing which is more suitable for family life. This requirement would not apply to housing predominantly for the elderly, since high-rise structures have proved to be suitable for their needs.

PROHIBITION AGAINST CERTAIN LIMITATIONS ON TYPES OR CATEGORIES OF LOW-RENT HOUSING IN PRIVATE ACCOMMODATIONS

Section 208 of the bill would amend section 23 of the U.S. Housing Act of 1937, concerning the leasing of low-rent housing units in private accommodations, to provide that the regulations of the Secretary of HUD for this program shall impose no limitation on the types or categories of structures of dwelling units which is not specifically provided for in that Act. Specifically this would permit section 23 housing in any area regardless of vacancy factors.

LIMITATION ON NUMBER OF UNITS OF LOW-RENT HOUSING IN PRIVATE ACCOMMODATIONS

Section 209 of the bill would amend the provision in section 23 of the U.S. Housing Act of 1937 concerning the number of low-rent housing units which may be leased per structure in private accommodations. The Act presently provides that not more than 10 percent of the units may be leased in any single structure, except to the extent that the public housing agency, because of the limited number of units in the structure or for any other reason, determines that the limit should not be imposed. This section would change the limit on the number of units which can be leased in a single structure to not more than the lesser of (1) 10 units or 10 percent of the units in the structure, whichever is greater, or (2) 50 percent of the units in the structure. The public housing agency would continue to have authority to determine that the limit should not be imposed with respect to a particular structure. This new formula provides for a more realistic limit on the number of units which may be leased in a single structure. In the case of a 10-unit structure, for example, it would provide for a limit of five units, as compared with the present formula which would provide a limit of one unit.

SALE TO TENANTS OF LOW-RENT HOUSING IN PRIVATE ACCOMMODATIONS

Section 210 of the bill would amend section 23 of the U.S. Housing Act of 1937, concerning the leasing of low-rent housing units in private accommodations, so as to provide HUD with an additional tool in its efforts to provide homeownership oportunities for public housing tenants. Under this section, contracts between HUD and the public housing agency could authorize the local agency to purchase a structure which contains units which the agency has leased under the section 23 program for the purpose of reselling the structure to the tenant or tenants of the structure or to a group of tenants occupying units aggregating at least 80 percent of the structure's total value. Any such resale would be subject to such terms and conditions as may be necessary to enable the tenants involved to make the purchase without undue financial hardship. These could include provision for deferment of the required downpayment and elimination of or adjustment in the required interest payments during a temporary period.

ADDITIONAL SUBSIDY FOR LARGE FAMILIES AND FAMILIES OF UNUSUALLY LOW INCOME

Section 211 of the bill would amend section 10(a) of the U.S. Housing Act of 1937 to authorize payment of a special subsidy of up to $120 per year for public housing dwelling units occupied by large families or families of unusually low income. This is similar to the present special subsidy for the elderly and certain displacees. "Large families" would be defined as those which include four or more minors, and "families of unusually low income" would be defined as those, with incomes below the income level established by the public housing agency (with the approval of HUD), who could not be housed without the additional subsidy.

The section would also modify the conditions which govern payment of the special subsidy for the elderly and displaced families and the new subsidy for large families and families of unusually low income. Subsidy payments would continue to be subject to the basic condition that the subsidy can be paid only where necessary to operate the project on a solvent basis. The additional condition that the subsidy be necessary to lease a unit to the family at a rent it can afford would be eliminated, as would the requirement that the payment for displacees not exceed the difference between the average rent paid by displacees and the rent charged other families.

This amendment would enable local housing authorities to respond to the housing needs of low-income families with many children and those with unusually low incomes. Increasing attention has been focused on the problems of families, especially those with many children, who are denied admission to public housing because their incomes are too low. Although there are no minimum limits in the program, overall rental income for a project must generally be sufficient to cover all the operating expenses. As a result, there is a limit on the number of unusually low-income families and large families who can be admitted to public housing. The rents that can be paid by such families are frequently less than the amount required to cover their proportionate share of operating expenses. Without some additional assistance, there would have to be other low-income families in the project whose income would permit them to pay rents sufficiently high to offset the deficiency created by these large families and those of unusually low income. Many local housing authorities are finding it increasingly difficult to maintain the financial solvency of their public housing programs with the existing subsidies. These changes would better enable them to provide the housing needed.

It has come to the attention of the committee that in a number of large housing projects security guards are provided as part of the project management. However, these efforts to provide for the safety of the project and its occupants are often hampered by a lack of financial resources on the part of the local authority. The additional subsidy available under this section and, to the extent appropriate, the additional subsidy under section 204 of the bill, should help local authorities in providing these services.

Title III—Federal Housing Administration Insurance Operations

MORTGAGE INSURANCE PREMIUMS FOR SERVICEMEN AND THEIR WIDOWS

Section 301 of the bill would amend section 222 of the National Housing Act to permit payment of FHA mortgage insurance premiums by the Secretary of Defense or the Secretary of Transportation (for the Coast Guard) in cases where a serviceman assumes a home mortgage previously insured under any other provision of the National Housing Act. Under present law, a serviceman may receive this benefit only when he purchases a home and places a new mortgage on it under the provisions of section 222.

Under this section, a serviceman would be able to receive the benefits of section 222 and, in many cases, also be able to take advantage of lower closing costs, since the closing costs charged when assuming an existing mortgage are usually lower than those charged when the purchaser must originate a new mortgage. Also, the existing mortgage may carry an interest rate more favorable than that obtainable by taking out a new loan.

In addition, this section would also direct the Secretary of Defense or the Secretary of Transportation to continue making the premium payments for a widow of a serviceman who dies in the service for two years after his death or until she sells the house, whichever occurs sooner. The Secretaries would be directed to notify promptly the widow of the increased cost she would have to bear upon the termination of the payment of the insurance premium at the end of the 2-year period.

MODIFICATIONS IN TERMS OF INSURED MORTGAGES COVERING MULTIFAMILY PROJECTS

Section 302 of the bill would add a new section 239 to the National Housing Act to require that any request for the extension of time for curing a default on an FHA-insured multifamily mortgage, or a modification of the terms of such a mortgage, be approved by the Secretary of HUD in accordance with regulations prescribed by him. During the period of modification or extension any rents or other funds (such as security deposits) derived from the mortgaged property in excess of that needed to meet operating expenses would be required to be held in trust by the mortgagor and distributed only with the consent of the Secretary.

This section is designed to discourage distribution of rental income of multifamily projects to stockholders of a mortgagor corporation or individual owners where such income should be used to meet mortgage payments. Where it is thought that a mortgage property probably will not generate enough income to meet mortgage payments, there is a temptation for the owners to divert funds received from rentals to their own use and to allow the mortgage to go into default in order to recoup their investment in the project and even to show a profit in the investment.

Civil actions have generally proven inadequate as a means of discouraging such actions or of recovering all diverted funds. Section 239 would provide criminal penalties for such willful diversion of funds by a mortgagor or a stockholder, director, officer, or agent of the mortgagor during the period in which the time for curing a default has been extended or the terms of the mortgage modified. The maximum penalty would be a fine of not more than $5,000 or imprisonment of not more than 3 years, or both.

The Secretary in his regulations could provide for granting consent to an extension or modification of a mortgage in any case or class of cases without regard to the requirements of the regulations where he determined such action would not jeopardize the interests of the United States. However, in the case of such exempt mortgages, the knowing and willful use, or authorization of such use, of any part of the rents or other funds derived from the mortgaged property for any purpose other than to meet actual and necessary expenses (including amortization) while the mortgage is in default would carry a similar penalty.

CONDOMINIUMS

Section 303 of the bill would amend section 234(c) of the National Housing Act to provide the same downpayment requirements and maximum mortgage limitations for the FHA condominium program as are currently in effect under the regular section 203 home mortgage insurance program. This would be done by increasing the maximum mortgage limits from 75 to 80 percent of the appraised value of the property in excess of $20,000. It would also amend section 234(f) to permit blanket mortgages to cover four or more family units instead of the present limitation to five or more units.

In addition, section 303 would further amend section 234(c) to authorize FHA insurance for the individual units in a condominium project with two to 11 dwelling units without requiring that the project be first covered by an FHA-insured project mortgage. Condominium ownership has proven to be a useful and flexible tool in providing homeownership opportunities and in the upgrading of deteriorated housing in older neighborhoods. This amendment would facilitate its usefulness by authorizing insurance for condominium units in small projects without the expense of an unnecessary project mortgage and dual title transfer.

INSURANCE OF LOANS FOR PURCHASE OF FEE SIMPLE TITLE FROM LESSORS

Section 304 of the bill would add a new section 240 to the National Housing Act to authorize FHA to insure loans made by private lending institutions to finance the purchase by homeowners of fee simple title to the property on which their homes are located.

In Hawaii and in other States some homeowners have only long-term leaseholds in the property on which their homes are located. Many of these homeowners would like to purchase the fee simple title but find it difficult to finance the purchase. Unless they are able to pay cash, it is usually necessary for them to refinance their existing home mortgages or place second mortgages on their homes, either of which entails additional expenses and frequently higher interest rates than on first mortgages.

FHA insurance of loans for the purchase of fee simple title, as authorized by this section, would provide a source of credit to homeowners at reasonable costs and obviate the need for refinancing of an existing mortgage. Loans insured under this section could not exceed the lesser of $10,000 or an amount which, when added to any outstanding indebtedness related to the property, would create a total outstanding indebtedness not exceeding the amount of an insured first mortgage under section 203(b) which would be used to purchase the home if the entire property were being purchased. The term of the loan could not exceed 20 years, and the loan would bear interest at a rate not to exceed that which the Secretary of HUD finds necessary to meet market conditions; but in no event in excess of 6 percent. However, pursuant to the provisions of section 315, which would amend Public Law 90–301, recently passed by the Congress, the Secretary would be authorized up to October 1, 1969, to set the interest rate in excess of 6 percent if he deemed it necessary in order to meet the mortgage market.

This section would also amend section 5(c) of the Home Owners Loan Act of 1933 to permit Federal savings and loan associations to invest in these loans.

EXTENSION OF 221(D)(2) SALES HOUSING PROGRAM FOR TWO-, THREE-, AND FOUR-FAMILY RESIDENCES TO ALL LOW AND MODERATE INCOME FAMILIES

Section 305 of the bill would authorize mortgage insurance under section 221(d)(2) of the National Housing Act for the purchase by low or moderate income families of two-, three-, and four-family residences where one of the units is to be occupied by the mortgagor. Under present law, only families holding certificates of eligibility as displaced persons are eligible for mortgage insurance under section 221(d)(2) for such residences.

A large number of two- to four-family properties are available in older neighborhoods of many cities which could appropriately be rehabilitated or offered for sale to low and moderate income families under the favorable terms of section 221(d)(2). This amendment would augment the supply of housing available to such families. In addition, ownership of these properties by occupant families would provide a more stabilizing influence in arresting the decline of older neighborhoods than would absentee ownership.

REMOVAL OF DIVIDEND RESTRICTION FOR NONDWELLING FACILITIES IN SECTION 221 PROJECTS

Section 306 of the bill would remove the requirement that mortgagors of section 221 market interest rate multifamily projects located in urban renewal areas waive the right to receive dividends on their equity investment in the portion of the project devoted to community and shopping facilities where these facilities are designed to serve the needs of others than residents of the project. The dividend restriction would continue to be applicable with respect to the investment in such facilities for section 221 below-market interest rate projects in urban renewal areas.

Under present law, projects insured under section 221 of the National Housing Act may include commercial and community facilities adequate to serve the occupants of the project. If a 221 project is located in an urban renewal area, nondwelling facilities are permitted to the extent considered desirable and consistent with the urban renewal plan. This permits commercial and community facilities adequate in size to serve the neighborhood, rather than just the occupant of the project, and is consistent with the nondwelling facilities permissible for projects insured under section 220 of the National Housing Act. If these larger facilities are developed as a part of the project, the mortgagor is required, under present law, to waive its right to receive dividends on the equity invested in the community and shopping facilities.

The amendment would encourage the construction of market-interest rate projects, the type of projects eligible for rent supplement benefits, with the type of nonresidential facilities that are needed to serve the urban renewal area in which the project is located. The nondwelling facilities could include stores, doctors' offices and clinics, recreational, community, and other facilities. By including such nondwelling facilities as part of the housing project, employment opportunities for project and neighborhood residents would be increased. Also, modern community and shopping facilities could be provided that are not available in the neighborhood.

Deleting the restriction on receipt of dividends would not affect the authority of the FHA to establish maximum rents and charges for commercial and community space in such projects. Also, the requirement that the FHA give due consideration to the possible effect of the project on other business enterprises in the community would remain in effect where the nondwelling facilities proposed were in excess of that considered adequate to serve the occupants of the project.

SUPPLEMENTAL LOAN PROGRAM FOR PROJECTS FINANCED WITH FHA INSURED MORTGAGES

Section 307 of the bill would add a new section 241 to the National Housing Act to permit the Secretary of HUD to insure supplemental loans to finance improvements, repairs, and additions to multifamily rental projects (including nursing homes and housing for the elderly) and group practice facilities financed with an FHA-insured mortgage. This financing would supplement existing insured mortgages and would be available without refinancing the existing mortgage. Similar authority is now contained in sections 213(j) with respect to cooperative housing and 220(h) with respect to properties in urban renewal areas.

The FHA-insured supplemental loans would be limited to 90 percent of the Secretary's estimate of the value of the required improvements, repairs, and additions, and to an amount which, when added to the outstanding balance of the existing mortgage, did not exceed the basic mortgage limitation of the program under which the project was financed. The loans would bear interest at such rate as the Secretary of HUD found necessary to meet market conditions, but not in excess of 6 percent. However, pursuant to the provisions of section 315, which would amend Public Law 90–301, recently passed by the Congress, the Secretary would be authorized, up to October 1, 1969, to set the interest rate in excess of 6 percent if he deemed it necessary to meet the mortgage market. Construction financed by these loans would be governed by the labor standards provisions of section 212 of the National Housing Act applicable, at the time the commitment to insure the supplemental loan is issued, to the program under which the mortgage covering the project or facility is insured.

In connection with improvements to either a nursing home or a group practice facility, the supplemental loan proceeds would also be available for financing equipment to be used in operating the home or facility. These are the only two programs in which equipment items are permitted to be financed with the proceeds of the basic mortgage under which the project is originally developed. (Sec. 314 of this bill contains an amendment adding this authority for nursing homes.)

The insurance on these loans would be the obligation of the general insurance fund, except for loans for cooperative projects insured under section 213 and loans for the new rental and cooperative projects insured under section 236 (proposed by sec. 201 of the bill). In the former case, the insurance would be the obligation of the cooperative management housing insurance fund, and, in the latter case, the obligation of the new special risk insurance fund (proposed by sec. 104 of the bill).

The committee believes that the need for providing a flexible program of supplemental financing, available to all FHA-financed projects, has amply been demonstrated. Experience gained through the operation of the nursing homes program has indicated that nursing homes, which were initially restricted in size and facilities by limitations imposed either by State authorities or by FHA at the time the projects were built, need to expand their space and facilities to meet changing conditions. Present FHA provisions offer no assistance for financing the expansion of a nursing home that has proven a need for larger facilities, unless this can be done as a part of a plan for the complete rehabilitation of the project and a refinancing of the existing mortgage. In many instances, a complete rehabilitation of the nursing home is not needed, while the refinancing of the existing mortgage could result in a higher interest rate for the total indebtedness. It is anticipated that similar problems will occur with the mortgage insurance program for group practice facilities as soon as more operating experience is gained under the program.

There is also a need for providing, through a supplemental loan, long-term financing for the major new items of equipment needed for placing in operation an addition to either a nursing home or a group practice facility. Nursing home and medical equipment is highly expensive. If a provision for its financing is not included in the long-term supplemental loan, short-term financing would have to be used with large monthly payments.

HOME IMPROVEMENT LOANS—INCREASE IN MAXIMUM MATURITY, FINANCE CHARGE, AND LOAN AMOUNT

Section 308 of the bill would increase the present maximum dollar limitation on property improvement loans made by financial institutions insured under title I of the National Housing Act for single family and other properties from $3,500 to $5,000 and the maximum maturity limitation from 5 years and 32 days to 7 years and 32 days. The maximum finance charge on loans up to $2,500 would be changed from a discount of $5 to $5.50 per $100 of original face amount, and for that portion of a loan above $2,500 the discount permitted would be changed from $4 to $4.50 per $100.

The $3,500 limit has been in effect since 1956 and the increase in maximum loan amount to $5,000 is needed to meet the increasing cost of home repair and modernization work. Extending the payment period to 7 years and 32 days will enable needed repairs to be made by homeowners who could not afford the monthly payments required by the shorter term. The increase in discount rate is required to meet money market conditions under which lenders no longer find title I lending as attractive as making similar loans at higher rates on an uninsured basis. From 1956 to 1966 the annual number of FHA title I loans decreased 52 percent, although during this same period the number of owner-occupied single family homes increased by 25 percent.

The new discount rates of $5.50 and $4.50 would be well under rates now charged for non-FHA insured property improvement loans. Lending institutions which have ceased making title I loans in favor of conventional loans are charging an average of $6 to $7 discount.

FHA helps the homeowner avoid incompetent and unreliable contractors by compiling and furnishing insured lenders a list of contractors who have conducted their activities improperly. When a homeowner complains that work is not done right, FHA has been successful in practically all cases in getting the contractor to correct it where the complaint is shown to be justified. In addition to FHA's administrative procedure for effectively dealing with the unreliable contractor, any alleged criminal irregularity on the part of a contractor or salesman is investigated by the FBI and appropriate action is taken by the Department of Justice.

EXPERIMENTAL HOUSING PROGRAM

Section 309 of the bill would amend section 233 of the National Housing Act, the FHA experimental housing program, to make the program available for use in connection with all FHA programs. At present, section 233 is available only with respect to properties and projects meeting the requirements of one of the other sections of title II of the National Housing Act. The experimental housing program would now be authorized to be used in connection with land development projects or group practice facilities where the mortgages are insured under titles X and XI, respectively, which were enacted subsequent to section 233.

The FHA experimental housing program was added by the Housing Act of 1961. This program has enabled the FHA to underwrite and encourage a number of useful and highly successful experiments in new housing design and construction, in the rehabilitation of older housing, and in the use of different types of building materials. The pace of development of ideas for new and different housing has increased very rapidly during the past few months and the FHA is becoming increasingly involved in experimental projects. The construction and associated industries have begun to realize the extent of the housing problem faced by most of our major cities and are now seeking new techniques for resolving this problem.

TERM OF FHA-INSURED MORTGAGES FOR LAND DEVELOPMENT

Section 310 of the bill would amend section 1002(d)(1) of the National Housing Act to extend the maximum maturity for land development project mortgages from 7 to 10 years. This will provide an extra period of amortization for those occasional land development projects where a longer mortgage maturity may be needed, while still keeping the term of the mortgage within a reasonable period in relation to the type of land development normally financed under this program.

REHABILITATED MULTIFAMILY PROJECTS IN URBAN RENEWAL AREAS

Section 311 of the bill would amend sections 220 and 221 of the National Housing Act to permit FHA mortgage insurance under these sections to be made available for the purchase of multifamily structures which have been rehabilitated by a local public agency under the authority which would be provided by the proposed amendment (under sec. 404 of the bill) to section 110(c)(8) of the Housing Act of 1949. Mortgages to finance the purchase of the properties could also be insured under the new section 236 of the National Housing Act (proposed by sec. 201 of the bill).

Under the present law, FHA mortgage insurance for multifamily structures is available only in connection with properties which are newly constructed or substantially rehabilitated subsequent to the issuance of a commitment for mortgage insurance by FHA. This limitation, which would deny FHA mortgage insurance to multifamily properties rehabilitated under the proposed amendment to section 110(c)(8) of the Housing Act of 1949, would substantially impede the marketability of these rehabilitated properties.

There is no need to apply this standard FHA statutory limitation against insuring mortgages on existing multifamily properties, since the rehabilitation will be carried out by the local public agency pursuant to standards similar to FHA-financed rehabilitation and under requirements established by HUD in connection with the urban renewal program. Rehabilitation work performed by private contractors will also be subject to the same labor requirements as apply to FHA-financed work.

MISCELLANEOUS HOUSING INSURANCE

Section 312 of the bill would make five technical amendments to section 223 of the National Housing Act to permit refinancing of a FHA mortgage insured under any section or title of the National Housing Act as well as insurance of an FHA mortgage assigned to the Secretary or executed in connection with a sale of an acquired property under any section or title of the Act. Under present law this authority is limited to specific sections enumerated in section 223, and must be amended each time a new section is added to the National Housing Act. It would also permit payment in cash of an insurance claim, instead of just debentures, in connection with a mortgage assigned to the Secretary or a mortgage executed in connection with the sale of an acquired property. This latter amendment would make this provision consistent with the rest of the FHA program.

Section 312 would also amend section 223(d) to permit an insured project loan covering a 2-year operating loss to bear interest at the current rate in effect at the time of its insurance, instead of at the time of the original mortgage loan. It would also establish the debenture interest rate applicable to the insurance settlement on such loan at the rate in effect at the time the commitment to insure the loan was issued or the date the loan was endorsed for insurance, whichever rate is the highest.

Under the present provision, the loan covering the 2-year operating loss is limited to the interest rate of the original mortgage and the debentures issued in an insurance settlement on such a loan bear interest at the same rate as those issued in connection with the original loan.

With the recent increase in interest rates, lenders have become extremely reluctant to grant a loan to cover a 2-year operating loss on a project where this additional loan is limited to the interest rate of the original loan. This amendment is necessary in order to make mortgage money available for this type of loan. These loans serve the essential function of providing a project that has experienced losses during the first 2 years of operation an opportunity to readjust its books and pay off the loss over the remaining term of the mortgage. This loan can mean the difference between success or failure for a project that has achieved a sustaining level of occupancy, but has accumulated an operating loss during its early years.

SUPPLEMENTARY LOANS FOR COOPERATIVE HOUSING PURCHASED FROM THE FEDERAL GOVERNMENT

Section 313 of the bill would amend section 213(j) of the National Housing Act to authorize mortgage insurance for supplementary loans to housing cooperatives which purchased wartime housing, covered by an uninsured mortgage for part of the purchase price, from the Federal Government. Where the mortgage on the property is dated more than 20 years prior to the date of the commitment to insure and the loan is for major rehabilitation or modernization, as determined by the Secretary, the loan may have a maturity date not more than 10 years in excess of the remaining term on the uninsured mortgage.

These supplementary loans could be made for the same purposes as supplementary loans made to cooperatives with mortgages insured under section 213—improvements or repairs to the property; community facilities necessary to serve the occupants; and financing for resales of memberships. The same terms would apply as to regular 213 cooperatives, except for the amendment with respect to the maturity of the loan.

The uninsured mortgages on these properties are now held by FNMA under its management and liquidating operation and carry interest rates far below those currently available. These cooperatives are unable to obtain conventional loans for the purposes for which a supplementary loan could be made without refinancing the mortgages so as to give the lender a first lien. FHA insurance of supplementary loans would provide financing for these desirable purposes without necessitating the refinancing of the entire mortgage at an unfavorable interest rate.

EQUIPMENT IN NURSING HOMES

Section 314 of the bill would amend section 232 of the National Housing Act to permit the cost of major items of equipment needed to operate a nursing home to be included in the insured mortgage. Similar authority is presently provided for group practice facilities under title XI of the National Housing Act.

Major items of equipment such as hospital-type beds and other necessary hospital-type equipment and expensive X-ray and therapy equipment are essential items to the operation of a nursing home. Under present provisions, these items are financed independently of FHA-insured mortgages under separate, short-term loans which of-Under present provisions, these items are financed independently of the equipment to operate the project, a mortgagor encountering any difficulty in meeting loan payments is inclined to be more concerned with making payments on the short-term loans covering equipment items than in meeting mortgage payments, because the equipment will be removed if the loans are not maintained in a current status. This operates to the disadvantage of the mortgagee and the FHA, because it may result in a default under the mortgage which might not have occurred if the mortgagor had been able to finance the various equipment items under the blanket FHA insured mortgage with the advantage of the longer term and lower financing charges incident to the FHA mortgage financing.

Financing the equipment items under the blanket FHA insured mortgage would be desirable in another way. Under present provisions, the FHA has been faced with the problem of taking over nursing homes in which the equipment is not covered by the FHA-insured mortgage and is subject to chattel mortgages or conditional sales contracts. This has necessitated the FHA either paying off the existing loan on equipment located in the project at the time it takes over the project or buying new equipment to replace that taken over by the finance company.

The committee wishes to emphasize that this provision would apply only to costly, major items of equipment which are necessary to the continued operation of a nursing home, and not to such items as normal housekeeping equipment and items of furniture.

FLEXIBLE INTEREST RATES FOR CERTAIN FHA INSURANCE PROGRAMS

Section 315 of the bill would amend Public Law 90–301 to permit the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development to establish a maximum interest rate, for five new mortgage insurance programs authorized by this bill, at the level which he believes necessary to meet market conditions. Public Law 90–301 provided authority to the Secretary, until October 1, 1969, to establish the interest rate ceilings on certain FHA insurance programs at such rates as he believes necessary to meet market conditions, without regard to the statutory ceilings applicable to those programs. This amendment, which would apply to the new programs of insurance for rental and cooperative housing for low and moderate income families (proposed by sec. 201), for loans to acquire fee simple title by lessors (proposed under sec. 305), for supplemental loans for multifamily projects (proposed by sec. 308), and for nonprofit hospitals (proposed by title XII), as well as to the authorization for mortgage insurance for nonprofit organizations under the new section 235(j)(1) (proposed in sec. 101), would be consistent with the intent of the Congress in passing Public Law 90–301.

SALE OF REHABILITATION UNITS IN MULTIFAMILY STRUCTURES

Section 316 of the bill would expand the category of rehabilitated units eligible under the section 221(h) program for sale to low-income families with mortgages bearing a below-market interest rate (presently 3 percent). Under present law, the blanket mortgage to the nonprofit sponsor must cover five or more single-family dwellings of detached, semidetached, or row construction. This section would reduce the minimum number of units to four, permit two-family dwellings where one unit is to be occupied by the owner, and would also make eligible, under a condominium ownership plan, projects involving four or more one-family units in a multifamily structure.

Under the section 221(h) program only deteriorating or substandard housing is eligible for rehabilitation and sale to low-income families. In many neighborhoods, however, such housing consists predominantly of multifamily and two-family rather than single-family structures. The committee believes that these amendments would enable the purposes of the section 221(h) program to be carried out more effectively.

HOUSING IN OUTLYING AREAS

Section 317 of the bill would amend section 203(i) of the National Housing Act to increase from $12,500 to $15,000 the maximum mortgage amount that can be insured by FHA on single-family homes in outlying, semirural and rural areas. This provision authorizes the Secretary of HUD to insure mortgages on such homes without regard to all of the requirements that normally apply to FHA's regular home mortgage insurance program, where he finds it is not practicable to obtain conformity with these requirements because of the location of the property in such areas. Instead, the Secretary is authorized to insure the property if it is an acceptable risk giving consideration to the need of providing adequate housing for families of low and moderate income in these areas. The increase in the maxmum mortgage amount recognzes the rising costs of construction, building materials, and land development that have occurred in the past several years and establishes the same maximum as would be authorized as a basic maximum for the new homeownership program proposed by section 101 of the bill.

Title IV—Urban Renewal

NEIGHBORHOOD DEVELOPMENT PROGRAM

Section 401 of the bill would add a new part B to title I of the Housing Act of 1949, which would authorize the Secretary of HUD to provide financial assistance to local public agencies to assist them in carrying out neighborhood development programs. A neighborhood development program would consist of urban renewal project undertakings and activities in one or more urban renewal areas that are planned and carried out on the basis of annual increments. The requirements governing these undertakings and activities would be similar to those governing the provision of Federal financial assistance for regular urban renewal projects, both residential and nonresidental, now provided for under title I.

Under the existing urban renewal program, a community determines the boundaries of an area needing urban renewal. Then it applies for survey and planning funds to prepare a detailed plan for renewal of the area. Upon approval of the plan, Federal loans and grants become available to carry out the renewal activities set forth in the plan. This system has worked effectively in areas for which it is possible to prepare an urban renewal plan with assurance that the activties taking place over the several years following preparation of the plan can be expected to fit into that plan without serious change.

In recent years, many cities have found that it is not always best to deal with blight in terms of complete treatment of small areas one at a time. These communities have large residential areas with relatively evenly distributed deterioration and blight. The present urban renewal program, with its requirement for detailed and complete planning, is not structured to deal with these problems in the most effective manner.

A key element of the new neighborhood development program is its focus on the staging and timing of activities in order to achieve systematic accomplishments. The program will permit annual renewal activities that will result in net achievements in and of themselves. Under this system, there need be no real lag between the decision that an area is in serious physical condition and the beginning of actual activities to correct these conditions. It will permit more rapid and effective rehabilitation and development activities to take place on the basis of a broad plan specifying major land uses, density of development, and the public facilities proposed for the area.

Plans governing the physical activities would be flexible, and changed circumstances or needs would not require the scrapping of prematurely prepared detailed plans. Under this approach, rehabilitation activities can proceed along with public improvements, and detailed planning and scheduling of subsequent activities would proceed simultaneously with actual development in the area.

A local public agency would be able to carry out flexible programs of immediate benefit to the neighborhood. For example, property owners could begin to carry out the task of rehabilitation, the local government could begin to construct needed public facilities, private developers could begin to create new housing or places of employment, and the local public agency could undertake all appropriate activities otherwise eligible under title I, before every detail of a final overall plan has been completed.

Under the neighborhood development program, the contract for loan or capital grant for the annual increment of a program could cover activities in several contiguous or noncontiguous urban renewal areas, and the funding would be based on the amount of loan and grant funds needed to carry out the activities planned during a 12-month period in each of the urban renewal areas contained in the community's program. Thus, it has the advantage of utilizing urban renewal funds to meet current activities, in contrast to the procedure under the present program of reserving funds several years in advance of needs. There would be no obligation to fund beyond the immediate 12-month period for which a contract has been entered into, but, if funds were available and a community's program was acceptable to the Secretary, the community could anticipate receiving financial assistance based on its needs for subsequent annual increments of its program. It would also be possible to reserve the funds estimated to be needed for the succeeding year when the contract for the present year is entered into.

Although there would be a computation of project cost at the end of each 12-month period, financial settlement at the end of the period may not be possible because of the inability in that period to dispose of all the land acquired during the year or to complete or place under contract all public improvements planned for that year. In such cases, any loans outstanding would be continued until all moneys due to be received under the contract for that year are received, or, in the alternative, the carried over financial items may be merged with the financing for a subsequent increment. If the proceeds from land sold by the public agency and land retained by it for use in accordance with the urban renewal plan exceed the total project cost for any annual period, the local agency would be required to pay to the Secretary two-thirds of the excess, or three-fourths in the case of a program on that grant basis.

Local grants-in-aid would generally be calculated as they are under the present urban renewal program. However, the determination of their eligibility would be based on whether their construction started no more than 3 years (under sec. 110(d)) prior to the authorization by the Secretary of the first contract for financial assistance under a community's program which includes the urban renewal area which is benefited by the public improvement or facility for which credit is claimed; or 7 years (under sec. 112(b) relating to colleges and hospitals) prior to the date of authorization by the Secretary of the first contract for financial assistance under the program which includes the urban renewal area which is benefited by the expenditures for which credit is claimed. A noncash grant-in-aid would only be eligible for inclusion in computing the gross project cost of a program for any 12-month period, if its construction has commenced and only to the extent of the amount actually expended or obligated by contract.

In addition, there would be a provision to prevent pooling of excess noncash grant-in-aid credits from a neighborhood development program with other urban renewal projects being carried out by a community. However, any excess grant-in-aid credit from regular urban renewal projects could be pooled for the benefit of a neighborhood development program. Also noncash credits which are in excess of what is needed for any annual increment would be available to be applied toward the local share of the cost of subsequent annual increments.

As for presently authorized urban renewal projects, a workable program for community improvement would have to be in existence (at the date of authorization of a contract for financial assistance for each annual increment); the present relocation requirements would apply to each annual increment; the local approval and public hearing requirements would have to be met; and FHA mortgage insurance under section 220 of the National Housing Act would be available for housing constructed or rehabilitated in the area covered by a neighborhood development program. Since planning and project execution activities in most cases would be taking place simultaneously especially in the early years of a program, the Secretary would be authorized to permit the urban renewal plan to cover one or more of the urban renewal areas embraced by a program and to allow the plan to meet such requirements as to scope and content as he deems appropriate, taking into consideration the degree of detail needed in the plan to carry out properly and expeditiously the activities and undertakings proposed in any annual increment.

This new program does not imply the elimination of the present urban renewal approach. It will remain available to localities wishing to use it. The present approach will still be essential for those projects where significant changes in land use require assurance that the project is planned and undertaken as a single enterprise.

The new program will provide communities with a means of more closely tying in their renewal activities with their capital improvement programing and the annual allocation of their budgeted resources to meet their most pressing needs. It will enable them to deal better with the large areas that must be handled as a totality so that needed public improvements can be installed early throughout the area while planning proceeds.

Families displaced from one portion of the area can be relocated into good housing provided for them in another part of the area. Many of these areas will be neighborhoods covered under the model cities program and the added flexibility provided by this approach should enable closer coordination of that program with the urban renewal program.

INCREASED AUTHORIZATION

Section 402 of the bill would increase the amount of grant funds available for urban renewal and other title I activities by $1.4 billion on July 1, 1969. An increase of $350 million in the amount of funds available for urban renewal projects in model cities areas is also provided. This latter increase would be available on the date of enactment of this bill.

The title I authorization covers urban renewal projects, urban renewal demonstration programs, code enforcement programs, demolition grants, relocation grants, rehabilitation grants, community renewal programs, the neighborhood development program proposed in section 401, and the interim assistance program proposed in section 412.

This authorization, which would enable the present pattern of advance funding to continue, is essential to meet the existing and prospective demands for title I assistance throughout the Nation. The backlog of urban renewal applications on hand at the end of the last fiscal year included grant requests in excess of $1.75 billion. The number of applications eligible for positive action was somewhat reduced by the imposition of more stringent requirements to meet program objectives by giving priority consideration to those projects which advance national goals responsive to the urgent needs of our cities. These goals are—

1. The conservation and expansion of the housing supply for low and moderate income families.
2. The development of new employment opportunities.
3. The renewal of areas with critical and urgent needs.

Nevertheless, it is now estimated that the backlog at the end of the current fiscal year will be approximately $1.7 billion. Furthermore, based on the number of new communities to adopt workable programs for community improvement and their general practice of applying for urban renewal assistance, it is estimated that approximately 60 such communities will apply annually for title I grants.

This increased authorization, along with the increase in funds available for renewal activities in model cities areas, will enable greater efforts to be made to stop the insidious blight which is overwhelming the older neighborhoods of our cities. It will also permit increased efforts to preserve and increase the supply of low and moderate income housing, in accordance with the 10-year goal to eradicate substandard housing in the Nation.

REHABILITATION GRANTS

Section 403 of the bill would amend section 115 of the Housing Act of 1949 to increase the rehabilitation grant that can be made to low-income homeowners from $1,500 to $3,000.

The proposed increase in the maximum grant from $1,500 to $3,000 will materially serve to diminish the hardships for low-income homeowners, many of whom are elderly, who would be unable otherwise to undertake or complete rehabilitation of their property. Moreover, it will further contribute to a higher level of rehabilitation accomplishment and with it greater neighborhood stability in urban renewal and concentrated code enforcement projects areas. This assistance has been very useful in helping these homeowners retain their homes, when displacment would have been the only other alternative. However, the cost of rehabilitation has been such that $1,500 has proven to be too low in many areas. The $3,000 limit should better enable them to meet current costs for the types of rehabilitation usually required.

The substitution of the term "real property," for the term "structure" now contained in section 115, will also permit the use of grant funds for required rehabilitation relating to aspects of the property other than the dwelling structure itself, such as unsafe walks or driveways, or fences and other structures related to the dwelling, but excluding landscaping not essential to the continued occupancy of the structure.

This section would also expand the scope of the section 115 rehabilitation grant program so as to permit its use with respect to property which is in an area, other than an urban renewal or concentrated code enforcement area, which the local governing body certifies to the Secretary of HUD contains a substantial number of structures in need of rehabilitation. The present provision limits such grants to urban renewal and code enforcement areas.

Grants under the expanded authority could be made, through the utilization of local public agencies where feasible, to otherwise qualified owner-occupants to cover the cost of repairs and improvements necessary to make their dwellings conform to public standards for decent, safe, and sanitary housing, as required by applicable codes.

It would further expand the scope of section 115 of the Housing Act of 1949 to provide for such grants to owners and occupants of property which is uninsurable because of physical hazards. Such property would have to be located in areas which will support long-term values or in which public or private programs give reasonable promise of creating a stable environment. The determination of uninsurability because of physical hazard would be made after an inspection of the premises pursuant to an approved statewide property insurance plan, as provided in the urban property protection and reinsurance program proposed by title X of the bill. The grants would be made to rehabilitate the property to the extent necessary, as determined by the Secretary, to meet reasonable underwriting standards imposed by the plan. This would provide substantial assistance to those low-income homeowners who are unable to finance the repairs which may be required in order to entitle them to property insurance under the program proposed by title X.

The committee expects the Secretary to exercise caution in making these grants to assure that no fraud takes place in connection with them. It also expects him to establish procedures requiring, where appropriate, adequate competition among contractors performing the rehabilitation assisted with these grants, as well as procedures encouraging the use of small contractors.

REHABILITATION IN URBAN RENEWAL AREAS

Section 404 of the bill would amend section 110(c)(8) of the Housing Act of 1949 to remove the present limitations on the acquisition and rehabilitation of residential properties by a local urban renewal agency. Under present law, a local public agency carrying out an urban renewal project may only acquire and rehabilitate, for demonstration purposes, structures containing no more than 100 units or 5 percent of the total residential units in the urban renewal area, whichever is less.

This authority, which was added by the Housing Act of 1961, has permitted local agencies to acquire a limited number of properties and rehabilitate the property to show other property owners how their properties can be brought up to the standards of the urban renewal plan for the area. Once the property has served this purpose, it is sold by the local agency at its fair market value for private use.

To the extent that this authority has been used for demonstration purposes, it has been successful and useful. However, it has pointed up a further need in those urban renewal projects where substantial numbers of residential properties are capable of being rehabilitated, but the owners are either unwilling or unable to rehabilitate the properties themselves. This most often occurs with multifamily structures. In these cases, the local public agency has no choice but to acquire the properties and then attempt to find someone willing to purchase them and undertake the rehabilitation. Frequently such purchasers cannot be found and the property must be demolished.

Too often, salvable properties are removed at a greater total cost to the Federal Government and the local public agency than would occur if the local agency were able to rehabilitate the property and then sell it for its market value. The proposed new authority should help to prevent this from occurring, and thereby preserve many otherwise useful residential properties. Permitting the local public agency to undertake rehabilitation on a larger scale should also bring about more efficient rehabilitation by allowing a large number of units to be worked on together under one contract, thereby hopefully reducing the cost of rehabilitation.

To permit purchasers of multifamily property, rehabilitated pursuant to this authority, to obtain FHA mortgage financing, section 311 of the bill would amend sections 220 and 221 of the National Housing Act to make such properties eligible as explained under section 311. Mortgages insured under the new section 236 of the National Housing Act (proposed by sec. 201 of the bill) could also be placed on these properties. These amendments should significantly assist in the provision of more adequate housing for families of low and moderate income.

DISPOSITION OF PROPERTY FOR LOW AND MODERATE INCOME HOUSING

Section 405 of the bill would amend section 107(a) of the Housing Act of 1949 to make it clear that urban renewal land may be disposed of for low as well as moderate income housing purposes and to permit this disposition to be done by lease as well as by sale. It would also permit land to be sold to a mortgagor qualified under the new FHA 236 program (proposed to be added by sec. 201 of the bill) and to nonprofit organizations under the new FHA 235(j)(1) program (proposed to be added by sec. 101 of the bill), as well as those organizations under FHA's 221(h) program, which will rehabilitate the property and sell it to low or moderate income families or individuals.

These amendments will make more useful the present provisions of this section by giving greater scope to its authorization to sell urban renewal project land at a lower price to encourage the provision of low and moderate income housing. This authority has been an important instrument in encouraging the provision of such housing in urban renewal areas. It will be even more important now when used in conjunction with the new neighborhood development program.

A further amendment would permit the sale or lease of land to any approved purchaser or lessee. This last amendment will permit a private homebuilder to acquire the land for subsequent sale to a low or moderate income home purchaser who will be able to obtain the benefit of the lower price thus made possible.

CAPITAL GRANTS FOR LOW AND MODERATE INCOME HOUSING IN OPEN LAND PROJECTS

Section 406 of the bill would amend section 103(a)(1) of the Housing Act of 1949 to permit grants to be made for urban renewal open land projects (which now only qualify for loans) in an amount not to exceed two-thirds of the difference between the proceeds from any land disposed of at its value for low or moderate income housing (pursuant to the provisions of sec. 107 of the act) and the proceeds which would have been realized if the land had been disposed of at its fair value without regard to the special provisions of section 107.

This provision supplements other provisions of this bill designed to achieve a substantial increase in the volume of low and moderate income housing. Obtaining sites for such housing developments is becoming increasingly difficult in many of our urban areas. This amendment will encourage local public agencies to make land within urban renewal open land projects available for the development of low and moderate income housing. At the present time, without Federal grant assistance, there is no incentive to the local public agency to sell the land at the lower price frequently needed if the land is to be used for low and moderate income housing purposes.

This amendment would place a local public agency, selling land within an open land project for low and moderate income housing purposes, on the same footing as a local public agency selling land for such purposes within other types of urban renewal projects. In these other projects, the difference in land receipts increases the project's cost by that much. This increase is shared two-thirds by the Federal Government and one-third by the local agency. Since no grants are presently permitted for open land projects, there is no way this difference can be shared. By authorizing a Federal grant for two-thirds of this difference, parity is established in this important area.

URBAN RENEWAL LOAN CONTRACTS

Section 407 of the bill would amend section 102(c) of the Housing Act of 1949 to permit a local public agency, with consent of the Secretary of HUD, to borrow funds to finance project undertakings on the private market at an interest rate in excess of the Federal lending rate set out in its loan contract with the Government. The full difference between the interest cost on the private market and the interest cost at which the local public agency could have borrowed from the Federal Government under its loan contract would be made up by a supplemental grant from the Government. A local public agency following this procedure, and thereby amending its loan contract for this purpose, would not be governed by the provisions of section 110(g) of such Act which require all loan contracts (originally executed prior to September 2, 1964) on their first amendment after that date to have incorporated in them a provision for periodic revision of the Federal lending rate.

This amendment is necessary to assure that local public agencies (whose loan contracts were executed prior to September 2, 1964, and have not been amended to provide for periodic revision of the interest rate) continue to secure their loan funds from private sources. Recent experience in the sale of preliminary loan notes indicates that interest rates on the private market may exceed the interest rates specified in the loan contracts of these local agencies, most of which were entered into prior to the present high interest rates. If that occurs, they would be precluded from borrowing on the private market and would have to seek their loan funds from the Federal Government. This eventuality would have an undesirable budgetary impact in terms of unanticipated loan disbursements and would place a severe strain on the limited urban renewal borrowing authorization for loans and advances. It is anticipated that the need for this authority would gradually disappear as these older contracts are completed or are amended for some other purpose, at which time section 110(g) would necessitate inclusion of a provision for the periodic revision of the interest rate (now every 6 months).

PROJECT COMPLETION PRIOR TO DISPOSITION OF CERTAIN PROPERTY

Section 408 of the bill would amend section 106 of the Housing Act of 1949 to add a new subsection (i) which would permit the Secretary of HUD to allow an urban renewal project to be closed out where: (1) Not more than 5 percent of the total acquired land remains to be disposed; (2) the local public agency does not expect to be able, due to circumstances beyond its control, to dispose of that land in the near future; (3) all other project activities are completed; and (4) the local public agency has agreed to dispose of or retain such land in the future for uses in accordance with the urban renewal plan. It would also amend section 110(f) of that act to include in the amount of land proceeds, for the purpose of computing net project cost, an amount equal to the value of this land not yet disposed.

In a number of instances, HUD reports that its experience has been that final closeouts of urban renewal projects have encountered substantial delays because of the problem of disposing of residual land (slivers), usually occasioned by minor but necessary plan adjustments, such as the realinement of a highway or other minor boundary adjustment. These delays have resulted not only in increased project costs, and therefore increased Federal grants (because of continuing carrying charges and related local administrative costs), but additional administrative costs to the Federal Government as well. In order to stop these costs from running, this amendment would permit the value of the land to be included as part of land proceeds in the computation of net project cost and the final Federal grant to be made accordingly.

REHABILITATION LOANS

Section 409 of the bill would amend section 312 of the Housing Act of 1964 to authorize appropriations in such amount as may be necessary for each fiscal year to be used by the Secretary of HUD as a revolving fund for carrying out the rehabilitation loan program, and to extend the termination date of the program to June 30, 1973. Also, loans for the rehabilitation of property in urban renewal and code enforcement areas could be made for the purpose of generally improving the condition of the property in addition to bringing the property into conformity with applicable code requirements or to assist in carrying out the objectives of the uban renewal plan.

The program would also be expanded in two ways. First, loans would be permitted to be made outside urban renewal and code enforcement areas with respect to owner-occupied, residential property in need of substantial rehabilitation, where the property is located in an area which the governing body of the locality has determined, and so certifies to the Secretary, contains a substantial number of structures in need of rehabilitation. Secondly, loans could be made to owners or tenants of property determined to be uninsurable because of physical hazards disclosed by an inspection carried out pursuant to an approved statewide property insurance plan as provided in the urban property protection and reinsurance program proposed by title X of the bill. A loan in the latter case would be for the purpose of making repairs needed, as determined by the Secretary, to bring the property into conformity with reasonable underwriting standards, but the property would have to be located in an area which the Secretary determines is sufficiently stable and contains sufficient public facilities and amenities to support long-term values, or is one in which public or private actions are being carried out, or are proposed to be carried out, of such scope and quality as to give reasonable promise that a stable environment will be created.

This expanded authorization is comparable to the expansion of the rehabilitation grant program proposed by section 403 of the bill and will, therefore, provide a full range of rehabilitation aids to these property owners. However, the committee expects the Secretary to adopt requirements to assure that these loan funds are not used to carry out extravagant landscaping.

DEMOLITION GRANTS

Section 410 of the bill would expand the demolition grant program, authorized under section 116 of the Housing Act of 1949, to permit grants for the demolition of structures that constitute harborages or potential harborages for rats. Such grants are presently available to assist in demolishing only those structures which are structurally unsound or unfit for human habitation.

The present demolition program has been of great assistance to many cities in clearing out structures which are unsound and unfit for human habitation. These structures are often abandoned and if left standing can help to blight a whole block or neighborhood. Another serious problem involves structures, usually abandoned, which harbor rats or have a definite potential for rat harborage. Under present law, nonresidential structures in this category, which are not structurally unsound, cannot be demolished with assistance under this program.

While this amendment would permit the demolition with Federal assistance of a structure of this nature, whether residential or nonresidential, the committee feels that it should not be used on major structures such as large factories. This demolition could be carried out, as under the present program, on a planned-neighborhood basis or as part of a systematic rodent control program being undertaken in the neighborhood, and might well involve structures such as sheds and garages. It would be subject, however, to all the other present requirements of section 116. The committee expects the Secretary of HUD, in administering this new authority, to only approve the demolition of nonresidential buildings, which are considered to be rat harborages or potential rat harborages, when these nonresidential buildings are in close proximity to residential areas which would be affected by any rats that may be harbored in the buildings. The committee believes that this expansion of the demolition grant program will materially assist communities in carrying out their comprehensive rodent control programs.

AIR-RIGHTS SITES IN URBAN RENEWAL AREAS

Section 411 of the bill would amend section 110 of the Housing Act of 1949 to authorize the carrying out of air-rights urban renewal projects, and the construction of necessary foundations and platforms, for the development of educational facilities. Under present law, these activities may be assisted only when they are for the provision of low or moderate income housing, or, if the site is unsuitable for such housing, for industrial development. As in the case of industrial development, an air-rights project, as well as the construction of foundations and platforms for any urban renewal project at project expense, could only be used for educational facilities if it was unsuitable for low or moderate income housing purposes. The use of such sites for educational facilities could alleviate the difficulties being experienced by many communities in securing suitable locations for new schools.

INTERIM ASSISTANCE FOR BLIGHTED AREAS

Section 412 of the bill would add a new section 118 to title I of the Housing Act of 1949, under which the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development would be authorized to make grants to a city, other municipality, or county to assist it in taking interim steps to alleviate harmful conditions in any slum or blighted area of the community which is planned for substantial clearance, rehabilitation, or federally assisted code enforcement in the near future, but which needs some immediate public action until permanent action can be taken.

The committee has been concerned for some time about the plight of residents and property owners in slum or blighted areas which are planned for clearance, rehabilitation, or code enforcement. It is essential that there be a quicker response to the needs of the residents of these areas. The period between the announcement of planned community action and the time when work begins can be crucial to the viability of these areas. It is during this interim period that the supply of credit in the neighborhood ends, when there are no community improvements, and when further deterioration sets in. This section would permit the community to implement some of the needed public improvements to provide a suitable living environment.

This program would enable communities to undertake such immediate short-term actions as: (1) Repairing serious deficiencies in the streets, sidewalks, parks, playgrounds, publicly owned utilities, and public buildings located in the area to the extent needed to maintain or restore the basic livability of the area until permanent action can be taken (no new construction or major capital improvements would be permitted); (2) the improvement of private properties to the extent needed to eliminate the most immediate dangers to the public health and safety; (3) the demolition of structures deemed unsound or unfit for human habitation and which are a public nuisance and a serious health and safety hazard; (4) establishment of temporary public playgrounds on vacant land such as those lots which have been cleared of unsound structures; and (5) improvement of such public services in the area as garbage and trash collection and street cleaning.

The committee has also included a provision requiring the Secretary to encourage, wherever feasible, the employment of otherwise unemployed or underemployed residents of an assisted area in carrying out the activities and undertakings assisted under the section. In the types of areas in which this program will be undertaken, there exist not only problems of severe physical deterioration, but also numerous human and social problems, including inadequate employment of those living there. The committee believes that these residents should be given an opportunity to be employed in carrying out the federally assisted activities in the area and desires that the Secretary encourage this wherever feasible.

Grants could not exceed two-thirds of the cost of planning and carrying out an interim assistance program, except that three-fourths grants could be made to any community with a population of 50,000 or less according to the most recent decennial census. A community would have to have a workable program for community improvement to qualify for assistance and relocation assistance and payments would be available to anyone displaced as the result of an interim assistance program. The contracts which the Secretary could enter into to make grants under this new authority could not exceed $40 million in any fiscal year.

LOW AND MODERATE INCOME HOUSING IN RESIDENTIAL URBAN RENEWAL AREAS

Section 413 of the bill would repeal the present requirement of section 105(f) of the Housing Act of 1949 that each urban renewal project which is to be redeveloped for predominantly residential uses must include a substantial number (interpreted as 20 percent or more of the units) of standard housing units of low and moderate cost. It would substitute a requirement that a majority (over 50 percent) of the housing units provided in all urban renewal areas in a community to be redeveloped for such residential uses and which receive Federal recognition after the date of enactment shall be standard housing units for low and moderate income families or individuals. Also 20 percent of the units would have to be for low-income families or individuals, but such amount would be countable toward the required majority of units for low and moderate income housing. This would permit the Secretary of HUD to apply the more stringent percentage on an aggregate basis in each community, rather than on a project-by-project basis.

The aggregate basis shall consist of those units in predominately residential urban renewal projects whose plans have been approved by the Secretary with respect to projects which receive Federal recognition after enactment of the bill.

This amendment reflects the committee's concern that the present emphasis in urban renewal on the provision of housing for persons of low or moderate income be continued and reinforced, in view of the urgent need for housing at these levels. While the committee has noted with approval the priority which the Department of Housing and Urban Development has recently established for projects providing such housing, a stronger legislative mandate appears desirable. The existing statutory requirement that a substantial number of standard housing units at this level be included in each urban renewal project redeveloped for predominantly residential uses, with "substantial number" administratively defined to mean at least 20 percent of the units, inadequately reflects both current program requirements and the national need for such housing. The substitute provision is more clearly addressed to the urgency of this need. In order to avoid imposing the new requirement retroactively to some projects previously approved for planning, it would apply only to urban renewal areas receiving Federal recognition after its enactment into law.

In order to make absolutely clear the intent of the committee, it is believed desirable to point out the nature of the colloquy between Messrs. Widnall and Reuss of the committee at the time this provision was adopted. Mr. Widnall, in agreeing to an amendment by Mr. Reuss, stated that the language (as it now appears) was satisfactory to him provided that its effect was not limited to long-range planning and goals. Mr. Reuss indicated that this was absolutely not his intention and that the language, as amended by his proposal and ultimately adopted by the committee, was worded so that this new requirement would apply to a community's approved urban renewal project and that compliance with the requirement was to be measured against production in projects actually started and not against contemplated production in projects in planning.

WORKABLE PROGRAM REQUIREMENT IN CASE OF INDIAN TRIBES

Section 414 of the bill would amend section 101(c) of the Housing Act of 1949 to defer until January 1, 1969, the minimum standards housing code requirements of the workable program as far as Indian tribes are concerned. This provision, added by the Housing Act of 1964, required that, commencing on September 2, 1967, no workable program be certified or recertified unless the locality had in effect, at least 6 months prior to such certification or recertification, a minimum standards housing code deemed adequate by the Secretary of HUD and the Secretary was satisfied that the locality was carrying out an effective program of enforcement to achieve compliance with such code. As applied to Indian tribes, many of which have had little or no experience with housing codes, this requirement has caused considerable difficulty. Because of it, many Indian tribes have been unable to qualify for low-rent public housing assistance, a basic need if they are to be able to provide for the housing needs of those families who will be displaced as a result of effective code enforcement. The committee believes that granting this extension until January 1, 1969, will give most Indian tribes sufficient time to prepare a code and to start enforcing it without unduly penalizing them.

Title V—Urban Planning and Facilities

COMPREHENSIVE PLANNING

Section 501 of the bill would rewrite section 701 of the Housing Act of 1954, which authorizes assistance to States, localities, and other areas for comprehensive development planning. In addition to technical and perfecting amendments, the changes include:

Special Planning Assistance for District Planning Outside Metropolitan Areas

A new category of assistance would be authorized for "district" planning in rural and other areas outside of metropolitan areas. The 701 program up to the present time has been oriented toward the planning and development problems of urban areas. Although much of the assisted planning has covered small town and semirural areas, and, for example, problems related to agricultural land uses have been considered where appropriate, grant assistance has not been available to assist planning for the coordinated development of resources and services in areas consisting of small towns and agricultural and other nonurban uses.

The new district planning would help preserve and better utilize the great human and economic investment in these areas. All too often, these areas have stagnated when a little foresight and planning would permit establishment of viable and expanding communities. To reflect this change, the section 701 statement of purpose would be broadened to include reference to the planning problems resulting from outmigration from, and lack of coordinated development of, resources and services in rural areas. In addition, the present regional planning authority in section 701 would be revised to authorize separate planning programs for "regions," defined as including at least one metropolitan area, plus all or part of at least one other general-purpose unit of government; and for "districts," defined as including all or part of at least one county and of at least one other general-purpose unit of government, but not including any part of a metropolitan area.

Up to two-thirds grants (or three-fourths grants in specified areas having special economic handicaps) would continue to be authorized both directly to regional planning bodies and to State planning bodies for assistance to regional planning.

With respect to planning for the newly defined districts, up to two-thirds (or three-fourths for areas with economic handicaps) grants would be authorized to be made, through State planning agencies, for assistance to district planning agencies. The district agency would have to be authorized, by or under State or local statutes or interstate compact, to carry on comprehensive planning for the district.

The assisted planning could be for the entire district or for towns or other appropriate areas within the district. Such planning could be carried out by the district planning agency itself or by the State planning agency acting for the district agency. Grants to States would be specifically authorized for the purpose of providing technical and other assistance for both interstate and intrastate planning agencies (including district and regional agencies).

The Secretary of Agriculture would have special statutory responsibilities with reference to the new district planning program. He would be authorized to provide technical assistance, with or without reimbursement, in connection with the establishment of the districts and the carrying out of such planning. The Secretary of Housing and Urban Development would, in turn, be required to consult with the Secretary of Agriculture before approval of any district planning grants made either through the State planning agency or directly to a district council of governments (authorized by an amendment to subsec. (g)).

Conforming amendments would remove references to comprehensive planning as being for urban areas and needs.

Demonstration Projects for Planning Metropolitan or Regional Systems of Public Facilities and Services

Section 701(b) would be amended to make available, from section 701 appropriations, an additional $10 million for studies, research, and demonstration projects. This subsection now authorizes the Secretary to expend up to 5 percent of the section 701 appropriations for projects for the development and improvement of comprehensive planning techniques and methods and the advancement of the purposes of the section.

It is intended that this $10 million be used for demonstration projects in planning entire systems of public facilities and services. While the portion of the metropolitan area or the region which must be served by the entire system planned may vary with the type of public facility or service involved (i.e., water, sewer, solid waste disposal, library, etc.), the particular system being planned should serve all or so substantial a portion of the metropolitan area or the region as is necessary to obtain the intended cost and quality benefits of broad systematic planning.

The use of such large-scale facilities and services (and the resulting increased availability of special equipment and techniques) makes possible very important savings both in their installation and operation. It has, therefore, been one of the objectives of comprehensive planning, as assisted under section 701, to encourage metropolitan and other areas to provide needed facilities and services in this fashion, either through an agency having areawide responsibilities or through effective areawide cooperative arrangements. Generally, however, the 701 program has not assisted in the detailed studies and investigations (including, for example, systems analysis, cost-benefit evaluations, and other preliminary planning and engineering studies) needed fully to define the feasibility, scope, character, cost, and advantages of such systems. The proposed demonstration projects would provide valuable experience and further development in these new planning techniques and methods.

The assistance would be provided to agencies now eligible to receive planning grants under section 701 and would be limited to the same two-thirds (or three-quarters) grant ratio usually available under the section 701 program.

Comprehensive Planning Definition

The definition of comprehensive planning would be revised to make specific reference to planning for the provision of governmental services (as well as for public facilities) and for the development and utilization of human and natural resources. However, comprehensive district planning could not include planning directed at encouraging industries to relocate from another area into the district.

Housing Element as Part of Comprehensive Planning

A new provision of the section 701 law would require all comprehensive planning to include specific planning for housing needs and land use requirements for housing with a view toward adequately meeting existing and prospective in-migrant population growth.

This provision would require section 701 assisted comprehensive planning to include a housing element as part of the preparation of comprehensive land use plans. It does not, and the section 701 program cannot, control or direct the actions of local planning organizations, but this provision may perhaps influence localities in the direction of considering and helping to meet broad regional housing needs as part of local planning and land use.

Economic Development District Planning

The present authority for three-quarters grants for planning in redevelopment areas would be brought up to date by providing such three-quarters grants also for planning in economic development districts designated under the Public Works and Economic Development Act of 1965.

Indian Reservation Planning

The present authority for Indian reservation planning would be revised to permit such grants to be made directly to tribal planning councils or other tribal bodies in all cases. Such grants may now be made directly to a tribal body only where no State agency is "empowered" to provide such planning.

Definition of Metropolitan, Regional, and District Planning Agencies

The definition of these planning agencies would require that, to the greatest extent practicable, they be composed of or responsible to the elected officials of the unit or units of general local government for whose jurisdictions they are empowered to plan. A unit of general local government could include one established on an areawide basis. This requirement would not apply when State law provided otherwise.

Use of Private Consultants

The committee has added to the preamble of section 701 a statement respecting the use of private consultants by State and local governments. This has been done to make it clear that the committee expects HUD to permit the judicious use of private planning consultants by State and local governments, where these governments deem it appropriate, in carrying out planning activities assisted under section 701. This action, however, is not meant to deny HUD the right to require a planning agency to have a reasonable percentage of the assisted work carried out by a professional staff in order to assure the continued effectiveness of the planning.

Councils of Government

Regional and district councils of government, as well as those organized on a metropolitan basis, would be eligible for grants under section 701(g). These organizations, which are made up principally of the councilmen and similarly elected local officials of the municipalities and counties within these areas, can utilize these grants for undertaking studies, collecting data, developing areawide plans and programs, and engaging in other activities relating to the development of the area.

Cities in Metropolitan Areas

Grants would be authorized to cities in metropolitan areas, without population limit, to assist them in carrying out planning which is part of comprehensive metropolitan planning being undertaken for the metropolitan area. This authority will enable cities with populations in excess of 50,000, which are not now generally eligible for planning grants under section 701, to receive this assistance to carry out the essential job of planning the most effective use of their available, but often limited, resources. Although planning assisted with this authority must be related to and coordinated with planning being carried out for the metropolitan area, it need not be limited solely to planning of a metropolitan orientation. It may cover the full range of comprehensive planning that the city needs to carry out to properly plan its future and coordinate its development. The assisted planning by the city shall supplement and be coordinated with any State or regional planning being undertaken for the area.

New Authorizations

Subsection (b) of section 701 would be amended to provide for increased authorizations for carrying out the program. The present authorization of $230 million is to be increased to $265 million through fiscal year 1969, including $20 million which may be used only for district planning grants. For fiscal year 1970 this authorization would be increased by an additional $125 million. Ten million dollars of the amount available in fiscal year 1970 may be used only for district planning.

With this program, Congress has recognized the value of comprehensive planning as a basic prerequisite for the provision of a suitable living environment for every American family, that this planning is a responsibility of State and local governments, and that these governments require financial assistance to establish and support adequate planning organizations. Many of the resulting benefits—in terms of the savings and efficiencies from planned development—accrue to the Federal Government which annually invests millions of dollars, through its assistance programs, in urban facilities and activities.

The growth and interest in the urban planning assistance program reflects the expansion and intensity of usage of comprehensive planning at the State, metropolitan, and small-city level. From its inception in 1954, the 701 program has had a major role in establishing comprehensive planning as an accepted process for guiding and coordinating urban development. The number of different small communities receiving grants under the program has risen from 242 at the end of 1956 to 6,200 as of June 30, 1967. Metropolitan areas and urban regions receiving grants over the same period of time have increased from 23 to 247. Assistance for statewide planning was authorized by an amendment in 1959; by June 30, 1967, some 44 States had received grants for this purpose. Since authority was provided in 1965, grants to 27 councils of government have been made.

Because of this rapid growth in the 701 program, the committee believes it would be desirable for the Secretary of HUD to submit annually, to the Banking and Currency Committees of the House of Representatives and the Senate, a report on the use of the grant funds under the program during the preceding year.

PLANNED AREAWIDE DEVELOPMENT

Section 502 of the bill would change the heading of title II of the Demonstration Cities and Metropolitan Development Act of 1966 from "Planned Metropolitan Development" to "Planned Areawide Development." In keeping with this change, it would permit the supplementary incentive grants, now authorized for certain federally assisted projects in metropolitan areas, to be made for such projects when carried out in any areas of the type for which metropolitan, regional, or district planning grants could be made under section 701 of the Housing Act of 1954 (as proposed to be amended by sec. 501 of this bill). To accommodate this program to the circumstances of the new rural planning districts (which could be established under sec. 501 of this bill), a requirement now in the law relating to such land use controls as zoning and subdivision regulations would be modified by stating that it would be applied were appropriate. In addition, this section would provide that any of the $75 million authorized for supplemental grants but not yet appropriated for fiscal years 1967 and 1968 may be appropriated through fiscal year 1970.

Under the provisions of section 205 of the 1966 act, supplementary grants of up to 20 percent of the project cost, but not in excess of 80 percent when added to the regular Federal grant, may be made by the Secretary of HUD where it has been demonstrated to his satisfaction that: (1) Areawide comprehensive planning and programing provide an adequate basis for the location and scheduling of public facilities and land development and uses of areawide or interjurisdictional public significance; (2) adequate areawide arrangements exist to carry out such planned and coordinated development; and (3) public facility projects (whether federally aided or not) and land development or uses having a major impact on the development of the area are, in fact, being carried out in accord with comprehensive planning. Also, the applicant for the grant must demonstrate that it (or the unit of general local government where it is a different body) is adequately assuring that public facility and other local projects are being and will continue to be carried out in accord with areawide planning and programing.

The projects for which supplementary grants may be made are—

(1) Grants for basic water and sewer facilities, administered by the Department of Housing and Urban Development under the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965;

(2) Grants for the construction of libraries, administered by the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare under title II of the Library Services and Construction Act;

(3) Grants for the construction and modernization of hospitals and other medical facilities, administered by the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare under the Public Health Services Act (Hill-Burton Act);

(4) Grants for construction of sewage-treatment works, administered by the Department of Interior under the Federal Water Pollution Control Act;

(5) Grants for highway construction (Federal-aid primary and secondary systems and urban extensions, but not the Interstate System) administered by the Department of Transportation;

(6) Grants for airport development, administered by the Department of Transportation under the Federal Airport Act;

(7) Grants for urban mass transportation facilities and equipment, administered by the Department of Housing and Urban Development under the Urban Mass Transportation Act of 1964;

(8) Grants for acquisition and development of open space, for beautification and improvement, or for historic preservation, administered by the Department of Housing and Urban Development under the Housing Act of 1961;

(9) Grants for the acquisition and development of lands and waters for recreation purposes, administered by the Department of the Interior under the Land and Water Conservation Fund Act of 1965; and

(10) Grants for public works and facilities in redevelopment areas, administered by the Department of Commerce under the Public Works and Economic Development Act of 1965 (but only if they involve works or facilities of a type which the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development determines to be eligible under items (1) through (9)).

Communities are faced with overwhelming problems of growth. This continuing growth has strained to its limits the fiscal capacity of these communities, many of them rural in character only a few years ago. Growth has meant abrupt increases in taxes to pay for new transportation facilities, parks, hospitals, sewers, waterlines, and other public facilities. It is estimated that State and local governments will need to spend on the order of $280 billion for public facility capital outlays over the next 8 years. Additional billions of dollars will be invested by private entrepreneurs for new housing, shopping centers, industrial buildings, and related urban development.

The areawide development grants will provide additional financial aid to the States and their communities. However, the real significance of this proposed continuation and expansion of the supplementary grant program is not so much the actual volume of financing provided, as the leverage it exercises to foster and reward the kind of well-planned and coordinated growth that maximizes and protects these capital outlays—by Federal, State, and local governments, as well as private enterprise.

ADVANCE ACQUISITION OF LAND

Section 503 of the bill would amend section 701 and rewrite section 704 of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965 to provide basic authority for a more efficient and effective program of Federal assistance to localities for the advance acquisition of land expected to be needed for public purposes. The changes made by this section would include the following:

(1) It would change the definition of eligible land from "land planned to be utilized in connection with the future construction of public works or facilities" to "land planned to be utilized in the future for public purposes."

(2) Require that the proposed use of the land be undertaken within 5 years, except the Secretary could go beyond the 5-year period if, due to unusual circumstances, he deems a longer period necessary and if he advises the Banking and Currency Committees of the Congress of this action.

(3) It would give the Secretary, as an alternative to his authority to require repayment of the Federal assistance if timely utilization is not made of the land or if it is diverted to other uses, authority to require substitution of equivalent land.

(4) It would provide for equivalent grant assistance, where land acquisitions are carried out without resort to borrowing. The amount of the grant would be based on the amount of reasonable interest charges the Secretary determines would have been required if the funds had been borrowed.

(5) It would permit the cost of land acquired under this provision to be considered as an eligible project cost for the purpose of any other Federal loan or grant program which provides assistance for land acquisition, and provide that assistance under this section will not render a project ineligible for other Federal assistance programs.

(6) It would clarify the permitted use of acquired land pending its intended utilization.

(7) It would clarify the authority of States to participate in the program.

The advantages of acquisition of land in advance of anticipated future needs have been recognized and, to some extent, realized by local governments in recent years. Such programs are particularly useful in efforts to control the urban sprawl which complicates the acquisition of lands needed for public purposes. They have also enabled local governments to secure lower prices for needed land through purchases made before extensive private improvement of the site. This approach recognizes that the value of desirable land needed for public purposes is likely to be greatly enhanced in the foreseeable future.

The committee considered an amendment which would have eliminated the present requirement in law that land acquired with assistance under this program be utilized for the purpose for which it was acquired within 5 years in favor of a requirement that such land would be put to its intended use within a reasonable period of time as determined by the Secretary of HUD. The committee does not believe that it is appropriate at this time to remove the 5-year limitation. However, it recognizes that there may be unusual circumstances that justify holding land beyond a 5-year period. These circumstances would most often arise in those types of cases where, because of a situation beyond its control, a community was unable to start construction of a building within the 5-year period, as it had planned. Occasionally, a community might have a very strong justification for planning to hold off utilizing the land until sometime after the general 5-year period and to refuse assistance to it would tend to jeopardize its ability to carry out a well thought out development program.

In the case of such unusual circumstances, the Secretary would be authorized to permit a holding period longer than 5 years if he determines it is in the public interest, but he would be required to make a prompt report to the Banking and Currency Committees of the Senate and the House of Representatives with respect to each determination. This authority to make exemptions will be most useful, we understand, to those communities who have hesitated to use this program because of the concern that some unforeseen circumstance might arise which would prevent them from carrying out a planned development of the land within the 5-year period and thereby put them in jeopardy of being required to repay the grant. It should be noted, however, in all cases, 5 years would continue to be the maximum period for which interest assistance would be granted.

Limitations imposed on some Federal programs render projects having received other Federal assistance ineligible for additional assistance, or render the cost of land acquired with other Federal assistance ineligible as a project cost for such programs. These limitations are inconsistent with the purposes of this section and constitute unnecessary barriers to the realization of the benefits incident to the timely acquisition of land in advance of need. Consequently, the revised section 704 would provide that interest grants under this program would render neither the project, nor the cost of land, ineligible for assistance under other Federal programs.

The committee proposal recognizes that a comprehensive program of assistance for advance acquisition of land must take into account the financial capabilities and limitations of the participating localities. Many find it more appropriate at given times to use nonborrowed funds in carrying out advance acquisition programs. Accordingly, the revision provides for equivalent grant assistance for acquisition carried out without resort to borrowings. The grant would be based on the amount of reasonable interest charges the Secretary determines would have been required if the funds had been borrowed.

EXTENSION OF INTERIM PLANNING REQUIREMENTS IN WATER AND SEWER FACILITIES PROGRAM

Section 504 of the bill would make several amendments to section 702 of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965, which authorizes the Secretary of HUD to make grants for the provision of basic public water and sewer facilities. The first amendment would change the date, before which a program for an areawide water and sewer program must be under preparation, rather than completed, from July 1, 1968, to October 1, 1969. Another amendment would expand the present authority for the Secretary to make 90-percent rather than 50-percent grants, in certain areas in which high unemployment exists to include water facilities as well as sewer facilities. The third amendment would direct the Secretary, in administering the program, to require that, to the greatest extent practicable, new job opportunities be provided for unemployed or underemployed in connection with projects financed under the program.

Section 702 requires the Secretary, before approving an application for a basic water or sewer facility grant, to find that the proposed project is consistent with a program for a unified or officially coordinated area-wide water or sewer facilities system as part of the comprehensively planned development of the area. A special provision in section 702(c), however, permits approval of an urgently needed project during an interim period, prior to July 1, 1968, where the program for a coordinated areawide system is not completed but is under active preparation. To come under this special provision, the Secretary must find that the proposed project can reasonably be expected to be required as part of the program being developed.

Development of a comprehensive plan is a difficult and time-consuming process, especially in complicated multijurisdictional metropolitan areas. The shortage of planning personnel and—in some cases—necessity for State legislative action can all serve to delay the development of the requisite plans. Many engineering, land use, and other decisions must be made, and there sometimes needs to be coordinated effort among several jurisdictions of local government. The 30-month time period which has been available to develop plans under existing law has proven to be too short.

The committee has been informed that failure to extend the deadline date of July 1, 1968, will require disapproval of projects for water and sewer facility grants in a large number of communities that will be unable to meet the full planning requirements by this cutoff date. At a minimum, it is estimated that up to 50 to 60 percent of all urban areas will be disqualified for grants after that date. Because of the urgent need for water and sewer facilities in many of these areas, the committee believes that they should be given another 15 months to comply with the full requirements.

The additional 15 months for the interim requirements will provide the much-needed time for communities to reach the level of planning needed to meet the intent of the full requirements.

Under the present provisions of section 702, the Secretary is authorized to make 90-percent grants in the case of a community having a population of less than 10,000 and which is situated in a metropolitan area, to assist in the construction of basic public sewer facilities if the community is unable to finance the construction of such facilities without the increased grant. To qualify for the increased grant, the Secretary has to determine that there does not exist a public or other adequate sewer facility which serves a substantial portion of the inhabitants of the community and that the rate of unemployment in the community is, and has been continuously for the preceding calendar year, 100 percent above the national average. It has come to the committee's attention that some question has been raised as to whether this authority would be available for assisting an unincorporated area whose utilities are provided by a water district or improvement district but which otherwise qualifies. To make it clear that such a situation could be covered by the law, the committee has included an amendment permitting grants to be made for unincorporated, as well as incorporated, areas which otherwise meet the population and unemployment requirements of the law. It has also included authority permitting these 90-percent grants to be made for basic public water facilities as well as public sewer facilities. Many of these areas need water as well as sewers, in order to assist them in obtaining those basic public utilities necessary to maintain a viable community.

One of the serious problems facing the Nation today is the existence of unemployment or underemployment among certain segments of our society in the midst of plenty and high employment for the rest of the Nation. The committee believes that Federal programs which fund large-scale public construction should be used whenever possible to help alleviate this employment problem. The committee believes that the water and sewer facilities program is one which is well adapted to contributing to such alleviation. Many of those who suffer from unemployment or underemployment lack the high degree of skill so often necessary in today's industrial society. Much of the work carried out under this program does not require a high degree of skill. Therefore, the committee believes that construction financed under this program should, to the greatest extent practicable, provide new job opportunities for these persons.

INCREASED AUTHORIZATIONS FOR THE WATER AND SEWER FACILITIES, NEIGHBORHOOD FACILITIES, AND ADVANCE ACQUISITION OF LAND PROGRAMS

Section 505 of the bill would provide that any funds authorized but not appropriated for grants for the basic water and sewer facilities, neighborhood facilities, and the advance acquisition of land programs will remain available for appropriation through fiscal 1970. The present authorization for these programs expires with fiscal year 1969.

Also, the authorization for the section 702 basic water and sewer facilities program would be increased from $200 to $500 million for each of the fiscal years 1968 and 1969.

Continued urbanization and industrialization have created an unprecedented demand for basic water and sewer facilities and for Federal assistance to meet this demand. The demand for neighborhood facilities to help communities provide proper centers for the provision of needed health, recreational, social, and similar community services in low and moderate income neighborhoods has also increased. The demand for grants under the advance acquisition program is expected to increase sharply with the modifications proposed in section 503 of the bill.

To help meet these needs, the unused authorization for appropriations that would otherwise expire on June 30, 1969, would remain available through June 30, 1970. This would provide $885 million (when the $600 million additional authorization is added in) for the water and sewer program, $101 million for the neighborhood facilities program, and $95 million for the advance land acquisition program that could be appropriated for fiscal year 1970, if the budget requests for fiscal year 1969 are fully funded.

OPEN-SPACE LAND PROGRAM

Section 506 of the bill would convert the funding provision for grants under the open-space land program from authority to enter into contracts to a regular authorization for appropriations. It would increase the authorization for such grants by $150 million on July 1, 1969. The amount of grant funds that may be used during any fiscal year for studies and the publishing of information would be increased from $50,000 to $125,000, and the present sublimitations for grants for open-space land in built-up areas and for urban beautification and improvement would be eliminated.

Extension of this program is essential if the Federal Government is to continue to provide a decisive impetus to State and local open-space programs. The importance of the Federal open-space land program extends far beyond the amounts approved for assistance in acquiring and developing 237,000 acres of land through fiscal year 1967. It has encouraged State and local governments to plan and execute local programs that might not otherwise have been undertaken. As an indication of this, 17 States have approved bond issues for open-space purposes totaling more than $1.25 billion since 1960. Local governments have also approved bond issues or otherwise spent millions of dollars in recent years for open-space projects.

Continuation of the program will allow a further benefit to taxpayers by facilitating the purchase of open-space land substantially in advance of intense pressures for urbanization. Early acquisition is an important factor in reducing program costs, particularly as the Department of HUD is encouraging the purchase of open-space land closer to urban development.

At the beginning of fiscal year 1968, applications for $169 million were on hand. Requests for an additional $123.5 million are anticipated during the current year. As more local communities establish open-space programs, requests for assistance will accelerate. Continuation of the program is therefore essential.

An increase in the amount of grant funds that can be used for studies and publications from $50,000 to $125,000 will provide invaluable assistance in developing criteria and providing information on new techniques and concepts to assure the most efficient and economical ways to conserve open-space land. To give more flexibility in funding the several components of the open-space land program, the language of the proposed authorization eliminates the present sublimitations, except studies.

AUTHORIZE THE MAKING OF FEASIBILITY STUDIES IN THE PUBLIC WORKS PLANNING ADVANCES PROGRAM

Section 507 of the bill would clarify the authority of the Secretary of HUD under section 702 of the Housing Act of 1954 to make advances for the conduct of feasibility studies regarding specific public works, the planning of which may be assisted under section 702.

Feasibility studies are engineering evaluations to determine whether a proposed public works project can be developed within existing technical and economic limitations. It may include such facets as site examination, field surveys, preliminary sketches and plans, soil tests, and cost and economic analyses. Such studies are often more vital than specific plans and specifications, because they help a community consider a projected public facilities project in terms of specifics regarding costs and problems to be encountered. In effect, they help a community to make decisions regarding major and expensive undertaking before commitments are irrevocably made.

The public works planning advance program is used primarily by small communities; more than 48 percent of past advances have been to communities with populations under 5,500, and more than 86 percent to communities with populations under 50,000. Such communities often have little revenue flexibility and no funds for financing the type of planning required by feasibility studies. Without such a study it is very difficult for a small community to understand the exact nature of a proposed project and to gain the popular support needed to raise the necessary funds. Also, projects undertaken without such preliminary investigations may result in irrevocable errors, which cannot be corrected in final designs.

Title VI—Urban Mass Transportation

GRANT AUTHORIZATIONS

Section 601 of the bill would increase the authority for appropriations by $190 million for fiscal year 1970 for the urban mass transportation program. The amount of funds which may be used for research, development, and demonstrations under section 6 of the Urban

Mass Transportation Act of 1964 would be increased by $6 million on July 1, 1968.

The present fund authorization expires June 30, 1969. It is anticipated that practically the entire authorization will have been appropriated by that time. The need for continued support for mass transportation systems is clear. A recent survey of urban mass transportation capital program plans in 11 major metropolitan areas with about 43 percent of the population of all SMSA's revealed an aggregated 10-year projection of approximately $10.9 billion in capital financing needs. In nearly every metropolitan area surveyed, transit planning officials pointed to the need for increased Federal aid.

The first capital grants under the program were made in February 1965. Since that time, the rate of new applications has risen from approximately $100 million in 1966 and $200 million in 1967 to nearly $300 million. New large-scale transit development and improvement programs are being announced more frequently than in the past, and requests for Federal assistance may reach $600 million in fiscal year 1970. Funding through fiscal year 1970 is therefore essential.

Section 6 of the Act provides for a program of research, development, and demonstration projects in all phases of urban mass transportation which will assist in the reduction of urban transportation needs, the improvement of mass transportation service, or the contribution of such service toward meeting total urban transportation needs at minimum cost. A $25 million program for research, development, test and evaluation of new systems of urban transportation is proposed, based on the preliminary findings of the new system study program authorized by the Congress in 1966, and will lay the groundwork for implementation of the program to be recommended in the report on that study.

To allow for the $25 million research, development, and demonstration program level in 1969, the present sublimitation of $50 million for the section 6 programs would be increased to $56 million on July 1, 1968. This increase would provide $23.5 million in unused authorization under section 6. The balance of this program will be funded under the $3 million authorized annually by section 11 of the Act for grants to public and private nonprofit institutions of higher learning for theoretical and practical research, and for training persons for research and employment, in urban transportation.

On or after July 1, 1969, the Secretary would be authorized to use for research, development, and demonstration activities such sums as he deems appropriate out of the grant funds available under the general grant authorization contained in section 4(b) of the 1964 Act.

DEFINITION OF MASS TRANSPORTATION

Section 602 of the bill would broaden the statutory definition of "mass transportation" in section 12(c)(5) of the Urban Mass Transportation Act of 1964. The purpose of the broadened definition would be to allow greater flexibility in developing and applying new concepts and systems in urban mass transportation programs. The existing definition of "mass transportation" applies to all of the programs in the Urban Mass Transportation Act of 1964 and requires that such transportation serve the "general public" and operate "over prescribed routes." In the light of recent and pending advances in the field of mass transportation research and technology this definition has become unduly restrictive. It would be replaced by a requirement that the transportation provide to the public general or special service (excluding schoolbuses or sightseeing or charter service) on a regular and continuing basis.

Section 6(b) of the 1964 Act directs the Secretary to "undertake a project to study and prepare a program of research, development, and demonstration of new systems of urban transportation." Under this project a number of new concepts and innovations which have a high potential for eventual improvement of urban mass transportation are being developed, but the present restrictive definition does not allow the Secretary to assist State and local governments in utilizing them. For example, the "prescribed route" clause would restrict the Secretary from giving assistance to projects such as a computer-aided "small bus" system, which ultimately could pick up passengers at their door and deliver them at their desired destinations while picking up and dropping off other passengers going in the same general direction. The computerized routing in this type of operation would not be "prescribed" but would depend upon where passengers wanted to be picked up and dropped off. Many of the dual mode systems would also be excluded. These are systems capable of operating over two different types of rights-of-way, one an exclusive right-of-way such as a railroad track or other fixed guideway automatically controlled and the other the local street network controlled by individual driver-passengers. Particularly in the case of the small dual mode systems, the street portions of the travel would not be over "prescribed" routes.

There are also a number of instances where it may be beneficial and in the public interest to provide capital grant assistance to mass transportation service which would serve only a specific portion of the public rather than the "general" public. For example, special service from ghettos to specific places of employment, limited to those riders who work there and coordinated to shift changes, or special service from elderly housing developments to hospitals and clinics. These services might require additional buses which the transit system involved could not afford to provide without Federal aid. Under the present law Federal assistance for such programs is not available.

EXTENSION OF THE EMERGENCY PROVISION OF THE URBAN MASS TRANSPORTATION PROGRAM

Section 603 of the bill would extend the emergency provisions of the mass transportation program until October 1, 1969. The present provisions of section 5 of the Urban Mass Transportation Act of 1964 expire on November 1, 1968.

Section 5 authorizes 50 percent Federal grants for mass transportation facilities and equipment in urban areas not yet able to meet full areawide comprehensive planning and programing requirements. These emergency grants are in place of two-thirds Federal grants available when all comprehensive planning requirements are met.

Unless this interim program is continued, many areas will be cut off from receiving mass transportation assistance. Some of these are large metropolitan areas (such as Denver, Detroit, and New York City), where areawide planning is particularly complex and time consuming. Others are smaller in size but have only recently commenced the required planning. These areas, which cannot yet fulfill the complete areawide comprehensive planning and programing requirements of the urban mass transit program, should not be denied the assistance available under the emergency program.

It is important to note that this program, though it waives the stricter planning requirements, retains provisions to assure that planning is underway and that there is a basis for judging whether a proposed transportation project will be consistent with subsequent completed plans. The lesser planning requirements minimize any possible risk of aiding projects that will not conform to locally decided urban development and transportation objectives.

NON-FEDERAL SHARE OF NET PROJECT COST

Section 604 of the bill would amend both section 4(a) (long-range program, two-thirds grant) and section 5 (emergency program, 50-percent grant) of the Urban Mass Transportation Act of 1964 to permit any public or private transit company to provide up to 50 percent of the local share of the net project cost of a mass transportation project. This payment could be made out of undistributed cash surpluses, replacement, or depreciation funds or reserves available in cash, or new capital.

The purpose of this amendment is to clarify and implement the declaration contained in section 4(a) of the Urban Mass Transportation Act of 1964, as amended, that programs authorized by the act shall encourage to the maximum extent feasible the participation of private enterprise. It specifies that 50 percent of the non-Federal share of the net project may be provided from other than public sources. Transit system funds, however, which are used for this purpose may be provided only from undistributed cash surpluses, replacement or depreciation funds or reserves available in cash, or new capital. They may not be provided from revenues, including the proceeds of indebtedness payable out of future revenues, that are otherwise needed or would otherwise be used to meet operating costs of the system. This restriction applies to public, as well as private, transit system funds.

An exception to the 50-percent limitation to finance the non-Federal share of net project cost is provided for in situations where the State or local public body or agency applying for assistance is fiscally unable to put up any portion of the local share. In such cases of fiscal inability, up to the full amount of the non-Federal share may be provided by local public or private transit systems. However, fiscal inability of the applicant must be clearly demonstrated with data satisfactory to the Secretary which affirmatively and clearly demonstrates that the applicant is in fact financially unable to provide the local share and such information will be available to the public prior to the Secretary making the determination. Obviously a mere certification by the applicant will not of itself be sufficient. Also, the applicant State or local public body or agency must be actively engaged in the preparation and effectuation of a unified or officially coordinated urban transportation system as part of the comprehensively planned development of the urban area.

Net project cost is defined in the basic law as that portion of the cost of a project to be assisted which cannot be reasonably financed from revenues, not more than two-thirds (or 50 percent in the case of emergency grants) of which may be paid by a Federal grant.

The committee expects the Secretary to avoid unreasonable profits to private companies through this proposed change in the law. Where private companies are involved, the Secretary, in both the establishment of net project cost and in determining the amount of the Federal grant, should have available to him a full disclosure of assets, liabilities and projected revenues of the system operations so that private capital may be attracted to this program without adding an extra burden to the Federal Treasury.

Title VII—Secondary Mortgage Market

This title of the bill would make changes in the statutory provisions affecting the Federal National Mortgage Association and its functions in the secondary mortgage market. The principal change would be the fulfillment of congressional intent expressed 14 years ago in section 303(g) of the Federal National Mortgage Association Charter Act, "to transfer to the owners of the outstanding common stock of the Association the assets and liabilities of the Association in connection with, and the control and management of, the secondary market operations of the Association under section 304 of this title in order that such operations may thereafter be carried out by a privately owned and privately financed corporation."

The committee feels that FNMA's secondary market operation has proven economically sound and capable of being financed solely from private sources. The current Federal capital contribution to FNMA, represented by outstanding preferred stock held by Treasury, totals about $142 million, and would be retired as soon as possible after the effective date of the title. The common stock, of which about $127 million is presently outstanding, would be changed from nonvoting to voting and from $100 par value to no par value and would be freely transferable. After a transitional period of 2 to 5 years, the common stockholders would control the board of directors.

The privately owned corporation would be given new financing mechanisms which could be used, in connection with existing methods, for the retirement of the Treasury-held preferred stock and the financing of its operations. The committee expects that the privately owned corporation, with its improved financing methods, will add a significant impetus to the flow of funds in the secondary market and the availability of credit in the home mortgage market.

The present Federal National Mortgage Association would be partitioned, on an effective date to be established by the Secretary of HUD but not later than 120 days after enactment, into two separate corporations. The special assistance and management and liquidating functions would remain in the Department of Housing and Urban Development and be operated through a corporation to be known as Government National Mortgage Association (GNMA) and would remain substantially unchanged. The other corporation, which will become entirely privately owned and which will operate the secondary market operations, would be known as Federal National Mortgage Association (FNMA). The new FNMA would be a "Government-sponsored private corporation," regulated by the Secretary and would have a status analogous to that of the Federal land banks and the Federal home loan banks.

The new FNMA's secondary market dealings would continue to be limited to mortgages insured or guaranteed by FHA or the Veterans' Administration, or by the Farmers Home Administration under title V of the Housing Act of 1949, but present restrictions against buying mortgages in excess of par and against buying mortgages offered by, or covering property held by, State and local instrumentalities would be removed. In addition, the purchase authority of FNMA would be expanded to include certain mortgage-backed securities guaranteed by GNMA (as authorized by this title) so that, if necessary, FNMA could act to supplement the secondary market for such securities. The committee feels that if such securities become well enough established so that many private issuers are issuing them, they could constitute a significant factor in attracting investment funds to the field of mortgage investment.

Financing of Secondary Market Operations

Existing forms of obligations would be retained (debentures and short-term discount notes) but the board of directors would be given power to increase and thereby make flexible the debt-to-capital ratio for FNMA, now fixed by statute at 15 to 1. This flexibility would be particularly helpful in times when FNMA's net purchasing rate greatly exceeds the rate by which its capital is increasing, and when, in the judgment of the board, FNMA's financial strength was adequate to justify increasing the ratio.

Two other forms of borrowing authority would be provided. First, FNMA could also issue and market subordinated obligations, in a manner similar to the current issuances of "capital notes" by banking institutions. These obligations would probably be issued on a long-term basis, perhaps 15 to 25 years, and could include provisions for their convertibility into common stock. These obligations would be subordinated to all the obligations of the corporation outstanding and to be outstanding. For this reason the amount raised by these issues would be considered to represent capital for the purposes of the debt-to-capital ratio. FNMA would be authorized to issue such subordinated obligations up to twice the sum of its capital, surplus, and retained earnings. These obligations could be issued to assist in financing the retirement of the preferred stock or the operations of FNMA.

Secondly, FNMA would be authorized to issue and market securities backed by earmarked pools of portfolio mortgages, and this authority would not be subject to any ratio limitation. Of course such securities and obligations could not be issued in greater principal amount than the aggregate principal amount of the mortgages pooled, all of which would be Government guaranteed or insured. GNMA would be authorized to guarantee the payment of principal and interest on any such securities issued by FNMA. GNMA could also guarantee similar securities issued by other private issuers approved by it for this purpose, so long as the securities are backed by mortgages or loans guaranteed or insured by FHA or the Veterans' Administration, or by the Farmers Home Administration under title V of the Housing Act of 1949, and set aside or subjected to a trust in a manner similar to that established by FNMA. GNMA would be authorized to collect at the time of the guarantee a reasonable guarantee fee and other charges. In the event of the necessity of any payment under the guarantee, GNMA would become subrogated to the rights satisfied by the payment.

The committee believes that these securities could have greater liquidity than the mortgages backing them and can be expected to attract sources of investment funds which do not ordinarily invest in the mortgage market, such as pension funds and retirement funds.

The present authority for FNMA to borrow from the Treasury would be retained, even after all of the preferred stock has been retired. This authority has been used in the past solely as a "line of credit," but this routine use would not be continued after retirement of the preferred stock. The committee intends that the use of this backstop authority by FNMA be limited to periods of money crisis such as the "credit crunch" of 1966 or when large groups of debentures or discount notes mature simultaneously. The existence of this backstop authority, which is similar to that of the Federal home loan banks, would tend to enhance the corporation's credit standing and would constitute Government recognition of the significance of the corporation's operations to the national interest aspects of the mortgage financing industry.

B. COMMON STOCK

FNMA would be authorized to issue common stock in addition to that now required to be issued in connection with its purchasing and lending activities. For the purpose of encouraging the users of FNMA's services to develop and maintain their interest in and control of the corporation, each servicer of mortgages for FNMA would be required to own at all times a minimum amount of FNMA common stock. This minimum amount would be not more than 2 percent of the outstanding principal balances of all mortgages owned by FNMA and serviced by the servicer, but this requirement would not apply with respect to mortgages purchased by FNMA before the effective date of this bill. The present 5-percent dividend limitation applicable to the common stock would be repealed, and cash dividends could not exceed a rate determined by the Secretary of HUD to be a fair rate of return.

A. TRANSITIONAL PERIOD

The bill would provide for a 2- to 5-year transitional period during which direct control over the activities of FNMA would be transferred from the Secretary of HUD to the common stockholders. During this transitional period, the board would consist of nine members. The Secretary of HUD would appoint all nine members for the first year. For the second year, he would appoint seven members, and the stockholders would elect two. For the remainder of the period, he would appoint five members and the stockholders would elect four. The president of the corporation would be appointed during the transitional period by the President of the United States, subject to confirmation by the Senate, and the Secretary would be required to include him as one of his appointees to the board of directors. The president of the corporation could only be removed from office during the transitional period by the President of the United States for cause.

The transitional period would end at such time as one-third of the common stock is owned by persons or institutions in the mortgage lending, homebuilding, real estate, or related businesses, but not sooner than May 1, 1970, nor later than May 1, 1973.

B. POST-TRANSITIONAL PERIOD

After the transitional period, the board of directors of FNMA would consist of 15 members, one-third of whom would be appointed by the President of the United States and the remainder of whom would be elected by the stockholders. The appointments and elections would be for 1-year terms only. The President would be required to appoint, as members of the board, one person each from the homebuilding, real estate, and mortgage lending industries. All directors would be removable by the President, but only for good cause shown. The board would have full power and responsibility for the policies of the corporation, subject only to the provisions of laws passed by Congress and regulations of the Secretary.

The Secretary would have general regulatory powers over FNMA to assure that the purposes of the Charter Act are served. The issuance of all securities or obligations by FNMA would have to receive the prior approval of the Secretary. Through this and other authority, the Secretary would participate in the decisionmaking process as to the level of mortgage purchases at various times. In addition, the Secretary could require that a reasonable portion of FNMA's mortgage purchases be related to housing for low and moderate income families, but with reasonable economic return. These mortgages could involve, for example, those insured under the proposed section 235 homeownership program and the proposed section 236 rental and cooperative housing program, or those insured under the proposed section 237 credit assistance program. These mortgages would bear interest at the market rate.

It is the intent of the committee that the regulatory powers of the Secretary will not extend to FNMA's internal affairs, such as personnel, salary, and other usual corporate matters, except where the exercise of such powers is necessary to protect the financial interests of the Federal Government or as otherwise necessary to assure that the purposes of the FNMA Charter Act are carried out.

Audit of the corporation could be performed by the Secretary of HUD. In addition, before all of the preferred stock is retired, FNMA would be considered to be a wholly owned corporation for the purposes of the Government Corporation Control Act and would be subject to audit by the General Accounting Office. After retirement of the preferred stock, GAO examination of the financial transactions of FNMA would continue so long as there are outstanding any of FNMA's obligations which are guaranteed by GNMA. This provision is included so that the contingent liability of the Government in connection with the GNMA guarantee could be protected.

Participation Certificates

The bill also provides that GNMA, which would continue the function of trustee under trusts created for sales of participation certificates, could issue such certificates for refinancing purposes. These certificates, issued to refinance certificates already approved in appropriation acts, would not be subject to the requirement of further approval in appropriation acts.

This amendment would permit the cost to the Government to be reduced through increased flexibility in management of the trusts. For instance, when original issues are sold with maturities shorter than the maturities of the pooled obligations, the early maturities could be refinanced by a sale of "rollover" certificates. Any appropriation for insufficiencies accompanying the original authorization would apply as well to any rollover sale as to the original sale.

Special Assistance Authorization

This title would also provide for an increase of $500 million in special assistance authority to become available on July 1, 1969. GNMA would use this authority, under the direction of the President, to continue purchases of mortgages underwritten by the Government which require special assistance. The present revolving authority would be increased by $525 million on July 1, 1968, under existing law.

Although there would be no new statutory requirement on the use of these funds by the President, the committee approved the additional funds primarily for the use by GNMA in the purchase of section 221 (d)(3) and (h) below-market interest rate mortgages. One purpose of the new section 236 program is to develop a new rental program for low and moderate income families as a replacement for the existing section 221(d)(3) BMIR program. However, the committee recognizes the necessity for a smooth transition from the older program to the new program without a lapse of authority which could do damage to the President's plan for stepped-up activity in the field of new construction for housing for low and moderate income families. The committee is mindful of the practical difficulties of getting a new program rolling; that is, the long leadtime it takes to prepare regulations, allocate the funds, educate the local sponsors and builders, and finally produce specific projects to receive the benefits of the new subsidy program. The section 221(d)(3) BMIR program has hurdled all of these obstacles and it is now a going program. The committee wants to assure that it will continue to be a going and effective program until the new section 236 program has reached the same degree of efficiency. The additional special assistance fund of $500 million would be used to provide the backup support for the program necessary to carry out this objective. It is understood, of course, that the President could use these funds as needed, along with the present special assistance funds to support the new sections 235, 236, and 237 programs of housing for low and moderate income families. The committee hopes that the availability of this FNMA special assistance support will act as a deterrent to discounts which otherwise would prove burdensome to sponsors, particularly nonprofit sponsors.

Title VIII—National Housing Partnerships

This title of the bill would authorize the creation of federally chartered privately funded corporations to mobilize private investment and the application of business skills in the job of creating low and moderate income housing in substantial volume. Such a coporation in turn would form a partnership, as its vehicle for participating in developments, projects, or undertakings for the provision of housing primarily for families of low or moderate income, pursuant to Federal programs or otherwise.

NEED FOR NATIONAL PARTNERSHIPS

This bill establishes a goal of 6 million low and moderate income housing units to be produced over the next decade, a tenfold increase over the previous decade. To achieve this urgently needed increase in the production of housing for low and moderate income families, it will be necessary not only to provide public subsidies, but to create additional new private institutions designed to give nationwide impetus to the production of such housing.

Although the housing industry is one of the very largest in the country, there is no single existing entity which accounts for more than one-third of 1 percent of the market, and there are few firms that carry on their activities on a national scale. The proposed National Housing Partnerships would provide a dynamic input for low and moderate income housing that is now lacking. National in scope, they would be devoted to the single purpose of producing low and moderate income housing and, therefore, would concentrate on succeeding in this one field. Such national organizations could recruit first-class management and technical staff who will make their careers in low and moderate income housing and would provide a needed source of equity capital. With nationwide market power in the low and moderate income housing field, to be supported by housing assistance payments on behalf of low income occupants under other provisions of this bill, the partnerships could realize some of the economies of scale that are inherent in volume construction and purchasing.

STRUCTURE OF A NATIONAL HOUSING PARTNERSHIP

A federally chartered, privately funded, corporation would be organized under the District of Columbia Business Corporation Act. Such a corporation in turn would form a partnership organized under this title and under the District of Columbia Uniform Limited Partnership Act. The federally chartered corporation would serve as the general partner and managing agent of the partnership and each of the stockholders, as well as others, could be limited partners. The corporation would provide the staff and expertise for the partnership in connection with the organization and planning of specific local project undertakings in which the partnership would have an interest. The corporation would receive a fee for such services.

Of the funds of each large investor under the proposal, it is contemplated that not more than 5 percent would be invested in the corporation's stock and the balance in the partnership. As limited partners they would have no liability for the debts of the partnership beyond their investment in the partnership.

The partnership arrangement makes it possible to assure an adequate return to investors. Under existing Internal Revenue Service regulations and rulings, partnership losses for tax purposes flow to the individual partners.

ROLE OF NATIONAL HOUSING PARTNERSHIPS

The National Housing Partnerships to be organized pursuant to this title would not enjoy a monopoly or special competitive advantages over existing organizations. The title provides for the creation of as many partnerships as may be necessary and specifically provides that others are free to establish enterprises similar in scope to the partnerships. The partnerships will be receiving no benefits from the Federal Government which are not presently available to limited profit corporations and associations. Partnerships would supplement and support local enterprise by forming partnership ventures with local builders and investors for the purpose of building low and moderate income housing projects in communities throughout the Nation. Such undertakings would normally be controlled and managed by local interests, with the partnership's interest being that of a limited partner which would not exceed 25 percent of the aggregate equity investment for the project, except where the balance is not readily obtainable from investors in the local community. When necessary, the partnership or the corporation would serve as the general partner in such a local venture.

Title IX—Rural Housing

HOUSING FOR LOW AND MODERATE INCOME PERSONS AND FAMILIES

Section 901 of the bill would amend title V of the Housing Act of 1949 by adding a new section 521 authorizing direct and insured loans in rural areas (places not exceeding 5,500 population) to low and moderate income persons and families and to provide rental or cooperative housing for such persons and families, where assistance is not available under sections 235 and 236 of the National Housing Act (added by secs. 101 and 201 of the bill). Interest will be at a rate which will be set by the Secretary of Agriculture after considering the cost of money to the Treasury and the payment ability of the applicants. The interest rate may not in any event be less than 1 percent per annum. An interest supplement necessary to market the insured loans will be paid from, and reimbursed by annual appropriations to, the rural housing insurance fund. Eligibility for these loans will be broadened to include persons not previously residing in rural areas. This provision regarding nonrural residents will be administered so as to restrict it to persons of low or moderate income who are employed in rural areas. However, rural housing loans to natural disaster victims could be made at interest rates not exceeding the rates currently applicable under existing authority.

HOUSING FOR RURAL TRAINEES

Section 902 of the bill would authorize financial and technical assistance to provide, in rural areas, housing and related facilities for rural trainees (and their families) enrolled in federally assisted training courses to improve their employment capability. The Secretary of Agriculture could use this authority only after he determined that such housing and facilities could not be reasonably provided in any other way. The Secretary would be required to consult first with the Secretaries of Labor; Health, Education, and Welfare; Housing and Urban Development, and the Director of the Office of Economic Opportunity before providing this assistance. Training and housing sites would be selected only after consideration of a labor area survey and full coordination among all Federal, State, and local government agencies administering related programs. However, the committee feels that the Secretary should not approve any assistance under this section unless he is satisfied that the location has an economically viable future. In addition, the committee believes that, if feasible, trainees should be used to construct the housing but that prior to approving an advance under this section, the Secretary should make sure that the proposed housing will not unfairly compete with existing housing in the area nor with newly constructed housing built for the private market.

Related facilities would include, in addition to other service facilities, rooms and buildings for training purposes. Advances for land purchase would be repayable within periods not longer than 33 years and will bear interest. Other advances would be nonrepayable, or repayable with or without interest, depending on the applicant's payment ability, from project net income and any other available sources. Any interest charged on advances will be at a rate prescribed by the Secretary of Agriculture after considering the cost of money to the Treasury and the payment ability of the applicants. In no event would the rate be less than 1 percent per annum.

The prevailing wage requirements of the Davis-Bacon Act would apply to any project aided under this section with eight or more dwelling units and would cover related facilities as well as the housing itself.

APPROPRIATIONS

Since necessary authority under sections 235 and 236 of the National Housing Act (added by secs. 101 and 201 of the bill) will be assigned to the Secretary of Agriculture as he and the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development agree, section 903 of the bill would authorize appropriations to the Secretary of Agriculture for the cost of such administration.

PURCHASE OF LAND FOR BUILDING SITES

Section 904 of the bill would broaden the eligible purposes of domestic farm labor housing loans to include the purchase of necessary land for building sites.

SELF-HELP HOUSING

Section 905 of the bill would authorize a new program of assistance for self-help housing through the Farmer's Home Administration. Under section 905, grants could be made for preconstruction costs such as the organization of a cooperative or other self-help group, and for the provision of technical and supervisory assistance for low income individuals and their families in carrying out their mutual and self-help housing effort. Loans would be made for land acquisition and development and construction costs. The bill would authorize appropriations of up to $5 million a year for this program which would have a termination date of June 30, 1973.

The committee does not intend that this program would interfere in any way with the continued use of existing farm housing loan authority for self-help housing.

Title X—Urban Property Protection and Reinsurance

BACKGROUND

This title of the bill would implement the major recommendations of the report by the President's National Advisory Panel on Insurance in Riot-Affected Areas, entitled "Meeting the Insurance Crisis of Our Cities," which was issued in January 1968. These recommendations represented the results of 4 months of intensive study which fully considered the views and recommendations of consumers, residents, and businesses of inner-city areas, insurance brokers, insurance industry representatives, and government officials. The Panel report and its recommendations were endorsed by the President, by State and other public representatives and by all segments of the insurance industry.

The facts developed by the Panel study and the hearings on this legislation point out the insurance crisis in our cities. The deterioration of many inner-city areas is threatening the economic and social health of the cities as a whole. This deterioration has, in too many cases, caused the owners of well-maintained properties and businesses to be unable to obtain adequate property insurance against fire, crime, and other perils because of the general location of the property in a high-risk area or because of its proximity to dilapidated or hazardous structures.

In the rundown, blighted areas of some cities, private insurance companies have determined, in many instances, that it is not economically feasible to provide insurance protection. This determination has led to the practice of "red lining" entire neighborhoods, which results in an almost automatic denial of insurance for reasons of location alone, regardless of the condition of the property. Without insurance coverage against the perils of fire and crime, banks and other lenders cannot and will not extend credit for the purchase and improvement of real property or for the financing of business inventories. Thus, without insurance, property deteriorates and business, particularly small business, stagnates within the affected area. This in turn affects adjoining areas. The result of all of this is that the deterioration and stagnation within the area tends to accelerate and the area of blight tends to expand.

Recent civil disorders in many urban areas have aggravated even further the property insurance problem. Property insurance companies generally purchase reinsurance against abnormally high losses from various perils. The unusually large losses on riot and civil commotion coverage recently paid by the property insurance industry have raised the serious question of whether the same reinsurance arrangements will continue to be available. Without this reinsurance, underwriters say that they cannot continue to provide riot and civil commotion protection in the various lines of property insurance, and may seek to cancel policies currently in force or refuse to renew them when they expire.

The problem of rehabilitating our inner-city areas is receiving a great deal of attention from virtually every segment of society. Private industry is being encouraged to invest time and money in these areas. The Government through the Department of Housing and Urban Development—and other agencies—has many programs designed to help solve the problems.

Many of the efforts being made may be classified under two concrete objectives—to see that all buildings in these areas are clean, safe, and functional and to improve their economic well-being so that they will be self-sustaining and profitable. To attain these objectives it will be necessary to foster increased construction and repair in the area and to foster the expansion of existing businesses and the establishment of new businesses. Adequate property insurance is essential to both of these endeavors.

Thus, if we are to prevent further deterioration in these areas, we must assure that essential property insurance availability increases.

The committee believes that the program that would be authorized by this title will cause the increase in the availability of property insurance which is necessary if we are to transform our inner city areas into viable, healthy, growing communities.

SUMMARY OF THE PROGRAM

The Secretary of HUD would provide reinsurance to insurance companies for losses paid by them resulting from riots or civil disorders. Providing this reinsurance will enable the insurance industry to continue to provide the necessary property insurance it is now providing to property owners in urban areas. Reinsurance losses would be shared among the insurance companies (through a loss retention and reinsurance premiums paid to the Secretary), the States, and the Federal Government.

The Secretary would also encourage the private property insurance industry, in cooperation with State insurance authorities, to develop statewide plans to assure all property owners fair access to property insurance. These would be known as "fair access to insurance requirements plans" (FAIR plans). Minimum criteria would be provided in the bill for the FAIR plans, but the State insurance authority would have the responsibility of determining the scope of the plans beyond the established minimum, working out the details of the operation of the plan, implementing the plan, and overseeing its operation. An insurance company obtaining reinsurance from the Secretary would have to agree to participate in the State plan.

The Secretary and the State insurance authority would maintain surveillance over the effectiveness of the FAIR plans in increasing insurance availability. If it is determined that the FAIR plan is not obtaining the desired results, additional programs may be required as a condition to continued reinsurance in the State.

DETAILED ANALYSIS OF THE TITLE

Section 1001 of the bill would provide that the title may be cited as the "Urban Property Protection and Reinsurance Act of 1968."

FINDINGS AND DECLARATION OF PURPOSE

Section 1002(a) of the bill would set forth congressional findings that the inadequacy of the supply of private investment and credit in inner-city areas resulting from an unavailability of property insurance is accelerating the deterioration of such areas and is threatening the economic well-being of cities; recent civil disorders have caused abnormally high losses for the property insurance industry. The unpredictability of such losses has made it difficult for reinsurers to offer reinsurance against riot and civil commotion losses on terms and conditions previously available. The resulting shrinkage of the reinsurance market has made adequate fire, crime, and other insurance coverage even more difficult to obtain; and the national interest demands urgent action to assure continued availability of property insurance.

Section 1002(b) of the bill would state that it is the purpose of the title to assist State insurance authorities and the private insurance industry in the development of statewide programs to increase the availability of necessary property insurance coverage against fire, crime, and other perils for property meeting reasonable underwriting standards, and to provide Federal reinsurance for extraordinary property insurance losses resulting from civil disorder, with appropriate State sharing.

AMENDMENT OF THE NATIONAL HOUSING ACT

Section 1003 of the bill would amend the National Housing Act by adding a new title XII, to authorize the establishment of the national insurance development program.

The provisions of the proposed new title are discussed in detail below.

PROGRAM AUTHORITY

Section 1201 of the new title would authorize the Secretary of HUD to establish and carry out the programs provided for in the title, and provides that the powers of the Secretary will terminate on April 30, 1973, except to the extent necessary to continue reinsurance until April 30, 1976, and to complete liquidation in accordance with a plan approved by Congress.

ADVISORY BOARD, MEETINGS, DUTIES, COMPENSATION, AND EXPENSES

Section 1202(a) of the new title would establish a 19-member visory board appointed by the Secretary, who would also designate a chairman and a vice chairman. Not more than six members of the board would be from the Federal Government, not less than four would be representatives of the private insurance industry (which includes the reinsurance industry), and not less than four would be representatives of State insurance authorities. The remaining members of the board would be made up of members from various segments of society, so that all interests affected by the insurance program might be represented.

Section 1202(b) of the new title would provide for the board to meet at least four times yearly and to hold special meetings at the call of the Secretary, the chairman, or any three members of the board.

Section 1202(c) of the new title would provide that the board shall review the general policies of the program, advising the Secretary with respect thereto, and perform other functions specified in the title.

By vesting the advisory board with the general advisory authority contained in this section, and the many specific areas of advisory authority contained in other sections, the committee believes that it has achieved two desirable results. It has guaranteed as many affected interests as possible that their representatives will be afforded maximum opportunity to advise and be consulted on actions taken or proposed by the Secretary. At the same time, the Secretary is afforded the opportunity to obtain expert advice in carrying out the program.

The committee is certain that the Secretary will make maximum use of the opportunity to obtain advice from the advisory board and will give full weight to that advice when determining the proper course on the various decisions which will be required.

Section 1202(d) of the new title would provide that non-Federal board members would be compensated at a rate fixed by the Secretary, and would also receive travel expenses incurred in performing their duties.

Section 1203 of the new title would define: (1) "Environmental hazard" to mean insurance hazards beyond the control of the property owner; (2) "essential property insurance" to mean insurance against direct loss to property as defined and limited in standard fire and extended coverage policies, as approved by the State insurance authority and the Secretary, and insurance for such types, classes, and locations of property against the perils of vandalism, malicious mischief, burglary, or theft, as the Secretary shall designate, but such insurance could not include automobile insurance or such types of manufacturing risks excluded by the State insurance authority; (3) "inspection facility" to mean any rating bureau or other person designated by the State insurance authority to perform inspections under the plans set forth in part A; (4) "insurer" to include insurance companies authorized to engage in the insurance business under State law; (5) "pool" to mean a pool or association of insurance companies formed to make property insurance more readily available; (6) "losses resulting from riots or civil disorders" to mean losses resulting from riots or civil disorders under policies for standard lines of property insurance for which reinsurance is offered as determined under regulations of the Secretary; (7) "property owner" to mean any person having an insurable interest in real or personal, or mixed real and personal, property; (8) "person" to include any individual or group of individuals, corporation, partnership, association, or any organized group of persons; (9) "reinsured losses" to mean losses on reinsurance claims and expenses incurred in connection therewith; (10) "standard line of property insurance" to include fire and extended coverage, vandalism and malicious mischief, other allied lines of fire insurance, burglary and theft, those portions of multiple peril policies covering perils similar to the foregoing, inland marine, glass, boiler and machinery, ocean marine, aircraft, physical damage, and such other lines as the Secretary may designate; (11) "State" to mean the several States, the District of Columbia, the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, Guam, American Samoa, and the Trust Territory of the Pacific; (12) "urban area" to include any municipality or political subdivision of a State subject to population limits and such additional areas as are designated by the State insurance authority; and (13) "year" as a calendar year, fiscal year, or other period of 12 months as designated by the Secretary. The Secretary would be authorized to define any technical or trade term.

During the executive session, amendments were offered to extend the definition of "essential property insurance" and "standard lines of property insurance" to include protection against arson, robbery, and such other lines of property insurance as the Secretary may determine. The amendments were not accepted because it was explained that the term "burglary and theft" as used in the bill includes protection against robbery and holdup, and that the "fire" portion of the fire and extended coverage policy includes protection against arson.

To make this point clear, it was unanimously agreed to incorporate in the report the committee's understanding that the term "fire and extended coverage" insurance includes insurance against arson. Similarly, the term "burglary and theft insurance" as used in this title include insurance against robbery, holdup, and similar crimes.

It has been pointed out that there has recently been a pattern of losses resulting from intentionally caused fire or other property damage which may or may not be connected in time or place to riots or group activity, but which could be determined to be a form of civil disorder. It is the view of the committee that losses of this nature might be considered by the Secretary when he issues regulations delineating the precise scope of "losses resulting from riots or civil disorders."

It should be noted that the Secretary has discretion as to whether to include certain types of coverage in the term "essential property insurance." The committee recognizes that there are specialized problems connected with many specific coverages which do not generally apply. However, it cannot be emphasized too much that the primary objective of this title is to increase the availability of the types of property insurance which are necessary to the owners of homes and businesses in urban areas. Accordingly, it is expected that the Secretary will include as many of these optional lines in the term "essential property insurance" as he can, having due regard for the specialized problems which may be involved with these lines.

Part A—Statewide Plans To Assure Fair Access to Insurance Requirements

FAIR PLANS

Section 1211(a) of the new title would require every insurer reinsured by the Secretary to cooperate with the State insurance authority, in each State in which it acquires reinsurance, in establishing and carrying out statewide plans to assure fair access to insurance requirements (FAIR plans).

Section 1211(b) of the new title would provide that these plans, which must be approved by the State insurance authority or authorized by State law, are to be designed to make essential property insurance more readily available in all urban areas in the State. Such plans may vary from State to State because of local conditions, but all plans must include provisions that—

(1) No insurance risk shall be written at a surcharged rate or be denied "essential property insurance" unless there is first an inspection of the property by an inspection facility, without cost to the owner of the property or deposit of prepayment premium, and a determination made that the risk is not insurable at the applicable premium rate;

(2) Inspections under the plan may be requested (in writing or otherwise) by a property owner (anyone with an insurable interest) his representative, or by an insurer, agent, broker, or other producer;

(3) The owner of the building need not be present during an inspection for a tenant seeking insurance to obtain an inspection;

(4) A copy of the inspection report will be promptly sent to an insurer after an inspection;

(5) The insurer will promptly process the application for insurance after the inspection report is received and will promptly return to the inspection facility a copy of the inspection report and a copy of an action report setting forth the amount of coverage the insurer agrees to write. If the insurer agrees to write the coverage with a surcharge, if any is authorized, it must also state the improvements that must be made to the property before it will provide coverage at an unsurcharged rate; if the insurer agrees to provide coverage on condition that certain improvements are made, it must state what improvements are required, as well as the amount of coverage it agrees to write, and if the insurer declines the risk it must clearly state the specific reasons;

(6) An insurer declining a risk, or agreeing to provide coverage only if the property is improved, will promptly send a copy of the inspection and action reports to the property owner who requested the insurance and the State insurance authority. At the time the insurer sends these reports to the property owner, it must also explain clearly his right to appeal the decision of the insurer to the State insurance authority;

(7) All policies under the plan will be written promptly and will be separately coded for compilation and study purposes;

(8) The inspection facility will submit periodic reports on the operation of the plan to the State insurance authority and to the Secretary. This report would set forth, by individual insurer, the number of risks inspected under the plan, the number of risks accepted, the number of risks conditionally accepted and reinspections made, the number of risks declined, and other information;

(9) Each insurer participating in the plan must give a policyholder sufficient notice prior to cancellation or nonrenewal to allow the policyholder to seek a new policy under the plan and will explain to the policyholder the procedures for obtaining insurance through the plan; and

(10) A cooperative and continuing public education program will be undertaken by the participating insurers, agents, and brokers to assure that the plan receives adequate public attention.

At this point the committee wishes to emphasize that the title is not designed to replace or alter the existing structure of the insurance industry or its regulation by the individual States. It is designed to utilize the existing structure of the industry and the State insurance regulatory agencies to the maximum extent. Although minimum criteria are provided in the bill, the State insurance authority would have the responsibility of determining the scope of the plans beyond the established minimum, working out the details of the operation of the plan, implementing the plan, and overseeing its operation.

The statewide FAIR plans represent a substantial expansion of the urban area plans developed by the insurance industry and State insurance authorities to induce greater writing of insurance in urban core areas and which now operate in 13 States. Urban area plans generally cover only residential properties in limited geographical areas, offer only fire and extended coverage insurance, and have procedural inadequacies. Experience with urban area plans demonstrates their promise, and the FAIR plan is designed to fulfill that promise and secure for all property owners equitable access to basic lines of property insurance by giving the insurance industry the responsibility for locating insurance for the owner of insurable property.

ALL-INDUSTRY PLACEMENT FACILITY

Section 1212 of the new title would require all plans to include an all-industry placement facility, doing business with every insurer in the State participating in the plan. This facility would help agents and brokers place insurance up to the full insurable value of a property, except to the extent that deductibles, percentage participation clauses, and other underwriting devices might be employed to meet special problems of insurability. The facility would seek to place this business equitably among the companies with which it is doing business.

INDUSTRY COOPERATION

Section 1213 of the new title would require every insurer participating in a plan to file a statement pledging its full participation and cooperation in carrying out the plan with the State insurance authority and with the Secretary. It would prohibit an insurance company from discouraging in any way its agents and brokers from submitting applications for insurance through a plan.

PLAN EVALUATION

Section 1214(a) of the new title would provide for the State insurance authority to transmit copies of a plan, and any amendments, to the Secretary and to advise him concerning the operation of the plan, and the need to adopt other programs to make essential property insurance more readily available.

Section 1214(b) of the new title would authorize the Secretary, after full consultation with the advisory board, to modify the criteria for plans if he finds, on the basis of experience, such action is necessary or desirable to carry out the purposes of the title. The Secretary would also be authorized to waive compliance with one or more of the plan criteria upon certification by the State insurance authority that compliance is unnecessary or inadvisable under local conditions or State law. Such a waiver, however, should normally only be granted when it does not conflict with the purpose of such plans to provide increased availability of insurance.

This provision is consistent with the objective of providing maximum flexibility in order to meet different circumstances; it allows changes in the event the existing program is not operating efficiently and it allows modification or change of general requirements which may, for special reasons, be inadvisable under given circumstances.

Part B—Reinsurance Coverage

REINSURANCE OF LOSSES FROM RIOTS OR CIVIL DISORDERS

Section 1221(a) of the new title would authorize the Secretary to offer to any insurer or pool, subject to the conditions set forth in section 1223, reinsurance against property losses resulting from riots or civil disorders. Reinsurance would be offered on fire and extended coverage, vandalism and malicious mischief, other allied lines of fire insurance, burglary and theft, and those portions of multiple-peril policies covering perils similar to the foregoing. Reinsurance would be offered on all of these lines, taken together. Companies acquiring reinsurance on all such lines would be eligible to purchase reinsurance on any other individual standard line of property insurance.

Section 1221(b) of the new title would provide that reinsurance coverage may be provided immediately following enactment of the title by means of a written binder which is to expire at the end of a 90-day period or upon the effective date of the reinsurance contract between an insurer and the Secretary, whichever is earlier.

Section 1221(c) of the new title would provide that no reinsurance will be offered to an insurer in a State after the expiration of the binder referred to in subsection (b) unless the insurer is participating in that State's plan as described in part A.

REINSURANCE AGREEMENTS AND PREMIUMS

Section 1222(a) of the new title would authorize the Secretary, during the first year following enactment of the title, to enter into reinsurance contracts in consideration of payment of such premium or other charge which the Secretary deems adequate to obtain an aggregate fund in excess of the estimated amount of insured riot losses during 1967, assuming a substantial proportion of property insurance written will be reinsured. Thereafter, the Secretary may increase or decrease such premiums for reinsurance if it is found, after full consultation with the advisory board and the National Association, of Insurance Commissioners, that such action is necessary or appropriate.

Section 1222(b) of the new title would provide that the reinsurance offered shall reimburse an insurer for its total proved and approved claims for losses resulting from riots or civil disorders during the term of the reinsurance contract, in excess of the amount of the insurer's retention of such losses as provided in the reinsurance contract. The typical insurance company retention of loss arrangement is expected to involve two features: (1) An initial retention of losses, equal to a percentage of premiums earned in a State on lines reinsured, plus (2) the assumption of an additional percentage of total losses, above and beyond the initial retention. For illustrative purposes, the first percentage might be assumed to be 3 percent. Assuming that premiums earned in the State on reinsured lines amounted to $100 million, the insurers' initial retention would be $3 million ($100 million times 3 percent). If the second percentage is assumed to be 10 percent, and the total insured claims from riots and civil disorders by companies doing business in the State in a calendar year amounted to $45 million, the additional insurers' retention of losses would amount to $4.2 million ($45 million less the $3 million initial retention times 10 percent). Thus, the private insurers' retention of riot losses from their own resources would be $7.2 million.

Section 1222(c) of the new title would authorize the Secretary to include such terms and conditions in reinsurance contracts as are necessary to carry out the purposes of the title, but such terms and conditions shall be uniform throughout the country. Nevertheless, to take account of the significant variations between the needs of insurers, the Secretary, in his discretion, could permit insurers to select from different specified levels of retention of losses, provided that the premium rates adequately reflect each level so retained by each insurer, and further provided that the premium rate for any given retention is uniform for all insurers throughout the country.

Section 1222(d) of the new title would provide that reinsurance contracts will be for a term expiring on April 30, 1969, and on April 30 each year thereafter and shall be entered into within 90 days of the effective date of this title or within 90 days prior to April 30 each year thereafter, or within 90 days after an insurer is authorized to write insurance in a State which it was not so authorized to write in the preceding year.

CONDITIONS OF REINSURANCE

Section 1223(a) of the new title would set forth various conditions under which the Secretary will terminate existing reinsurance and will not offer new coverage on policies written after the termination date.

Paragraph (1) would provide that reinsurance will not be offered in any State if the State itself, its political subdivisions, or a governmental corporation or fund established pursuant to State law, does not assume a portion of the responsibility for assisting the Secretary to reinsure against losses resulting from riots or civil disorders, within 1 year after the effective date of the act, or if the appropriate State legislative body has not met in regular session during that year by the close of its next regular session. The State would not be called on to reimburse the Secretary until the reinsured losses paid by the Secretary in a calendar year are in excess of (A) the total reinsurance premiums received in the State during the year, plus (B) the excess of reinsurance premiums received in the State over reinsured losses paid by the Secretary during the preceding period measured from the most recent calendar year in which the State had reimbursed the Secretary for reinsured losses. After the Secretary has paid such amount of reinsured losses in a calendar year, the State would reimburse the Secretary for his additional reinsured losses in that State during the year, in an amount up to 5 percent of the aggregate property insurance premiums earned in the State during the preceding calendar year on those lines of insurance reinsured by the Secretary in the State in the current year. Under the foregoing formula, State sharing would not be required unless losses in a State exceeded the sum of (1) the premiums paid by the insurance industry for reinsurance in that State (premiums paid in the year in which the losses occurred plus premiums paid in previous years in excess of reinsured losses paid), and (2) the companies' retained losses. Assuming that the premiums earned in the State on reinsured lines amounted to $100 million and that the premiums for Federal reinsurance would be 2 percent of such earned premiums, the first amount would be $2 million. If the second amount of retained losses by the companies were $7.2 million, the total would be $9.2 million. Since total riot losses exceed this amount, in this example (i.e., $45 million), the State's share would be $5 million ($100 million times 5 percent). There would remain to be paid $30.8 million ($45 million less $9.2 million less $5 million). This amount would be paid by the Secretary from premiums received from companies for reinsurance in other States.

Paragraph (2) would provide that reinsurance will cease to be available on new policies written in a State after 30 days following the Secretary's notification to the insurer that the Secretary finds that a suitable program, in addition to the plan set forth in part A, is required to make essential property insurance more readily available in the State without regard to environmental hazards, and that such program has not been adopted. This paragraph, however, would not become effective until 2 years after the effective date of this act, or at such earlier date as the Secretary, after consultation with the State insurance authority may determine.

This paragraph empowers the Secretary to require, as a condition of continuing reinsurance, the establishment of mandatory, assigned-risk pools or other devices to assure the availability of essential property insurance in any State in which he finds that a voluntary FAIR plan is not fulfilling the purposes of this title.

It is the committee's understanding that the 2-year grace period in this paragraph is provided primarily to give the voluntary FAIR plans a reasonable opportunity to prove their effectiveness in broadening the property insurance market.

The committee expects the Secretary to begin evaluating the FAIR plans immediately upon enactment of this title. If at any time during the first 2 years he finds, after consultation with the appropriate State insurance authority, that additional measures are necessary to improve the availability of essential property insurance in a State, the committee expects him to require the adoption of such measures without delay as a condition of continuing reinsurance.

It has been called to our attention that a number of existing insurance policies covering inner city properties have been canceled since the April 1968 disorders. Presumably many of these cancellations were due to the unavailability of reinsurance for riot loss. The committee expects that policies canceled for this reason will be reinstated as soon as reinsurance under this title becomes available, without waiting for implementation of the FAIR plans.

Paragraph (3) would provide that reinsurance will cease to be available on policies written in a State after 30 days following notification to the insurer that the Secretary or the State insurance authority finds that the insurer is not fully participating in the plan in the State, in an existing pool, or in any other existing program found by the Secretary to aid in making essential property insurance more readily available in the State.

Paragraph (4) would provide that reinsurance will not be available on new policies written by an insurer following a merger, acquisition, consolidation, or reorganization involving an insurer with reinsurance on one or more lines of insurance and an insurer with or without such reinsurance unless the surviving company meets the criteria of eligibility for reinsurance other than as provided in section 1222(d) and promptly pays any reinsurance premiums due.

Paragraph (5) would provide that reinsurance will terminate upon cancellation by the insurer.

Section 1223(b) of the new title would provide that if reinsurance is terminated or canceled under this section coverage may continue for policies written during the time reinsurance was in force upon payment of an appropriate premium or other charge.

FINANCING THE REINSURANCE PROGRAM

The financing arrangement envisions a reinsurance program which can be self-supporting, drawing on reinsurance premiums paid by insurance companies and payments by the States to cover losses from riots and civil disorders which exceed the losses retained by the insurance companies. If riot losses throughout the Nation resulted in reinsurance claims in excess of the aggregate amount of reinsurance premiums received by the Secretary, the excess would be paid from funds borrowed by the Secretary from the Treasury, to be repaid from future reinsurance premiums. In the event that there is a need to borrow from the Treasury, the authorization in section 520(b) of the National Housing Act for mortgage insurance would be employed. If necessary the Secretary has the authority to renegotiate the amounts of the reinsurance premiums at the time of contract renewal in order to aid in the provision for such repayment. This existing authorization for the Secretary to borrow funds for payment of mortgage insurance claims would be modified so that it could also be used for payment of claims under the reinsurance program. The similar financial requirements of these insurance programs makes this appropriate. The reinsurance program, like the mortgage insurance program, must provide an assurance of prompt payment of claims, In both cases the amount of claims cannot be determined in advance and in normal situations premiums are expected to be sufficient to pay anticipated losses. The Secretary would be authorized to borrow up to $150 million for payment of reinsured losses and such further sums as the Congress, by joint resolution, may from time to time determine.

RECOVERY OF PREMIUMS; STATUTE OF LIMITATIONS

Section 1224 of the new title would authorize the Secretary to recover any unpaid premiums for reinsurance. It imposes a 5-year statute of limitations on the recovery by an insurer of excess premiums paid to the Secretary or the recovery by the Secretary for reinsurance premiums due; and provides that if an insurer has filed false documents with the Secretary with the intent to evade payment of the appropriate premium the 5-year period will not begin until the Secretary discovers the deception.

Part C—Provisions of General Applicability

CLAIMS AND JUDICIAL REVIEW

Section 1231 of the new title would authorize the Secretary to adjust and pay claims for proved and approved losses covered by reinsurance and authorizes any claimant, upon disallowance of a claim, to institute an action within 1 year after the receipt of the notice of disallowance in the U.S. district court for the district in which the insured property was situated. Jurisdiction would be conferred on the district court without regard to the amount in controversy.

FISCAL INTERMEDIARIES AND SERVICING AGENTS

Section 1232(a) of the new title would authorize the Secretary to enter into contracts with any insurer or private organization for performance of any or all of the following functions: (1) Estimating or determining reinsurance claim payment amounts; (2) receiving funds and disbursing and accounting for them in making reinsurance claim payments; (3) auditing the records of any insurer to assure proper payments; (4) establishing the basis of liability for reinsurance; and (5) otherwise furthering the purposes of the act as provided in the contract.

Section 1232(b) of the new title would provide that surety bonds may be required from the insurer or private organization, or any of its officers or employees participating in carrying out the contract, in amounts deemed appropriate by the Secretary. No individual designated to certify payments and no officer in the Federal Government disbursing funds in accordance with a proper certification of payments would be liable with respect to such payments in the absence of gross negligence or intent to defraud the United States.

NATIONAL INSURANCE DEVELOPMENT FUND

Section 1233(a) of the new title would authorize a national insurance development fund to be used by the Secretary to carry out the programs authorized under the new title. The fund would be available without fiscal year limitation to: (1) Pay reinsurance claims under the reinsurance coverages provided in part B; (2) pay the administrative expenses of the program; and (3) repay, with interest, sums which may be borrowed from the Secretary of the Treasury under section 520(b) of the National Housing Act.

Section 1233(b) of the new title would provide that the fund is to be credited with: (1) Reinsurance premiums paid by insurers in connection with the reinsurance coverages provided under part B; (2) amounts advanced to the fund from appropriations to maintain the fund in a condition adequate to meet its liabilities; (3) interest on investments of the fund; (4) receipts from other sources which may be deposited in the fund; and (5) funds which may be borrowed under section 520(b) and deposited in the fund.

Section 1233(c) of the new title would authorize the Secretary, after determination that fund moneys exceed current needs, to invest such amounts as he deems advisable through the Secretary of the Treasury, in obligations issued or guaranteed by the United States.

RECORDS, ANNUAL STATEMENTS, AND AUDITS

Section 1234(a) of the new title would require any insurer acquiring reinsurance to furnish the Secretary with summaries and analyses of information in their records in such forms as the Secretary, in cooperation with the State insurance authority, shall prescribe by rules and regulations. The Secretary would be required to use State insurance authority examination reports and facilities to the maximum extent feasible.

Section 1234(b) of the new title would require every insurer acquiring reinsurance to file with the Secretary a copy of the annual statement, or any amendment thereto, that it files with the State insurance authority of its domiciliary State, at the time it files the statement or amendment with the insurance authority.

Section 1234(c) of the new title would require insurers or other persons executing contracts with the Secretary under sections 1222 or 1232 to keep such reasonable records as will facilitate an effective audit of liability for reinsurance payments by the Secretary.

Section 1234(d) of the new title would authorize the Secretary and the Comptroller General of the United States, or their designees, to have access to the books and records of an insurer or other person for the purpose of conducting an audit pertinent to the costs of any program undertaken for, or services rendered to, the Secretary.

To the maximum extent feasible, such audits are to be conducted in cooperation with State insurance authorities and through use of their examining facilities.

STUDY OF REINSURANCE AND OTHER PROGRAMS

Section 1235 of the new title would authorize and direct the Secretary to conduct studies to help assure an adequate supply of burglary and theft and other property insurance in urban areas, and to help assure the adequate availability of surety bonds for construction contractors in urban areas. The Secretary is required to submit the results of his study, together with appropriate recommendations, to the President and the Congress no later than 1 year after the effective date of the title.

Section 1236 of the new title would authorize the Secretary to undertake studies of (1) the operation of the plans under part (A); (2) the extent to which essential property insurance is unavailable in urban areas; (3) the market for private reinsurance; and (4) loss-prevention methods and procedures, insurance marketing methods, and underwriting techniques.

GENERAL POWERS

Section 1237 of the new title would give the Secretary the authority to issue rules and regulations and other powers and duties set forth in section 402 (except subsecs. (c)(2) and (f) which are not relevant and (d) which is obsolete) of the Housing Act of 1950. This would provide for a budget program and audit of accounts in accordance with the Government Corporation Control Act, and also provide that financial transactions under the reinsurance program shall be final and conclusive upon all officers of the Government.

SERVICES AND FACILITIES OF OTHER AGENCIES—UTILIZATION OF PERSONNEL, SERVICES, FACILITIES, AND INFORMATION

Section 1238 of the new title would authorize the Secretary, with the consent of the agency concerned, to utilize the personnel and information of any agency of the Federal Government on a reimbursable basis and to obtain without reimbursement data relating to matters within the jurisdiction of the Secretary from any agency having custody of such data, to the extent permitted by law.

ADVANCE PAYMENTS

Section 1239 of the new title would provide that the Secretary may make reinsurance payments in advance or by way of reimbursement and in such installments and on such conditions as he may determine.

TAXATION

Section 1240(a) of the new title would exempt the National Insurance Development Fund from taxation by any local or State government and the Federal Government, except on real property acquired as a result of reinsurance. Real property may be taxed by a State or political subdivision thereof to the same extent, according to the value of the property, as other real property is taxed.

Section 1240(b) of the new title would provide that any measures undertaken by a State to meet or fund its obligations for reinsured losses under section 1223(a)(1) of the title shall not be the subject of any retaliatory or fiscal imposition by any other State.

APPROPRIATIONS

Section 1241 of the new title would authorize such appropriations as may be necessary to carry out the title.

FINANCING

Section 1004 of the bill would amend section 520(b) of the National Housing Act to permit use of the borrowing authorization contained therein for payment of losses reinsured under title XII of the act, provided that borrowings for this purpose shall be limited to $150 million or such further sums as the Congress, by joint resolution, may from time to time determine. It is contemplated that such borrowings will be repaid from future premiums to the reinsurance fund.

Title XI—National Flood Insurance

Title XI of the bill would authorize a national program under which flood insurance can be made available to occupants of flood-prone areas through the cooperative efforts of the Federal Government and the private insurance industry. The program would be administered by the Department of Housing and Urban Development. Other Government agencies would cooperate with the Department with respect to gathering data necessary for establishing actuarial premium rates.

The facilities of the private insurance industry would be fully utilized in carrying out the program. Private insurance companies could either assume a portion of the risk in carrying out the program or could participate on a nonrisk basis. Risk-sharing companies would commit risk capital to an industry pool of companies which would absorb a share of the losses and expenses of the program. The Federal Government would make premium equalization payments to the pool to cover losses and also would provide reinsurance coverage to the pool for excessively high losses. Insurance companies in the pool would pay a premium to the Government for this reinsurance coverage in years of low-flood losses. Other non-risk-bearing insurance companies would participate in the program as fiscal agents of the pool.

A most important public purpose which the program will serve will be to encourage State and local governments to adopt and enforce appropriate land use provisions to restrict the future development of land which is exposed to flood hazard.

Flood insurance legislation (S. 1985) was passed by the Senate on September 14, 1967. This legislation was subsequently amended and passed by the House on November 1, 1967. Both the House and the Senate insisted upon their versions of the legislation, and conferees were appointed by both Houses. A conference committee meeting between the two Houses on the legislation was not scheduled. The provisions of title XI are substantially those contained in S. 1985 as it was passed by the House except for the provision relating to the method of funding the obligations of the Federal Government under the program. As passed by the House, there would have been authorized to be appropriated for this purpose up to $500 million, while under the Senate version the Secretary would have been permitted to utilize existing authority under the Federal Flood Insurance Act of 1956 to borrow up to $500 million from the Treasury. The committee proposal would permit utilization of the existing borrowing authority but only in an aggregate amount not exceeding $150 million.

NEED FOR A FLOOD INSURANCE PROGRAM

Heavy losses over the years from hurricanes in the coastal areas and from storms in inland areas of the Nation dramatize the lack of insurance protection against flood damage. Insurance protection against the risk of destruction caused by tornadoes and other natural catastrophes is generally available, but it is not available against the risk of flood loss.

Communities along the seacoast or in a river basin become completely immobilized following a major flood. Usually they must depend on the Federal Government and voluntary relief agencies to provide various forms of assistance. Some State and local governments have limited programs to assist a flood-stricken area, but disaster relief from all of these sources is inadequate to provide for the necessary restoration of heavily damaged areas. These facts underline the need for a program which will make insurance against flood damage available, encourage persons to become aware of the risk of occupying the flood plains, and reduce the mounting Federal expenditures for disaster relief assistance.

DESCRIPTION OF THE TITLE

The Secretary of Housing and Urban Development will establish a program of flood insurance, as a joint venture between the Federal Government and the private insurance industry. The bill permits as an alternative, but only if necessary, an all-Federal program with or without participation by companies, agents, or brokers as fiscal agents.

COVERAGE

Under this title, insurance will be made available for one- to four-family residential properties and for smaller business properties such as the typical neighborhood family enterprise. The committee wishes to point out that because rate data for these properties are not now available, rate studies of these small business properties must be carried out before coverage can be provided.

Flood insurance could be expanded to cover other types and classes of properties (such as other business, agricultural, and other properties), only when, on the basis of studies and other information, this was found feasible, and only after further congressional action. There will therefore be an ample opportunity for the Congress to appraise the feasibility of including any other properties in the program.

A priority will be given to making insurance available in States or areas which had evidenced a positive interest in the program, and which had given assurances that by June 30, 1970, appropriate permanent land use and control measures consistent with land management and use criteria specified by the Secretary will have been adopted.

The bill provides for a two-stage requirement: (1) that for any area in which insurance is offered before June 30, 1970, an assurance be given that, by that date, permanent land use and control measures will be adopted which are consistent with criteria prescribed under the bill, and (2) that after that date, no new insurance contract may be written or existing contract renewed unless such measures, with effective enforcement provisions, have been adopted in the area.

These land use criteria will be developed on the basis of joint Federal-State-local studies and will be designed to spur the adoption of State and local measures. The objectives of such regulations would be to (1) restrict the development of land exposed to flood damage, where appropriate, (2) guide the development of proposed construction away from areas threatened by flood hazards, (3) assist in reducing damage caused by floods, and (4) otherwise improve the long-range land management and use of flood-prone areas.

After consultation with the flood insurance advisory committee authorized under the bill, representatives of the flood insurance pool, and representatives of the State insurance commissioners, the Secretary will determine the types, classes, location of, and other matters relating to the eligibility of properties for flood insurance. These matters will be covered in regulations.

Residential properties.—Under section 1107(b)(1)(A) of the bill, insurance for one-family residential properties at rates below acturial cost will be limited to $17,500 liability per dwelling unit, and to $30,000 for any two- to four-family single structure. Aggregate liability for contents in these circumstances would be limited to $5,000 per dwelling unit.

Smaller business properties.—Under section 1107(b)(1)(B) of the bill smaller business properties can be insured at rates below actuarial cost in an amount up to $30,000, plus $5,000 multiplied by the number of the small business occupants of the structure involved; the total thus derived (which would include both the structure and its contents) would be allocated among the small business occupants (or among them and the owner) under regulations prescribed by the Secretary, with coverage for the structure itself at below-cost rates being limited in any case to $30,000.

Section 1107(b)(1)(B) makes flexible the limits for insurability of structure and contents for smaller business concerns. Drug, hardware, furniture, and clothing stores often contain on the premises stocks valued at many times the total value of the structure of the business establishment itself. High floodwaters often force into bankruptcy these concerns whose stocks are ruined, even though damage to the structure might be modest in scale, perhaps being confined to interior floors.

Section 1107(b)(1)(B) recognizes at the outset of the program the need for flood insurance for contents of smaller business establishments on a more equal level of priority with that of insurance for structures. Because the program is new the committee thinks that it is appropriate to grant the Secretary ample flexibility through regulations to be promulgated so as to permit a more equitable division of insurance coverage between small business structures and contents.

Additional coverage at full-cost premiums.—The dollar limitations imposed under sections 1107(b)(1)(A) and 1107(b)(1)(B) will only be applicable to insurance involving premium rates below actuarial cost. The committee bill permits insurance at full actuarial cost to be sold for coverage in excess of the applicable dollar limits specified (or allocated), up to twice these limits. Thus, for example, an existing single-family residential unit valued at $38,000 might be eligible for up to $17,500 "subsidized" insurance on the real property and for insurance at the full-cost rate at amounts of coverage between $17,500 and $35,000; and the contents might be insured at amounts of coverage between $5,000 and $10,000 at the full-cost rate.

Similarly, if a smaller business property valued at $90,000 is occupied by two firms, one of which is the owner, and the maximum structure-plus-contents coverage of $40,000 is allocated $30,000 to the owner (for $20,000 real property coverage and for $10,000 contents) and $10,000 to the other firm (for contents only), additional insurance at the full-cost rate might be provided to the owner for coverage between $30,000 and $60,000 (between $20,000 and $40,000 for real property and between $10,000 and $20,000 for contents) and to the other firm for coverage between $10,000 and $20,000 (for contents).

INSURANCE PREMIUM RATES

Necessary rate studies and investigations will be carried out through utilization of the services of the Army Corps of Engineers, the Geological Survey, the Soil Conservation Service, the Coast and Geodetic Survey, TVA, and other Federal departments and agencies, to estimate risk premium rates (actuarial rates) for flood insurance. The Secretary will also estimate rates (at less than the risk premium rates if necessary) which will be reasonable and will encourage persons to purchase flood insurance. These studies and investigations will be designed to accumulate necessary information in addition to the data which the Department now has with respect to flood insurance as a result of the flood insurance study. Estimates of rates will include applicable operating costs and operating allowances (administrative costs of selling and servicing insurance, and the profit and contingencies, respectively). Based on these estimates and determinations of reasonable rates which can be charged to property owners, the Secretary will prescribe chargeable premium rates for eligible properties (at less than the risk premium rates, if necessary) and the terms and conditions applicable to such rates.

In prescribing rates, the respective risks involved would be considered, in terms of location, type of structure, flood-proofing or similar measures, and other criteria. Rates will be stated so as to reflect the differences between estimated risk premium rates and the rates charged when they are below these rates.

Property constructed or substantially improved, after identification of the area in which it is located as a flood hazard area, could only be insured at the risk premium rate (actuarial cost) estimated for the property in such area.

Any Federal "subsidy" which will accrue under the insurance program to the benefit of property owners now occupying the flood plain is defensible only as part of an interim solution to long-range readjustments in land use. Because such assistance should not prejudice these needed long-range adjustments, the case for temporary partial subsidization of the cost of flood premiums for existing properties in high-hazard zones is not at all valid for new properties in the same zones.

Actuarial premium rates must be established before insurance is offered. To meet the objectives of actuarial soundness, the Secretary will compile and analyze flood frequency data in individual flood plain areas and establish rates based on a consideration of the risk involved and accepted actuarial principles with respect to the types and classes of property for which flood insurance coverage will be available. This will be done on an area-by-area basis, since flood damage risks vary from one area to another.

DUPLICATION OF BENEFITS

The committee bill is designed to encourage individuals to pay at least part of the cost of providing insurance to protect them against flood disasters, and thereby to reduce the need for special disaster relief measures. To this end, the bill contains provisions to prevent any duplication of Federal disaster benefits with respect to portions of property loss covered under flood insurance policies. Other provisions are designed to encourage persons most likely to suffer future damage from flood either to purchase flood insurance made available to them within a reasonable period of time, or, with certain exceptions, be precluded from further Federal disaster assistance in the event of future floods.

FEDERAL FINANCIAL PARTICIPATION IN THE PROGRAM

Any program of insurance against the risk of flood losses must have assurance that funds will be made available to meet abnormally high losses that may occur in any single year. The bill therefore creates the national flood insurance fund in the Treasury of the United States which would become the instrumentality through which the Federal Government's share of the cost of the insurance program will be provided. To finance this fund, the authority which was available to the Housing and Home Finance Administrator by section 15(e) of the Federal Flood Insurance Act of 1956 is vested in the Secretary. Under this provision as limited under section 1110 of the bill, the Secretary may issue notes or other obligations to the Secretary of the Treasury in the aggregate of $150 million to carry out the Federal responsibilities under the program. These are: (1) Making premium equalization payments to the insurance pool to compensate for losses attributable to the difference between the actuarially correct premium and the premium actually charged the policyholder; and (2) providing a Federal program of excess loss reinsurance, to assist the industry in meeting losses in years of higher than normal claims.

Borrowed Treasury funds will be deposited in the flood insurance fund authorized under the bill. Appropriated funds necessary to maintain the fund in an operative condition will also be deposited in the fund as will reinsurance premiums paid by the insurance pool. Subsidy payments and reinsurance claims will be paid from the fund. The fund will also become the fiscal means through which Treasury borrowings would be repaid, and available moneys would be used for this purpose (supplemented by moneys appropriated to the fund).

This financing mechanism for carrying out the program is essential to its operation, because it will be necessary to carry out commitments which the U.S. Government will be required to make, and to meet liabilities it assumes for payment of a share of claims and expenses under contracts with an insurance industry pool. Under the bill, the Secretary will enter into agreements with a flood insurance pool, and will make periodic premium equalization payments and, when necessary, provide reinsurance to the pool. The exact amount of payments will be unknown until the flood damage occurs, the claims are made, adjusted, and certified. At such times, the insurance pool, under agreement with the Government, will have already made payment of these claims. The pool therefore must have available the Government's share of liabilities under the program without delay.

LIMITATIONS

The face amount of flood insurance policies outstanding at any one time could not exceed $2.5 billion. This figure does not relate to potential losses, but is a limitation on early growth of the program. The sum is equivalent, for example, to coverage of somewhat over 100,000 homes at $14,000 per unit, and about 30,000 smaller businesses at $28,000 per unit, and the limitation will therefore have to be reviewed by the Congress when additional coverage is needed.

In addition, the bill provides that flood insurance could not be issued for property declared to be in violation of State or local laws, regulations, or ordinances intended to discourage or otherwise restrict land development or occupancy in flood-prone areas.

ORGANIZATION AND ADMINISTRATION OF THE FLOOD INSURANCE PROGRAM

The Secretary is authorized to carry out the flood insurance program through a pool organized by the insurance industry or through a Government program with or without industry aid, or through both administrative means.

INDUSTRY PROGRAM WITH FEDERAL FINANCIAL ASSISTANCE

Insurance company pool.—The Secretary will encourage private insurance companies to join together in a pool to sell and service flood insurance coverage under the program. These companies will participate financially in underwriting the risks assumed, and in profits or losses realized or sustained.

The Secretary will enter into an agreement with any such pool and the agreement will form the basis of the relationship between the Government and the industry. In general, the agreement will require assurance from the industry: (1) Regarding continuity of coverage by insuring companies; (2) that companies meeting minimum standards will not be excluded; and (3) with respect to cooperation with other companies, agents, and brokers who wish to sell and service flood insurance on a non-risk-sharing basis.

Premium equalization payments.—Subsidy payments would be made to the pool to compensate for losses after they occur. These payments would reflect the difference between below-cost premium rates, and actual-cost premium rates. The payment formula is prescribed in the bill.

Reinsurance.—The Secretary is authorized to provide a reinsurance program for the insurance industry pool. This program would be designed to insure that the industry and the Federal Government share in bearing the losses under the flood insurance program consistent with the objectives of the legislation.

The program will be carried out under an excess loss reinsurance agreement, requiring payment of reinsurance premiums by the pool. Reinsurance payments to the pool by the Government will be made when a stop-loss limit on claims on the pool is exceeded. Before the stop-loss limit is reached, the pool will call upon the risk capital pledged by risk-participating members.

GOVERNMENT PROGRAM

Federal operation of the program.—The bill provides a "backstop" in the event the pool cannot carry out the joint Federal-private program effectively. The Secretary of HUD would be required to make a report to Congress with supporting findings and recommendations 30 days prior to implementing the all-Federal program. Then the Secretary would be empowered to establish a totally Federal program or a federally financed program using insurance companies, agents, and brokers to sell and service policies.

OPERATION OF THE FLOOD INSURANCE PROGRAM

Insurance industry pool.—The insurance pool authorized by this title will be an association of private insurance carriers formed to make flood insurance available. It will be open to all qualified companies licensed to write property insurance under the laws of the separate States who meet minimum requirements prescribed under the bill. Relations between the Government and the insurance pool will be governed by an agreement which will set forth in detail the conditions of operation.

Participation in the pool by private companies can take the form of risk capital participation. Some companies can elect to operate as fiscal agents for risk-taking members of the pool. The significance of this arrangement is that small companies with limited capital resources will not be prevented from participating.

Operation of the pool.—Participating member companies of the pool, either as risk bearers or as fiscal agents, will sell and service policies in much the same way as they now sell insurance against fire and other perils. Their relationship with the pool will be governed by an agreement, the conditions of which will be subject to approval by the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development. As fiscal agents they will be paid fees for selling and servicing of policies. As risk bearers, they will share in the aggregate profits or losses of the pool's operation for a particular acconting period. Risk-bearing member companies will be jointly liable for the payment of claims by insolvent members.

The Government-pool relationship will be governed by an agreement setting forth financial and other arrangements.

Financial arrangements with Government.—Discussions have been held between the Department of Housing and Urban Development and the industry as to the financial arrangements which could be made for operating the proposed joint flood insurance program. An understanding has been reached on the broad features of expenses, losses, and profits.

Among the broad features of the financial arrangements which have been discussed, one key feature is that the Government and the industry will both share in expenses and losses of the insurance operation. The basis for this sharing will be the same as the sharing in the risk.

The sharing in the risk will be measured by the relationship between chargeable premiums—that is the premiums which policyholders pay—and the estimated risk premiums—that is, the premium needed to cover the actuarial risk plus operating costs and allowances. The Government will assume that proportion of the risk represented by the difference between these policyholder-paid premiums collected and the estimated (actuarial) premium amounts for all policies written and in force under the program.

As the program develops, it can be expected that the industry's risk and share of losses will become greater. This is because existing properties will be substantially improved or replaced by new properties, and therefore, more and more of the chargeable premiums will become full cost premiums. At some time in the future, therefore it is possible for the chargeable premiums to equal the estimated premiums. At that time, the Government will have no liability for expenses or losses, except with respect to reinsurance that may be needed against catastrophic losses. This feature of the proposed arrangement seems to the committee to be desirable from the standpoint of the Federal Government, the private insurance industry, and the public as a whole.

Title XII—Mortgage Insurance for Nonprofit Hospitals

This title would add a new section 242 to the National Housing Act to authorize the Secretary of HUD to insure mortgages of nonprofit hospitals. There is a serious shortage of hospital facilities in the Nation today and, even where hospitals presently exist, many of them are in need of extensive expansion and modernization. Although much hospital construction has been made possible in recent years with direct Federal assistance under the Hill-Burton Act and many nonprofit groups have been able to provide hospitals through fundraising drives and similar efforts, these two sources have been inadequate to fund all the facilities needed. Recent testimony before the Congress indicated a minimum need in the neighborhood of $3.7 billion. One source of funding that has not been utilized to its full potential is long-term mortgage financing. Unfortunately, nonprofit organizations have found mortgage lenders reluctant to provide such financing at reasonable terms or over the periods of time which are necessary to permit the nonprofit hospital to amortize the loan without unduly burdening its patients.

This new section of the National Housing Act would go a long way toward alleviating this problem by utilizing the time-tested formula of FHA insurance of long-term mortgage financing. FHA insurance has proven to be extremely successful in promoting the construction of much needed housing in this country over the past 35 years and the committee believes that it would be successful in helping to alleviate the present serious shortgage of hospital facilities. This can be done without any anticipated cost to the Federal Government, since the program would be self-sustaining through the collection of mortgage insurance premiums just as is now true in connection with FHA's housing programs.

The committee wishes to emphasize that the provisions of title XII were drafted so as to supplement and not interfere in any way with the basic Hill-Burton grant program for modernization and construction of hospital facilities.

Under this section, a mortgage in an amount not to exceed $25 million and not in excess of 90 percent of the estimated replacement cost of the property could be insured by the Secretary for the purpose of providing a new hospital or rehabilitating an existing hospital. An eligible hospital would be one which provides community service for inpatient medical care of the sick or injured (including obstetrical care) and in which not more than 50 percent of the total patient-days during any year are customarily assignable to the categories of chronic convalescence and rest, drug and alcoholic, epileptic, mentally deficient, mental, nervous and mental, and tuberculosis. The hospital would have to be owned and operated by one or more nonprofit organizations or associations no part of net earnings of which inures, or may lawfully inure, to the profit of any private shareholder or individual.

The mortgage could cover the cost of major items of equipment needed to operate the hospital as well as the cost of the actual construction or rehabilitation. As for the FHA group practice facilities mortgage insurance program and the FHA nursing home program, equipment is a major and absolutely necessary aspect of providing a hospital ready to serve the public. This equipment is often quite costly and the committee believes that it would be better to finance it under the longer terms of the mortgage rather than requiring the hospital to resort to the short-term financing that would otherwise be necessary. It wishes to emphasize, however, that the equipment items includable would only be those costly, major items which are essential to the operation of the hospital and not minor items, many of which have a short life term.

The Secretary could not insure any mortgage under this new section unless he had received, from the State agency designated in accordance with section 604(a)(1) of the Public Health Service Act for the State in which the hospital is located, a certification that (1) there is a need for the hospital, and (2) there are in force in the State, or the political subdivision in which the hospital would be located, reasonable minimum standards of licensure and methods of operation for hospitals. The Secretary would have to receive assurance satisfactory to him from the State agency that such standards will be applied and enforced with respect to any hospital receiving mortgage insurance. This will assure that the Federal insurance will not be provided with respect to inadequate hospitals or those which do not adhere to minimum standards prescribed by the State or locality. In view of the fact that the Department of Housing and Urban Development does not have staff with specialized knowledge in the field of hospital operation, the committee believes that this requirement is an absolute necessity. It also expects the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare to assist HUD in devising the standards that will govern the insurance of these mortgages, thereby enabling HUD to draw upon the expertise available in HEW in this field.

The new section would also encourage mortgage insurance for facilities that are owned by nonprofit organizations with programs that undertake responsibility to provide comprehensive health care, including outpatient and preventive care, as well as hospitalization, to a defined population. This will enable group practice organizations which exist for the purpose of providing a full range of health services to their members through prepayment plans to finance facilities in which they cannot only provide day-to-day medical attention to their members but also such hospital care as may be necessary.

This title would also amend section 212 of the National Housing Act, to make applicable the labor standards provisions of that section to the construction and rehabilitation financed with mortgages insured under the new section 242. However, these requirements could be waived with respect to labor donated, without compensation, to the project by laborers or mechanics not otherwise employed at any time on the project, provided the value of such donated labor is fully credited to the hospital.

Title XIII—Housing Goals and Annual Housing Report

REAFFIRMATION OF GOAL

Section 1301 of the bill would state a congressional finding that the Nation's housing is not increasing rapidly enough to meet the national housing goal, as set forth in the Housing Act of 1949, of the "realization as soon as feasible of the goal of a decent home and a suitable living environment for every American family," and would, therefore, reaffirm this national goal and determine that it should be met within the next decade by the construction or rehabilitation of 26 million housing units, 6 million of which would be for low and moderate income families.

ANNUAL HOUSING REPORT

Section 1302 of the bill would direct the Secretary of HUD to report annually to the President and the Council of Economic Advisers his estimate of the number of units of public and private housing through both new construction and rehabilitation, produced in the preceding year; his estimate of the number of such units produced for low and moderate income families; his assessment of whether the 10-year housing goal is being met; his recommendation for the current annual goal to meet the 10-year goal; and his recommendations for legislative and administrative measures necessary to achieve the 10-year goal. Such estimates are vital to plan housing programs consistent with this goal and the committee expects that this data will be made available to the Congress for its guidance in carrying out its responsibilities in this field.

Title XIV—Miscellaneous

MODEL CITIES

Section 1401 of the bill would authorize appropriation of $12 million for planning grants and technical assistance for comprehensive model cities programs in fiscal year 1969. It would also authorize appropriation of $1 billion for fiscal year 1970 for supplementary grants and for other purposes under the model cities program. It would further provide that any amounts authorized for the model cities program but not appropriated may be appropriated in any succeeding fiscal year.

The model cities legislation, enacted in 1966, provided authorizations for appropriation for planning and technical assistance grants for fiscal years 1967 and 1968. These funds are expended through technical assistance and 80 percent planning grants in advance of financial assistance to approved model city programs. Planning grants are designed to assist cities in their planning and preparation for comprehensive programs. The committee feels that in the interest of continuity and advance planning, this authorization should be continued at the same level for an additional year so that the program may continue without interruption.

The current authorization of $500 million for supplemental grants, relocation grants, technical assistance, and 80 percent grants for administrative expenses expires at the end of fiscal year 1969. In order to assure the availability of sufficient funds for the action programs of the model cities, this section authorizes the appropriation of $1 billion for fiscal year 1970. This authorization will provide the grant funds needed for the model cities program and affirm the continuing Federal commitment to support the efforts of the participating cities to eliminate the social and physical deterioration which they have recognized but cannot cure without increased Federal assistance.

URBAN RENEWAL DEMONSTRATION GRANT PROGRAM

Section 1402 of the bill would amend section 314 of the Housing Act of 1954 which provides for Federal grant assistance for developing, testing, and reporting methods and techniques and carrying out demonstrations and other activities for the prevention of slums and urban blight. This amendment would expand the program provided under section 314 by permitting grants to be made to nonprofit organizations as well as to public bodies; by increasing the maximum level of Federal assistance for a demonstration project from two-thirds to 90 percent; and by increasing the amount of funds available to the program from $10 million to $20 million. It also provides that when a demonstration project is to be carried out by a nonprofit organization, the activities and undertakings assisted under section 314 are not to be inconsistent with the program of the interested local public agency for the locality directly involved. The committee believes that a nonprofit group receiving a grant should coordinate its plan with the local authorities.

The committee feels that the urban renewal demonstration program has proved invaluable in providing a means for exploring new approaches in dealing with the problems of slums and urban blight. By providing funds which can be focused on a particular aspect of the problem or on a particular new approach, it has been possible to achieve new insights which a local urban renewal agency could not normally achieve as part of its regular activities of dealing with these problems.

This program is a necessary element in the Federal Government's arsenal of weapons to deal with the problems of slum and blight. However, the flexibility of the program has been limited by the present requirements that grants may only be made to public bodies and that the grant cannot exceed two-thirds of the cost of carrying out the demonstration.

The present authorization is expected to be exhausted by the middle of fiscal year 1969. Yet, the renewal program is becoming more complex as additional private, as well as public, resources are devoted to slum prevention and elimination. As new problems are identified, new approaches mush be devised to meet them. The increase in authorization would enable this program to continue to meet these needs.

AUTHORIZATION FOR URBAN INFORMATION AND TECHNICAL ASSISTANCE SERVICES PROGRAM

Section 1403 of the bill would authorize appropriation of not to exceed $5 million for fiscal year 1969 and not to exceed $15 million for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1970, to carry out the purposes of the title IX program. Under this program matching grants are made to States to help them provide urban information and technical assistance services to communities of less than 100,000 persons. This program was authorized in the Demonstration Cities and Metropolitan Development Act of 1966.

The present authorization for the program expires with the current fiscal year. The committee feels that the continuation of the title IX program would make a substantial contribution to encouraging State involvement in urban affairs by helping the States to provide the advisory and information services which small communities need but so often cannot afford.

This program can provide a network of compatible and coordinated State urban information systems which would facilitate information exchanges at various levels of government. It can also harness information collection and retrieval technology so that data that has been collected can be used for solving similar problems.

ADVANCES IN TECHNOLOGY IN HOUSING AND URBAN DEVELOPMENT

Section 1404 of the bill authorizes the appropriation of such amounts as may be necessary to continue the advances in technology in housing and urban development program authorized by section 1010 of the Demonstration Cities and Metropolitan Development Act of 1966. The present authorization expires at the end of this fiscal year.

This section would also permit the letting of research contracts for periods of up to 3 years instead of the presently authorized 2-year period.

This program is designed to test and demonstrate new and improved techniques and methods of applying technological advances to housing construction, rehabilitation, and maintenance and to urban development activities. It directs the Secretary of HUD to encourage and promote acceptance and application of modern techniques by all segments of the housing industry. It does not involve basic research. Rather, it is intended to encourage application of existing advances in technology created by private research and development efforts so as to assist industry in reducing the costs and improving the quality of housing construction.

Authorization of appropriations in such amounts as required will permit the program to be responsive to the need to test, demonstrate, and encourage the use of continuing technological advances. In addition, in order to accomplish effectively the program's goals, the Secretary would be given discretion to enter into contracts for up to a 3-year period. In many cases, 2 years is not adequate to test fully and demonstrate a new advance in technology.

COLLEGE HOUSING

Section 1405 of the bill would amend title IV of the Housing Act of 1950 by adding to the existing college housing direct loan program a new program to provide additional Federal assistance for college housing and related facilities through a program of annual debt service grants. The new grant program would be used to reduce the borrower's annual debt service payments on private market loans to the average annual debt service that would have been required if the loan was based on the rate charged on loans under the direct loan program. This Federal rate is presently 3 percent. The combination of the direct loan program, supplemented by the maximum program level in authorized annual debt service grants, should provide Federal financial assistance for annual construction that is several times as large as the direct loan program alone.

This section would also add authority, under both the present loan program and the proposed new grant program, to assist educational institutions to purchase existing properties which are in need of little or no rehabilitation. Under the present law loans are only available to finance new construction or the acquisition of and rehabilitation of existing properties.

Annual grants to an educational institution with respect to any project could be made over a fixed period up to 40 years. The total amount of annual grants contracted to be made would be subject to approval in appropriation acts, and could not exceed $10 million and this amount would be increased by an additional $10 million on July 1, 1969.

The committee has found that there is a need for vast increases in student housing to meet future enrollment increases; to alleviate overcrowding resulting from past enrollments; to make a dent on the deferred rehabilitation and replacement of inadequate existing housing; and to assure that no worthy student is denied admission because housing space is not available. It appears, however, that the majority of higher educational institutions, and especially the public institutions which cannot resist expansion without decreasing public education expectations, cannot provide housing at reasonable cost to most students if they have to bear the total cost of private market borrowing. The availability of adequate financial assistance will alleviate this problem and should generate effective action by colleges and universities which have been discouraged because direct Federal loans are meeting only a fraction of the demand. This problem has been aggravated because private market interest rates have increased substantially.

The lack of adequate housing may be the bottleneck in meeting our growing higher educational needs, since the relative expansion capacity of academic facilities cannot be fully utilized without available student housing at the lowest possible cost to users of the housing facilities. The combined program of direct loans plus annual grants should go far in helping to meet the need for student housing, dining facilities, student centers or unions, and related service facilities. The need may be even greater than anticipated when returning Vietnam veterans take advantage of their GI educational benefits.

The new program of annual grants, which would be made on the basis of the same maximum development cost as for direct loans, would be used primarily to reduce the net borrowing cost for those institutions which are able to secure long-term loans in the private market at a reasonable cost. Direct loans would generally be made to those institutions which cannot borrow all or part of their funds in the private market at reasonable interest rates. Thus, it is possible that an institution could receive a direct loan for part of its borrowing needs to cover late maturities on which no private market bids are made, and could receive annual grants applicable only to its private market loan for the shorter maturities. It is anticipated that the annual Federal grants to reduce net interest costs, coupled with the advantages inherent in the Federal tax exemption privilege enjoyed by public institutions, will enhance the security of these borrowers so that many which have not had favorable market acceptability in the past will be able to obtain long-term loans at lower net interest rates.

The new grant program is subject to the restriction now applicable to direct loans to the effect that the related "construction will be undertaken in an economical manner, and that it is not or will not be of elaborate or extravagant design or materials." This will preclude financial assistance in the future, as it has in the past, for the minority of student housing which exceeds this limitation.

While the committee believes that this additional method of financing the college housing program will be very helpful, it further believes that colleges, when borrowing in the private market, should obtain loans at the lowest cost possible. The committee therefore expects the Secretary of HUD to promulgate such rules and regulations as are necessary to assure that colleges are obtaining loans at the lowest interest rates available so that the Federal subsidy will be held to a minimum.

HOUSING FOR THE ELDERLY

Section 1406 of the bill would amend section 202 of the Housing Act of 1959 to permit limited profit sponsors approved by the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development to participate in the housing for the elderly program and to provide that the amount of the loan to such a sponsor shall not exceed 90 percent of the development cost of the project. This section would also permit waiver of the wage standards provisions of the Davis-Bacon Act only when labor is donated without any compensation, instead of the present provision which permits such waiver when labor is donated without "full" compensation.

FEDERAL-STATE TRAINING PROGRAMS

Section 1407 of the bill would provide for extending the program of matching grants authorized under title VIII of the Housing Act of 1964 to permit grants to States for the training of subprofessional and technical personnel as well as professional persons and would permit persons employed or in training to be employed by private nonprofit organizations involved in housing and community development programs to be eligible for this training assistance. The programs which would be authorized for assistance under this amendment could be carried out by the State in cooperation with business firms, labor unions, and other interested organizations as well as universities and urban centers.

The amendment would also allow grant assistance to be extended to Guam, American Samoa, and the Trust Territory of the Pacific Islands in order to further meet the needs of these areas for trained and capable housing and community development technical and professional personnel.

These changes could enable the States to undertake training programs of a broader scope to deal with the ever-present problem of insufficient personnel available to administer and work in programs relating to community development and housing. With the added emphasis, set out in this bill, on attacking the problem in these areas confronting the Nation, all the personnel, for employment by both public and nonprofit bodies, that can be trained will be needed.

The capacity of all local administrative and professional resources, both public and private, will be challenged by the expected magnitude of the undertakings assisted under this bill, together with related development involving billions of dollars of additional investment in public facilities and private construction and improvements of all kinds. This makes extremely important the programs in the bill which provide in this field technical assistance to local governments and private groups and which provide assistance for local technical assistance or planning or the training of technical and professional personnel.

Local governments and the people in the communities involved must ultimately achieve the organizational and professional capacity to cope with the continuing progress of urban development in their areas. The Federal assistance mentioned above must concentrate on that objective.

ADDITIONAL ASSISTANT SECRETARY OF HOUSING AND URBAN DEVELOPMENT

Section 1408 of the bill would authorize the appointment of an additional Assistant Secretary in the Department of Housing and Urban Development. Although the Secretary could utilize this position in carrying out any of the statutory responsibilities of the Department, this Assistant Secretary would serve as the Secretary's principal assistant in providing leadership in organizing an effective, Government-wide, urban-oriented research and development program to foster innovation in the field of housing and urban affairs. He would also provide engineering and technical advice to the Office of the Secretary and to other assistant secretaries, as appropriate, and he would plan, organize, and administer the departmental research and development program.

The addition of this Assistant Secretary position in the Department's organization would be in accord with the increased importance of research and development in the Department since it was established in 1965.

INTERNATIONAL HOUSING

Section 1409 of the bill would rewrite section 604 of the Housing Act of 1957 to clarify the authority of the Secretary of HUD to exchange data relating to housing and urban development with other countries, or assemble such data where the data would be beneficial in carrying out his responsibilities. This authority does not exclude or limit in any way the authority of other departments and agencies of the U.S. Government to exchange and assemble data and carry out all other activities of the same type and in the same manner as authorized by this amendment.

The section would also clarify the Department's authority to employ private persons to participate in the various intergovernmental or international meetings that the Department attends or sponsors. In addition, the section would provide express authority for the Department to accept funds or other donations from international organizations, foreign countries, and private foundations in connection with activities carried on by the Department under section 604, and which benefit such organizations. For example, a conference sponsored by the Department may involve administrative expenses which should properly be shared by those private foundations which participate in such activities. The intent of the amendment is not to provide for subsidizing the Department's activities, but to facilitate proper cost sharing.

LOW-RENT PUBLIC HOUSING—CORPORATE STATUS

Section 1410 of the bill would repeal obsolete provisions of the U.S. Housing Act of 1937 and amend the Government Corporation Control Act to delete reference to the U.S. Housing Authority. When the U.S Housing Act of 1937 was first enacted, there was established a special corporation known as the U.S. Housing Authority to perform the Federal low-rent housing functions. The Authority was capitalized with $1 million of capital stock provided by the Treasury. Under the Department of Housing and Urban Development Act, all functions of the corporation were vested in the Secretary of the Department. The corporate status, capital stock, and the $1 million provided by the Treasury now serve no purpose. This section would accordingly repeal the provisions concerning corporate status and return the $1 million to the Treasury. Saving provisions provide for continued auditing by the General Accounting Office of separate accounts maintained with respect to the functions under the 1937 act.

ELIGIBILITY FOR RENT SUPPLEMENT PAYMENTS

Section 1411 of the bill would extend eligibility to participate in the rent supplement program, under section 101 of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965, to two projects located in Harlem in New York City. These projects are presently receiving supplement payments on an experimental basis for a short fixed term as part of a joint undertaking by the Office of Economic Opportunity, the New York City Rent and Rehabilitation Administration, and the Department of Housing and Urban Development to show how a combination of improved housing, job training, and social services would work to increase the income producing capacity of low-income tenants living in the area. The projects (which were a single project at the time) were approved for mortgage insurance under the section 221(d)(3) below-market interest rate program on April 15, 1965, shortly before enactment of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965, on August 10, 1965, and therefore are presently ineligible for rent supplement assistance.

The projects involved are located on 114th Street between Seventh and Eighth Avenues, and include 37 old-law tenement buildings which are being extensively rehabilitated to provide good housing for approximately 1,600 individuals in 450 family units. The rehabilitation is expected to be completed on all units this June (1968).

Limitations in its statutory authority restrict the OEO supplement payments to a short term which will end in the early part of fiscal year 1970. These payments range from $20 to $60 a month.

Many of the low-income residents of these projects will not experience the improvement in income needed to dispense with rent supplement payments within the brief period permitted under the present supplement arrangement. Unless the benefits of the rent supplement program are applied to these projects, many of the low-income residents will be forced to move out when the present short-term assistance expires. The objective of the undertaking would be seriously impaired if regular rent supplement coverage is not made available after the short-term assistance ends.

The committee believes that these two projects are exceptional cases and understands that there are no similar cases which would need such specific treatment in the future.

CONSOLIDATIONS OF LOW-RENT PUBLIC HOUSING PROJECTS IN THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA

Section 1412 of the bill would allow the National Capital Housing Authority in Washington, D.C., to consolidate, pursuant to section 15(6) of the United States Housing Act of 1937, into its annual contributions contract for its 8,423 units of low-rent housing under title II of the District of Columbia Alley Dwelling Act, the operating income and operating expense accounts for its 72 units of low-rent housing under title I of such act.

Title I governs low-rent public housing provided prior to the enactment of the United States Housing Act of 1937, whereas title II governs low-rent public housing on the same basis as projects established in other cities pursuant to the 1937 act.

The proposed consolidation would enable the NCHA to merge its title I operating accounts with its title II accounts. Since there is no capital debt applicable to the title I projects there would be no increase in the fixed annual contribution for which the Government is obligated under the annual contributions contract applicable to the title II projects.

This consolidation would allow the NCHA to draw upon its general reserves to meet the needs of the title I units. There are no reserves available to NCHA for these units because, under the previous method of funding this program, all receipts in excess of annual operating expenses were covered into the Treasury as miscellaneous receipts. Without such reserves, NCHA has to depend upon its annual operating income from these units to fund any major repairs or modernization work that the units might need. At the present time, the 72 title I units are in fact being managed and operated as part of the total low-rent housing supply of NCHA. The financial impact of consolidation would hardly be noticeable. Almost three-fourths of all the title I expenses are already in fact being determined in the same way as if the projects were consolidated, and consolidation would lead to substantial administrative savings resulting from the elimination of separate accounting procedures for these projects.

The result of the proposed consolidation would be analogous to the situation which exists in many other communities where the local authorities are operating permanent PWA or Lanham Act (World War II) projects which were federally built and paid for and which are being operated under consolidated contracts by the local authorities.

URBAN RENEWAL PROJECT IN GARDEN CITY, MICH.

Section 1413 of the bill would require that the costs in connection with the construction of the Florence Primary School located within the Cherry Hill urban renewal project (Michigan R–46) in Garden City be counted as a local grant-in-aid to the project without regard to the date of commencement of construction. Through an inadvertence on the part of both the city and the Federal Government, the contract for a loan and capital grant for the Cherry Hill project was authorized 4 days too late to qualify the school for credit. This fact was not discovered until the project was completed, and local and Federal officials had believed all along that the school was eligible for credit. The committee feels that this is a very exceptional case.

URBAN RENEWAL PROJECT IN SACRAMENTO, CALIF.

Section 1414 of the bill would require that costs in connection with the construction of a storm drainage system located within the Capitol Mall Riverfront urban renewal project (California R–67) in Sacramento, Calif., be counted as a local grant-in-aid to the project without regard to the date of commencement of construction. The Redevelopment Agency of Sacramento filed a timely urban renewal application and under ordinary circumstances the expenditures made for the construction of the storm drainage system could have been counted as a local grant-in-aid. However, because of California's "proposition 14," the Department of HUD (then the Housing and Home Finance Agency) withheld approval of all California applications until proposition 14 was declared unconstitutional by the State supreme court. By the time this was done, the 3-year statutory requirement for counting this expenditure as a local grant-in-aid had expired. Since the approval of this particular application was held up by Federal officials, the committee believes that this is an exceptional case and that Sacramento should be allowed credit for the construction of the storm drainage system.

SELF-HELP STUDIES

Section 1415 of the bill would amend section 207 of the Housing Act of 1961, which authorizes grants for the purpose of developing and demonstrating new or improved means of providing housing for low-income persons and families, to make it clear that such grants may be made for the purpose of studying self-help by low-income persons in constructing, rehabilitating, and maintaining housing for themselves and the methods of selecting, involving, and directing such persons in self-help activities.

The Secretary of Housing and Urban Development would be directed to make a report to Congress, within 1 year after the date of enactment of this act, setting forth the results of the self-help studies and demonstrations carried out under section 207, together with such recommendations as he deems appropriate.

EARTHQUAKE STUDY

Section 1416 of the bill would amend section 5 of the Southeast Hurricane Disaster Relief Act of 1965 by extending the date the Secretary of HUD is required to report his findings and recommendations on earthquake insurance from October 31, 1968, to June 30, 1969.

An extension of time for this study would allow the Secretary to present a more complete and conclusive report to the Congress. In conducting studies such as this, it is necessary to collect and analyze great quantities of raw data and the number of qualified professionals available for such work is very limited.

AID TO THRIFT INSTITUTIONS

Section 1417 of the bill is directed toward modernizing and improving the savings and lending functions of savings and loan associations to enable them to more effectively accumulate savings and assist American families to meet their housing and related needs. This section does not represent any radical innovations in our financial systems but provides needed flexibility and modernization to the institutions which provide nearly 45 percent of the housing credit of the Nation. In this section, the savings instruments and terminology for Federal savings and loan associations would be revised in keeping with today's savings habits. At the same time the Federal Home Loan Bank Board is given broader authority to insure prompt payment of withdrawals to savers. The present law regarding accumulation of savings was written over 30 years ago when the simple passbook savings account was virtually the only form of savings. Today, the savings public expects a wider variety of certificates, deposits, and savings instruments tailored to their specific needs.

Some additions would also be provided in the investment power of Federal associations and certain clarifications in existing law would be made. Federal associations would be authorized to make loans not exceeding $5,000 each, on seasonal homes and to finance the household equipment necessary to make today's home "livable." The cost of household equipment represents an increasing portion of total housing costs and the authority to finance this equipment will enable associations to offer a broader home financing service. Further, the section authorizes Federal associations to make loans on mobile homes. Currently, 200,000 mobile homes are produced each year and they constitute a great portion of the Nation's single family homes. Permitting Federal associations to finance these homes would make them available to a broader segment of the home-buying public.

FEDERAL HOME LOAN BANK ACT

Section 1418 of the bill amends section 12 of the Federal Home Loan Bank Act to permit Federal home loan banks, subject to the regulations of the Board, to invest in housing project loans or interests therein having the benefit of any guaranty under section 221 of the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961. The section also authorizes investments in loans or interests therein having the benefit of any guaranty under section 224 of the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961. The latter section relates to guaranties of loan investments in pilot or demonstration private housing projects, credit institutions furnishing home mortgage financing, lower income housing projects, and certain other housing investments in Latin America of types intended to foster the development of local capital-generating enterprises. This section is not intended to confer any investment authority on Federal savings and loan associations or any other members of Federal home loan banks that they would not have in the absence of this section.

TECHNICAL AMENDMENTS

Section 1419(a) of the bill would amend section 110(c) of the Housing Act of 1949 to make it clear that urban renewal project funds can be used for "the restoration of acquired properties of historical or architectural value."

Section 1419(b) would amend section 110(d) of the Housing Act of 1949 to make it clear that grant-in-aid credit can be given for expenditures by a public body for the construction of foundations and platforms on air rights sites in urban renewal projects to the same extent that such work could now be done with project funds.

Section 1419(c) would amend section 110(e) of the Housing Act of 1949 to make it clear that the restoration of historic properties can be carried out as an urban renewal project cost for those projects approved for three-fourths Federal grant assistance on a limited project cost basis. This clarification would naturally permit such expenditures to be included in existing, uncompleted projects, as well as those projects started after enactment of the bill.

Section 1419(d) would amend section 1101(c)(3) of the National Housing Act to permit amortization of the mortgage term under the medical group practice facilities program to commence after completion of construction of the facility rather than at the time the mortgage is executed.

Section 1419(e) would amend section 213(o) of the National Housing Act to clarify the authority of the Secretary to invest all moneys, not currently needed for the operation of the cooperative management housing insurance fund, in Government bonds or obligations, or in the purchase on the open market of debentures which are the obligation of this fund.

Section 1419(f) would amend section 810(e) of the National Housing Act to permit an individual, who is approved by the Secretary, to be a mortgagor under the FHA section 810 housing program for military personnel or employees or personnel of NASA or AEC research or development installations.

Section 1419(g) would amend section 220(d)(2)(B) of the National Housing Act to permit entities, other than corporations, restricted by Federal or State laws or regulations of State banking or insurance departments as to rents, charges, capital structure, rate of return, or methods of operation, to qualify for the same maximum mortgage amount as corporations so regulated now qualify for.

SECTION-BY-SECTION SUMMARY OF THE BILL AS REPORTED

The first section provides that the bill may be cited by its short title—the "Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968".

Section 2. Declaration of policy

In this section the Congress affirms the national housing goal—"a decent home and a suitable living environment for every American family"—but finds that the goal has not been fully realized for many lower income families although the necessary resources and capabilities exist in the public and private sectors of the economy. The Congress declares that the highest priority and emphasis should be given to meeting, with full utilization of private enterprise and individual self-help, the housing needs of those families for which the national goal has not become a reality.

Section 3. Jobs in housing; employment opportunities for lower income persons in connection with assisted projects

This section requires the maximum feasible employment of lower income residents of the areas involved in connection with housing construction or rehabilitation assisted under the section 221(d)(3) below-market interest rate program, the low-rent public housing program, and the rent supplement program, and under the new section 235 and 236 programs added by the bill.

Section 4. Improved architectural design in government housing programs

In this section the Congress finds that Federal housing aids have not contributed fully to the objective of improvement in architectural standards, although better architectural design in federally-assisted housing is possible even within necessary budget limitations. The Congress declares that emphasis in low and moderate income housing programs should be given (consistent with prudent budgeting) to this objective.

TITLE I—LOW AND MODERATE INCOME HOUSING

Section 101. Homeownership for low and moderate income families

Subsection (a) adds to title II of the National Housing Act a new section 235, establishing for low and moderate income families a homeownership assistance program providing for periodic payments to mortgagees on behalf of homeowners where the mortgage involved is insured under subsection (i) or (j)(4) of the new section (or, in certain cases, is insured under the new section 237 added by section 102 of the bill), or on behalf of cooperative members in a new or rehabilitated project (or an existing project meeting standards prescribed by the Secretary) which is financed with a mortgage insured under section 213. Assistance payments under the new program are to be equal to the difference between the required monthly mortgage payment (including insurance and taxes) and 20 percent of the homeowner's monthly income (determined with a $200 deduction for each minor person in the family, and recertified at least every 2 years), or, if less, to the difference between the required monthly mortgage payment for principal, interest, and mortgage insurance premium and the monthly payment for principal and interest which would have been required if the mortgage bore interest at the rate of 1 percent. Assistance payments could be continued on resale (where the mortgage is insured under subsection (j)(4)) if the purchaser assumes the mortgage and is approved for such payments.

The aggregate amount of assistance payment contracts (which in any event is limited to such amount as may be approved in appropriation acts) could not initially exceed $75 million, which limit would be increased by $100 million on July 1, 1969, and by an additional $125 million on July 1, 1970. (A reasonable portion of this authority is to be transferred to the Secretary of Agriculture for use in rural areas and small towns.)

The new section 235 (in subsections (i) and (j)) establishes two new mortgage insurance programs. Under subsection (i), the Secretary of HUD is authorized to insure a mortgage, executed by a mortgagor eligible for periodic assistance payments, which satisfies the requirements of section 221(d)(2) or 234(c) and either involves a new or rehabilitated one-family dwelling, a rehabilitated two-family dwelling (if it will be occupied by the owner and is purchased with assistance from a nonprofit organization), or a one-family unit in a new or rehabilitated condominium project, or involves an existing dwelling or unit which meets standards prescribed by the Secretary or has previously been the subject of assistance payments with an insured mortgage under subsection (j)(4) or has been released from a rent supplement or section 236 project. Mortgage limits are $15,000 ($17,500 in high-cost areas), or $17,500 (and $20,000) for families of five or more. Minimum downpayment is $200 for a displaced family or 3 percent in other cases. As in the case of assistance payments to cooperative members, a preference is to be granted to displaced families, families with five or more minors, and families from low-rent public housing.

Under the new subsection (j), the Secretary is authorized to insure a mortgage executed by a nonprofit organization to finance the purchase (and rehabilitation if necessary) of housing for resale to low or moderate income families who are eligible for assistance payments. The housing must include four or more one-family dwellings (or two-family dwellings to be occupied by the owner), or four or more one-family units, in any case where rehabilitation is involved. Under subsection (j)(4) the Secretary is authorized to insure the individual mortgages given to finance the resale of the housing to low or moderate income persons after its purchase and the completion of any necessary rehabilitation. The Secretary is authorized to pay on behalf of the nonprofit mortgagor the difference between the required monthly payment for principal, interest, and mortgage insurance premium under the blanket mortgage and the monthly payment for principal and interest which would have been required if the mortgage bore interest at the rate of 1 percent.

Subsection (b) of section 101 of the bill makes conforming changes in the FHA section 221(d)(2) program, and permits a mortgagor under section 221(d)(2) or 235 to contribute the value of his labor toward his equity in the housing involved.

Subsection (c) amends the FHA section 221(h) program to allow the Secretary to reduce the interest rate thereunder to as low as 1 percent where the purchaser's low income justifies it, to increase the total amount of insurance which may be outstanding thereunder for mortgages of nonprofit organizations from $20 million to $50 million, and to establish a new program for the insurance of mortgages given to finance the rehabilitation or improvement of a single-family dwelling purchased by an owner-occupant from a nonprofit organization along with any existive indebtedness. Under this new program the maximum mortgage amount is $15,000, and the interest rate can be as low as 1 percent (but would increase to the highest possible section 221 rate if the owner sells the property to anyone except a nonprofit organization, a low-rent public housing agency, or another approved low-income purchaser).

Subsection (d) amends section 212 of the National Housing Act to make FHA's labor standards provisions (the Davis-Bacon Act) applicable to housing financed with blanket mortgages under the new section 235(j) program.

Subsection (e) authorizes the Secretary (directly or by contract) to provide budget, debt management, and related counseling services to mortgagors whose mortgages are insured under subsection (i) or (j)(4) of the new section 235.

Section 102. Credit assistance

Subsection (a) adds to title II of the National Housing Act a new section 237, establishing a new mortgage insurance program for low and moderate income families who are not acceptable credit risks for purposes of regular FHA mortgage insurance, but who would be reasonably satisfactory credit risks with budget, debt management, and related counseling and appear to be able to achieve homeownership through the incentive of homeownership and such counseling services. The Secretary of HUD (directly or by contract) is authorized to provide such counseling services to mortgagors. The mortgage must generally meet the requirements of section 203, 220(d)(3), 221(d)(2), 221(h)(5), 221(i), 234(c), or 235(j)(4); and the maximum mortgage amount is $15,000 ($17,500 in high-cost areas). A preference is to be given to families living in public housing units. Not more than $100 million in mortgages insured under the program may be outstanding at any one time.

Subsection (b) amends section 226 of the act to require that the purchaser be furnished a copy of FHA's appraisal prior to the sale both under this new program and the new section 235 program.

Section 103. Relaxation of mortgage insurance requirements in certain urban neighborhoods

This section amends section 223 of the National Housing Act to permit insurance of mortgages financing the repair, rehabilitation, construction, or purchase of property in an older, declining urban area, where such mortgages do not meet all of the normal eligibility requirements for insurance because of the nature of the area. The property must be an acceptable risk giving consideration to the housing needs of low and moderate income families in the area. (A comparable provision in existing law which is more limited (sec. 203(l)) is repealed.)

Section 104. Special risk insurance fund

This section adds to title II of the National Housing Act a new section 238, establishing a Special Risk Insurance Fund out of which claims are to be paid on mortgages insured under the new programs provided by the bill (sec. 235, 236, and 237 of the act) and on mortgages insured pursuant to the new sections 223(e) and 233(a)(2) added by the bill. The new fund is not intended to be actuarially sound. Income derived under the new programs (such as insurance premiums and service charges) would be deposited in the fund. The Secretary of HUD is authorized to advance to the fund $5 million from the General Insurance Fund, and appropriations are authorized to cover any losses sustained by the fund in carrying out the mortgage insurance obligations of the programs involved.

Section 105. Condominium and cooperative ownership for low and moderate income families Subsection (a) adds to section 221 of the National Housing Act two new subsections ((i) and (j)) to permit section 221(d)(3) below-market interest rate rental projects to be converted to condominium or cooperative ownership. The new subsection (i) permits the conversion of such a project to a plan of family unit ownership, and authorizes the Secretary of HUD to insure mortgages financing the purchase of the individual units by persons whose income is within the section 221(d)(3) limits at prices not exceeding the appraised value of the property involved; the interest rate would be determined by the Secretary, but could not be less than the below-market rate and would be increased to reflect increases in the mortgagor's income or upon the termination of the mortgagor's occupancy of the unit otherwise than through sale to an approved nonprofit purchaser or a low or moderate income purchaser whose income is within the section 221(d)(3) limits. The new subsection (j) permits the conversion of such a project to cooperative ownership, and authorizes the Secretary to insure mortgages financing the purchase of such projects by cooperatives whose membership consists of families whose incomes are within the limits prescribed for section 221(d)(3) below-market interest rate projects; the principal obligation of the mortgage could not exceed the appraised value of the property for continued use as a cooperative.

Subsections (b) and (c) amend section 221(g) of the act to make section 221's insurance payment provisions applicable to mortgages insured under the new programs.

Subsection (d) amends section 221(f) of the act to permit, with respect to mortgages insured under the new programs, the same discretionary full or partial waiver of the mortgage insurance premium as is presently provided for mortgages insured under section 221(d)(3) and (h).

Section 106. Assistance to nonprofit sponsors of low and moderate income housing Subsection (a) authorizes the Secretary of HUD (directly or by contract) to provide information, advice, and technical assistance with respect to the construction, rehabilitation, and operation of low and moderate income housing by nonprofit organizations.

Subsection (b) authorizes the Secretary to make 80-percent interest-free loans to nonprofit organizations from a newly created revolving fund to cover certain specified preconstruction costs in connection with low and moderate income housing undertakings under federally assisted programs. Appropriations to the revolving fund are authorized in amounts not exceeding $7.5 million for the fiscal year 1969 and $10 million for the fiscal year 1970. Loans under the program would normally be repaid when the project involved is permanently financed, but the Secretary is authorized to cancel any part of such a loan which cannot be recovered from the proceeds of the permanent financing.

Section 107. National Homeownership Foundation

Subsection (a) creates a Government-chartered nonprofit private corporation known as the National Homeownership Foundation to carry out a continuing program of encouraging private and public organizations at all levels to provide increased homeownership and housing opportunities in urban and rural areas for lower income families.

Subsection (b) provides for the administration of the foundation by a board of directors consisting of 18 members; 15 are to be appointed by the President, and the other three are the Secretary of HUD, the Secretary of Agriculture, and the Director of OEO. The board will appoint an executive director as the foundation's executive officer.

Subsection (c) directs the foundation to assist public and private organizations in initiating, developing, and conducting programs to expand homeownership and housing opportunities for lower income families.

Subsection (d) authorizes the foundation to make grants and loans to public and private organizations carrying out homeownership and housing opportunity programs for lower income families to help defray organizational and administrative expenses, pay for certain necessary preconstruction costs, and pay for the cost of programs providing counseling or similar services to lower income families for whom housing is being provided. To be eligible for a grant or loan the organization must show that the funds requested are not otherwise available from Federal sources.

Subsection (e) directs the foundation to coordinate its activities and consult with the Department of HUD and other Federal agencies.

Subsection (f) directs the foundation to submit an annual report to the President and the Congress.

Subsection (g) provides for a GAO audit of the foundation's financial transactions.

Subsection (h) provides for the deposit of the foundation's funds in financing institutions actively engaged in housing activities for lower income families.

Subsection (i) authorizes the appropriation to the foundation of $10 million to carry out its activities. (The foundation is authorized in subsection (a)(6) to receive donations and grants from individuals and from public and private organizations, foundations, and agencies.)

Section 108. New technologies in the development of housing for lower income families

Subsection (a) directs the Secretary of HUD to institute a program under which qualified public and private organizations will submit plans for the development of housing for lower income families, using new and advanced technologies, on Federal land made available for that purpose or other land which is suitable.

Subsection (b) directs the Secretary to approve up to five plans utilizing new housing technologies which are submitted to him under the program, considering (among other things) the potential of the technology employed and the ability of the organization submitting the plan to produce at least 1,000 dwelling units a year utilizing that technology.

Subsection (c) directs the Secretary to seek to achieve the construction of at least 1,000 dwelling units a year over a 5-year period for each of the various types of technologies proposed in the plans approved.

Subsection (d) authorizes the transfer to the Secretary of certain Federal land which is excess property for use in carrying out the program.

Subsection (e) directs the Secretary to report at the earliest practicable date with respect to projects assisted under the program, together with his recommendations.

Subsection (f) amends section 233(a) of the National Housing Act to authorize FHA insurance of mortgages covering projects carried out under the new program, with the same benefits (e.g., interest subsidies) as they would have under the basic section of the act pursuant to which they are insured.

Section 109. Insurance protection for homeowners

This section authorizes the Secretary of HUD (in cooperation with the private insurance industry) to develop a plan for the establishment of an insurance program to help homeowners in meeting mortgage payments in times of personal economic adversity, and directs him to submit to the Congress within 6 months (after consulting with other Federal agencies and instrumentalities which insure or guarantee home mortgages) a report thereon together with his recommendations.

TITLE II—RENTAL HOUSING FOR LOW AND MODERATE INCOME FAMILIES

Section 201. Rental and cooperative housing for low and moderate income families

Subsection (a) adds to title II of the National Housing Act a new section 236, establishing for low and moderate income families a rental and cooperative housing assistance program, under which periodic payments will be made to the mortgagee to reduce the interest costs which the owner of a rental or cooperative project must pay from what is actually required for principal, interest, and mortgage insurance premiums under the mortgage covering the project to what would be required for principal and interest if the mortgage bore interest at the rate of 1 percent. The mortgage must be insured under subsection (j) of the new section (except that certain projects which are owned by private nonprofit entities, limited-dividend entities, or cooperative housing corporations and are financed through State or local assistance programs may also be approved, prior to the completion of construction or substantial rehabilitation, for interest reduction payments under the new section). Each tenant or cooperative member would pay either a basic rental charge (determined on the basis of operating the project with a 1-percent mortgage) or such greater amount as represented 20 percent of his income (but not in excess of the fair market rental charge). Any amounts collected in excess of the basic rental charge would be returned to the Secretary and placed in a revolving fund for use in making other interest reduction payments. Tenant incomes would be reviewed at least every 2 years.

The aggregate amount of interest reduction payment contracts (which in any event is limited to such amount as may be approved in appropriation acts) could not initially exceed $75 million, which limit would be increased by $100 million on July 1, 1969, and by an additional $125 million on July 1, 1970. (A reasonable portion of this authority is to be transferred to the Secretary of Agriculture for use in rural areas and small towns.)

Under subsection (j) of the new section 236, the Secretary of HUD is authorized to insure a mortgage of the type (and subject in general to the conditions) provided for under FHA's section 221(d)(3) program, executed by a nonprofit organization, a cooperative, or a limited dividend entity and covering a project with five or more dwelling units which is designed for use by low and moderate income families or by elderly or handicapped families. The project must be predominantly residential but may include nondwelling facilities approved by the Secretary; and the individual units may (with the Secretary's approval) be sold to low and moderate income or elderly or handicapped purchasers.

Subsection (b) of section 201 of the bill amends sections 212 and 227 of the National Housing Act to make FHA's labor standards provisions (Davis-Bacon) and cost certification provisions applicable to projects financed with mortgages insured under the new section 236 program.

Subsection (c) authorizes the Secretary to transfer to the new section 236(j) insurance program any below-market interest rate mortgage approved but not finally endorsed under FHA's section 221(d)(3) program.

Subsection (d) authorizes the Secretary to insure, under the new section 236(j) program, at any time up to or within a reasonable period after project completion, any mortgage given to refinance a loan made under section 202 of the Housing Act of 1959 (the program of direct loans for housing for the elderly).

Subsection (e) makes conforming changes in the rent supplement program (section 101 of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965), reducing from 25 to 20 percent the portion of a tenant's income to be supplemented by payments thereunder and authorizing rent supplement payments for tenants in a section 236 project (up to 20 percent of the units in any one project).

Subsection (f) amends section 207 of the Appalachian Regional Development Act of 1965 to reflect the new section 236 program.

Subsection (g) amends section 305(i) of the National Housing Act to authorize the purchase of section 236 construction loans (as well as the section 236(j) mortgages themselves) under FNMA's special assistance functions.

Section 202. Rent supplement program

Subsection (a) amends section 101(a) of the Housing and Urban Developing Act of 1965 to increase the contract authority available for the rent supplement program by $40 million beginning with the fiscal year 1970 and by an additional $100 million beginning with the fiscal year 1971.

Subsection (b) amends section 101(b) of the 1965 act to make rent supplement payments available to private nonprofit entities, limited dividend entities, and cooperative housing corporations which own certain rental or cooperative housing projects financed with assistance under a State or local program and which are approved for rent supplement purposes prior to the completion of the construction or rehabilitation involved.

Section 203. Increased low-rent public housing authorization

Subsection (a) amends section 10(e) of the United States Housing Act of 1937 to increase the authorization for annual contribution contracts under the low-rent public housing program by $100 million on the date of enactment of the bill, and by an additional $150 million on July 1 in each of the years 1969 and 1970.

Subsection (b) amends section 20 of the 1937 act to modify the method of computing HUD's use of borrowing authority under the public housing program, including a provision allowing the President to increase the present $1.5 billion limit on such authority.

Section 204. Upgrading management and services in public housing projects

This section amends section 15 of the United States Housing Act of 1937 to authorize the Secretary of HUD to enter into grant contracts with local housing authorities to assist them in upgrading their management activities and providing tenant services to families living in low-rent housing projects, with a preference for programs providing for maximum tenant participation in the development and operation of such tenant services. Tenant services include (without being limited to) counseling on household matters, advice as to resources for community services, intertenant activities, and referral to appropriate agencies for services, with existing public and private agencies to be used for the provision of such services to the maximum extent available and appropriate. Appropriations of $20 million for the fiscal year 1969 and $40 million for the fiscal year 1970 are authorized.

Section 205. Purchase of units by tenants

This section amends section 15(9) of the U.S. Housing Act of 1937 to permit a local housing authority to sell any low-rent housing unit to a tenant if such unit is suitable for individual ownership. (Under existing law tenants may purchase only units which are detached or semidetached.)

Section 206. Public housing in Indian areas

This section amends sections 1 and 10(a) of the U.S. Housing Act of 1937 to permit public housing assistance for Indian families who live on or adjacent to their farmland.

Section 207. Limitation on high-rise structures in low-rent public housing projects

This section amends section 15 of the U.S. Housing Act of 1937 to provide that, except in the case of housing predominantly for the elderly, the Secretary is not to approve high-rise elevator proje ts for families with children unless there is no practical alternative.

Section 208. Prohibition against certain limitations on types or categories of low-rent housing in private accommodations

This section amends section 23(d) of the U.S. Housing Act of 1937 to prohibit the Secretary from prescribing by regulation any limitations on section 23 low-rent housing in private accommodations, other that the limitations specifically provided for in section 23, that would prevent any types or categories of structures in an area from qualifying for use under the section 23 program.

Section 209. Limitation on number of units of low-rent housing in private accommodations per structure

This section amends section 23(c) of the U.S. Housing Act of 1937 to clarify the authority of local housing authorities to lease units in smaller structures for low-rent housing in private accommodations without having to waive the present rule that leased units in any structure may not exceed 10 percent of the total. Under the new rule, the maximum number of leased units in any structure would be the lesser of (i) 10 units or 10 percent of the units in the structure (whichever is greater), or (ii) 50 percent of the units in the structure.

Section 210. Sale to tenants of low-rent housing in private accommodations

This section amends section 23 of the U.S. Housing Act of 1937 to authorize a local housing authority to purchase a structure containing low-rent housing in private accommodations for the purpose of reselling the structure to the tenant or tenants, or to a group of tenants occupying units aggregating in value at least 80 percent of the structure's value, on such terms and conditions as may be necessary to enable the tenants involved to make the purchase without undue financial hardship. Housing purchased by the local agency under this provision would not be subject to the workable program requirement or certain other requirements otherwise generally applicable to low-rent housing.

Section 211. Additional subsidy for large families and families of unusually low income

This section amends sections 2(2) and 10(a) of the U.S. Housing Act of 1937 to provide an additional annual $120 subsidy for large families (i.e., families with four or more minors) and for families of unusually low income (i.e., families whose incomes are so low that they could not be housed without the additional subsidy). Such an additional subsidy is presently provided only for the elderly and the displaced.

Section 301. Mortgage insurance premiums for servicemen and their widows

This section amends section 222 of the National Housing Act to permit the transfer to that section of mortgage insurance covering a single-family dwelling, or a one-family unit in a condominium project, where the mortgage has been assumed by a serviceman, so that the mortgage insurance premiums can be paid by the Secretary of Defense (or the Secretary of Transportation) in accordance with the existing provisions of that section. It also provides that the payment of these premiums is to continue on behalf of the serviceman's widow, when he dies on active duty, for 2 years beyond the date of his death or until the date the widow disposes of the property, whichever occurs first.

Section 302. Modifications in terms of insured mortgages covering multifamily projects

This section adds to title II of the National Housing Act a new section 239, providing that the Secretary of HUD may consent to any extension or modification of an insured mortgage covering multifamily housing only under and in conformity with regulations prescribed by him. Such regulations must provide that during the period of any such extension or modification the mortgagor will be required to place in trust any income from the project in excess of its operating needs, subject to criminal penalties; except that the Secretary may consent to an extension or modification of a mortgage without regard to this requirement if he determines that it would not jeopardize the interests of the United States.

Section 303. Condominiums

Subsection (a) amends section 234(c) of the National Housing Act to authorize FHA insurance for individual units in a 2-to-11-unit condominium project without requiring that the project be first covered by an FHA project mortgage.

Subsection (b) amends section 234(c) of the act to decrease from 25 to 20 percent the portion of the value of a unit in a condominium project in excess of $20,000 which must be included in the down-payment (thereby conforming the condominium formula to the regular section 203(b) program).

Subsection (c) amends section 234(f) of the act to permit insurance of a condominium project mortgage covering four or more units (instead of five or more as at present.)

Section 304. Insurance of loans for purchase of fee simple title from lessors

Subsection (a) adds to title II of the National Housing Act a new section 240, authorizing the Secretary of HUD to insure a loan made to a homeowner to finance the purchase of fee simple title to property on which his one-, two-, three-, or four-family home is located, in cases where the homeowner has only a leasehold interest in the land. An insurable loan could not exceed $10,000 per family unit and (when added to any outstanding indebtedness) could not create a total indebtedness in excess of the applicable section 203(b) limit.

Subsection (b) amends section 5(c) of the Home Owners' Loan Act of 1933 to permit savings and loan associations to invest in loans insured under the new section 240 program.

Section 305. Extension of section 221(d)(2) sales housing program for two-, three-, and four-family residences to all low and moderate income families

This section amends section 221(d)(2) of the National Housing Act to authorize FHA insurance for mortgages secured by two-, three-, and four-family properties occupied by the owner for all low and moderate income families. (Under existing law section 221(d)(2) mortgage insurance is available on properties of these types only where the mortgagor occupying one of the units is a displaced family.)

Section 306. Removal of dividend restriction for nondwelling facilities in section 221 projects

This section amends section 221(f) of the National Housing Act to remove the requirement that the mortgagor of a section 221 multi-family market-rate project in an urban renewal area must waive dividends on its equity investment in any nondwelling facilities which are designed to serve nonresidents of the project.

Section 307. Supplemental loan program for projects financed with Federal Housing Administration insured mortgages

This section adds to title II of the National Housing Act a new section 241, authorizing FHA insurance of supplemental loans to finance improvements and additions to FHA-insured multifamily projects, including nursing homes and group practice facilities and their equipment. Such a loan could not exceed 90 percent of the estimated value of the required improvements, additions, and equipment, and could not, when added to the outstanding balance of the project mortgage, exceed the maximum mortgage amount permitted under the section or title pursuant to which the original mortgage was insured. Any such loan would be governed by the labor standards provisions (under sec. 212 of the National Housing Act) applicable to the section or title pursuant to which the original mortgage was insured.

Section 308. Home improvement loans—increase in maximum maturity, finance charge, and loan amount

This section amends section 2(b) of the National Housing Act to increase the maximum loan amount under FHA's home improvement loan program from $3,500 to $5,000, and to increase the maximum maturity of loans under such program from 5 years and 32 days to 7 years and 32 days. It also increases the maximum permissible financing charge on the first $2,500 of such a loan from $5 to $5.50 discount per $100 of the original face amount of the loan, and on the remainder of such a loan from $4 to $4.50 discount per $100 of the original face amount.

Section 309. Experimental housing program

This section amends section 233 of the National Housing Act to make FHA's experimental housing program available for use in connection with all FHA programs, thus including the programs of mortgage insurance for land development (title X) and group practice facilities (title XI) as well as the presently covered programs under title II of the act.

Section 310. Term of Federal Housing Administration mortgages for land development

This section amends section 1002(d)(1) of the National Housing Act to increase from 7 to 10 years the maximum maturity of an insured land development mortgage. (As under existing law, maturities longer than the specified maximum are permitted for certain water or sewerage systems and new communities.)

Section 311. Rehabilitated multifamily projects in urban renewal areas

This section amends sections 220(d)(3)(B) and 221(d)(3)(iii) of the National Housing Act to permit FHA insurance thereunder of mortgages covering the purchase of multifamily properties in urban renewal areas where the properties have been rehabilitated by local public agencies. (Under existing law, such insurance is available only in connection with projects which are newly constructed or substantially rehabilitated after FHA's commitment to insure is issued.)

Section 312. Miscellaneous housing insurance

Subsection (a) makes several amendments in section 223 of the National Housing Act to permit the insured refinancing of a mortgage insured under any provision of the National Housing Act as well as insurance of an FHA-insured mortgage assigned to the Secretary of HUD or executed in connection with the sale of property acquired under any provision of such act. (Under existing law, this authority is limited to specific sections which are enumerated in sec. 223.) It also permits payment of an insurance claim in cash rather than debentures in connection with a mortgage assigned to the Secretary or executed in connection with the sale of an acquired property.

Subsection (b) amends section 223(d) of the act to authorize the Secretary to insure a separate loan covering operating losses under a multifamily mortgage during the first 2 years, instead of adding such excess to the amount of the original mortgage itself as is presently provided.

Section 313. Supplementary loans for cooperative housing purchased from the Federal Government

This section amends section 213(j) of the National Housing Act to authorize FHA insurance of supplementary loans to housing cooperatives which purchased from the Federal Government wartime housing partly covered by an uninsured mortgage. Such loans would be subject to the regular section 213(j) supplementary loan limitations, with a maximum maturity in any case of up to 10 years beyond the remaining term of the uninsured mortgage where the loan is for major rehabilitation or modernization and the mortgage is more than 20 years old.

Section 314. Equipment in nursing homes

This section amends section 232 of the National Housing Act to permit the cost of major equipment used in the operation of a nursing home to be included in an FHA-insured nursing home mortgage.

Section 315. Flexible interest rates for certain FHA insurance programs

This section amends section 3(a) of public law 90–301 (approved May 7, 1968) to make interest rates under the new programs added by the bill subject to the flexible interest rate provisions of that law, which by its terms already applies to all of the FHA insurance programs in existence on the date of its enactment.

Section 316. FHA section 221(h) program

Subsection (a) amends section 221(h)(2)(A) of the National Housing Act to decrease from five to four the minimum number of units in an insurable section 221(h) project, and to permit section 221(h) insurance of housing consisting of units in a condominium structure.

Subsection (b) amends section 221(h) of the act by adding two new paragraphs which provide that the term "single-family dwelling" (for purposes of both the existing section 221(h) program and the new program established in section 221(h)(6) by section 101(c) of the bill) shall include a unit in a condominium structure, and a two-family dwelling which has been approved by the Secretary if one of the units is to be occupied by the owner.

Section 317. Housing in outlying areas

This section amends section 203(i) of the National Housing Act (FHA's program of mortgage insurance for residential housing in outlying areas) to increase from $12,500 to $15,000 the maximum amount of a mortgage insurable under that section.

TITLE IV—URBAN RENEWAL

Section 401. Neighborhood development programs

Subsections (a) and (b) add to title I of the Housing Act of 1949 a new part B to authorize the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development to provide financial assistance to local public agencies to assist them in carrying out neighborhood development programs, consisting of urban renewal project undertakings and activities in one or more urban renewal areas that are planned and carried out on the basis of annual increments. In general, the requirements governing these undertakings and activities are the same as those governing assistance for regular urban renewal projects under title I of the 1949 act (with a workable program being required at the time any annual increment is authorized); the principal differences are that the loan or grant contract for an annual increment of a neighborhood development program could cover activities in several contiguous or noncontiguous urban renewal areas, and the funding would be based on the amount of loan and grant funds needed to carry out the activities planned during a 12-month period in each of the urban renewal areas contained in the program. Local grants-in-aid are generally to be calculated as they are under the present urban renewal program, but the 3-year and 7-year limitations on their eligibility would be measured from the authorization of the first contract for financial assistance covering the area benefited by the credit under the program involved. Excess noncash grant-in-aid credits from a neighborhood development program could not be pooled with other urban renewal projects being carried out by the community, but excess grant-in-aid credits from regular projects could be pooled for the neighborhood development program.

Subsection (c) contains provisions to insure that neighborhood development programs can be planned and undertaken in the District of Columbia, if they meet the applicable requirements of the new part B, notwithstanding any contrary requirements or conditions in District of Columbia or Federal laws.

Section 402. Increased authorization

Subsection (a) amends section 103(b) of the Housing Act of 1949 to increase the amount of funds authorized for the urban renewal program by $1.4 billion on July 1, 1969.

Subsection (b) amends section 103(b) of such act to increase the amount of funds available for urban renewal projects in model city areas by $350 million.

Section 403. Rehabilitation grants

Subsection (a) amends section 115(a) of the Housing Act of 1949 to permit grants under that section for the rehabilitation of a homeowner's real property other than the dwelling structure itself.

Subsection (b) amends section 115(b) of the 1949 Act to increase the maximum rehabilitation grant for low-income homeowners from $1,500 to $3,000.

Subsection (c) amends section 115(a) of the 1949 Act to authorize rehabilitation grants (from regular urban renewal funds) for repairs and improvements designed to make dwellings outside urban renewal and code enforcement areas conform to public standards for decent, safe, and sanitary housing; the area involved must contain a substantial number of structures in need of repairs or improvements, as certified by the local governing body.

Subsection (d) amends section 115 of the 1949 Act to authorize rehabilitation grants (from regular urban renewal funds) to low-income homeowners whose property is determined to be uninsurable after an inspection pursuant to a State FAIR plan to enable them to rehabilitate the property to the extent necessary to make it meet reasonable underwriting standards.

Section 404. Rehabilitation in urban renewal areas

This section amends section 110(c)(8) of the Housing Act of 1949 to remove the provision presently limiting (to the lesser of 100 units or 5 percent of the units in the urban renewal area) the number of residential units which a local urban renewal agency may acquire and rehabilitate.

Section 405. Disposition of property for low and moderate income housing

This section amends section 107(a) of the Housing Act of 1949 to permit land to be disposed of for both low and moderate income housing purposes, by lease as well as sale (and permits its disposition to mortgagors under the new secs. 235(j) and 236 programs, or to approved purchasers or lessees other than those specified as well as mortgagors under the sec. 221(h)(1) program) at a price consistent with its use for such purposes.

Section 406. Capital grants for low and moderate income housing in open land projects

This section amends section 103(a)(1) of the Housing Act of 1949 to permit capital grants to be made with respect to urban renewal open land projects (which now only qualify for loans) in an amount not to exceed two-thirds of the difference between the proceeds from any land disposed of at its value for low or moderate income housing (under sec. 107 of such act) and the proceeds which would have been realized if the land had been disposed of at its fair value without regard to the special provisions of section 107.

Section 407. Urban renewal loan contracts

This section amends section 102(c) of the Housing Act of 1949 to permit a local public agency to borrow funds to finance project undertakings on the private market at interest rates above the Federal lending rate set out in the agency's contract, with the difference being made up by a supplemental Federal grant.

Section 408. Project completion prior to disposition of certain property

This section amends section 106 (and sec. 110(f)) of the Housing Act of 1949 to permit the closing out of an urban renewal project in certain cases where 5 percent or less of the total acquired land remains to be disposed of and all other project activities are completed.

Section 409. Rehabilitation loans

Subsection (a) amends section 312(d) of the Housing Act of 1964 to authorize the appropriation of such sums as are necessary for the rehabilitation loan program. (Under present law the authorization is $100 million a year.)

Subsection (b) amends section 312(h) of the 1964 Act to extend the section 312 program from October 1, 1969, to June 30, 1973.

Subsection (c) amends section 312(a) of the 1964 Act to authorize rehabilitation loans in areas containing, as certified by the local governing body, a substantial number of structures in need of rehabilitation, in the case of property which is residential and owner-occupied. (Existing law restricts sec. 312 loans to urban renewal and code enforcement areas.) It also permits a loan made with respect to property in an urban renewal or code enforcement area, where improvement is required to make the property conform to code requirements or to carry out urban renewal plan objectives, to include an amount for the general improvement of the condition of the property.

Subsection (d) amends sections 312 of the 1964 Act to authorize rehabilitation loans to owners and tenants of property which is determined to be uninsurable, after an inspection pursuant to a State FAIR plan, to enable them to finance the rehabilitation required to make the property meet reasonable underwriting standards.

Section 410. Demolition grants

This section amends section 116 of the Housing Act of 1949 to specifically authorize grants, under the demolition grant program, for the demolition of rat harborages or potential rat harborages.

Section 411. Air rights sites in urban renewal areas

This section amends section 110(c) of the Housing Act of 1949 to permit the carrying out of air rights urban renewal projects and the construction of necessary foundations and platforms to provide educational facilities. Under present law, these activities may be assisted only when they are for low and moderate income housing or for industrial development where the area is not suitable for low and moderate income housing.

Section 412. Interim assistance for blighted areas

This section adds to title I of the Housing Act of 1949 a new section 118, authorizing the Secretary of HUD to enter into contracts to make grants (from regular urban renewal funds) in amounts up to $40 million a year to assist localities in alleviating harmful conditions in slum and blighted areas where urban renewal or code enforcement activities are planned, but some immediate action is needed until those activities can be begun.

Section 413. Low and moderate income housing in residential urban renewal areas

This section amends section 105(f) of the Housing Act of 1949 to provide that, of the total number of housing units provided in all of the approved urban renewal projects in any community which are to be redeveloped for predominantly residential uses and which receive Federal recognition after the date of the bill's enactment, a majority must be standard housing units for low and moderate income families or individuals with at least 20 percent of such total number being for low income families or individuals only.

Section 414. Workable program requirement in case of Indian tribes

This section amends section 101(c) of the Housing Act of 1949 to allow an additional period (until Jan. 1, 1969) for an Indian tribe, band, or nation to adopt and carry out a minimum standards housing code as a condition of the certification or recertification of its workable program.

TITLE V—URBAN PLANNING AND FACILITIES

Section 501. Comprehensive planning

This section extensively revises section 701 of the Housing Act of 1954—the urban planning assistance program. In addition to the numerous changes in form and arrangement which do not have substantive effect, the amended section 701 includes new provisions permitting grants for assistance to districts in rural and other nonmetropolitan areas, grants directly to Indian tribal planning councils, and grants to regional and district councils of government; includes in the stated purposes of the planning to be assisted the encouragement of the use of private consultants, and requires that such planning include a housing element as part of the preparation of comprehensive land use plans; authorizes grants to cities within metropolitan areas as part of comprehensive metropolitan planning; increases the 1969 authorization for planning assistance by $35 million ($20 million for district planning) and authorizes an additional $125 million ($10 million for district planning) commencing with the fiscal year 1970; permits up to $10 million, in addition to the present 5 percent, to be used for research activities; and provides that district planning may not be aimed at assisting businesses to relocate from one area to another.

Section 502. Planned areawide development

This section amends title II of the Demonstration Cities and Metropolitan Development Act of 1966 to broaden the metropolitan development provisions of that title (principally the provisions authorizing supplementary incentive grants for certain federally assisted projects) to cover planned "areawide" development so as to permit assistance for projects in all multijurisdictional areas (instead of only in metropolitan areas as at present). It also permits any amounts authorized but not appropriated under the program for any fiscal year to be appropriated for any succeeding fiscal year through the fiscal year 1970.

Section 503. Advance acquisition of land

This section extensively revises section 704 (and amends sec. 701) of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965—the program of grants for advance acquisition of land—to cover land which is planned to be utilized "in the future for public purposes" (instead of "in connection with the future construction of public works or facilities"); to require that the proposed use of the land be undertaken "within a reasonable time" (instead of within 5 years), except that any period beyond 5 years may only be approved in case of unusual circumstances and the chairmen of the House and Senate Banking and Currency Committees must be notified; to clarify the status of the land in the interim; to give the Secretary of HUD additional discretion with respect to diversion of the land from its proposed use; to provide that assistance under the program will not make a project ineligible for other Federal assistance; to clarify the authority of States to participate in the program; and to permit grants for imputed interest charges when borrowed funds are not used to acquire the land.

Section 504. Water and sewer facilities program

Subsection (a) amends section 702(c) of the Housing ind Urban Development Act of 1965 to extend from July 1, 1968, to October 1, 1969, the expiration date of the interim planning requirements provision in the basic water and sewer facilities program under title VII of such act.

Subsection (b) amends the proviso of section 702(b) of the 1965 Act to allow unincorporated areas to qualify for special water and sewer facility grants, and to make basic water facilities (as well as basic sewer facilities) eligible for such grants at the higher (90 percent) rate.

Subsection (c) amends section 702(d) of the 1965 Act to require that in the administration of the water and sewer facilities grant program, to the greatest extent practicable, new job opportunities be provided for unemployed or underemployed persons.

Section 505. Authorizations for the water and sewer facilities, neighborhood facilities, and advance acquisition of land programs

Subsection (a) amends section 708(b) of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965 to provide that any amounts authorized but not appropriated for any year under any of the three community facilities grant program in title VII of that act may be appropriated for any succeeding fiscal year through the fiscal year 1970 (instead of only through the fiscal year 1969 as in present law).

Subsection (b) amends section 708(a) of the 1965 Act to increase from $200 million to $500 million the amount authorized to be appropriated for the water and sewer facilities grant program (sec. 702 of such act) for the fiscal years 1968 and 1969.

Section 506. Open-space land program

This section amends section 702(b) of the Housing Act of 1961 to change the present $310 million contract authority under the open-space land program to a $310 million authorization of appropriations, and to authorize the appropriation of an additional $150 million for the program for the fiscal year 1970; the sublimitations on grants for beautification and certain land acquisitions are accordingly eliminated. It also amends section 708(b) of the 1961 Act to increase from $50,000 to $125,000 the amount of grant funds which may be used in any fiscal year for studies and the publishing of information.

Section 507. Authorization to make feasibility studies in the public works planning advances program

This section amends section 702(a) of the Housing Act of 1954 to clarify the authority of the Secretary of HUD to make advances for the conduct of feasibility studies under the public works planning advance program.

TITLE VI—URBAN MASS TRANSPORTATION

Section 601. Grant authorizations

Subsection (a) amends section 4(b) of the Urban Mass Transportation Act of 1964 to increase by $190 million for the fiscal year 1970 the amount authorized to be appropriated for the various activities under that act.

Subsection (b) amends section 6(c) of the 1964 act to increase by $6 million commencing July 1, 1968, the amount which may be made available for research, development, and demonstration projects, and to remove the statutory limits on the funds available for this purpose commencing July 1, 1969.

Section 602. Definition of mass transportation

This section amends section 12(c)(5) of the Urban Mass Transportation Act of 1964 to broaden the definition of mass transportation by substituting "general or special service * * * on a regular and continuing basis" for "service to the general public * * * over prescribed routes".

Section 603. Extension of emergency program under the Urban Mass Transportation Act

This section amends section 5 of the Urban Mass Transportation Act of 1964 to extend the emergency capital grant program from November 1, 1968, to October 1, 1969.

Section 604. Non-Federal share of net project cost

This section amends sections 4(a) and 5 of the Urban Mass Transportation Act of 1964 to provide that not more than half of the non-Federal share of a mass transportation project (or a project under the emergency program) will be paid from private sources, except in certain cases of demonstrated fiscal inability. Any public or private transit system funds provided toward the non-Federal share must be solely from undistributed cash surplus, cash replacement or depreciation funds or cash reserves, or new capital.

Section 701. Purposes

This section states as the purpose of title VII the partition of the existing Federal National Mortgage Association into two separate and distinct corporations. One will be a Government-sponsored private corporation to be known as the Federal National Mortgage Association (FNMA); it will retain the assets and liabilities of the existing association which are accounted for under section 304 of the National Housing Act and will continue to conduct the secondary market operations authorized by that section. The other will remain within the Federal Government and be known as the Government National Mortgage Association (GNMA); it will retain the assets and liabilities of the existing association which are accounted for under sections 305 and 306 of the act and will continue to operate the special assistance functions and management and liquidating functions authorized by those sections.

Section 702. Amendments to the Federal National Mortgage Association Charter Act

This section extensively amends title III of the National Housing Act to carry out the purposes described in section 801. In addition to making the substantive and technical changes which are strictly necessary to carry out these purposes, and generally making the basic powers of the existing Association applicable to both of the new corporations, the section makes changes as follows:

Subsection (d) provides that the present restrictions against buying mortgages at prices in excess of par and mortgages offered or covering property held by State and local instrumentalities are to be applicable only to GNMA, and extends FNMA's purchase authority to include securities guaranteed by GNMA under section 306(g) of the act.

Subsection (i) changes the present $100-par-value nonvoting common stock to FNMA no-par-value voting stock, clarifies the free transferability of the common stock, repeals the provision for retirement of the common stock at par, eliminates the restriction that payments to retire the preferred stock must come entirely out of capital surplus and general surplus accounts, and provides that the preferred stock is to be retired as rapidly as possible after the effective date of the amendments.

Subsection (j) provides that fees and charges imposed by FNMA in its secondary market operations will be regarded as elements of pricing (and not necessarily as fees for services).

Subsection (k) allows FNMA to issue common stock in addition to the stock required in connection with its purchasing and lending activities; and it requires each servicer of mortgages for FNMA to own, at all times, FNMA common stock in a minimum amount not more than 2 percent of the outstanding principal balances of the FNMA mortgages being serviced (disregarding mortgages purchased by FNMA before the effective date). It also eliminates the provision limiting the return on the common stock to 5 percent of its par value, and adds a requirement that cash dividends shall not exceed a fair rate of return as determined by the Secretary.

Subsection (l) prohibits issuance of any preferred stock after the effective date.

Subsection (m) makes it clear that financial institutions may purchase FNMA stock in addition to their initial capital contributions.

Subsection (p) eliminates the prohibition against FNMA purchases of mortgages insured or guaranteed before August 2, 1954.

Subsection (q) allows FNMA's board of directors to fix its debt-to-capital ratio at a figure higher than the present limit of 15 times the sum of its capital, surplus, and reserves.

Subsection (r) eliminates the prohibition against FNMA borrowing from the Treasury after the retirement of its preferred stock.

Subsection (y) eliminates the present FNMA Board of Directors, vesting GNMA's powers and duties in the Secretary and providing a new 15-member Board of Directors for FNMA. One-third of the members of FNMA's Board of Directors will be appointed by the President of the United States (including one each from the home-building industry, the mortgage lending industry, and the real estate industry) and the other two-thirds will be elected by the stockholders, each member serving for a 1-year term.

Subsection (aa) allows GNMA to retain its tax exemptions; it makes FNMA subject to all Federal taxes but exempt from all other taxes except those on real property.

Subsection (bb) gives FNMA's Board of Directors the power to appoint and employ officers and employees without regard to the civil service laws, with present employees remaining subject to those laws so long as their employment is continuous. FNMA is to make specified payments into the civil service retirment and disability fund to cover costs attributable to its covered employees.

Subsection (cc) prohibits the use by others of GNMA's name as well as FNMA's name, and substitutes civil penalties for the present criminal sanctions imposed for violations of this prohibition.

Subsection (dd) extends to GNMA as well as FNMA the authority to use Federal Reserve banks as depositories, custodians, and fiscal agents, and the authority to receive deposits and act as depository for others.

Subsection (ee) gives the Secretary of HUD general regulatory authority over FNMA, and permits him to require that a reasonable portion of FNMA's mortgage purchases be related to housing for low and moderate income families (but with reasonable economic return to FNMA); it also provides that FNMA may not issue stock or obligations without his approval, and authorizes him to examine and audit FNMA's books and transactions.

Subsection (ff) makes obligations of GNMA as well as of FNMA lawful investments, and exempts all stock, obligations, securities, and other instruments issued by either from regulation by the Securities and Exchange Commission.

Section 703. Participations

This section amends section 302(c)(5) of the National Housing Act to permit GNMA, in managing trusts created for sales of participation certificates, to issue such certificates for refinancing purposes without regard to the present requirement of appropriation act authority.

Section 704. Mortgage-backed securities

Subsection (a) amends section 304 of the National Housing Act to allow FNMA to issue and sell securities backed by a set-aside portion of its portfolio of mortgages.

Subsection (b) amends section 306 of the act to authorize GNMA to guarantee payment of principal and interest on any mortgage-backed securities issued by FNMA, and also on any similar securities issued by other approved private issuers so long as they are backed by mortgages or loans guaranteed or insured by FHA, VA, or the Farmers Home Administration and are set aside in a manner similar to that established by FNMA under section 304.

Section 705. Subordinated and convertible debentures

This section amends section 304 of the National Housing Act to allow FNMA to issue obligations which (in any manner set forth therein) are subordinated to its other obligations and may be converted into common stock. The total amount of such subordinated obligations outstanding at any time may not exceed twice FNMA's capital and surplus, but such obligations outstanding may be cont sidered part of FNMA's capital for purposes of determining the amoun- of its general obligations which may be outstanding.

Section 706. Special assistance authorization

This section amends section 305(c) of the National Housing Act to increase the authorization for purchases and commitments under FNMA's (now GNMA's) special assistance functions by $500 million on July 1, 1969.

Section 707. Amendments to other laws

This section makes numerous technical changes in other Federal laws to reflect the separation of the existing FNMA functions and the creation of the two new entities.

Section 708. Effective date

This section provides that the amendments made by title VII are to become effective on a date to be established by the Secretary of HUD, but within 120 days after the date of the bill's enactment.

Section 709. Savings provisions

This section preserves causes of action and legal proceedings existing or instituted by or against FNMA before the effective date so that they will not abate.

Section 710. Transitional provisions

This section sets forth transitional provisions governing FNMA's capital stock, and provides for a board of directors during the transitional period, which is to end at such time as one-third of the common stock is owned by persons or institutions in the mortgage lending, homebuilding, real estate, or related businesses, but in any event no sooner than May 1, 1970, or later than May 1, 1973. During this period the board is to consist of nine members, initially all appointed by the Secretary and subsequently partly appointed by him and partly elected by the stockholders. The President of FNMA during this period would be appointed by the President of the United States, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, and would be removable for cause only. One of the Secretary's appointees to the board would have to be the president. Until all of its outstanding preferred stock has been retired, FNMA is to be considered a wholly owned Government corporation. FNMA's present officers and employees are to become officers and employees of GNMA on the effective date; thereafter FNMA and GNMA will provide methods whereby FNMA may hire GNMA's employees, and the Secretary is to seek to place unhired employees in comparable Federal positions. The two entities may provide by contract for the performance by either of any of the functions of the other.

TITLE VIII—NATIONAL HOUSING PARTNERSHIPS

Section 801. Statement of purpose

This section states the congressional finding that housing for low and moderate income families must be increased, and that one or more private organizations should be created to encourage maximum private investor participation to this end.

Section 802. Creation of corporations

This section authorizes the creation of a private corporation for profit (the "corporation"). It also authorizes the President to create one or more additional corporations to carry out the purposes of the title when he finds it in the national interest to do so.

Section 803. Process of organization

This section authorizes the President, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, to appoint incorporators who will take such action as may be necessary or appropriate to establish the corporation, will serve as its initial board of directors, and will arrange for an initial stock offering.

Section 804. Directors

This section provides that the Corporation is to have a 15-member board of directors; three members are to be appointed by the President by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, to serve for 3-year terms, and the other 12 are to be elected by the stockholders.

Section 805. Financing the corporation

This section authorizes the corporation to issue shares of stock in such number and of such types as may be provided in its articles of incorporation.

Section 806. Purposes and powers of the corporation

This section authorizes the corporation to engage in specified activities appropriate to the provision of housing and related facilities primarily for low or moderate income persons, with or without the use of Federal programs. It also authorizes the corporation to enter into and participate in all forms of partnerships and associations, to conduct research and study projects, to provide technical assistance, and to provide financing assistance to other organizations in connection with its activities. The corporation is to have the usual powers conferred upon a stock corporation by the District of Columbia Business Corporation Act. Nothing in title VIII is to have the effect of waiving the Davis-Bacon Act or any other law requiring compliance with labor standards, to the extent that such act or law would otherwise apply.

Section 807. National housing partnership

This section authorizes the corporation to form a limited partnership (the "partnership") in which the corporation is the general partner and each of the corporation's stockholders may be limited partners. The partnership is authorized to conduct the same activities as those authorized for the corporation for the purpose of engaging in low and moderate income housing undertakings in particular localities. The partnership investment in any such undertaking may generally not exceed 25 percent of the initial equity investment.

Section 808. Report to Congress and records

This section directs the corporation to submit annual reports to the President for transmittal to the Congress, and requires that its accounts be audited annually by independent accountants.

Section 809. Antitrust laws

This section makes it clear that activities of the corporation, the partnership, and other participants in the title VIII program are subject to the Federal antitrust laws.

Section 810. Right to repeal, alter, or amend

This section reserves to the Congress the right to repeal, alter, or amend the title at any time.

Section 811. Amendment to banking laws

This section amends section 5136 of the Revised Statutes to permit national banks to invest in the corporation, the partnership, or any other entity formed under the title.

TITLE IX—RURAL HOUSING

Section 901. Housing for low and moderate income persons and families

This section adds to title V of the Housing Act of 1949 a new section 521, authorizing direct and insured loans to low and moderate income persons in rural areas (places with 5,500 population or less) and to cooperatives to provide rental or cooperative housing for low or moderate income persons or families or elderly persons and families, where assistance is not available from other sources including the new section 235 and 236 programs added by the bill. Interest is to be at a rate (not less than 1 percent) set by the Secretary of Agriculture after considering the cost of money to the Treasury (for U.S. obligations of comparable maturities) and the payment ability of the applicants; and an interest supplement in such amount as may be necessary to market the insured loans will be paid from, and reimbursed by annual appropriations to, the rural housing insurance fund. Eligibility for these loans is broadened to include persons not previously residing in rural areas.

Section 902. Housing for rural trainees

This section adds to title V of the Housing Act of 1949 a new section 522, authorizing financial and technical assistance to provide housing and related facilities in rural areas for trainees (and their families) who are enrolled in federally assisted training courses to improve their employment capability, where such housing and facilities could not be reasonably provided in any other way. Sites would be selected only after a labor area survey and with full coordination among all Federal agencies having related responsibilities. The financial assistance would be in the form of advances, which (in the case of advances for land purchase) would be repayable with interest within periods not longer than 33 years or (in other cases) would be nonrepayable or repayable with or without interest, depending on the applicant's payment ability. Interest is to be at a rate (not less than 1 percent) set by the Secretary of Agriculture after considering the cost of money to the Treasury (for U.S. obligations of comparable maturities) and the payment ability of the applicants. The labor standards provisions of the Davis-Bacon Act are made applicable to housing and related facilities assisted under the program.

Section 903. Appropriations

This section amends section 513 of the Housing Act of 1949 to authorize appropriations to the Secretary of Agriculture for the cost of administering in rural areas the new section 235 and 236 programs added by the bill. (As indicated in the discussion of these new programs, a reasonable portion of the authority to enter into contracts thereunder is to be transferred to the Secretary of Agriculture for use in these areas.)

Section 904. Purchase of land for building sites

This section amends section 514(f)(2) of the Housing Act of 1949 to broaden the eligible purposes of domestic farm labor housing loans under section 514 to include the purchase of necessary land for building sites.

Section 905. Mutual and self-help housing

This section adds to title V of the Housing Act of 1949 a new section 523, authorizing the Secretary of Agriculture to make grants to (or enter into contracts with) public or private nonprofit organizations to pay part or all of the cost of developing programs to carry out mutual or self-help housing efforts and to coordinate necessary technical and supervisory assistance. The Secretary is also authorized to make loans to needy low-income individuals who participate in these programs for the acquisition and development of land and the purchase of necessary materials; the loans would bear interest at not more than 3 percent and have terms of not more than 33 years. Appropriations of up to $5 million a year are authorized, and no commitment can be entered into after June 30, 1973.

TITLE X—URBAN PROPERTY PROTECTION AND REINSURANCE

Section 1001. Short title

This section provides that title X of the bill may be cited by its short title—the "Urban Property Protection and Reinsurance Act of 1968."

Section 1002. Findings and declaration of purpose

Subsection (a) sets forth a finding by the Congress that the unavailability of property insurance in inner city areas is accelerating the deterioration and threatening the economic well-being of cities. and that the unavailability of riot loss reinsurance makes adequate property insurance even more difficult to obtain.

Subsection (b) states that the purpose of title X is to encourage the development of statewide programs to increase the availability of property insurance, and to provide Federal reinsurance with appropriate State sharing in reinsured riot losses.

Section 1003. Amendment of the National Housing Act

This section adds to the National Housing Act a new title XII, establishing the national insurance development program.

TITLE XII—NATIONAL INSURANCE DEVELOPMENT PROGRAM

Section 1201. Program authority

Authorizes the Secretary to establish and carry out the programs provided for in the title, and provides that the powers of the Secretary will terminate on April 30, 1973, except to the extent necessary to continue reinsurance until April 30, 1976, and to complete liquidation in accordance with a plan approved by Congress.

Section 1202. Advisory board; meetings, duties, compensation, and expenses

Establishes a 19-member advisory board appointed by the Secretary, who would also designate the Chairman and Vice Chairman, to represent the general public, the insurance industry, State and local governments, and the Federal Government. No more than six members of the Board would be from the Federal Government, no less than four would be representatives of the private insurance industry, and no less that four would be representatives of State insurance authorities. The Board would review general policies, advise the Secretary, and perform other functions specified in the title.

Section 1203. Definitions

Contains the basic definitions of terms used in the title, among which are included "environmental hazard," "essential property insurance," "inspection facility," "insurer," "pool," "losses resulting from riots or civil disorders," "standard line of property insurance," and "urban area," and gives the Secretary authority to define any technical or trade term.

Part A—Statewide Plans To Assure Fair Access to Insurance Requirements

Section 1211. FAIR plans

Requires every insurer reinsured under the title to cooperate with the State insurance authority in each State in which it acquires reinsurance, in establishing and carrying out statewide plans to assure fair access to insurance requirements (FAIR plans). These plans, which must be approved by the State insurance authority or authorized by State law, are designed to make essential property insurance more readily available in, but not limited to, urban areas. Plans may vary among the States, but all plans must satisfy minimum criteria; the principal requirement is that no risk can be written at a surcharged rate or denied coverage unless there has been an inspection of the risk and a determination made that it does not meet reasonable underwriting standards at the applicable premium rate.

Section 1212. All-industry placement facility

Requires all FAIR plans to include an all-industry placement facility, doing business with all participating insurers, to help agents and brokers to place insurance up to the full insurable value of a property, except to the extent that deductibles, percentage participations, and other underwriting devices are employed to meet special problems of insurability.

Section 1213. Industry cooperation

Requires every participating insurer to pledge with the State insurance authority its full participation and cooperation in carrying out the plan and to file copies of this statement with the Secretary.

Section 1214. Plan evaluation

Provides for transmission of copies of plans and amendments by State insurance authorities to the Secretary and for these authorities to advise the Secretary with regard to the operation of the plan and the need to form a pool or to adopt other programs to make essential property insurance more readily available in urban areas of the State. The Secretary would be authorized to modify the plan criteria set out in this part A and, under certain conditions, to waive compliance with one or more of the plan criteria.

Section 1221. Reinsurance of losses from riots or civil disorders

Authorizes the Secretary to offer riot or civil disorder property loss reinsurance to any insurer or pool of insurers in any one or more States. Insurers desiring coverage must purchase reinsurance on fire and extended coverage, vandalism and malicious mischief, other allied lines of fire insurance, burglary and theft, and those portions of multiple peril policies covering similar perils, and an insurer or pool having acquired reinsurance on these lines will be eligible to purchase reinsurance on other individual standard lines of property insurance. Reinsurance may be provided immediately upon enactment of the title under binders which will expire at the end of a 90-day period or upon the effective date of a reinsurance contract between an insurer and the Secretary, whichever is earlier, but no reinsurance may be offered in a State after the expiration of the binder unless the insurer is participating in that State's plan and in such pool as may have been established under State law.

Section 1222. Reinsurance agreements and premiums

Authorizes the Secretary, during the first year after enactment of the title, to provide reinsurance at premium rates adequate to provide premiums which will exceed in aggregate amount the insured riot losses in 1967, and provides that thereafter the Secretary may adjust reinsurance premium rates as may be necessary or appropriate after consultation with the Board and with the National Association of Insurance Commissioners. Reinsurance offered under this title is to reimburse an insurer for its total proved and approved claims for losses resulting from riots or civil disorders exceeding the amount of the insurer's retention as provided by contract. The Secretary is authorized to enter into such contracts and agreements without regard to section 3679 of the Revised Statutes, and the premium rates, terms, and conditions of reinsurance contracts are to be uniform throughout the country.

Section 1223. Conditions of reinsurance

Provides the conditions under which the Secretary will terminate existing reinsurance coverage and will not offer new coverage for insurance written after the termination date. The first condition concerns the failure of the State to provide for the assumption, within 1 year or by the close of its next regular legislative session, of a share of the reinsured losses in the State, up to 5 percent of the property insurance premiums earned in the State during the preceding year on lines reinsured in the State. The State would be required to reimburse the Secretary for reinsured losses in a calendar year which exceed the total reinsurance premiums received in that State during the year plus reinsurance premiums received (less reinsured losses paid by the Secretary) since the end of the most recent year in which the State had reimbursed the Secretary for reinsured losses. The second condition concerns the failure of the State or the insurance industry in a State to adopt programs, in addition to FAIR plans, required to make essential property insurance more readily available without regard to environmental hazards. This condition would not become effective until 2 years after the effective date of the title, or at such earlier date as the Secretary, in consultation with the State insurance authority, may determine. A third condition concerns the failure of an insurer to participate fully in the State plan, pool, or other existing program which aids in making essential property insurance more readily available. Additional conditions relate to the effect of merger, consolidation, or reorganization, and to the voluntary cancellation of reinsurance by the insurer or pool in the State. Reinsurance may be continued for the term of policies written prior to the date of termination or nonrenewal so long as reinsurance premiums are paid.

Section 1224. Recovery of premiums; statute of limitations

Authorizes the Secretary to recover any unpaid premiums for reinsurance; imposes a 5-year statute of limitations on the recovery by an insurer of excess premiums paid to the Secretary or the recovery by the Secretary of reinsurance premiums due; and provides that if an insurer has filed false documents with the intent to evade the payment of premiums, the claim shall not be deemed to have accrued until discovery of the deception by the Secretary.

Section 1231. Claims and judicial review

Authorizes the Secretary to adjust and pay claims for proved and approved losses, allows a claimant to institute an action in the U.S. district court within 1 year after receipt of notice of disallowance of a claim, and grants jurisdiction of such actions to the district court without regard to the amount in controversy.

Section 1232. Fiscal intermediaries and servicing agents

Authorizes the Secretary to contract with any insurer, pool, or other person or organization for estimating or determining reinsurance claim payment amounts, receiving, disbursing, and accounting for reinsurance claims payments, auditing insurer's records to assure proper payments, establishing the basis of reinsurance liability, and otherwise assisting in carrying out the purposes of the title.

Section 1233. National insurance development fund

Provides for the establishment of a National Insurance Development Fund to be available without fiscal year limitation to pay reinsurance claims, to pay administrative expenses, and to repay with interest amounts borrowed under section 520(b) of the National Housing Act. Reinsurance premiums, appropriated funds, interest on investments, general receipts, and borrowed funds are to be deposited in this fund.

Section 1234. Records, annual statement, and audits

Requires reinsured insurers to furnish the Secretary with such data as may be necessary in carrying out the program and directs the Secretary to make use of State insurance authority examination reports and facilities to the maximum extent feasible. Each reinsured insurer is directed to file with the Secretary a copy of its annual statements and any amendments which it files with the State insurance authority in its domiciliary State. Parties contracting with the Secretary are required to keep reasonable records to facilitate an effective audit of liability for reinsurance payments. The Secretary and the Comptroller General are authorized to audit pertinent books and records and to conduct such audits to the maximum extent feasibile in cooperation with the State insurance authorities.

Section 1235. Study of reinsurance and other programs

Provides for the Secretary to study reinsurance and other means of assuring an adequate supply of burglary and theft and other property insurance in urban areas and the adequate availability of surety bonds for construction contractors in urban areas and to report to the President and the Congress within 1 year the results of his study and his recommendations.

Section 1236. Other studies

Provides for the Secretary to study the operation of the FAIR plans, the extent of the unavailability of essential property insurance in urban areas, the market for private reinsurance and loss-prevention methods and procedures, insurance marketing methods, and underwriting techniques.

Section 1237. General powers

Gives the Secretary the authority to issue rules and regulations and other powers and duties set forth in section 402 (except subsecs. (c)(2) and (f) which are not relevant and (d) which is obsolete) of the Housing Act of 1950. This would provide for a budget program and audit of accounts in accordance with the Government Corporation Control Act, and also provide that financial transactions under the reinsurance program are to be final and conclusive upon all officers of the Government.

Section 1238. Service and facilities of other agencies—utilization of personnel, services, facilities, and information

Authorizes the Secretary, with the consent of the agency concerned, to utilize the personnel and information of any agency of the Federal Government on a reimbursable basis and to obtain data relevant to matters within his jurisdiction from any Federal agency on a nonreimbursement basis to the extent permitted by law.

Section 1239. Advance payments

Provides that the Secretary may make reinsurance payments in advance or by way of reimbursement and in such installments and on such conditions as he may determine.

Section 1240. Taxation

Exempts the National Insurance Development Fund from local, State, or Federal taxation except that real property acquired as a result of reinsurance may be taxed by a State or political subdivision to the same extent, according to the value of the property, as other real property is taxed.

Section 1241. Appropriations

Authorizes to be appropriated such sums as may be necessary to carry out the title.

Section 1004. Financing

This section of the bill amends section 520(b) of the National Housing Act to permit use of the borrowing authorization contained therein for payment of losses reinsured under title XII of the act, provided that borrowings for this purpose are limited to $150 million or such further sum as the Congress, by joint resolution, may from time to time determine.

TITLE XI—NATIONAL FLOOD INSURANCE

Section 1101. Short title

This section provides that title XI may be cited as the "National Flood Insurance Act of 1968."

Section 1102. Findings and declaration of purpose

This section sets forth congressional findings and purposes stating that a flood insurance program is feasible, can be initiated, and should complement and encourage measures to prevent flood damage; that if the program is commenced on a gradual basis, time and experience will enable it to be reappraised and expanded to make flood insurance available to other persons needing it; that the program can be carried out most effectively through a cooperative effort on the part of the Federal Government and the private insurance industry; and that a critical ingredient of such a program will be the encouragement of State and local governments to adopt land use regulations to govern the development of land exposed to flood damage. This section also calls upon the President to submit to the Congress, within 2 years after the enactment of the bill, a unified national program for flood plain management, including any further proposals for the allocation of costs among beneficiaries of flood protection.

Section 1103. Amendments to the Federal Flood Insurance Act of 1956

This section repeals all of the now inactive Federal Flood Insurance Act of 1956 (for which program funds were never appropriated) except section 15(e). That section vested the Administrator of the Department's predecessor agency (the Housing and Home Finance Agency) with authority to borrow $500 million in the aggregate (or greater sums if authorized by the President) from the Secretary of the Treasury for flood insurance purposes. Under section 1110 of the bill, a portion of this authority is made available to the Secretary of HUD to carry out the responsibilities vested in him by the title.

Chapter I—The National Flood Insurance Program

Section 1105. Basic authority

Subsection (a) provides the basic authority for the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development to establish and carry out a national flood insurance program to facilitate the purchase by interested persons of insurance to provide against loss from physical damage to real and related personal property resulting from flood.

Subsection (b) directs the Secretary to carry out the program, to the maximum extent practicable, through arrangements for financial participation and risk-sharing by companies in the private insurance industry, and through other appropriate participation on a non-risk-sharing basis by insurance companies, agents, brokers, and adjustment organizations.

Section 1106. Scope of program and priorities

Subsection (a) provides that the flood insurance program is to be made available initially for 1- to 4-family residential properties, and for properties which are owned or leased and operated by small business concerns (i.e., smaller business firms qualifying under regulations prescribed by the Secretary).

Subsection (b) provides that if the Secretary, on the basis of his studies and investigations under section 1108 and such other information as may be necessary, determines that it is feasible to extend the program to any types or classes of other residential or business properties, agricultural properties, private nonprofit organization properties, or State or local governmental properties, he shall report such determination to the Congress, together with his recommendations.

Subsection (c) limits flood insurance under the program to those States or areas (or subdivisions of areas) which the Secretary determines have evidenced a positive interest in the flood insurance program, and have given satisfactory assurances that by June 30, 1970, permanent land use and control measures consistent with prescribed criteria for land management and use will have been adopted, with the application and enforcement of these measures scheduled to commence as soon as technical information on floodways and on controlling flood elevations is available.

Section 1107. Nature and limitation of insurance coverage

Subsection (a) authorizes the Secretary, after consultation with the advisory committee (established by section 1119), representatives of the industry flood insurance pool (created under section 1131), and representatives of the State insurance commissioners, to provide by regulation for the general terms and conditions of insurability applicable to properties eligible for flood insurance. These terms and conditions would include the types and locations of eligible properties; the nature and limits of insurable losses; the classification, limitation, and rejection of risk; and appropriate minimum premiums and loss-deductibles (to prevent low-loss claims).

Subsection (b) places limits on the amount of flood insurance coverage which may be made available at below-cost premium rates under the program. In the case of one- to four-family residential property, the limit would be $17,500 for any single dwelling unit and $30,000 for a two- to four-family structure, plus $5,000 per dwelling unit for its contents. In the case of smaller business properties, the limit with respect to any structure and its contents would be $30,000, plus $5,000 multiplied by the number of small business occupants, with the total thus derived being allocated among the small business occupants (or among them and the owner) in accordance with regulations prescribed by the Secretary; except that in no case could coverage for the structure itself exceed $30,000. In the case of any other type of property which may be covered in the future under subsequent legislation, the limit would be $30,000 for the structure itself and $5,000 per occupant or dwelling unit for any contents related to the insured property.

Any of these limits may be doubled, but coverage in excess of the limit involved (whether such limit is one of the specified dollar limits or represents the limit of the coverage allocated to a small business concern) would require the payment of premium rates at full cost.

Section 1108. Estimates of premium rates

Subsection (a) authorizes the Secretary, on the basis of studies and investigations and on information from the Government agencies most experienced in assessing the risks in flood plains, to estimate, on an area, subidvision, or other appropriate basis (giving priority, under subsection (c), to those States or areas that have evidenced a positive interest in flood insurance), (1) the risk premium (full-cost) rates for flood insurance, (2) the rates (if lower) which would be reasonable, would encourage the purchase of flood insurance, and would be consistent with the purposes of the title, and (3) the extent to which federally-assisted or other flood protection measures initiated after the enactment of the bill affect the estimates of these rates. The Secretary would base his estimates of risk premium rates on a consideration of the risks involved and accepted actuarial principles; the rates would reflect applicable operating costs and allowances of participating private insurers, and, on a discretionary basis, nondevelopmental Federal administrative expenses which may be incurred in carrying out the flood insurance program.

Subsection (b) directs the Secretary, to the maximum extent feasible in conducting the necessary rate studies and investigations, to utilize on a reimbursement basis the services of the Army Corps of Engineers, the Geological Survey, the Soil Conservation Service, the Environmental Science Services Administration, the Tennessee Valley Authority, and other appropriate Federal agencies.

Subsection (a) authorizes the Secretary, after consultation with the advisory committee (established by section 1119), representatives of the industry flood insurance pool (created under section 1131), and representatives of the State insurance authorities, and on the basis of the rate estimates discussed above (sec. 1108), to establish chargeable premium rates and the areas, terms, and conditions for the application of such rates.

Subsection (b) provides that in prescribing chargeable rates the Secretary is to be guided by a number of factors, including the consideration of the respective risks involved, the differences in risks due to land use measures, flood-proofing, flood forecasting, and similar measures. The Secretary could, however, prescribe chargeable rates at reasonable levels lower than those computed on this basis, where necessary, in order to encourage the purchase of flood insurance. Essentially, chargeable rates for existing properties will reflect a combination of (1) the risk premium (full-cost) rate estimated under section 1108 and (2) the "reasonable" rate estimated under that section; thus in low-risk areas the chargeable rate for existing properties would be the same as or close to the estimated full-cost rate, while in high-risk areas it would be considerably less. The higher the flood risk for an area, the lower the chargeable rate (if based on the estimated "reasonable" rate) would be in relation to the estimated full-cost rate. The chargeable rates would be stated so as to reflect their basis, including the difference (if any) from the estimated full-cost risk premium rates.

Subsection (c) provides that, in the case of property on which construction is started or which is substantially improved after the area involved is identified as one having special flood hazards (and such identification has been published under section 1160), the chargeable rate for insurance of such property or its contents will not be less than the estimated full-cost risk premium rate.

Subsection (d) provides that, where any chargeable premium rate is not less than the estimated risk premium rate for the area and includes an amount for administrative expenses of the Federal Government in carrying out the flood insurance program, a sum equal to that amount is to be paid to the Secretary for deposit in the National Flood Insurance Fund established under section 1111.

Section 1110. Financing

Subsection (a) provides that the authority vested in the Housing and Home Finance Administrator by section 15(e) of the Federal Flood Insurance Act of 1956 (pertaining to the issue of notes or other obligations to the Secretary of the Treasury) will be available to the Secretary so as to permit him to borrow up to $150 million in carrying out his responsibilities under the program.

Subsection (b) requires that borrowed Treasury funds be deposited in the National Flood Insurance Fund established under section 1111.

Section 1111. National Flood Insurance Fund

Subsection (a) authorizes the Secretary to establish in the U.S. Treasury a National Flood Insurance Fund. Premium equalization payments to private insurers, reinsurance claims of insurers, and repayments of borrowed moneys to the Secretary of the Treasury. The fund would also be available to finance the operation of the flood insurance program in the event it is carried out through the facilities of the Federal Government, as provided in subsection (d).

Subsection (b) provides that the fund is to be credited with (1) borrowed Treasury funds, (2) reinsurance premiums payable by private insurers, (3) amounts advanced to the fund from appropriations in order to maintain it at adequate levels, (4) interest on the investment of surplus amounts in the fund, (5) administrative expenses included in chargeable premium rates and paid to the Secretary, and (6) receipts from other operations incident to the insurance program; and, in the event the flood insurance program is carried out through the facilities of the Federal Government, with the insurance premiums paid.

Subsection (c) provides for the investment of any surplus moneys in the fund in obligations issued or guaranteed by the United States, if (1) all outstanding obligations of the fund have been liquidated, and (2) any outstanding amounts that have been advanced to the fund from appropriations for reinsurance payments have been credited to that appropriation, with interest accrued at a rate based on the average current yield on outstanding marketable obligations of the United States of comparable maturities.

Subsection (d) provides that the fund will be available for all purposes incident to the operation of the flood insurance program if the Secretary finds (under section 1140) that the operation of such program should, in whole or in part, be carried out through the facilities of the Federal Government. This would include the payment of costs incurred in the adjustment and payment of loss claims, and the payment of applicable operating costs of private insurers. Premiums paid by policyholders would be deposited in the fund.

Section 1112. Operating costs and allowances

Subsection (a) directs the Secretary to negotiate with appropriate representatives of the insurance industry, from time to time, for the purpose of prescribing a current schedule of operating costs applicable to risk-sharing and non-risk-sharing participants in the program, and a current schedule of operating allowances applicable to risk-sharing insurers.

Subsection (b) provides that "operating costs" will include (1) expense reimbursements covering the direct and necessary expenses of selling and servicing flood insurance coverage, (2) reasonable compensation or commissions payable for selling and servicing flood insurance coverage, (3) loss adjustment expenses, and (4) other direct and necessary expenses which the Secretary finds are incurred in connection with selling or servicing flood insurance. "Operating allowances" will include amounts for profit and contingencies which the Secretary finds reasonable and necessary to carry out the purposes of the title.

Section 1113. Payment of claims

This section authorizes the Secretary to prescribe regulations establishing methods for the adjustment and payment of claims for losses to property covered by insurance under the flood insurance program.

Section 1114. Dissemination of flood insurance information

This section directs the Secretary to make information and data available to the public and to any State and local agency with regard to (1) the flood insurance program, its coverage and objectives, and (2) estimated risk premium rates and chargeable flood insurance premium rates, including the basis for and difference between such rates.

Section 1115. Prohibition against certain duplications of benefits

Subsection (a) prevents Federal disaster assistance from being made available for any loss to the extent it is covered by flood insurance under the program, or (subject to subsection (b)) could have been so covered (at the maximum limits) if flood insurance had been available in the area involved more than 1 year prior to the loss.

Subsection (b) makes the prohibition against disaster assistance contained in subsection (a) inapplicable to low-income persons who might otherwise benefit from such assistance to the extent that the Secretary so provides by regulation in order to avoid undue hardship.

Subsection (c) defines "Federal disaster assistance" to include any Federal financial assistance made available to any person as a result of (1) a major disaster, as determined by the President pursuant to "An Act to authorize Federal assistance to State and local governments in major disasters, and for other purposes" (42 U.S.C. 1855–1855g); (2) a natural disaster, as determined by the Secretary of Agriculture pursuant to section 321 of the Consolidated Farmers Home Administration Act of 1961; or (3) a disaster with respect to which loans may be made under section 7(b) of the Small Business Act.

Subsection (d) provides that the term "financial assistance" as used in section 10 of the Disaster Relief Act of 1966 (which directs that Federal assistance programs be administered to avoid duplication of benefits) shall be deemed to include flood insurance made available under the program.

Section 1116. State and local land use controls

This section provides that after June 30, 1970, no new flood insurance coverage (including renewals) can be provided in any area unless an appropriate public body has adopted permanent land use and control measures, with effective enforcement provisions, which the Secretary finds consistent with the comprehensive criteria for land management and use prescribed under section 1161.

Section 1117. Properties in violation of State and local law

This section prohibits any new flood insurance on property duly declared to be in violation of State or local laws, regulations, or ordinances intended to discourage or otherwise restrict land development or occupancy in flood-prone areas.

Section 1118. Coordination with other programs

This section directs the Secretary to consult with other Federal agencies, and interstate, State, and local agencies having responsibilities for flood control, flood forecasting, and flood damage prevention, in order to assure the maximum possible mutual consistency between the programs of these agencies and the flood insurance program.

Section 1119. Advisory committee

Subsection (a) directs the Secretary to appoint a flood insurance advisory committee to advise him with respect to policy matters and in the preparation of regulations prescribed in accordance with the title.

Subsection (b) provides that the committee is to consist of up to 15 representatives of the insurance industry, State and local governments, lending institutions, the homebuilding industry, and the general public.

Subsection (c) provides that committee members, while attending meetings, will be compensated at a rate fixed by the Secretary, but not exceeding $100 a day, and will in addition receive travel and living expenses when serving away from their homes or regular places of business.

Section 1120. Initial program limitation

This section provides that the face amount of flood insurance coverage outstanding and in force at any given time under the program may not exceed $2.5 billion.

Section 1121. Report to the President

This section directs the Secretary to include a report on the operations of the flood insurance program in his annual report to the President for submission to the Congress.

Chapter II—Organization and Administration of the Flood Insurance Program

Section 1130. Organization and administration

This section directs the Secretary, after such consultation with representatives of the insurance industry as may be necessary, to implement the flood insurance program in accordance with part A of chapter II (which provides for an industry program with Federal financial assistance) or, if he finds it necessary, in accordance with part B (which provides for a Federal program with industry assistance).

Part A—Industry Program With Federal Financial Assistance

Section 1131. Industry flood insurance pool

Subsection (a) authorizes the Secretary to encourage and assist private insurers to join together in a pool to provide flood insurance coverage and to participate financially in underwriting the risks assumed and in adjusting and paying claims for losses.

Subsection (b) authorizes the Secretary to prescribe appropriate requirements for private insurers participating in the pool, including minimum capital or surplus or assets requirements.

Section 1132. Agreements with flood insurance pool

Subsections (a) and (b) authorize the Secretary to enter into agreements with the industry pool to carry out the program, specifying the terms and conditions under which (1) risk capital will be available for the adjustment and payment of claims, (2) the pool and its participants will participate in premiums received and profits or losses, realized, including the maximum amount of profit which might be realized, (3) operating costs and allowances might be paid, and (4) premium equalization payments and reinsurance claims will be paid.

Subsection (c) provides that the agreements will also contain such provisions as the Secretary finds necessary to assure (1) no qualified insurer wishing to participate in the pool will be excluded, (2) insurers participating in the pool will provide continuity of flood insurance coverage by the pool, and (3) other insurance companies, agents, and brokers will to the maximum extent practicable be permitted to cooperate with the pool as fiscal agents or otherwise on a non-risk-sharing basis.

Section 1133. Adjustment and payment of claims and judicial review

This section authorizes private insurers participating in the pool to adjust and pay claims for losses and permits any claimant, upon disallowance or partial disallowance of a claim, to institute an action, within 1 year after notice of the disallowance was mailed, in the U.S. district court for the district in which the insured property or the major portion of it was situated. Jurisdiction would be conferred on the district court without regard to the amount in controversy. (Claimants could, of course, also avail themselves of legal remedies in State courts.)

Section 1134. Premium equalization payments

Subsection (a) directs the Secretary to make periodic payments to the pool of insurers in recognition of any reductions made in chargeable premium rates below estimated risk premium rates in order to provide flood insurance on reasonable terms.

Subsection (b) provides that payments for a share of the claims paid in a given period will be based on the aggregate amount of flood insurance retained by the pool after ceding reinsurance in accordance with section 1135, and will not exceed in any payment period an amount determined by a ratio set out in the bill.

Subject to the limiting terms and conditions of the basic agreement between the Secretary and the pool under section 1132, the Secretary would also be authorized to make payments to the pool for a proportionate amount of appropriate operating costs and allowances on the same ratio basis as is used to determine the sharing of claim payments.

Subsection (c) authorizes the Secretary to establish designated payment periods and the methods for determining the sum of premiums paid or payable during such periods.

Section 1135. Reinsurance coverage

This section authorizes the Secretary to negotiate an excess loss agreement with the insurance industry pool whereby claims above a certain limit would be submitted to the Secretary on a portfolio basis and paid by the Federal Government.

Part B—Government Program With Industry Assistance

Section 1140. Federal operation of the program

Subsection (a) authorizes the Secretary, after consultation with representatives of the insurance industry and after making a determination that the flood insurance program cannot be effectively carried on through the insurance pool, to take the necessary steps to operate the program through the facilities of the Federal Government, and to utilize, to the extent practicable, private insurers, agents, brokers, and adjustment organizations as fiscal agents of the United States.

Subsection (b) requires the Secretary, upon determining under subsection (a) that the flood insurance program should be operated through the facilities of the Federal Government (and at least 30 days before implementing the program through such facilities), to submit to the Congress a report giving the reasons and supporting findings for his determination, indicating the extent to which he expects to utilize the insurance industry, and setting forth his recommendations.

Section 1141. Adjustment and payment of claims and judicial review

This section authorizes the Secretary to adjust and pay claims in the event the program is being carried out through the facilities of the Federal Government, and authorizes any claimant, upon disallowance or partial disallowance of a claim, to institute an action, within 1 year after the notice of disallowance was mailed, in the U.S. district court for the district in which the insured property or the major portion of it was situated. Jurisdiction would be conferred on the district court without regard to the amount in controversy.

Section 1145. Services by insurance industry

Subsection (a) provides the legal authority for the Secretary to enter into the necessary arrangements with the private insurance industry in order to implement the flood insurance program, including provisions for payment of applicable operating costs and allowances for the industry's facilities and services.

Subsection (b) exempts any such arrangement from the provisions of Federal law requiring competitive bids or requring that contracts or purchases of supplies or services by the Federal Government be made only after advertisement for bids.

Section 1146. Use of insurance pool, companies, or other private organizations for certain payments

Subsections (a), (b), and (d) authorize the Secretary, in order to achieve maximum efficiency in the administration of the flood insurance program, to enter into contracts with the pool, an insurance company, or any other private organization he finds acceptable to assume certain responsibilities on a reimbursement basis, including (1) estimating and determining amounts of Federal payments, (2) receiving from the Secretary, disbursing, and accounting for funds in making such payments, and (3) auditing participating insurers, agents, brokers, or adjustment organizations, as may be necessary to assure that proper payments are made.

Subsection (c) exempts any such contract from the provisions of Federal law requiring competitive bids or requiring that contracts or purchases of supplies or services by the Federal Government be made only after advertisement for bids.

Subsection (e) authorizes the Secretary to require a surety bond from the pool or any company or organization performing such responsibilities and any of its officers and employees. No individual designated to certify payments, or officer disbursing funds in accordance with a proper certification of payments, would be liable with respect to such payments in the absence of gross negligence or intent to defraud the United States.

Subsection (f) makes such contracts automatically renewable from year to year in the absence of notice from either party as to termination, except that the Secretary may terminate a contract after reasonable notice if he determines that the other party has substantially failed in its obligations or is carrying them out in a manner inconsistent with the efficient and effective administration of the flood insurance program.

Section 1147. Settlement and arbitration

This section authorizes the Secretary to make final determination and settlement of any claims arising from financial transactions he is authorized to carry out, and to refer any disputes to arbitration, which would be advisory in nature.

Section 1148. Records and audits

Subsection (a) requires the industry pool and any company or organization entering into a contract, agreement, or arrangement with the Secretary to keep such records as the Secretary may prescribe (including records to facilitate an effective audit and records fully disclosing its total costs under the program).

Subsection (b) requires that the Secretary and the U.S. Comptroller General (and their duly authorized representatives) be given access for audit and examination purposes to the pertinent records of the pool and any such company or organization.

Section 1160. Identification of flood-prone areas

This section authorizes the Secretary, utilizing the Army Corps of Engineers, the Geological Survey, the Soil Conservation Service, the Environmental Science Services Administration, TVA, and other Federal, State, or local agencies, to identify and publish information within 5 years after the enactment of the bill with respect to all flood plain areas, including coastal areas in the United States, which have special flood hazards; and, within 15 years, to establish flood risk zones in such areas and to make estimates with respect to the rates of probable flood-caused loss for the various flood risk zones for each of these areas.

Section 1161. Criteria for land management and use

Subsections (a) and (b) authorize the Secretary to carry out studies and investigations with regard to the adequacy of State and local measures in flood-prone areas as to land management and use, flood control, flood zoning, and flood damage prevention. These studies and investigations will (among other things) deal with laws, regulations, or ordinances relating to encroachments and obstructions on stream channels and floodways, the orderly development and use of flood plains of rivers or streams, floodway encroachment lines, flood plain zoning, building codes, building permits, and subdivision or other building restrictions.

Subsequent (c) directs the Secretary, on the basis of these studies and investigations, to develop comprehensive criteria designed to encourage, where necessary, the adoption of permanent State or local measures which will lessen the exposure of property and facilities to flood losses, improve the long-range land management and use of flood-prone areas, and inhibit, to the maximum extent feasible, unplanned and economically unjustifiable future development in such areas. The Secretary would also work closely with and provide any necessary technical assistance to State, interstate, and local governmental agencies to encourage the application of such criteria and the adoption and enforcement of such measures as may be necessary to help in reducing any unnecessary damages resulting from floods.

Section 1162. Purchase of certain insured properties

This section authorizes the Secretary to negotiate with owners of real property, located in any flood-risk area, which was damaged substantially beyond repair by flood while covered by insurance under the program, for the purchase of such property for subsequent transfer to State or local agencies which agree to use the property for at least 40 years for only such purposes as the Secretary may, by regulation, determine to be consistent with sound land management and use. No property owners would be required to sell their properties under this section.

Chapter IV—Appropriations and Miscellaneous Provisions

This section contains definitions of the basic terms used in the title. Under these definitions (1) "flood" has such meaning as may be prescribed in regulations of the Secretary, and may include inundation from rising waters or from the overflow of streams, rivers, or other bodies of water, and from tidal surges, abnormally high tidal water, tidal waves, tsunamis, hurricanes, and other severe storms or deluge; (2) "United States" and "State" include the several States, the District of Columbia, the territories and possessions, the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, and the Trust Territory of the Pacific Islands; (3) "insurance company," "other insurer," and "insurance agents and brokers," include organizations or individuals authorized to engage in the insurance business under the laws of any State; (4) "insurance adjustment organization" includes organizations or individuals engaged in the business of adjusting loss claims arising under insurance policies issued by any insurance company or other insurer; (5)"person" includes any individual, group of individuals, corporation, partnership, association, or other organized group, including State and local governments and agencies; and (6) "Secretary" means the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development.

Section 1171. Studies of other natural disasters

Subsection (a) authorizes the Secretary to make studies to determine the extent to which insurance protection against earthquakes or other natural disasters is not available and the feasibility of making such insurance protection available.

Subsection (b) provides that, to the maximum extent practicable, these studies will be made in cooperation with other Federal, State, or local agencies, and the Secretary is authorized to enter into agreements for the conduct of such studies with other Federal agencies, on a reimbursement basis, and with State and local agencies.

Section 1172. Payments

This section vests discretion in the Secretary to make payments in advance of their actual need, or by way of reimbursement, with appropriate adjustment for previous overpayments or underpayments.

Section 1173. Government Corporation Control Act

This section makes the provisions of the Government Corporation Control Act applicable in the administration of the flood insurance program to the same extent as they are applicable to wholly owned Government corporations.

Section 1174. Finality of certain financial transactions

This section provides that any financial transaction under the bill, and any payment received or made in connection with it, shall be final and conclusive upon all officers of the Government.

Section 1175. Administrative expenses

This section provides that any administrative expenses of the Federal Government in carrying out the flood insurance program may be paid out of appropriated funds.

Section 1176. Appropriations

This section authorizes, without fiscal year limitation, the appropriations necessary to carry out the flood insurance program, including sums to cover administrative expenses and to reimburse the National Flood Insurance Fund for premium equalization payments and reinsurance claims paid out of the fund.

TITLE XII—MORTGAGE INSURANCE FOR NONPROFIT HOSPITALS

Section 1201. Amendment to National Housing Act

This section adds to title II of the National Housing Act a new section 242, establishing a new FHA program under which the Secretary of HUD will insure mortgages covering new or rehabilitated hospitals (including initial equipment). To be eligible for such insurance, the mortgage could not exceed $25 million or 90 percent of replacement cost, and the hospital must be owned and operated by one or more nonprofit organizations. A certification that the hospital is needed, and that State or local laws providing for minimum standards will be applied and enforced, is required from the State health agency designated for the State involved under section 604(a)(1) of the Public Health Service Act. The agencies involved are directed to encourage programs providing comprehensive health care, including outpatient and preventive care, in carrying out their activities and functions under the new provisions.

Section 1202. Labor standards

This section amends section 212 of the National Housing Act to make FHA's labor standards provisions (Davis-Bacon Act) applicable to hospitals financed with mortgage insurance under the new section 242.

TITLE XIII—HOUSING GOALS AND ANNUAL HOUSING REPORT

Section 1301. Reaffirmation of goal

In this section the Congress finds that the Nation's housing supply is not increasing rapidly enough to meet the national housing goal—the "realization as soon as feasible of the goal of a decent home and a suitable living environment for every American family." The Congress reaffirms this goal, and determines that it should be met within the next decade by the construction or rehabilitation of 26 million housing units including 6 million for low and moderate income families.

Section 1302. Annual housing report

This section directs the Secretary of HUD to submit annually to the President and the Council of Economic Advisers a report containing his estimate of the number of standard housing units produced in the preceding year, the number of such units produced for low and moderate income families, his assessment of whether the 10-year housing goal is being met, his recommendation of the current annual goal, and his recommendations of the legislative and administrative actions required to achieve the 10-year goal.

TITLE XIV—MISCELLANEOUS

Section 1401. Model cities

Subsection (a) amends section 111(a) of the Demonstration Cities and Metropolitan Development Act of 1966 to authorize the appropriation of $12 million for the purpose of planning and technical assistance for the fiscal year 1969. (Existing law authorizes funds for this purpose only through the fiscal year 1968.)

Subsection (b) amends section 111(b) of the 1966 act to authorize the appropriation of $1 billion for the demonstration cities program for the fiscal year 1970. (Existing law authorizes funds for this program only through the fiscal year 1969.)

Subsection (c) amends section 111(c) of the 1966 act to provide that any amounts authorized but not appropriated for any fiscal year may be appropriated for any succeeding fiscal year through the fiscal year 1970.

Section 1402. Urban renewal demonstration grant program

This section amends section 314 of the Housing Act of 1954 to provide that demonstration grants may be made thereunder to nonprofit organizations as well as to public bodies. It also increases from 66⅔ to 90 percent of cost the maximum amount of such a grant, and increases from $10 to $20 million the funds available for the program.

Section 1403. Authorization for urban information and technical assistance services program

This section amends section 906 of the Demonstration Cities and Metropolitan Development Act of 1966 to authorize the appropriation of $5 million for the fiscal year 1969 and $15 million for the fiscal year 1970 for the urban information and technical assistance services program under title IX of that act. It also provides that any amounts authorized but not appropriated for any fiscal year may be appropriated for any succeeding fiscal year through the fiscal year 1970.

Section 1404. Advances in technology in housing and urban development

This section amends section 1010 of the Demonstration Cities and Metropolitan Development Act of 1966 to authorize the appropriation of such sums as may be necessary for that program beginning with the fiscal year 1969, and to permit research contracts under the program to be made for periods of up to 3 instead of 2 years.

Section 1405. College housing

This section extensively amends sections 401 and 404(b) of the Housing Act of 1950 to provide that the Secretary of HUD, in addition to making loans as presently provided for to an educational institution for the construction of facilities under the college housing program or making loans to such an institution for the purchase of existing facilities as newly provided for by the bill, may make annual grants to such an institution (separately or in combination with loans) for the purpose of reducing the institution's cost of borrowing from other sources. These grants are to be made under contracts for periods of up to 40 years, each grant being equal to the difference between the actual average annual debt service required to be paid as a cost of borrowing from other sources and the average annual debt service which would be required under a college housing loan at the interest rate established for such loans under title IV of the 1950 act. The aggregate amount of contracts for these grants could not exceed the amount authorized in appropriation acts, and could not exceed $10 million initially or $20 million after June 30, 1969.

Section 1406. Housing for the elderly

Subsection (a) amends section 202(a) of the Housing Act of 1959 to make limited profit sponsors (along with private nonprofit corporations, consumer cooperatives, and public bodies and agencies) eligible for loans to provide housing and related facilities for elderly or handicapped families thereunder.

Subsection (b) amends section 202(c)(3) of the 1959 act to provide that a waiver of the applicable labor standards provisions (Davis-Bacon Act) will be permitted only where the persons involved donate their services without any compensation. (Existing law permits this waiver where such persons donate their services without full compensation.)

Section 1407. Federal-State training programs

This section amends title VIII of the Housing Act of 1964 to expand the Federal-State training program to permit grants to States for training subprofessional (as well as professional) persons to be employed in the field of housing and community development by private nonprofit (as well as public) organizations. It also makes Guam, American Samoa, and the Trust Territory of the Pacific Islands eligible for these grants.

Section 1408. Additional Assistant Secretary of Housing and Urban Development

This section amends section 4(a) of the Department of Housing and Urban Development Act and section 5313 of title 5, United States Code, to increase from five to six the number of Assistant Secretaries in the Department of HUD.

Section 1409. International housing

This section amends section 604 of the Housing Act of 1957 to clarify the authority of the Secretary of HUD to exchange data with foreign countries in the field of housing and urban planning and development, to employ private citizens in an advisory capacity in connection with international meetings, and to accept (from international organizations, foreign countries, and private nonprofit foundations) funds, services, facilities, materials, and other donations.

Section 1410. Low-rent public housing—corporate status

This section amends the United States Housing Act of 1937 to eliminate the provisions which presently confer corporate status upon the public housing entity in the Department of HUD, and to vest directly in the Secretary the necessary functions, powers, and duties for the low-rent public housing program. It also permits the retirement and return to the Treasury of the $1 million capital stock of such entity.

Section 1411. Eligibility for rent supplement payments

This section extends eligibility to participate in the rent supplement program under section 101 of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965 to two projects in New York City which are presently ineligible for rent supplement assistance because of the early date of their approval for mortgage insurance.

Section 1412. Consolidation of low-rent public housing projects in the District of Columbia

This section allows the National Capital Housing Authority to consolidate the operating income and expense accounts for certain low-rent housing, built in the District of Columbia before the enactment of the United States Housing Act of 1937, into its annual contributions contracts covering projects built with assistance under the 1937 act.

Section 1413. Urban renewal project in Garden City, Mich.

This section authorizes the inclusion as a local grant-in-aid, toward the Cherry Hill urban renewal project in Garden City, Mich., of local expenditures made in connection with the construction of the Florence Primary School notwithstanding the date of commencement of such construction.

Section 1414. Urban renewal project in Sacramento, Calif.

This section authorizes the inclusion as a local grant-in-aid, toward the Capitol Mall Riverfront urban renewal project in Sacramento, Calif., of local expenditures made in connection with the construction of a storm drainage system notwithstanding the date of commencement of such construction.

Section 1415. Self-help studies

This section amends section 207 of the Housing Act of 1961 to add the study of self-help in low-income housing construction, rehabilitation, and maintenance to the matters covered by that section's low-income housing demonstration program, and requires the Secretary of HUD to report on this aspect of the study within 1 year.

Section 1416. Earthquake study

This section amends section 5 of the Southeast Hurricane Disaster Relief Act of 1965 to extend, from October 31, 1968, to June 30, 1969, the date on which the Secretary must report on earthquake insurance under that act.

Section 1417. Home Owners' Loan Act of 1933

ISSUANCE OF CERTIFICATES OF DEPOSIT AND OTHER INSTRUMENTS BY SAVINGS AND LOAN ASSOCIATIONS

Subsection (a) of this section amends section 5(b) of the Home Owners' Loan Act of 1933 to allow the use of such terms as "savings deposits" with reference to accounts in Federal savings and loan associations. It also empowers such associations to accept deposits for fixed periods of time and to issue certificates of deposit in evidence thereof. All of these accounts would be insured (subject to the statutory limitation, now $15,000, on such insurance) by the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation. In the event of insolvency all such accounts would be entitled to the same priority. The actual implementation of these new powers by any given association would be subject to its charter and to the regulations of the Board. Likewise subject to the charter and regulations, holders of any such accounts as well as obligors of an association would be voting members of the association.

Demand deposits are prohibited. Payment of withdrawals would be subject to the provisions of the charter of the association and the regulations of the Board, but any association which failed to pay withdrawals when due could be placed in conservatorship or receivership by the Board and would in any event have to follow a plan approved by the Board in any delayed payment of withdrawals.

The existing authority of associations to borrow money is clarified, and they are expressly authorized to give security and to issue notes, bonds, debentures, and other obligations and securities (except capital stock), but only to such extent that the Board may authorize by regulation or advice in writing. Such notes, bonds, debentures, and other obligations and securities would not be insured or eligible for insurance under title IV of the National Housing Act.

AUTHORITY OF SAVINGS AND LOAN ASSOCIATIONS TO INVEST IN DEPOSITS OR ACCOUNTS OF INSURED BANKS

Subsection (b) makes a technical amendment to section 5(c) to make it consistent with section 5(b) as amended by the preceding subsection. It also expressly authorizes investment by Federal savings and loan associations in time deposits, certificates, or accounts of any bank the deposits of which are insured by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation.

ADDITIONAL LENDING POWERS

Subsection (c) adds a new paragraph to section 5(c) which, subject to a limitation of $5,000 on any one loan, and subject to such prohibitions, limitations, and conditions as the Board may by regulation prescribe, authorizes loans for the repair, equipment, alteration, or or improvement of any real property, including the construction of new structures related to residential use of the property, and loans for the purpose of mobile home financing.

LOANS SECURED BY COLLATERAL ELIGIBLE FOR DIRECT INVESTMENT

Subsection (d) adds a new papragraph at the end of section 5(c) authorizing any Federal association to invest in loans, or interests in loans secured by loans, obligations, or investments in which it has any statutory authority to invest directly.

Section 1418. Federal Home Loan Bank Act

This section amends section 12 of the Federal Home Loan Bank Act to permit Federal home loan banks, subject to the regulations of the Board, to invest in housing project loans or interests therein having the benefit of any guaranty under section 221 of the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961. The section also authorizes investments in loans or interests therein having the benefit of any guaranty under section 224 of the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961. The latter section relates to guaranties of loan investments in pilot or demonstration private housing projects, credit institutions furnishing home mortgage financing, lower income housing projects, and certain other housing investments in Latin America of types intended to foster the development of local capital-generating enterprises. This section is not intended to confer any investment authority on Federal savings and loan associations or any other members of Federal home loan banks that they would not have in the absence of this section.

Section 1419. Technical amendments

This section makes technical amendments in section 110 of the Housing Act of 1949 (with respect to historical preservation of property and air rights development), section 1101(c)(3) of the National Housing Act (with respect to the amortization period for group practice facilities mortgages), section 213(o) of the National Housing Act (with respect to investments of money in the management fund), section 810 of the National Housing Act (with respect to individual mortgagors under the military housing program), and section 220(d)(2)(B) of the National Housing Act (with respect to maximum mortgage amounts in case of certain restricted noncorporate mortgagors).

CHANGES IN EXISTING LAW MADE BY THE BILL, AS REPORTED

In compliance with clause 3 of rule XIII of the Rules of the House of Representatives, changes in existing law made by the bill, as reported, are shown as follows (existing law proposed to be omitted is enclosed in black brackets, new matter is printed in italic, existing law in which no change is proposed is shown in roman):

NATIONAL HOUSING ACT

[Public Law 479, 73d Congress, 48 Stat. 1246, 12 U.S.C. 1701 et seq.]

AN ACT To encourage improvement in housing standards and conditions, to provide a system of mutual mortgage insurance, and for other purposes

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That this Act may be cited as the "National Housing Act."

INSURANCE OF FINANCIAL INSTITUTIONS

(b) No insurance shall be granted under this section to any such financial institution with respect to any obligation representing any such loan, advance of credit, or purchase by it (1) if the amount of such loan, advance of credit, or purchase exceeds [$3,500] $5,000; (2) if such obligation has a maturity in excess of three years and thirty-two days, except that the Secretary may increase such maximum limitation to [five] seven years and thirty-two days if he determines such increase to be in the public interest after giving consideration to the general effect of such increase upon borrowers, the building industry, and the general economy, and such maturity limitation shall not apply if such loan, advance of credit, or purchase is for the purpose of financing the construction of a new structure for use in whole or in part for agricultural purposes; or (3) unless the obligation bears such interest, has such maturity, and contains such other terms, conditions, and restrictions as the Secretary shall prescribe, in order to make credit available for the purposes of this title: Provided, That any such obligation with respect to which insurance is granted under this section on or after sixty days from the date of the enactment of this proviso shall bear interest, and insurance premium charges, not exceeding (A) an amount with respect to so much of the net proceeds thereof as does not exceed $2,500, equivalent to [$5] $5.50 discount per $100 of original face amount of a one-year note payable in equal monthly installments, plus (B) an amount, with respect to any portion of the net proceeds thereof in excess of $2,500, equivalent to [$4] $4.50 discount per $100 of original face amount of such a note: Provided further, That the amounts referred to in clauses (A) and (B) of the preceding proviso, when correctly based on tables of calculations issued by the Secretary or adjusted to eliminate minor errors in computation in accordance with requirements of the Secretary, shall be deemed to comply with such proviso: Provided further, That insurance may be granted to any such financial institution with respect to any obligation not in excess of $15,000 nor an average amount of $2,500 per family unit and having a maturity not in excess of seven years and thirty-two days representing any such loan, advance of credit, or purchase made by it if such loan, advance of credit, or purchase is made for the purpose of financing the alteration, repair, improvement, or conversion of an existing structure used or to be used as an apartment house or a dwelling for two or more families: Provided further, That any obligation with respect to which insurance is granted under this section on or after July 1, 1939, may be refinanced and extended in accordance with such terms and conditions as the Secretary may prescribe, but in no event for an additional amount or term in excess of the maximum provided for in this subsection.

TITLE II—MORTGAGE INSURANCE

DEFINITIONS

SEC. 201. As used in section 203 of this title—

(a) The term "mortgage" means a first mortgage on real estate, in fee simple, or on a leasehold (1) under a lease for not less than ninety-nine years which is renewable or (2) under a lease having a period of not less than fifty years to run from the date the mortgage was executed; and the term "first mortgage" means such classes of first liens as are commonly given to secure advances on, or the unpaid purchase price of, real estate, under the laws of the State in which the real estate is located, together with the credit instruments, if any, secured thereby.

(b) The term "mortgagee" includes the original lender under a mortgage, and his successors and assigns approved by the Secretary; and the term "mortgagor" includes the original borrower under a mortgage and his successors and assigns.

(c) The term "maturity date" means the date on which the mortgage indebtedness would be extinguished if paid in accordance with periodic payments provided for in the mortgage.

(d) The term "State" includes the several States and Puerto Rico, the District of Columbia, Guam, and the Virgin Islands.

* * * * * * *

INSURANCE OF MORTGAGES

SEC. 203. (a) The Secretary is authorized, upon application by the mortgagee, to insure as hereinafter provided any mortgage offered to him which is eligible for insurance as hereinafter provided and, upon such terms as the Secretary may prescribe, to make commitments for the insuring of such mortgages prior to the date of their execution or disbursement thereon.

* * * * * * *

(i) The Secretary is authorized to insure under this section any mortgage meeting the requirements of subsection (b) of this section, except as modified by this subsection, which involves a principal obligation not in excess of [$12,500] $15,000 and not in excess of 97 per centum (or, in any case where the dwelling is not approved for mortgage insurance prior to the beginning of construction, unless the construction of the dwelling was completed more than one year prior to the application for mortgage insurance or the dwelling was approved for guaranty, insurance, or direct loan under chapter 37 of title 38, United States Code, prior to the beginning of construction, 90 per centum) of the appraised value of a property located in an area where the Secretary finds it is not practicable to obtain conformity with many of the requirements essential to the insurance of mortgages on housing in built-up urban areas, upon which there is located a dwelling designed principally for a single-family residence: Provided, That if the mortgagor is not the occupant of the property at the time of insurance, the principal obligation of the mortgage shall not exceed 85 per centum of the appraised value of the property: Provided further, That the Secretary finds that the property with respect to which the mortgage is executed is an acceptable risk, giving consideration to the need for providing adequate housing for families of low and moderate income particularly in suburban and outlying areas or small communities: Provided further, That under the foregoing provisions of this subsection the Secretary is authorized to insure any mortgage issued with respect to a farm home on a plot of land five or more acres in size adjacent to a public highway.

* * * * * * *

[(l) The Secretary is authorized to insure under this section any mortgage meeting the requirements of this section, other than the requirement in subsection (c) relating to economic soundness, if he determines that (1) the dwelling covered by the mortgage is situated in an area in which rioting or other civil disorders have occurred or are threatened, (2) as a result of such actual or threatened rioting or other disorders the property with respect to which the mortgage is executed cannot meet the normal requirements with respect to economic soundness, and (3) such property is an acceptable risk giving due consideration to the need for providing adequate housing for families of low and moderate income in such area.]

* * * * * * *

LABOR STANDARDS

SEC. 212. (a) The Secretary shall not insure under section 207 or section 210 of this title, or under section 608 of title VI, pursuant to any application for insurance filed subsequent to the effective date of this section, or under section 213 of this title, or under title VII pursuant to any application filed subsequent to sixty days after the date of enactment of the Housing Act of 1950, or under section 803 or 810 of title VIII, or under section 908 of title IX, a mortgage or investment which covers property on which there is or is to be located a dwelling or dwellings, or a housing project, the construction of which was or is to be commenced subsequent to such date, unless the principal contractor files a certificate or certificates (at such times, in course of construction or otherwise, as the Secretary may prescribe) certifying that the laborers and mechanics employed in the construction of the dwelling or dwellings or the housing project involved have been paid not less than the wages prevailing in the locality in which the work was performed for the corresponding classes of laborers and mechanics employed on construction of a similar character, as determined by the Secretary of Labor in accordance with the Davis-Bacon Act, as amended (40 U.S.C. 276a—276a–5), prior to the beginning of construction and after the date of the filing of the application for insurance. The provisions of this section shall also apply to the insurance of any loan or mortgage under section 220 or section 233 which covers property on which there is located a dwelling or dwellings designed principally for residential use for twelve or more families. The provisions of this section shall apply to the insurance under section 221 of any mortgage described in subsection (d)(3) or (d)(4) and (deeming the term "construction" as used in the first sentence of this subsection to mean rehabilitation) of any mortgate described in subsection (h)(1) or section 235 (j)(1) which covers property on which there is located a dwelling or dwellings designed principally for residential use for more than eight families; except that compliance with such provisions may be waived by the Secretary—

(1) with respect to mortgages described in such subsection (d)(3) or (d)(4) in cases or classes of cases where laborers or mechanics (not otherwise employed at any time in the construction of the project) voluntarily donate their services without compensation for the purpose of lowering their housing costs in a cooperative housing project and the Secretary determines that any amounts saved thereby are fully credited to the cooperative undertaking the construction, and

(2) with respect to mortgages described in such subsection (h)(1) or section 235 (j)(1), in cases or classes of cases where prospective owners of such dwellings voluntarily donate their services without compensation, or other persons (not otherwise employed at any time in the rehabilitation of the property) voluntarily donate their services without compensation, and the Secretary determines that any amounts saved thereby are fully credited to the nonprofit organization undertaking the rehabilitation.

The provisions of this section shall also apply to the insurance of any mortgage under section 231 [or 232], 232, or 236 except that compliance with such provisions may be waived by the Secretary in cases or classes of cases where laborers or mechanics, not otherwise employed at any time on the project voluntarily donate their services without full compensation for the purpose of lowering the costs of construction and the Secretary determines that any amounts thereby saved are fully credited to the nonprofit corporation, association, or other organization undertaking the construction. The provisions of this section shall also apply to the insurance of any mortgage under section 234(d). The provisions of this section shall also apply to the insurance of any mortgage under section 242, except that compliance with such provisions may be waived by the Secretary in cases or classes of cases where laborers or mechanics, not otherwise employed at any time on the project, voluntarily donate their services without compensation for the purpose of lowering the costs of construction and the Secretary determines that any amounts thereby saved are fully credited to the nonprofit corporation or association undertaking the construction; and each laborer or mechanic employed on any facility covered by a mortgage insured under section 242 shall receive compensation at a rate not less than one and one-half times hs basic rate of pay for all hours worked in any workweek in excess of eight hours in any workday or forty hours in the workweek, as the case may be. The provisions of this section shall also apply to insurance under title X with respect to laborers and mechanics employed in land development financed with the proceeds of any mortgage insured under that title. The provisions of this section shall also apply to the insurance of any mortgage under title XI; and each laborer or mechanic employed on any facility covered by a mortgage insured under such title shall receive compensation at a rate not less than one and one-half times his basic rate of pay for all hours worked in any workweek in excess of eight hours in any workday or forty hours in the workweek, as the case may be.

COOPERATIVE HOUSING INSURANCE

* * * * * * *

(j)(1) With respect to any property covered by a mortgage insured under this section (or any cooperative housing project covered by a mortgage insured under section 207 as in effect prior to the enactment of the Housing Act of 1950), the Secretary is authorized, upon such terms and conditions as he may prescribe, to make commitments to insure and to insure supplementary cooperative loans (including advances during construction or improvement) made by financial institutions approved by the Secretary. The Secretary is further authorized to make commitments to insure and to insure supplementary cooperative loans (including advances during construction or improvement) with respect to any property purchased from the Federal Government by a nonprofit corporation or trust of the character described in paragraph (1) of subsection (a), if the property is covered by an uninsured mortgage representing a part of the purchase price. As used in this subsection, "supplementary cooperative loan" means a loan, advance of credit, or purchase of an obligation representing a loan or advance of credit made for the purpose of financing any of the following:

(A) Improvements or repairs of the property covered by such mortgage;

(B) Community facilities necessary to serve the occupants of the property; or

(C) Cooperative purchases and resales of memberships in order to provide necessary refinancing for resales of memberships which involve increases in equity; but in such resales by the cooperative the downpayments by the new members shall not be less than those made on the original sales of such memberships.

(2) To be eligible for insurance under this subsection, a supplementary cooperative loan shall—

(A) be limited to an amount which, when added to the outstanding mortgage indebtedness on the property, creates a total outstanding indebtedness which does not exceed the original principal obligation of the mortgage; except that, in the case of improvements or additional community facilities, the outstanding indebtedness may be increased by an amount equal to 97 per centum of the amount which the Secretary estimates will be the value of such improvements or facilities, and the new outstanding indebtedness may exceed the original principal obligation of the mortgage if such new outstanding indebtedness does not exceed the limitations imposed by subsection (b);

(B) have a maturity satisfactory to the Secretary but not to exceed the remaining term of the mortgage; except that, in the case of repairs or improvements to a property covered by an uninsured mortgage dated more than twenty years prior to the date of the commitment to insure, of such magnitude that the Secretary deems them to be a major rehabilitation or modernization of such property, the loan may have a maturity date up to ten years in excess of the remaining term of the uninsured mortgage;

(C) be secured in such manner as the Secretary may require;

(D) contain such other terms, conditions, and restrictions as the Secretary may prescribe; and

(E) represent the obligation of a borrower of the character described in paragraph (1) of subsection (a).

* * * * * * *

(o) Notwithstanding any other provision of this Act, the Secretary is authorized to transfer funds between the Cooperative Management Housing Insurance Fund and the General Insurance Fund in such amounts and at such times as he may determine, taking into consideration the requirements of each such Fund, to assist in carrying out effectively the insurance programs for which such Funds were respectively established. Moneys in the Cooperative Management Housing Insurance Fund not needed for current operations of the fund shall be deposited with the Treasurer of the United States to the credit of the Cooperative Management Housing Insurance Fund or invested in bonds or other obligations of, or in bonds or other obligations guaranteed as to principal and interest by, the United States. The Secretary may, with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury, purchase in the open market debentures which are the obligations of the Cooperative Management Housing Insurance Fund. Such purchases shall be made at a price which will provde an investment yield of not less than the yield obtainable from other investments authorized by this subsection. Debentures so purchased shall be canceled and not reissued.

REHABILITATION AND NEIGHBORHOOD CONSERVATION HOUSING INSURANCE

SEC. 220. (a) The purpose of this section is to aid in the elimination of slums and blighted conditions and the prevention of the deterioration of residential property by supplementing the insurance of mortgages under sections 203 and 207 of this title with a system of loan and mortgage insurance designed to assist the financing required for the rehabilitation of existing dwelling accommodations and the construction of new dwelling accommodations where such dwelling accommodations are located in an area referred to in paragraph (1) of subsection (d) of this section.

* * * * * * *

(d) To be eligible for insurance under this section a mortgage shal meet the following conditions:

(1) The mortgaged property shall—

(A) be located in (i) the area of a slum clearance and urban redevelopment project covered by a Federal-aid contract executed or a prior approval granted, pursuant to title I of the Housing Act of 1949 before the effective date of the Housing Act of 1954, or (ii) an urban renewal area (as defined in title I of the Housing Act of 1949, as amended) in a community respecting which the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development has made the determination provided for by section 101(c) of the Housing Act of 1949, as amended, or (iii) the area of an urban renewal project assisted under section 111 of the Housing Act of 1949, as amended, or (iv) an area in which a program of concentrated code enforcement activities is being carried out pursuant to section 117 of the Housing Act of 1949: Provided, That, in the case of an area within the purview of clause (i) or (ii) of this subparagraph, a redevelopment plan or an urban renewal plan (as defined in title I of the Housing Act of 1949, as amended), as the case may be, has been approved for such area by the governing body of the locality involved and by the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development and the Secretary has determined that such plan conforms to a general plan for the locality as a whole and that there exist the necessary authority and financial capacity to assure the completion of such redevelopment or urban renewal plan: And provided further, That, in the case of an area within the purview of clause (iii) of this subparagraph, an urban renewal plan (as required for projects assisted under such section 111) has been approved for such area by such governing body and by the Secretary, and the Secretary has determined that such plan conforms to definite local objectives respecting appropriate land uses, improved traffic, public transportation, public utilities, recreational and community facilities, and other public improvements, and that there exist the necessary authority and financial capacity to assure the completion of such urban renewal plan, and

(B) meet such standards and conditions as the Secretary shall prescribe to establish the acceptability of such property for mortgage insurance under this section.

(2) The mortgaged property shall be held by—

(A) a mortgagor approved by the Secretary, and the Secretary may in his discretion require such mortgagor to be regulated or restricted as to rents or sales, charges, capital structure, rate of return and methods of operation, and for such purpose the Secretary may make such contracts with and acquire for not to exceed $100 stock or interest in any such mortgagor as the Secretary may deem necessary to render effective such restriction or regulations. Such stock or interest shall be paid for out of the General Insurance Fund and shall be redeemed by the mortgagor at par upon the termination of all obligations of the Secretary under the insurance; or

(B) by Federal or State instrumentalities, municipal corporate instrumentalities of one or more States, or limited dividend or redevelopment or housing [corporations restricted by] corporations or other legal entities restricted by or under Federal or State laws or regulations of State banking or insurance departments as to rents, charges, capital structure, rate of return, or methods of operation.

(3) The mortgage shall—

(A)(i) * * *

* * * * * * *

(B)(i) not exceed $30,000,000 or, if executed by a mortgagor coming within the provisions of paragraph (2)(B) of this subsection (d) not exceed $50,000,000; and

(ii) not exceed 90 per centum of the amount which the Secretary estimates will be the replacement cost of the property or project when the proposed improvements are completed (the replacement cost of the property or project may include the land, the proposed physical improvements, utilities within the boundaries of the property or project, architect's fees, taxes, and interest during construction, and other miscellaneous charges incident to construction and approved by the Secretary, and shall include an allowance for builder's and sponsor's profit and risk of 10 per centum of all of the foregoing items except the land unless the Secretary, after certification that such allowance is unreasonable, shall by regulation prescribe a lesser percentage): Provided, That in the case of properties other than new construction, the foregoing limitations upon the amount of the mortgage shall be based upon the sum of the estimated cost of repair and rehabilitation and the Secretary's estimate of the value of the property before repair and rehabilitation rather than upon the Secretary's estimate of the replacement cost: Provided further, That in no case involving refinancing shall such mortgage exceed such estimated cost of repair and rehabilitation and the amount (as determined by the Secretary) required to refinance existing indebtedness secured by the property or project: Provided further, That the mortgage may involve the financing of the purchase of property which has been rehabilitated by a local public agency with Federal assistance pursuant to section 110(c)(8) of the Housing Act of 1949, and, in such case, the foregiong limitations upon the amount of the mortgage shall be based upon the appraised value of the property as of the date the mortgage is accepted for insurance;

(d) To be eligible for insurance under this section, a mortgage shall—

(1) have been made to and be held by a mortgagee approved by the Secretary as responsible and able to service the mortgage properly;

(2) be secured by property upon which there is located a dwelling conforming to applicable standards prescribed by the Secretary under subsection (f) of this section, and meeting the requirements of all State laws, or local ordinances or regulations, relating to the public health or safety, zoning, or otherwise, which may be applicable thereto, and shall involve a principal obligation (including such initial service charges, appraisal, inspection, and other fees as the Secretary shall approve) in an amount (A) not to exceed (i) [$12,500] $15,000 (or $17,500, if the mortgagor's family includes five or more persons) in the case of a property upon which there is located a dwelling designed principally for a single-family residence, (ii) $20,000 in the case of a property upon which there is located a dwelling designed principally for a two-family residence, (iii) $27,000 in the case of a property upon which there is located a dwelling designed principally for a three-family residence, or (iv) $33,000 in the case of a property upon which there is located a dwelling designed principally for a four-family residence: Provided, That a mortgage secured by property upon which there is located a dwelling designed principally for a two-, three-, or four-family residence shall not be insured under this section except in the case of a dwelling for occupancy by [a displaced family] the mortgagor: Provided further, That the Secretary may increase the foregoing amounts to not to exceed [$15,000] $17,500 (or $20,000 if the mortgagor's family includes five or more persons), $25,000, $32,000, and $38,000, respectively, in any geographical area where he finds that cost levels so require; and (B) not to exceed the appraised value of the property (as of the date the mortgage is accepted for insurance): Provided, That (i) if the mortgagor is the owner and an occupant of the property at the time of insurance, (1) in the case of a displaced family, he shall have paid on account of the property at least $200 in the case of a single-family dwelling, $400 in the case of a two-family dwelling, $600 in the case of a three-family dwelling,and $800 in the case of a four-family dwelling, or (2) in the case of any other family, he shall have paid on account of the property at least 3 per centum of the Secretary's estimate of its acquisition cost, in cash or its equivalent; which amount in either instance may include amounts to cover settlement costs and initial payments for taxes, hazard insurance, mortgage insurance premium, and other prepaid expenses; or (ii) in the case of repair and rehabilitation, the amount of the mortgage shall not exceed the sum of the estimated cost of repair and rehabilitation and the Secretary's estimate of the value of the property before repair and rehabilitation, except that in no case involving refinancing shall such mortgage exceed such estimated cost of repair and rehabilitation and the amount (as determined by the Secretary) required to refinance existing indebtedness secured by the property: Provided further, That nothing contained herein shall preclude the Secretary from issuing a commitment to insure, and insuring a mortgage pursuant thereto, where the mortgagor is not the owner and an occupant of the property, if the property is to be built or acquired and repaired or rehabilitated for sale, and the insured mortgage financing is required to facilitate the construction, or the repair or rehabilitation, of the dwelling and to provide financing pending the subsequent sale thereof to a qualified owner who is also an occupant thereof, but in such instances the mortgage shall not exceed 85 per centum of the appraised value: Provided further, That, if the mortgagor is the owner and an occupant of the property, such mortgagor shall to the maximum extent feasible be given the opportunity to contribute the value of his labor as equity in such dwelling; or

(3) if executed by a mortgagor which is a public body or agency (and which certifies that it is not receiving financial assistance from the United States exclusively pursuant to the United States Housing Act of 1937), a cooperative (including an investor-sponsor who meets such requirements as the Secretary may impose to assure that the consumer interest is protected), or a limited dividend corporation (as defined by the Secretary), or a private nonprofit corporation or association, or other mortgagor approved by the Secretary, and regulated or supervised under Federal or State laws or by political subdivisions of States, or agencies thereof, or by the Secretary under a regulatory agreement or otherwise, as to rents, charges, and methods of operation, in such form and in such manner as in the opinion of the Secretary will effectuate the purposes of this section—

(iii) not exceed (1) in the case of new construction, the amount which the Secretary estimates will be the replacement cost of the property or project when the proposed improvements are completed (the replacement cost may include the land, the proposed physical improvements, utilities within the boundaries of the land, architect's fees, taxes, interest during construction, and other miscellaneous charges incident to construction and approved by the Secretary), or (2) in the case of repair and rehabilitation, the sum of the estimated cost of repair and rehabilitation and the Secretary's estimate of the value of the property before repair and rehabilitation: Provided, That in no case involving refinancing shall such mortgage exceed such estimated cost of repair and rehabilitation and the amount (as determined by the Secretary) required to refinance existing indebtedness secured by the property or project: Provided further, That the mortgage may involve the financing of the purchase of property which has been rehabilitated by a local public agency with Federal assistance pursuant to section 110(c)(8) of the Housing Act of 1949, and, in such case, the amount of the mortgage shall not exceed the appraised value of the property as of the date the mortgage is accepted for insurance: Provided further, That in the case of any mortgagor other than a nonprofit corporation or association, cooperative (including an investor-sponsor), or public body, or a mortgagor meeting the special requirements of subsection (e)(1), the amount of the mortgage shall not exceed 90 per centum of the amount otherwise authorized under this section: Provided further, That such property or project, when constructed, or repaired and rehabilitated, shall be for use as a rental or cooperative project, and low and moderate income families or displaced families shall be eligible for occupancy in accordance with such regulations and procedures as may be prescribed by the Secretary and the Secretary may adopt such requirements as he determines to be desirable regarding consultation with local public officials where such consultation is appropriate by reason of the relationship of such project to projects under other local programs; or

(f) The property or project shall comply with such standards and conditions as the Secretary may prescribe to establish the acceptability of such property for mortgage insurance and may include such commercial and community facilities as the Secretary deems adequate to serve the occupants: Provided, That in the case of any such property or project located in an urban renewal area, the provisions of section 220(d)(3)(B)(iv) shall apply with respect to the nondwelling facilities which may be included in the mortgage [if the mortgagor waives the right to receive dividends on its equity investment in the portion thereof devoted to community and shopping facilities.]: Provided further, That, in the case of a mortgage which bears interest at the below-market interest rate prescribed in the proviso of subsection (d)(5), the provisions of section 220(d)(3)(B)(iv) shall only apply if the mortgagor waives the right to receive dividends on its equity investment in the portion thereof devoted to commercial facilities.

A property or project covered by a mortgage insured under the provisions of subsection (d)(3) or (d)(4) shall include five or more family units. The Secretary is authorized to adopt such procedures and requirements as he determines are desirable to assure that the dwelling accomodations provided under this section are available to displaced families. Notwithstanding any provision of this Act, the Secretary, in order to assist further the provision of housing for low and moderate income families, in his discretion and under such conditions as he may prescribe, may insure a mortgage which meets the requirements of subsection (d)(3) of this section as in effect after the date of enactment of the Housing Act of 1961, or which meets the requirements of subsection (h), (i), or (j), with no premium charge, with a reduced premium charge, or with a premium charge for such period or periods during the time the insurance is in effect as the Secretary may determine, and there is hereby authorized to be appropriated, out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, such amounts as may be necessary to reimburse the General Insurance Fund for any net losses in connection with such insurance. No mortgage shall be insured under this section after October 1, 1969, except pursuant to a commitment to insure before that date, or except a mortgage covering property which the Secretary finds will assist in the provision of housing for displaced families. Any person who is sixty-two years of age or over, or who is a handicapped person within the meaning of section 202 of the Housing Act of 1959. shall be deemed to be a family within the meaning of the terms "family" and "families" as those terms are used in this section. Low- and moderate-income persons who are less than 62 years of age shall be eligible for occupancy of dwelling units in a project financed with a mortgage insured under subsection (d)(3), but not more than 10 per centum of the dwelling units in any such project shall be available for occupancy by such persons.

As used in this section the terms "displaced family" and "displaced families" shall mean a family or families displaced from an urban renewal area, or as a result of governmental action, or as a result of a major disaster as determined by the President pursuant to the Act entitled "An Act to authorize Federal assistance to States and local governments in major disasters, and for other purposes", approved September 30, 1950, as amended (42 U.S.C. 1855–1855g).

(g) The mortgagee shall be entitled to receive the benefits of the insurance as hereinafter provided—

(1) as to mortgages meeting the requirements of paragraph (2) of subsection (d) of this section [or] paragraph (5) of subsection (h) of this section, or paragraph (2) of subsection (i) of this section as provided in section 204(a) of this Act with respect to mortgages insured under section 203, and the provisions of subsections (b), (c), (d), (e), (f), (g), (h), (j), and (k) of section 204 of this Act shall be applicable to such mortgages insured under this section, except that all references therein to the Mutual Mortgage Insurance Fund or the Fund shall be construed to refer to the General Insurance Fund and all references therein to sectiou 203 shall be construed to refer to this section; or

(2) as to mortgages meeting the requirements of paragraph (3) or (4) of subsection (d) of this section, [or] paragraph (1) of subsection (h) of this section, or paragraph (2) of subsection (j), as provided in sectiou 207(g) of this Act with respect to mortgages insured under said section 207, and the provisions of subsections (h), (i), (j), (k), and (l) of section 207 of this Act shall be applicable to such mortgages insured under this section; or

* * * * * * *

(h)(1) In addition to mortgages insured under the other provisions of this section, the Secretary is authorized, upon application by the mortgagee, to insure under this subsection as hereinafter provided any mortgage (including advances under such mortgage during rehabilitation) which is executed by a nonprofit organization to finance the purchase and rehabilitation of deteriorating or substandard housing for subsequent resale to low-income home purchasers and, upon such terms and conditions as the Secretary may prescribe, to make commitments for the insurance of such mortgages prior to the date of their execution or disbursement thereon.

(2) To be eligible for insurance under paragraph (1) of this subsection, a mortgage shall—

[(A) be executed by a private nonprofit corporation or association approved for purposes of this subsection by the Secretary, for the purpose of financing the purchase of property (comprising one or more tracts or parcels, whether or not contiguous) upon which there is located deteriorating or substandard housing consisting of five or more single-family dwellings of detached, semidetached, or row construction and of rehabilitating such dwellings with a view to subsequent resale as hereinafter provided;]

(A) be executed by a private nonprofit corporation or association, approved by the Secretary, for financing the purchase and rehabilitation (with the intention of subsequent resale) of property comprising one or more tracts or parcels, whether or not contiguous, upon which there is located deteriorating or substandard housing consisting of (i) four or more single-family dwellings of detached, semidetached, or row construction, or (ii) four or more one-family units in a structure or structures for which a plan of family unit ownership approved by the Secretary is established;

(B) be secured by the property which is to be purchased and rehabilitated with the proceeds thereof;

(C) be in a principal amount not exceeding the appraised value of the property at the time of its purchase under the mortgage plus the estimated cost of the rehabilitation;

(D) bear interest (exclusive of premium charges for insurance and service charge, if any) at the rate in effect under the proviso in subsection (d)(5) at the time of execution;

(E) provide for complete amortization (subject to paragraph (5)(E)) by periodic payments within such term as the Secretary may prescribe; and

(F) provide for the release of individual single family dwellings from the lien of the mortgage upon the sale of the rehabilitated dwellings in accordance with paragraph (5).

(4) The aggregate principal balance of all mortgages insured under paragraph (1) and outstanding at any one time shall not exceed [$20,000,000] $50,000,000.

(5)(A) No mortgage shall be insured under paragraph (1) unless the mortgagor enters into an agreement (in form and substance satisfactory to the Secretary) that it will offer to sell the dwellings involved, upon completion of their rehabilitation, to individuals or families (hereinafter referred to as "low-income purchasers") determined by the Secretary to have incomes below the maximum amount specified (with respect to the area involved) in section 101(c)(1) of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965.

(B) The Secretary is authorized to insure under this paragraph mortgages executed to finance the sale of individual dwellings to low-income purchasers as provided in subparagraph (A). Any such mortgage shall—

(i) be in a principal amount equal to that portion of the unpaid balance of the principal mortgage covering the property (insured under paragraph (1)) which is allocable to the individual dwelling involved; and

(ii) bear interest at the same rate as the principal mortgage or such lower rate, not less than 1 per centum, as the Secretary may prescribe if in his judgment the purchaser's income is sufficiently low to justify the lower rate, and provide for complete amortization [by periodic payments] within a term equal to the remaining term (determined without regard to subparagraph (E)) of such principal mortgage.

* * * * * * *

(6) In addition to the mortgages that may be insured under paragraphs (1) and (5), the Secretary is authorized to insure under this subsection, upon such terms and conditions as he may prescribe, mortgages which are executed by individuals or families that meet the income criteria prescribed in paragraph (5)(A) and are executed for the purpose of financing the rehabilitation or improvement of single-family dwellings of detached, semidetached, or row construction that are owned and occupied in each instance by a mortgagor who has purchased the dwelling from a nonprofit organization of the type described in this subsection. To be eligible for such insurance, a mortgage shall—

(A) be in a principal amount not exceeding the lesser of $15,000 or the sum of the estimated cost of repair and rehabilitation and the Secretary's estimate of the value of the property before repair and rehabilitation, except that in no case involving refinancing shall such mortgage exceed such estimated cost of repair and rehabilitation and the amount (as determined by the Secretary) required to refinance existing indebtedness secured by the property;

(B) bear interest (exclusive of premium charges for insurance and service charge, if any) at 3 per centum per annum or such lower rate, not less than 1 per centum, as the Secretary may prescribe if in his judgment the mortgagor's income is sufficiently low to justify the lower rate;

(C) involve a mortgagor that shall have paid on account of the property at the time of the rehabilitation such amount (which shall not be less than $200 in cash or its equivalent, but which may be applied in whole or in part toward closing costs) as the Secretary may determine to be reasonable and appropriate under the circumstances; and

(D) contain a provision that if the low-income mortgagor does not continue to occupy the property, the interest rate shall increase to the highest rate permissible under this section and the regulations of the Secretary effective at the time of commitment for insurance of the mortgage, except that the increase in interest rate shall not be applicable if the property is sold and the purchaser is (i) a nonprofit organization which has been engaged in purchasing and rehabilitating deteriorating and substandard housing with financing under a mortgage insured under paragraph (1) of this subsection, (ii) a public housing agency having jurisdiction under the United States Housing Act of 1937 over the area where the dwelling is located, or (iii) a low-income purchaser approved for the purposes of this paragraph by the Secretary.

(7) Where the Secretary has approved a plan of family unit ownership, the terms "single-family dwelling", "single-family dwellings", "individual dwelling", and "individual dwellings" shall mean a family unit or family units together with the undivided interest (or interests) in the common areas and facilities.

(8) For purposes of this subsection, the terms "single-family dwelling" and "single-family dwellings" (except for purposes of paragraph (7)) shall include a two-family dwelling which has been approved by the Secretary if one of the units is to be occupied by the owner.

(i)(1) The Secretary is authorized, with respect to any project involving a mortgage insured under subsection (d)(3) which bears interest at the below-market interest rate prescribed in the proviso of subsection (d)(5), to permit a conversion of the ownership of such project to a plan of family unit ownership. Under such plan, each family unit shall be eligible for individual ownership and provision shall be included for the sale of the family units, together with an undivided interest in the common areas and facilities which serve the project, to low or moderate income purchasers. The Secretary shall obtain such agreements as he determines to be necessary to assure continued maintenance of the common areas and facilities. Upon such sale, the family unit and the undivided interest in the common areas shall be released from the lien of the project mortgage.

(2)(A) The Secretary is authorized, upon application by the mortgagee, to insure under this subsection mortgages financing the purchase of individual family units under the plan prescribed in paragraph (1). Commitments may be issued by the Secretary for the insurance of such mortgages prior to the date of their execution or disbursement thereon, upon such terms and conditions as the Secretary may prescribe. To be eligible for such insurance, the mortgage shall—

(i) be executed by a mortgagor having an income within the limits prescribed by the Secretary for occupants of projects financed with a mortgage insured under subsection (d)(3) which bears interest at the below-market rate prescribed in the proviso of subsection (d)(5);

(ii) involve a principal obligation (including such initial service charges, and such appraisal, inspection, and other fees, as the Secretary shall approve) in an amount not to exceed the Secretary's estimate of the appraised value of the family unit, including the mortgagor's interest in the common areas and facilities, as of the date the mortgage is accepted for insurance;

(iii) bear interest at a rate determined by the Secretary (which may vary in accordance with the regulations of the Secretary promulgated pursuant to the last sentence of paragraph (4) of this subsection) but not less than the below-market rate in effect under the proviso of subsection (d)(5) at the date of the commitment for insurance; and

(iv) provide for complete amortization by periodic payments within such term as the Secretary may prescribe, but not to exceed the lesser of forty years from the beginning of amortization of the mortgage or three-quarters of the Secretary's estimate of the remaining economic life of the building improvements.

(B) The price for which the individual family unit is sold to the low or moderate income purchaser shall not exceed the appraised value of the property, as determined under subparagraph (A)(ii), except that the purchaser shall be required to pay on account of the property at the time of purchase at least such amount, in cash or its equivalent (which shall be not less than 3 per centum of such price, but which may be applied in whole or in part toward closing costs), as the Secretary may determine to be reasonable and appropriate.

(3) Upon the sale of all of the family units covered by the project mortgage, and the release of all of the family units (including the undivided interest allocable to each unit in the common areas and facilities) from the lien of the project mortgage, the insurance of the project mortgage shall be terminated and no adjusted premium charge shall be collected by the Secretary upon such termination.

(4) Any mortgage covering an individual family unit insured under this subsection shall contain a provision that, if the original mortgagor does not continue to occupy the property, the interest rate shall increase to the highest rate permissible under this section and the regulations of the Secretary effective at the time the commitment was issued for the insurance of the project mortgage; except that the requirement for an increase in interest rate shall not be applicable if the property is sold and the purchaser is (i) a nonprofit purchaser approved by the Secretary, or (ii) a low or moderate income purchaser who has an income within the limits prescribed by the Secretary for occupants of projects financed with a mortgage insured under subsection (d)(3) which bears interest at the below-market rate prescribed in the proviso of subsection (d)(5). The mortgage shall also contain a provision that, if the Secretary determines that the annual income of the original mortgagor (or a purchaser described in clause (ii) of the preceding sentence) has increased to an amount enabling payment of a greater rate of interest, the interest rate of the individual mortgage may be increased up to the highest rate permissible under the regulations of the Secretary for mortgages insured under this section effective at the time the commitment was issued for the insurance of the mortgage.

(5) For the purpose of this subsection—

(i) the term "mortgage", when used in relation to a mortgage insured under paragraph (2) of this subsection, includes a first mortgage given to secure the unpaid purchase price of a fee interest in, or a long-term lease-hold interest in, a one-family unit in a multifamily project and an undivided interest in the common areas and facilities which serve the project; and

(ii) the term "common areas and facilities" includes the land and such commercial, community, and other facilities as are approved by the Secretary.

(j)(1) The Secretary is authorized, with respect to any rental project involving a mortgage insured under subsection (d)(3) which bears interest at the below-market interest rate prescribed in the proviso of subsection (d)(5), to permit a conversion of the ownership of such project to a cooperative approved by the Secretary. Membership in such cooperative shall be made available only to those families having an income within the limits prescribed by the Secretary for occupants of projects financed with a mortgage insured under subsection (d)(3) which bears interest at such below-market rate: Provided, That families residing in the rental project at the time of its conversion to a cooperative who do not meet such income limits may be permitted to become members in the cooperative under such special terms and conditions as the Secretary may prescribe.

(2) The Secretary is authorized, upon application by the mortgagee, to insure under this subsection cooperative mortgages financing the purchase of projects meeting the requirements of paragraph (1). Commitments may be issued by the Secretary for the insurance of such mortgages prior to the date of their execution or disbursement thereon, upon such terms and conditions as the Secretary may prescribe. To be eligible for such insurance, the mortgage shall—

(i) involve a principal obligation (including such initial service charges and appraisal, inspection, and other fees as the Secretary shall approve) in an amount not exceeding the appraised value of the property for continued use as a cooperative, which value shall be based upon a mortgage amount on which the debt service can be met from the income of the property when operated on a nonprofit basis, after the payment of all operating expenses, taxes, and required reserves;

(ii) bear interest at the below-market rate prescribed in the proviso of subsection (d)(5); and

(iii) provide for complete amortization within such term as the Secretary may prescribe.

MORTGAGE INSURANCE FOR SERVICEMEN

SEC. 222. (a) The purpose of this section is to aid in the provision of housing accommodations for servicemen in the Armed Forces of the United States and their families, and servicemen in the United States Coast Guard and their families, by supplementing the insurance of mortgages under section 203 of this title with a system of mortgage insurance specially designed to assist the financing required for the construction or purchase of dwellings by those persons. As used in this section, a "serviceman" means a person to whom the Secretary of Defense (or any officer or employee designated by him), or the Secretary of Transportation (or any officer or employee designated by him), as the case may be, has issued a certificate hereunder indicating that such person requires housing, is serving on active duty in the Armed Forces of the United States or in the United States Coast Guard and has served on active duty for more than two years, but a certificate shall not be issued hereunder to any person ordered to active duty for training purposes only. The Secretary of Defense and the Secretary of Transportation, respectively, are authorized to prescribe rules and regulations governing the issuance of such certificates and may withhold issuance of more than one such certificate to a serviceman whenever in his discretion issuance is not justified due to circumstances resulting from military assignment, or, in the case of the United States Coast Guard, other assignment.

(b) To be eligible for insurance under this section a mortgage shall—

(1) meet the requirements of section 203(b) or 203(i), or 221 (d)(2), except as such requirements are modified by this section;

(2) involve a principal obligation (including such initial service charges, appraisal, inspection, and other fees as the Secretary shall approve) in an amount not to exceed $30,000, except that in the case of a mortgage meeting the requirements of section 203(i) or section 221(d)(2) such principal obligation shall not exceed the maximum limits prescribed for such section;

(3) have a principal obligation not in excess of the sum of (i) 97 per centum of $15,000 of the appraised value of the property as of the date the mortgage is accepted for insurance, (ii) 90 per centum of such value in excess of $15,000 but not in excess of $20,000, and (iii) 85 per centum of such value in excess of $20,000; and

(4) be executed by a mortgagor who at the time of application for insurance is certified as a "serviceman" and who at the time of insurance is the owner of the property and either occupies the property or certifies that his failure to do so is the result of his military assignment, or, in the case of the United States Coast Guard, other assignment.

(c) The Secretary may prescribe the manner in which a mortgage may be accepted for insurance under this section. Premiums fixed by the Secretary under section 203 with respect to, or payable during, the period of ownership by a serviceman of the property involved shall not be payable by the mortgage but shall be paid not less frequently than once each year, upon request of the Secretary to the Secretary of Defense or the Secretary of Transportation, as the case may be, from the respective appropriations available for pay and allowances of persons eligible for mortgage insurance under this section. As used herein,"the period of ownership by a serviceman" means the period, for which premiums are fixed, prior to the date that the Secretary of Defense (or any officer or employee or other person designated by him) or the Secretary of Transportation (or any officer or employee or other person designated by him), as the case may be, furnishes the Secretary with a certification that such ownership (as defined by the Secretary) has terminated.

(d) Any mortgagee under a mortgage insured under this section is entitled to the benefits of the insurance as provided in section 204(a) with respect to mortgages insured under section 203.

(e) The provisions of subsections (b), (c), (d), (e), (f), (g), (h), (j), and (k) of section 204 shall apply to mortgages insured under this section, except that as applied to those mortgages (1) all references to the "Fund," or "Mutual Mortgage Insurance Fund," shall refer to the General Insurance Fund, and (2) all references to "section 203" shall refer to this section.

(f) The Secretary is authorized to transfer to this section the insurance on any mortgage covering a single-family dwelling or a one-family unit in a condominium project insured under this Act, if the mortgage indebtedness thereof has been assumed by a serviceman who at the time of assumption is the owner of the property and either occupies the property or certifies that his failure to do so is the result of his military assignment, or, in the case of the United States Coast Guard, other assignment.

(g) Where a serviceman dies while on active duty in the Armed Forces of the United States or in the United States Coast Guard, leaving a surviving widow as owner of the property, the period of ownership by the serviceman (within the meaning of subsection (c) of this section) shall extend for two years beyond the date of the serviceman's death or until the date the widow disposes of the property, whichever date occurs first. The Secretary of Defense or the Secretary of Transportation, as the case may be, shall notify such widow promptly following the serviceman's death of the additional costs to be borne by the mortgagor following termination of the two-year period.

MISCELLANEOUS HOUSING INSURANCE

SEC. 223. (a) [Notwithstanding any of the provisions of this title, and without regard to limitations upon eligibility contained in section 203, 207, 213, 220, 221, 222, 231, 232, 233 the Secretary is authorized, upon application by the mortgagee, to insure or make commitments to insure under section 203, 207, 213, 220, 221, 222, 231, 232, or 233 of this title any mortgage] Notwithstanding any of the provisions of this Act and without regard to limitations upon eligibility contained in any section or title of this Act, the Secretary is authorized, upon application by the mortgagee, to insure or make commitments to insure under any section or title of this Act any mortgage—

(1) executed in connection with the sale by the Government, or any agency or official thereof, of any housing acquired or constructed under Public Law 849, Seventy-sixth Congress, as amended; Public Law 781, Seventy-sixth Congress, as amended; or Public Laws 9, 73, or 353, Seventy-seventh Congress, as amended (including any property acquired, held, or constructed in connection with such housing or to serve the inhabitants thereof); or

loan in which the Secretary determines that the insurance of a mortgage for an additional term will inure to the benefit of the applicable insurance fund, taking into consideration the outstanding insurance liability under the existing insured mortgage, such refinancing mortgage may have a term not more than twelve years in excess of the unexpired term of such existing insured mortgage: Provided further, That a mortgage of the character described in paragraphs (1) through (6) of this subsection shall have a maturity, a principal obligation, and an interest rate not in excess of the maximums [applicable to loans insured under section 203, 207, 213, 220, 221, 222, 231, 232, or 233, as the case may be] prescribed under the applicable section or title of this Act, except that in no case may the principal obligation of a mortgage referred to in paragraph (5) of this subsection exceed 90 per centum of the appraised value of the mortgaged property; or

(8) executed in connection with the sale by the Government of any housing acquired pursuant to section 1013 of the Demonstration Cities and Metropolitan Development Act of 1966.

(b) Notwithstanding any of the provisions of this title and without regard to limitations upon eligibility contained in section 221, the Secretary may in his discretion insure under section 221(d)(3) any mortgage executed by a mortgagor of the character described therein where such mortgage is given to refinance a mortgage covering an existing property or project (other than a one- to four-family structure) located in an urban renewal area, if the Secretary finds that such insurance will facilitate the occupancy of dwelling units in the property or project by families of low or moderate income or families displaced from an urban renewal area or displaced as a result of governmental action.

(c) The Secretary shall also have authority to insure under this [title] Act any mortgage assigned to him in connection with payment under a contract of mortgage insurance or executed in connection with the sale by him of any property acquired under [title I, title II, title VI, title VII, title VIII, or title IX] any section or title of this Act without regard to any limitations or requirements contained in this [title] Act upon the eligibility of the mortgage, upon the payment of insurance premiums, or upon the terms and conditions of insurance settlement and the benefits of the insurance to be included in such settlement [(except that in any case the payment of insurance shall be in debentures)].

(d) With respect to any mortgage, other than a mortgage covering a one- to four-family structure, heretofore or hereafter insured by the Secretary, and notwithstanding any other provision of this Act, when the taxes interest on the mortgage debt mortgage insurance premiums, hazard insurance premiums, and the expense of maintenance and operation of the project covered by such mortgage during the first two years following the date of completion of the project, as determined by the Secretary exceed the project income, the Secretary may, in his discretion and upon such terms and conditions as he may prescribe, [permit the excess of the foregoing expenses over the project income to be added to the amount of such mortgage, and extend the coverage of the mortgage insurance thereto and such additional amount shall be deemed to be part of the original face amount of the mortgage.] insure under the same section as the original mortgage a loan by the mortgagee in an amount not exceeding the excess of the foregoing expenses over the project income. Such loan shall (1) bear interest (exclusive of premium charges for insurance) at not to exceed the per centum per annum currently permitted for mortgages insured under the section under which it is to be insured, (2) be secured in such manner as the Secretary shall require, and (3) be limited to a term not exceeding the unexpired term of the original mortgage. The Secretary is authorized to collect a premium charge for insurance of loans pursuant to this subsection in an amount computed at the same premium rate as is applicable to the original mortgage. This premium shall be payable in cash or in debentures of the insurance fund under which the loan is insured at par plus accrued interest. In the event of a failure of the borrower to make any payment due under such loan or under the original mortgage, both the loan and original mortgage shall be considered in default, and if such default continues for a period of thirty days, the lender shall be entitled to insurance benefits, computed in the same manner as for the original mortgage, except that in determining the interest rate under section 224 for the debentures representing the portion of the claim applicable to the loan, the date of the commitment to insure the loan and the insurance date of the loan shall be taken into consideration rather than the commitment or insurance date for the original mortgage.

(e) Notwithstanding any of the provisions of this title except section 212, and without regard to limitations upon eligibility contained in any section of this title, the Secretary is authorized, upon application by the mortgagee, to insure under any section of this title a mortgage executed in connection with the repair, rehabilitation, construction, or purchase of property located in an older, declining urban area in which the conditions are such that one or more of the eligibility requirements applicable to the section of this title under which insurance is sought could not be met, if the Secretary finds that (1) the area is reasonably viable, giving consideration to the need for providing adequate housing for families of low and moderate income in such area, and (2) the property is an acceptable risk in view of such consideration. The insurance of a mortgage pursuant to this subsection shall be the obligation of the Special Risk Insurance Fund.

DEBENTURE INTEREST RATE

SEC. 224. Notwithstanding any other provisions of this Act, debentures issued under any section of this Act with respect to a loan or mortgage accepted for insurance on or after thirty days following the effective date of the Housing Act of 1954 (except debentures issued pursuant to paragraph (4) of section 221(g)) shall bear interest at the rate in effect on the date the commitment to insure the loan or mortgage was issued, or the date the loan or mortgage was endorsed for insurance, or (when there are two or more insurance endorsements) the date the loan or mortgage was initially endorsed for insurance, whichever rate is the highest, except that debentures issued pursuant to section 220(f), section 220(h)(7), section 221(g), [or section 233] section 233, or section 238 may, at the discretion of the Secretary, bear interest at the rate in effect on the date they are issued.

APPRAISAL AVAILABLE TO HOME BUYERS

SEC. 226. The Secretary is hereby authorized and directed to require that, in connection with any property upon which there is located a dwelling designed principally for a single-family residence or a two-family residence and which is approved for mortgage insurance under section 203, 213 with respect to any property or project of a corporation or trust of the character described in paragraph numbered (2) of subsection (a) thereof, 220, 221, 222, 233, 234, 235(i), 237, or 903, of this Act, the seller or builder or such other person as may be designated by the Secretary shall agree to deliver, prior to the sale of the property, to the person purchasing such dwelling for his own occupancy, a written statement setting forth the amount of the appraised value of the property as determined by the Secretary. This section shall not apply in any case where the mortgage involved was insured or the commitment for such insurance was issued prior to the effective date of the Housing Act of 1954. Notwithstanding the first sentence of this section, the Secretary is authorized to require, in connection with any mortgage where the mortgage amount is computed on the basis of the Secretary's estimate of the replacement cost of the property, or on the basis of any other estimates of the Secretary, that a written statement setting forth such estimate or estimates, as the case may be, be furnished under this section in lieu of a written statement setting forth the amount of the appraised value of the property.

BUILDER'S COST CERTIFICATION

SEC. 227. Notwithstanding any other provision of this Act, no mortgage covering new or rehabilitated multifamily housing or a property or project described in title XI shall be insured under this Act unless the mortgagor has agreed (a) to certify, upon completion of the physical improvements on the mortgaged property or project and prior to final endorsement of the mortgage, either (i) that the approved percentage of actual cost (as those terms are herein defined) equaled or exceeded the proceeds of the mortgage loan or (ii) the amount by which the proceeds of the mortgage loan exceeded such approved percentage of actual cost, as the case may be, and (b) to pay forthwith to the mortgagee, for application to the reduction of the principal obligation of such mortgage, the amount, if any, certified to be in excess of such approved percentage of actual cost. Upon the Secretary's approval of the mortgagor's certification as required hereunder, such certification shall be final and incontestable, except for fraud or material misrepresentation on the part of the mortgagor. As used in this section—

(a) The term "new or rehabilitated multifamily housing" means a project or property approved for mortgage insurance prior to the construction or the repair and rehabilitation involved and covered by a mortgage insured or to be insured (i) under section 207, (ii) under section 213 with respect to any property or project of a corporation or trust of the character described in paragraph numbered (1) of subsection (a) thereof or with respect to any property or project of a mortgagor of the character described in paragraph (3) of subsection (a) thereof, (iii) under section 220 if the mortgage meets the requirements of paragraph (3)(B) of subsection (d) thereof, (iv) under section 221 if the mortgage meets the requirements of paragraph (3) or paragraph (4) of subsection (d) thereof, (v) under section 231, (vi) under section 233 if the mortgage meets the requirements of subsection (b), (vii) under section 810 if the mortgage meets the requirements of subsection (f), [or] (viii) under section 234(d), or (ix) under section 236;

(b) The term "approved percentage" means the percentage figure which, under applicable provisions of this Act, the Secretary is authorized to apply to his estimate of value, cost, or replacement cost, as the case may be, of the property of project in determining the maximum insurable mortgage amount; except that if the mortgage is to assist the financing of repair or rehabilitation and no part of the proceeds will be used to finance the purchase of the land or structure involved, the approved percentage shall be 100 per centum; and

(c) The term "actual cost" has the following meaning: (i) in case the mortgage is to assist the financing of new construction, the term means the actual cost to the mortgagor of such construction, including amounts paid for labor, materials, construction contracts, off-site public utilities, streets, organizational and legal expenses, such allocations of general overhead items as are acceptable to the Secretary, and other items of expense approved by the Secretary, plus (1) a reasonable allowance for builder's profit if the mortgagor is also the builder as defined by the Secretary, and (2) an amount equal to the Secretary's estimate of the fair market value of any land (prior to the construction of the improvements built as a part of the project) in the property or project owned by the mortgagor in fee (or, in case the land in the property or project is held by the mortgagor under a leasehold or other interest less than a fee, such amount as the mortgagor paid for the acquisition of such leasehold or other interest but, in no event, in excess of the fair market value of such leasehold or other interest exclusive of the proposed improvements), but excluding the amount of any kickbacks, rebates, or trade discounts received in connection with the construction of the improvements, or (ii) in case the mortgage is to assist the financing of repair or rehabilitation, the term means the actual cost to the mortgagor of such repair or rehabilitation, including the amounts paid for labor, materials, construction contracts, off-site public utilities, streets, organization and legal expenses, such allocations of general overhead items as are acceptable to the Secretary, and other items of expense approved by the Secretary, plus (1) a reasonable allowance for builder's profit if the mortgagor is also the builder as defined by the Secretary, and (2) an additional amount equal to (A) in case the land and improvements are to be acquired by the mortgagor and the purchase price thereof is to be financed with part of the proceeds of the mortgage, the purchase price of such land and improvements prior to such repair or rehabilitation, or (B) in case the land and improvements are owned by the mortgagor subject to an outstanding indebtedness to be refinanced with part of the proceeds of the mortgage, the amount of such outstanding indebtedness secured by such land and improvements, but excluding (for the purposes of this clause (ii) the amount of any kickbacks, rebates, or trade discounts received in connection with the construction of the improvements: Provided, That such additional amount under (A) of this clause (ii) shall in no event exceed the

Secretary's estimate of the fair market value of such land and improvements prior to such repair or rehabilitation, and such additional amount under (B) of this clause (ii) shall in no event exceed the approved percentage of the Secretary's estimate of the fair market value of such land and improvements prior to such repair or rehabilitation. In the case of a mortgage insured under section 220, section 221(d)(3), section 221(d)(4), section 231, [or section 233 (b)(2)] section 233, or section 236, where the mortgagor is also the builder as defined by the Secretary, there shall be included in the actual cost, in lieu of the allowance for builder's profit under clause (i) or (ii) of the preceding sentence, an allowance for builder's and sponsor's profit and risk of 10 per centum (unless the Secretary, after finding that such allowance is unreasonable, shall by regulation prescribe a lesser percentage) of all other items entering into the term "actual cost" except land or amounts paid for a leasehold and amounts included under either (A) or (B) of clause (ii) of the preceding sentence. In the case of a mortgage insured under section 220, section 221(d)(3), section 221(d)(4), section 231, [or section 233(b)(2)] section 233, or section 236, where the mortgagor is not also the builder as defined by the Secretary, there shall be included in the actual cost an allowance for sponsor's profit and risk of the said 10 per centum or lesser percentage of all other items entering into the term "actual cost" except land or amounts paid for a leasehold, amounts included under either (A) or (B) of the said clause (ii), and amounts paid by the mortgagor under a general construction contract.

MORTGAGE INSURANCE FOR NURSING HOMES

* * * * * * *

(b) For the purposes of this section—

(1) the term "nursing home" means a proprietary facility, or facility of a private nonprofit corporation or association licensed or regulated by the State (or, if there is no State law providing for such licensing and regulation by the State, by the municipality or other political subdivision in which the facility is located), for the accommodation of convalescents or other persons who are not acutely ill and not in need of hospital care but who require skilled nursing care and related medical services, in which such nursing care and medical services are prescribed by, or are performed under the general direction of, persons licensed to provide such care or services in accordance with the laws of the State where the facility is located; and

[(2) the terms "mortgage" and "mortgagor" shall have the meanings respectively set forth in section 207(a) of this Act.]

(2) the term "mortgage" means a first mortgage on real estate in fee simple, or on the interest of either the lessor or lessee thereof (A) under a lease for not less than ninety-nine years which is renewable, or (B) under a lease having a period of not less than fifty years to run from the date the mortgage was executed. The term "first mortgage" means such classes of first liens as are commonly given to secure advances (including but not limited to advances during construction) on, or the unpaid purchase price of, real estate under the laws of the State in which the real estate is located, together with the credit instrument or instruments, if any, secured thereby, and any mortgage may be in the form of one or more trust mortgages or mortgage indentures or deeds of trust, securing notes, bonds, or other credit instruments, and, by the same instrument or by a separate instrument, may create a security interest in initial equipment, whether or not attached to the realty. The term "mortgagor" shall have the meaning set forth in section 207(a) of this Act.

(c) The Secretary is authorized to insure any mortgage (including advances on such mortgages during construction) in accordance with the provisions of this section upon such terms and conditions as he may prescribe and to make commitments for insurance of such mortgage prior to the date of its execution or disbursement thereon.

(d) [In order to carry out the purpose of this section, the Secretary is authorized to insure any mortgage which covers a new or rehabilitated nursing home, subject to the following conditions:] In order to carry out the purposes of this section, the Secretary is authorized to insure any mortgage which covers a new or rehabilitated nursing home, including equipment to be used in its operation, subject to the following conditions:

(1) The mortgage shall be executed by a mortgagor approved by the Secretary. The Secretary may in his discretion require any such mortgagor to be regulated or restricted as to charges and methods of financing, and, in addition thereto, if the mortgagor is a corporate entity, as to capital structure and rate of return. As an aid to the regulation or restriction of any mortgagor with respect to any of the foregoing matters, the Secretary may make such contracts with and acquire for not to exceed $100 such stock or interest in such mortgagor as he may deem necessary. Any stock or interest so purchased shall be paid for out of the General Insurance Fund, and shall be redeemed by the mortgagor at par upon the termination of all obligations of the Secretary under the insurance.

(2) The mortgage shall involve a principal obligation in an amount not to exceed $12,500,000, and not to exceed 90 per centum of the estimated value of the property or project [when the proposed improvements are completed], including equipment to be used in the operation of the nursing home, when the proposed improvements are completed and the equipment is installed.

(3) The mortgage shall—

(A) provide for complete amortization by periodic payments within such terms as the Secretary shall prescribe; and

(B) bear interest (exclusive of premium charges for insurance) at not to exceed 5 per centum per annum of the amount of the principal obligation outstanding at any time, or not to exceed such per centum per annum not in excess of 6 per centum as the Secretary finds necessary to meet the mortgage market.

(4) The Secretary shall not insure any mortgage under this section unless he has received, from the State agency designated in accordance with section 612(a)(1) of the Public Health Service Act for the State in which is located the nursing home covered by the mortgage, a certification that (1) there is a need for such nursing home, and (2) there are in force in such State or other political subdivision of the State in which the proposed nursing home would be located reasonable minimum standards of licensure and methods of operation for nursing homes. No such mortgage shall be insured under this section unless the Secretary has received such assurance as he may deem satisfactory from the State agency that such standards will be applied and enforced with respect to any nursing home located in the State for which mortgage insurance is provided under this section.

EXPERIMENTAL HOUSING

SEC. 233. (a)(1) In order to assist in lowering housing costs and improving housing standards, quality, livability, or durability or neighborhood design through the utilization of advanced housing technology, or experimental property standards, the Secretary is authorized to insure and to make commitments to insure, under this section, mortgages (including home improvement loans, and including advances on mortgages during construction) secured by properties including dwellings involving the utilization and testing of advanced technology in housing design, materials, or construction, or experimental property standards for neighborhood design if the Secretary determines that [(1)] (A) the property is an acceptable risk, giving consideration to the need for testing advanced housing technology or experimental property standards, [(2)] (B) the utilization and testing of the advanced technology or experimental property standards involved will provide data or experience which the Secretary deems to be significant in reducing housing costs or improving housing standards, quality, livability, or durability, or improving neighborhood design, and [(3)] (C) the mortgages are eligible for insurance under the provisions of this section and under any further terms and conditions which may be prescribed by the Secretary to establish the acceptability of the mortgages for insurance.

(2) The Secretary is further authorized to insure and to make commitments to insure, under this section, mortgages (including advances on mortgages during construction) secured by properties in projects to be carried out in accordance with plans approved by the Secretary under section 108 of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968.

(b) To be eligible for insurance under this section, a mortgage shall meet the requirements of one of the other sections [of this title] or titles of this Act; except that, in lieu of determining the appraised value or the replacement cost of the property in cases involving new construction or the estimated cost of repair and rehabilitation or improvement in cases involving existing properties, the Secretary shall estimate the cost of replacing the property using comparable conventional design, materials, and construction, and any limitation upon the maximum mortgage amount available to a nonoccupant owner shall not, in the discretion of the Secretary, be applicable to mortgages insured under this section.

(c) The Secretary may enter into such contracts, agreements, and financial undertakings with the mortgagor and others as he deems necessary or desirable to carry out the purposes of this section, and may expend available funds for such purposes, including the correction (when he determines it necessary to protect the occupants), at any time subsequent to insurance of a mortgage, of defects or failures in the dwellings which the Secretary finds are caused by or related to the advanced housing technology utilized in their design or construction or experimental property standards. Any authority which the Secretary may exercise in connection with a mortgage, or property covered by a mortgage, insured under any other section of this title (including payments to reduce rentals for, or to facilitate home ownership by, lower income families) may be exercised in connection with a mortgage, or property covered by a mortgage, meeting the requirements of such other section (except as specified in subsection (b)), which is insured under this section to the same extent and in the same manner as if the mortgage insured under this section was insured under such other section.

(d) The Secretary may make such investigations and analyses of data, and publish and distribute such reports, as he determines to be necessary or desirable to assure the most beneficial use of the data and information to be acquired as a result of this section.

(e) Any mortgagee or lender under a mortgage insured under subsection (b) shall be entitled to insurance benefits determined in the same manner as such benefits would be determined if such mortgage or loan were insured under the section [of this title] or title of this Act for which it otherwise would have been eligible except for the experimental feature of the property involved.

MORTGAGE INSURANCE FOR CONDOMINIUMS

* * * * * * *

(c) The Secretary is authorized, in his discretion and under such terms and conditions as he may prescribe (including the minimum number of family units in the project which shall be offered for sale and provisions for the protection of the consumer and the public interest), to insure any mortgage covering a one-family unit in a multifamily project and an undivided interest in the common areas and facilities which serve the project if (1) the mortgage meets the requirements of this subsection and of section 203(b), except as that section is modified by this subsection, (2) the project is or has been covered by a mortgage insured under any section (except section 213(a)(1) and (2) of this Act, notwithstanding any requirements in any such section that the project be constructed or rehabilitated for the purpose of providing [rental housing, and (3) rental housing: Provided, That a one-family unit in a multifamily project involving eleven or less units shall be eligible for insurance without having been covered by a project mortgage, and (3) the mortgagor is acquiring, or has acquired, a family unit covered by a mortgage insured under this subsection for his own use and occupancy and will not own more than four one-family units covered by mortgages insured under this subsection. Any project proposed to be constructed or rehabilitated after the date of enactment of the Housing Act of 1961 with the assistance of mortgage insurance under this Act, where the sale of family units is to be assisted with mortgage insurance under this subsection, shall be subject to such requirements as the Secretary may prescribe. To be eligible for insurance pursuant to this subsection, a mortgage shall (A) involve a principal obligation in an amount not to exceed $30,000, and not to exceed the sum of (i) 97 per centum of $15,000 of the amount which the Secretary estimates will be the appraised value of the family unit including common areas and facilities as of the date the mortgage is accepted for insurance, (ii) 90 per centum of such value in excess of $15,000 but not in excess of $20,000, and (iii) [75] 80 per centum of such value in excess of $20,000, and (B) have a maturity satisfactory to the Secretary, but not to exceed, in any event, thirty-five years from the date of the beginning of amortization of the mortgage or three-fourths of the Secretary's estimate of the remaining economic life of the project, whichever is the lesser. In determining the amount of a mortgage in the case of a nonoccupant mortgagor the reference to paragraph (2) of section 203(b) in section 203(b)(8) shall be construed to refer to the preceding sentence in this subsection. The mortgage shall contain such provisions as the Secretary determines to be necessary for the maintenance of common areas and facilities and the multifamily project. The mortgagor shall have exclusive right to the use of the one-family unit covered by the mortgage and, together with the owners of other units in the multifamily project, shall have the right to the use of the common areas and facilities serving the project and the obligation of maintaining all such common areas and facilities. The Secretary may require that the rights and obligations of the mortgagor and the owners of other dwelling units in the project shall be subject to such controls as he determines to be necessary and feasible to promote and protect individual owners, the multifamily project and its occupants. For the purposes of this subsection, the Secretary is authorized in his discretion and under such terms and conditions as he may prescribe to permit one-family units and interests in common areas and facilities in multifamily projects covered by mortgages insured under any section of this Act (other than section 213(a) (1) and (2) to be released from the liens of those mortgages.

(f) Any blanket mortgage insured under subsection (d) shall provide for complete amortization by periodic payments within such terms as the Secretary may prescribe but not to exceed forty years from the beginning of amortization of the mortgage, and shall bear interest (exclusive of premium charges for insurance) at not to exceed 5¼ per centum per annum on the amount of the principal obligation outstanding at any time. The Secretary may consent to the release of a part or parts of the mortgaged property from the lien of the blanket mortgage upon such terms and conditions as he may prescribe and the blanket mortgage may provide for such release. The project covered by the blanket mortgage may include [five] four or more family units and such commercial and community facilities as the Secretary deems adequate to serve the occupants.

(g) Any mortgagee under a mortgage insured under subsection (c) of this section is entitled to receive the benefits of the insurance as provided in section 204(a) of this Act with respect to mortgages insured under section 203, and the provisions of subsections (b), (c), (d), (e), (f), (g), (h), (j), and (k) of section 204 shall be applicable to the mortgages insured under subsection (c) of this section, except that (1) all references in section 204 of the Mutual Mortgage Insurance Fund or the Fund shall be construed to refer to the General Insurance Fund, (2) all references therein to section 203 shall be construed to refer to subsection (c) of this section, and (3) the excess remaining, referred to in section 204(f)(1), shall be retained by the Secretary and credited to the General Insurance Fund.

(h) The provisions of subsections (d), (e), (g), (h), (i), (j), (k), (l), and (n) of section 207 shall be applicable to mortgages insured under subsection (d) of this section.

(i) The provisions of sections 225 and 230 shall be applicable to the mortgages insured under subsection (c) of this section.

HOMEOWNERSHIP FOR LOW AND MODERATE INCOME FAMILIES

SEC. 235. (a) For the purpose of assisting low and moderate income families in acquiring homeownership or in acquiring membership in a cooperative association operating a housing project, the Secretary is authorized to make, and to contract to make, periodic assistance payments on behalf of such homeowners and cooperative members. The assistance shall be accomplished through payments to mortgagees holding mortgages meeting the special requirements specified in this section.

(b) To qualify for assistance payments, the homeowner or the cooperative member shall be of low or moderate income and satisfy eligibility requirements prescribed by the Secretary, and—

(1) the homeowner shall be a mortgagor under a mortgage which meets the requirements of and is insured under subsection (i) or (j)(4) of this section: Provided, That a mortgage meeting the requirements of subsection (i)(3)(A) of this section but insured under section 237 may qualify for assistance payments if such mortgage was executed by a mortgagor who is determined not to be an acceptable credit risk for mortgage insurance purposes (but otherwise eligible) under subsection (j)(4) of this section or under section 221 (d)(2) or 234(c) and accepted as a reasonably satisfactory credit risk under section 237; or

(2) the cooperative association of which the family is a member shall operate a housing project the construction or substantial rehabilitation of which has been financed with a mortgage insured under section 213 and which has been completed within two years prior to the filing of the application for assistance payments and the dwelling unit has had no previous occupant other than the family: Provided, That assistance payments may be made with respect to a dwelling unit in an existing cooperative project which meets such standards as the Secretary may prescribe: Provided further, that a preference shall be given in contracting to make periodic assistance payments under this section to a family which qualifies as a displaced family as defined in section 221(f), or a family which includes five or more minor persons, or a family occupying low-rent public housing: Provided further, That the amount of the mortgage attributable to the dwelling unit shall involve a principal obligation not in excess of $15,000 ($17,500 in any geographical area where the Secretary authorizes an increase on the basis of a finding that cost levels so require), except that with respect to any family with five or more persons the foregoing limits shall be $17,500 and $20,000, respectively.

(c) The assistance payments to a mortgagee by the Secretary on behalf of a mortgagor shall be made during such time as the mortgagor shall continue to occupy the property which secures the mortgage: Proivided, That assistance payments may be made on behalf of a homeowner who assumes a mortgage insured under subsection (j)(4) with respect to which assistance payments have been made on behalf of the previous owner, if the homeowner is approved by the Secretary as eligible for receiving such assistance. The payment shall be in an amount not exceeding the lesser of—

(1) the balance of the monthly payment for principal, interest, taxes, insurance, and mortgage insurance premium due under the mortgage remaining unpaid after applying 20 per centum of the mortgagor's income: Provided, That, in determining a mortgagor's income for the purposes of this paragraph, there shall be deducted an amount equal to $200 for each minor person who is a member of the immediate family of, and living with, the mortgagor, and the earnings of any such minor person shall not be included in the income of such mortgagor; or

(2) the difference between the amount of the monthly payment for principal, interest, and mortgage insurance premium which the mortgagor is obligated to pay under the mortgage and the monthly payment for principal and interest which the mortgagor would be obligated to pay if the mortgage were to bear interest at the rate of 1 per centum per annum.

(d) Assistance payments to a mortgagee by the Secretary on behalf of a family holding membership in a cooperative associatiou operating a housing project shall be made only during such time as the family is an occupant of such project and shall be in amounts computed on the basis of the formula set forth in subsection (c) applying the cooperative member's proportionate share of the obligations under the project mortgage to the items specified in the formula.

(e) The Secretary may include in the payment to the mortgagee such amount, in addition to the amount computed under subsection (c), (d), or (j) (7), as he deems appropriate to reimburse the mortgagee for its expenses in handling the mortgage.

(f) Procedures shall be adopted by the Secretary for recertifications of the mortgagor's (or cooperative member's) income at intervals of two years (or at shorter intervals where the Secretary deems it desirable) for the purpose of adjusting the amount of such assistance payments within the limits of the formula described in subsection (c).

(g) The Secretary shall prescribe such regulations as he deems necessary to assure that the sales price of, or other consideration paid in connection with, the purchase by a homeowner of the property with respect to which assistance payments are to be made is not increased above the appraised value on which the maximum mortgage which the Secretary will insure is computed.

(h) There are authorized to be appropriated such sums as may be necessary to carry out the provisions of this section, including such sums as may be necessary to make the assistance paymehts under contracts entered into under this section. The aggregate amount of contracts to make such payments shall not exceed amounts approved in appropriation Acts, and payments pursuant to such contracts shall not exceed $75,000,000 per annum prior to July 1, 1969, which maximum dollar amount shall be increased by $100,000,000 on July 1, 1969, and by $125,000,000 on July 1, 1970.

(i) (1) The Secretary is authorized, upon application by the mortgagee, to insure a mortgage executed by a mortgagor who meets the eligibility requirements for assistance payments prescribed by the Secretary under subsection (b). Commitments for the insurance of such mortgages may be issued by the Secretary prior to the date of their execution or disbursement thereon, upon such terms and conditions as the Secretary may prescribe.

(2) To be eligible for insurance under this subsection, a mortgage shall meet the requirements of section 221 (d) (2) or 234 (c), except as such requirements are modified by this subsection.

(3) A mortgage to be insured under this subsection shall—

(A) involve a single-family dwelling which has been approved by the Secretary prior to the beginning of construction or substantial rehabilitation, or a two-family dwelling one of the units of which is to be occupied by the owner if the dwelling is purchased with the assistane of a nonprofit organization and is approved by the Secretary prior to the beginning of substantial rehabilitation, or a one-family unit in a condominium project (together with an undivided interest in the common areas and facilities serving the project) which is released from a multifamily project the construction or substantial rehabilitation of which has been completed within two years prior to the filing of the application for assistance payments with respect to such family unit and the unit has had no previous occupant other than the mortgagor: Provided, That the mortgage may involve an existing dwelling or a family unit in an existing condominium project if the dwelling or family unit meets such standards as the Secretary may prescribe, or if assistance payments have been made on behalf of the previous owner of the dwelling or family unit with respect to a mortgage insured under subsection (j)(4): Provided further, That a preference in extending mortgage insurance under this subsection shall be given to a mortgagor who qualifies as a displaced family as defined in section 221(f), or a family which includes five or more minor persons, or a family occupying low-rent public housing: Provided further, That the mortgage may involve a dwelling unit in an existing project covered by a mortgage insured under section 236 or in an existing project receiving the benefits of financial assistance under section 101 of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965;

(B) where it is to cover a one-family unit in a condominium project have a principal obligation not exceeding $15,000 ($17,500 in any geographical area where the Secretary authorizes an increase on the basis of a finding that cost levels so require), except that with respect to any family with five or more persons the foregoing limits shall be $17,500 and $20,000, respectively; and

(C) be executed by a mortgagor who shall have paid (i) in the case of a displaced family as defined in section 221(f), at least $200, or (ii), in the case of any other family, at least 3 per centum (or such larger amount as the Secretary may require) of the Secretary's estimate of the cost of acquisition, in cash or its equivalent, which amount in either instance may be applied for the payment of settlement costs and initial payments for taxes, hazard insurance, mortgage insurance premiums, and other prepaid expenses.

(j)(1) In addition to mortgages insured under the provisions of subsection (i), the Secretary is authorized, upon application by the mortgagee, to insure a mortgage (including advances under such mortgage during rehabilitation) which is executed by a nonprofit organization to finance the purchase of housing, and the rehabilitation of such housing if it is deteriorating or substandard, for subsequent resale to low or moderate income home purchasers who meet the eligibility requirements for assistance payments prescribed by the Secretary under subsection (b). Commitments for the insurance of such mortgages may be issued by the Secretary prior to the date of their execution or disbursement thereon, upon such terms and conditions as the Secretary may prescribe.

(2) To be eligible for insurance under paragraph (1) of this subsection, a mortgage shall—

(A) be executed by a private nonprofit organization, approved by the Secretary, for the purpose of financing the purchase (with the intention of subsequent resale), and rehabilitation where the housing involved is deteriorating or substandard, of property comprising one or more tracts or parcels, whether or not contiguous, consisting of (i) four or more single-family dwellings of detached, semidetached, or row construction, or (ii) four or more one-family units in a structure or structures for which a plan of family unit ownership approved by the Secretary is established; except that in a case not involving the rehabilitation of deteriorating or substandard housing the property purchased may consist of one or more such dwellings or units;

(B) be in a principal amount not exceeding the appraised value of the property at the time of its purchase under the mortgage plus the estimated cost of any rehabilitation;

(C) bear interest (exclusive of premium charges for insurance and service charge, if any) at not to exceed such per centum per annum (not in excess of 6 per centum), on the amount of the principal obligation outstanding at any time, as the Secretary finds necessary to meet the mortgage market;

(D) provide for complete amortization (subject to paragraph (4)(E)) by periodic payments within such term as the Secretary may prescribe; and

(E) provide for the release of individual single-family dwellings from the lien of the mortgage upon their sale in accordance with paragraph (4).

(3) No mortgage shall be insured under paragraph (1) unless the mortgagor shall have demonstrated to the satisfaction of the Secretary that (A) the property involved is located in a neighborhood which is sufficiently stable and contains sufficient public facilities and amenities to support long-term values, or (B) the purchase or rehabilitation of such property plus the mortgagor's related activities and the activities of other owners of housing in the neighborhood, together with actions to be taken by public authorities, will be of such scope and quality as to give reasonable promise that a stable environment will be created in the neighborhood.

(4) (A) No mortgage shall be insured under paragraph (1) unless the mortgagor enters into an agreement, satisfactory to the Secretary, that it will offer to sell the dwellings involved, after purchase and upon completion of any rehabilitation, to low or moderate income individuals or families meeting the eligibility requirements established by the Secretary under subsection (b).

(B) The Secretary is authorized to insure under this paragraph mortgages executed to finance the sale of individual dwellings to low or moderate income purchasers as provided in subparagraph (A). Any such mortgage shall—

(i) be in a principal amount not in excess of that portion of the unpaid principal balance of the blanket mortgage covering the property which is allocable to the individual dwelling involved;

(ii) bear interest at the same rate as the blanket mortgage; and

(iii) provide for complete amortization by periodic payments within a term equal to the remaining term (determined without regard to subparagraph (E)) of such blanket mortgage.

(C) The price for which any individual dwelling is sold under this paragraph shall be in an amount equal to that portion of the unpaid principal balance of the blanket mortgage covering the property which is allocable to the dwelling plus such additional amount, not less than $200 (which may be applied in whole or in part toward closing costs), as the Secretary may determine to be reasonable.

(D) Upon the sale under this paragraph of any individual dwelling, such dwelling shall be released from the lien of the blanket mortgage. Until all of the individual dwellings in the property covered by the blanket mortgage have been sold, the mortgagor shall hold and operate the dwellings remaining unsold at any given time, in such manner and under such terms as the Secretary may prescribe, as though they constituted rental units.

(E) Upon the sale under this paragraph of all the individual dwellings in the property covered by the blanket mortgage and the release of all individual dwellings from the lien of the blanket mortgage, the insurance of the blanket mortgage shall be terminated and no adjusted premium charge shall be charged by the Secretary upon such termination.

(5) Where the Secretary has approved a plan of family unit ownership, the terms "single-family dwelling", "single-family dwellings", "individual dwelling", and "individual dwellings" shall mean a family unit or family units, together with the undivided interest (or interests) in the common areas and facilities.

(6) For purposes of this subsection, the terms "single-family dwelling" and "single-family dwellings" (except for purposes of paragraph (5)) shall include a two-family dwelling which has been approved by the Secretary if one of the units is to be occupied by the owner.

(7) In addition to the assistance payments authorized under subsection (b), the Secretary may make such payments to a mortgagee on behalf of a nonprofit organization which is a mortgagor under the provisions of paragraph (1) in an amount not exceeding the difference between the monthly payment for principal, interest, and mortgage insurance premium which the morgagor is obligated to pay under the mortgage and the monthly payment for principal and interest such mortgagor would be obligated to pay if the mortgage were to bear interest at the rate of 1 per centum per annum.

(k) The Secretary shall from time to time allocate and transfer to the Secretary of Agriculture, for use (in accordance with the terms and conditions of this section) in rural areas and small towns, a reasonable portion of the total authority to contract to make assistance payments as approved in appropriation Acts under subsection (h).

RENTAL AND COOPERATIVE HOUSING FOR LOW AND MODERATE INCOME FAMILIES

SEC. 236. (a) For the purpose of reducing rentals for low and moderate income families, the Secretary is authorized to make, and to contract to make, periodic interest reduction payments on behalf of the owner of a rental housing project designed for occupancy by low and moderate income families, which shall be accomplished through payments to mortgagees holding mortgages meeting the special requirements specified in this section.

(b) Interest reduction payments with respect to a project shall only be made during such time as the project is operated as a rental housing project and is subject to a mortgage which meets the requirements of, and is insured under, subsection (j) of this section: Provided, That interest reduction payments may be made with respect to a rental or cooperative housing project owned by a private nonprofit corporation or other private nonprofit entity, a limited dividend corporation or other limited dividend entity, or a cooperative housing corporation, which is financed under a State or local program providing assistance through loans, loan insurance, or tax abatements, and which, prior to completion of construction or rehabilitation, is approved for receiving the benefits of this section.

(c) The interest reduction payments to a mortgagee by the Secretary on behalf of a project owner shall be in an amount not exceeding the difference between the monthly payment for principal, interest, and mortgage insurance premium which the project owner as a mortgagor is obligated to pay under the mortgage and the monthly payment for principal and interest such project owner would be obligated to pay if the mortgage were to bear interest at the rate of 1 per centum per annum.

(d) The Secretary may include in the payment to the mortgagee such amount, in addition to the amount computed under subsection (c), as he deems appropriate to reimburse the mortgagee for its expenses in handling the mortgage.

(e) As a condition for receiving the benefits of interest reduction payments, the project owner shall operate the project in accordance with such requirements with respect to tenant eligibility and rents as the Secretary may prescribe. Procedures shalll be adopted by the Secretary for review of tenant incomes at intervals of two years (or at shorter intervals where the Secretary deems it desirable).

(f) For each dwelling unit there shall be established with the approval of the Secretary (1) a basic rental charge determined on the basis of operating the project with payments of principal and interest due under a mortgage bearing interest at the rate of 1 per centum per annum; and (2) a fair market rental charge determined on the basis of operating the project with payments of principal, interest, and mortgage insurance premium which the mortgagor is obligated to pay under the mortgage covering the project. The rental for each dwelling unit shall be at the basic rental charge or such greater amount, not exceeding the fair market rental charge, as represents 20 percentum of the tenant's income.

(g) The project owner shall, as required by the Secretary, accumulate, safeguard, and periodically pay to the Secretary all rental charges collected in excess of the basic rental charges. Such excess charges shall be deposited by the Secretary in a fund which may be used by him as a revolving fund for the purpose of making interest reduction payments with respect to any rental housing project covered by a mortgage insured under this section, subject to limits approved in appropriation Acts pursuant to subsection (i). Moneys in such fund not needed for current operations may be invested in bonds or other obligations of the United States or in bonds or other obligations guaranteed as to principal and interest by the United States.

(h) In addition to establishing the requirements specified in subsection (e), the Secretary is authorized to make such rules and regulations, to enter into such agreements, and to adopt such procedures as he may deem necessary or desirable to carry out the provisions of this section.

(i) There are authorized to be appropriated such sums as may be necessary to carry out the provisions of this section, including such sums as may be necessary to make interest reduction payments under contracts entered into under this section. The aggregate amount of contracts to make such payments shall not exceed amounts approved in appropriation Acts, and payments pursuant to such contracts shall not exceed $75,000,000 per annum prior to July 1, 1969, which maximum dollar amount shall be increased by $100,000,000 on July 1, 1969, and by $125,000,000 on July 1, 1970.

(j)(1) The Secretary is authorized, upon application by the mortgagee, to insure a mortgage (including advances on such mortgage during construction) which meets the requirements of this subsection. Commitments for the insurance of such mortgages may be issued by the Secretary prior to the date of their execution or disbursement thereon, upon such terms and conditions as he may prescribe.

(2) As used in this subsection—

(A) the terms "family" and "families" shall have the same meaning as in section 221;

(B) the term "elderly or handicapped families" shall have the same meaning as in section 202 of the Housing Act of 1959; and

(C) the terms "mortgage", "mortgagee", and "mortgagor" shall have the same meaning as in section 201.

(3) To be eligible for insurance under this subsection, a mortgage shall meet the requirements specified in subsections (d)(1) and (d)(3) of section 221, except as such requirements are modified by this subsection. In the case of a project financed with a mortgage insured under this subsection which involves a mortgagor other than a cooperative or a private nonprofit corporation or association and which is sold to a cooperative or a nonprofit corporation or association, the Secretary is further authorized to insure under this subsection a mortgage given by such purchaser in an amount not exceeding the appraised value of the property at the time of purchase, which value shall be based upon a mortgage amount on which the debt service can be met from the income of the property when operated on a nonprofit basis, after payment of all operating expenses, taxes, and required reserves.

(4) A mortgage to be insured under this subsection shall—

(A) be executed by a private mortgagor eligible under subsection (d)(3) or (e) of section 221;

(B) bear interest (exclusive of premium charges for insurance and service charges, if any) at not to exceed such per centum per annum (not in excess of 6 per centum), on the amount of the principal obligation outstanding at any time, as the Secretary finds necessary to meet the mortgage market; and

(C) provide for complete amortization by periodic payments within such term as the Secretary may prescribe.

(5) The property or project shall—

(A) comply with such standards and conditions as the Secretary may prescribe to establish the acceptability of the property for mortgage insurance and may include such nondwelling facilities as the Secretary deems adequate and appropriate to serve the occupants and the surrounding neighborhood: Provided, That the project shall be predominantly residential and any nondwelling facility included in the mortgage shall be found by the Secretary to contribute to the economic feasibility of the project, and the Secretary shall give due consideration to the possible effect of the project on other business enterprises in the community: Provided further, That in the case of a project designed primarily for occupancy by elderly or handicapped families, the project may include related facilities for use by elderly or handicapped families, including cafeterias or dining halls, community rooms, workshops, infirmaries or other inpatient or outpatient health facilities, and other essential service facilities;

(B) include five or more dwelling units; and

(C) be designed primarily for use as a rental project to be occupied by low and moderate income families or by elderly or handicapped families: Provided, That low and moderate income persons who are less than sixty-two years of age shall be eligible for occupancy in such a project, but not more than 10 per centum of the dwelling units in any such project shall be available for occupancy by such persons.

(6) With the approval of the Secretary, the mortgagor may sell the individual dwelling units to low and moderate income or elderly or handicapped purchasers. The Secretary may consent to the release of the mortgagor from his liability under the mortgage and the credit instrument secured thereby, or consent to the release of parts of the mortgaged property from the lien of the mortgage, upon such terms and conditions as he may prescribe, and the mortgage may provide for such release.

(k) As used in this section the term "tenant" includes a member of a cooperative; the term "rental housing project" includes a cooperative housing project; and the terms "rental" and "rental charge" mean, with respect to members of a cooperative, the charges under the occupancy agreements between such members and the cooperative.

(l) The Secretary shall from time to time allocate and transfer to the Secretary of Agriculture, for use (in accordance with the terms and conditions of this section) in rural areas and small towns, a reasonable portion of the total authority to contract to make periodic interest reduction payments as approved in appropriation Acts under subsection (i).

SPECIAL MORTGAGE INSURANCE ASSISTANCE

SEC. 237. (a) The purpose of this section is to help provide adequate housing for families of low and moderate income, including those who, for reasons of credit history, irregular income patterns caused by seasonal employment, or other factors, are unable to meet the credit requirements of the Secretary for the purchase of a single-family home financed by a mortgage insured under section 203, 220, 221, 234, or 235(j)(4), but who, through the incentive of homeownership and counseling assistance, appear to be able to achieve homeownership.

(b) The Secretary is authorized upon application by the mortgagee to insure under this section any mortgage meeting the requirements of this section.

(c) To be eligible for insurance under this section, a mortgage shall—

(2) involve a principal obligation (including such initial service charges, and such appraisal, inspection, and other fees, as the Secretary shall approve) in an amount not to exceed $15,000: Provided, That the Secretary may increase the amount to not exceed $17,500 in any geographical area where he finds that cost levels so require: Provided further, That no mortgage meeting the requirements of section 203(h) or 203(i) shall be eligible for insurance under this section if its principal obligation is in excess of the maximum limits prescribed in such section;

(3) be executed by a mortgagor who the Secretary has determined, after a full and complete study of the case, would not be an acceptable credit risk for mortgage insurance purposes under section 203, 220, 221, 234, or 235(j)(4), because of his credit standing, debt obligations, total annual income, or income characteristics, but who the Secretary is satisfied would be a reasonably satisfactory credit risk, consistent with the objectives stated in subsection (a), if he were to receive budget, debt management, and related counseling: Provided, That, in determining whether the mortgagor is a reasonably satisfactory credit risk, the Secretary shall review the credit history of the applicant giving special consideration to those delinquent accounts which were ultimately paid by the applicant and to extenuating factors which may have caused credit accounts of the applicant to become delinquent; and the Secretary shall also give special consideration to income characteristics of applicants whose total income over the two years prior to their applications has remained at levels of eligibility (as required under paragraph (4) of this subsection), but who, because of the character of their seasonal employment or for other reasons, have not maintained continuous employment under one employer during that time; and

(4) require monthly payments which, in combination with local real estate taxes on the property involved, do not exceed 25 per centum of the applicant's income, based on his average monthly income during the year prior to his application or the average monthly income during the three years prior to his application, whichever is higher.

(d) The Secretary shall give preference in approving mortgage insurance applications under this section to families living in public housing units, especially those families required to leave public housing because their incomes have risen beyond the maximum prescribed income limits, and families eligible for residence in public housing who have been displaced from federally assisted urban renewal areas.

(e) The Secretary is authorized to provide, or contract with public or private organizations to provide, such budget, debt management, and related counseling services to mortgagors whose mortgages are insured under this section as he determines to be necessary to meet the objectives of this section. The Secretary may also provide such counseling to otherwise eligible families who lack sufficient funds to supply a downpayment to help them to save an amount necessary for that purpose.

(f) The aggregate principal balance of all mortgages insured under this section and outstanding at one time shall not exceed $100,000,000.

(g) There are authorized to be appropriated such sums as may be necessary to carry out the provisions of subsection (e) of this section.

PAYMENT OF INSURANCE—SPECIAL RISK INSURANCE FUND

SEC. 238. (a) (1) Any mortgagee under a mortgage insured under section 235(i), 235(j)(4), or 237 shall be entitled to receive the benefits of the insurance as provided in section 204(a) with respect to mortgages insured under section 203. The provisions of subsections (b), (c), (d), (g), (j), and (k) of section 204 shall be applicable to mortgages insured under section 235(i), 235(j)(4), or 237, except that all references therein to the "Mutual Mortgage Insurance Fund" shall be construed to refer to the "Special Risk Insurance Fund," and all references therein to section 203 shall be construed to refer to section 235(i), 235(j)(4), or 237, as may be appropriate.

(2) Any mortgagee under a mortgage insured under section 235(j)(1) or 236 shall be entitled to receive the benefits of insurance as provided in section 207(g) with respect to mortgages insured under section 207. The provisions of subsections (d), (e), (h), (i), (j), (k), (l), and (n) of section 207 shall be applicable to mortgages insured under section 235(j)(1) or 236, except that all references therein to the "General Insurance Fund" shall be construed to refer to the "Special Risk Insurance Fund" and the premium charge provided in section 207(d) shall be payable only in cash or debentures of the Special Risk Insurance Fund.

(3) In lieu of the amount of insurance benefits computed pursuant to paragraph (1) or (2) of this subsection, the Secretary, in his discretion and in accordance with such regulations as he may prescribe, may (with respect to any mortgage loan acquired by him) compute and pay insurance benefits to the mortgagee in a total amount equal to the unpaid principal balance of the loan plus any accrued interest and any advances approved by the Secretary and made previously by the mortgagee under the provisions of the mortgage.

(b) There is hereby created a Special Risk Insurance Fund (hereinafter referred to as the "fund") which shall be used by the Secretary as a revolving fund for carrying out the mortgage insurance obligations of sections 223(e), 233(a)(2), 235, 236, and 237, and the Secretary is hereby authorized to advance to the fund the sum of $5,000,000 from the General Insurance Fund established pursuant to the provisions of section 519. Such advance shall be repayable at such times and at such rates of interest as the Secretary deems appropriate. Premium charges, adjusted premium charges, inspection and other fees, service charges, and any other income received by the Secretary under sections 223(e), 235, 236, and 237, together with all earnings on the assets of the fund, shall be credited to the fund. All payments made pursuant to claims of mortgagees with respect to mortgages, insured under sections 235, 236, and 237 or pursuant to section 223(e), or 233(a)(2), cash adjustments, the principal of and interest paid in debentures which are the obligation of the fund, expenses incurred in connection with or as a consequence of the acquisition and disposal of property acquired under such sections, and all administrative expenses on connection with the mortgage insurance operations under such sections shall be paid out of the fund. There is authorized to be appropriated such sums as may be needed from time to time to cover losses sustained by the fund in carrying out the mortgage insurance obligations of sections 223(e), 233(a)(2), 235, 236, and 237. Moneys in the funds not needed for current operations of the fund shall be deposited with the Treasurer of the United States to the credit of the fund or invested in bonds or other obligations of, or in bonds or other obligations guaranteed by, the United States. The Secretary, with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury, may purchase in the open market debentures which are the obligation of the fund. Such purchases shall be made at a price which will provide an investment yield of not less than the yield obtained from other investments authorized by this section. Debentures so purchased shall be canceled and not reissued.

SEC. 239. (a) The Secretary shall not consent to any request for an extension of the time for curing a default under any mortgage covering multifamily housing, as defined in the regulations of the Secretary, or for a modification of the terms of such mortgage, except in conformity with regulations prescribed by the Secretary in accordance with the provisions of this section. Such regulations shall require, as a condition to the granting of any such request, that, during the period of such extension or modification, any part of the rents or other funds derived by the mortgagor from the property covered by the mortgage which is not required to meet actual and necessary expenses arising in connection with the operation of such property, including amortization charges under the mortgage, be held in trust by the mortgagor and distributed only with the consent of the Secretary; except that the Secretary may provide for the granting of consent to any request for an extension of the time for curing a default under any mortgage covering multifamily housing, or for a modification of the terms of such mortgage, without regard to the foregoing requirement, in any case or class of cases in which an exemption from such requirement does not (as determined by the Secretary) jeopardize the interests of the United States.

(b) Whoever, as an owner of a property which is security for a mortgage described in subsection (a), or as a stockholder of a corporation owning such property, or as a beneficial owner under any business organization or trust owning such property, or as an officer, director, or agent of any such owner, (1) willfully uses or authorizes the use of any part of the rents or other funds derived from property covered by such mortgage in violation of a regulation prescribed by the Secretary under subsection (a), or (2) if such mortgage is determined, as provided in subsection (a), to be exempt from the requirement of any such regulation or is not otherwise covered by such regulation, willfully and knowingly uses or authorizes the use, while such mortgage is in default, of any part of the rents or other funds derived from the property covered by such mortgage for any purpose other than to meet actual and necessary expenses arising in connection with such property (including amortization charges under the mortgage), shall be fined not more than $5,000 or imprisoned not more than three years, or both.

PURCHASE OF FEE SIMPLE TITLE FROM LESSORS

SEC. 240. (a) The Secretary is authorized, upon such terms and conditions as he may prescribe, to make commitments to insure and to insure loans made by financial institutions for the purpose of financing purchases by homeowners of the fee simple title to property on which their homes are located.

(b) As used in this section—

(1) the term "financial institution" means a lender approved by the Secretary as eligible for insurance under section 2 or a mortgagee approved under section 203(b)(1); and

(2) the term "homeowner" means a lessee under a long-term ground lease.

(c) To be eligible for insurance under this section, a loan shall—

(1) relate to property on which there is located a dwelling designed principally for a one-, two-, three-, or four-family residence;

(2) not exceed the cost of purchasing the fee simple title, or $10,000 per family unit, whichever is the lesser;

(3) be limited to an amount which when added to any outstanding indebtedness related to the property (as determined by the Secretary) creates a total outstanding indebtedness which does not exceed the applicable mortgage limit prescribed in section 203(b);

(4) bear interest at not to exceed such per centum per annum (not to exceed 6 per centum), on the amount of the principal obligation outstanding at any time, as the Secretary finds necessary to meet market conditions, and such other charges (including service charges and appraisal, inspection, and other fees) as may be approved by the Secretary;

(5) have a maturity satisfactory to the Secretary, but not to exceed twenty years from the beginning of amortization of the loan or three-quarters of the remaining economic life of the home, whichever is the lesser; and

(6) comply with such other terms, conditions, and restrictions as the Secretary may prescribe.

(d) The provisions of paragraphs (3), (5), (6), (7), (8), and (10) of section 220(h) shall be applicable to loans insured under this section and, as applied to loans insured under this section, references in those paragraphs to "home improvement loans" and "this subsection" shall be construed to refer to loans under this section.

SUPPLEMENTAL LOANS FOR MULTIFAMILY PROJECTS

SEC. 241. (a) With respect to a multifamily project or group practice facility covered by a mortgage insured under any section or title of this Act, the Secretary is authorized, upon such terms and conditions as he may prescribe, to make commitments to insure, and to insure, supplemental loans (including advances during construction or improvement) made by financial institutions approved by the Secretary. As used in this section, "supplemental loan" means a loan, advance of credit, or purchase of an obligation representing a loan or advance of credit made for the purpose of financing improvements or additions to such project or facility: Provided, That a loan involving a nursing home covered by a mortgage insured under section 232 or a loan involving a group practice facility covered by a mortgage insured under title XI may also be made for the purpose of financing equipment to be used in the operation of such nursing home or facility.

(b) To be eligible for insurance under this section, a supplemental loan shall—

(1) be limited to 90 per centum of the amount which the Secretary estimates will be the value of such improvements, additions, and equipment, except that such amount, when added to the outstanding balance of the mortgage covering the project or facility, shall not exceed the maximum mortgage amount insurable under the section or title pursuant to which the mortgage covering such project or facility is insured;

(2) have a maturity satisfactory to the Secretary but not to exceed the remaining term of the mortgage;

(3) bear interest (exclusive of premium charges for insurance and service charges, if any) at not to exceed such per centum per annum (not in excess of 6 per centum), on the amount of the principal obligation outstanding at any time, as the Secretary finds necessary to meet market conditions;

(4) be secured in such manner as the Secretary may require;

(5) be governed by the labor standards provisions of section 212 that are applicable to the section or title pursuant to which the mortgage covering the project or facility is insured; and

(6) contain such other terms, conditions, and restrictions as the Secretary may prescribe.

(c) The provisions of subsections (d), (e), (g), (h), (i), (j), (k), (l), and (n) of section 207 shall be applicable to loans insured under this section, except that (1) all references to the term "mortgage" shall be construed to refer to the term "loan" as used in this section, (2) loans involving projects covered by a mortgage insured under section 213 that is the obligation of the Cooperative Management Housing Insurance Fund shall be insured under and shall be the obligation of such fund, and (3) loans involving projects covered by a mortgage insured under section 236 shall be insured under and shall be the obligation of the Special Risk Insurance Fund.

MORTGAGE INSURANCE FOR NONPROFIT HOSPITALS

SEC. 242. (a) The purpose of this section is to assist the provision of urgently needed hospitals for the care and treatment of persons who are acutely ill or who otherwise require medical care and related services of the kind customarily furnished only (or most effectively) by hospitals.

(b) For the purposes of this section—

(1) the term "hospital" means a facility—

(A) which provides community service for inpatient medical care of the sick or injured (including obstetrical care);

(B) not more than 50 per centum of the total patient days of which during any year are customarily assignable to the categories of chronic convalescent and rest, drug and alcoholic, epileptic, mentally deficient, mental, nervous and mental, and tuberculosis; and

(C) which is owned and operated by one or more nonprofit corporations or associations, no part of the net earnings of which inures, or may lawfully inure, to the benefit of any private shareholder or individual; and

(2) the terms "mortgage" and "mortgagor" shall have the meanings respectively set forth in section 207 (a) of this Act, except that the mortgage, by the same instrument or by a separate instrument, may create a security interest in initial equipment, whether or not attached to the realty.

(c) The Secretary is authorized to insure any mortgage (including advances on such mortgage during construction) in accordance with the provisions of this section upon such terms and conditions as he may prescribe and to make commitments for insurance of such mortgage prior to the date of its execution or disbursement thereon.

(d) In order to carry out the purpose of this section, the Secretary is authorized to insure any mortgage which covers a new or rehabilitated hospital, subject to the following conditions:

(1) The mortgage shall be executed by a mortgagor approved by the Secretary. The Secretary may in his discretion require any such mortgagor to be regulated or restricted as to charges and methods of financing, and, in addition thereto, if the mortgagor is a corporate entity, as to capital structure and rate of return. As an aid to the regulation or restriction of any mortgagor with respect to any of the foregoing matters, the Secretary may make such contracts with and acquire for not to exceed $100 such stock or interest in such mortgagor as he may deem necessary. Any stock or interest so purchased shall be paid for out of the General Insurance Fund, and shall be redeemed by the mortgagor at par upon the termination of all obligations of the Secretary under the insurance.

(2) The mortgage shall involve a principal obligation in an amount not to exceed $25,000,000 and not to exceed 90 per centum of the estimated replacement cost of the property or project, including equipment to be used in the operation of the hospital, when the proposed improvements are completed and the equipment is installed.

(3) The mortgage shall—

(A) provide for complete amortization by periodic payments within such term as the Secretary shall prescribe, and

(B) bear interest (exclusive of premium charges for insurance and service charges, if any) at not to exceed such per centum per annum (not in excess of 6 per centum), on the amount of the principal obligation outstanding at any time, as the Secretary finds necessary to meet the mortgage market.

(4) The Secretary shall not insure any mortgage under this section unless he has received, from the State agency designated in accordance with section 604(a)(1) of the Public Health Service Act for the State in which it is located the hospital covered by the mortgage, a certification that (1) there is a need for such hospital, and (2) there are in force in such State or the political subdivision of the State in which the proposed hospital would be located reasonable minimum standards of licensure and methods of operation for hospitals. No such mortgage shall be insured under this secion unless the Secretary has received such assurance as he may deem satisfactory from the State agency that such standards will be applied and enforced with respect to any hospital located in the State for which mortgage insurance is provided under this section.

(e) The Secretary may consent to the release of a part or parts of the mortgaged property or project from the lien of any mortgage insured under this section upon such terms and conditions as he may prescribe.

(f) The activities and functions provided for in this section shall be carried out by the agencies involved so as to encourage programs that undertake responsibility to provide comprehensive health care, including outpatient and preventive care, as well as hospitalization, to a defined population.

(g) The provisions of subsections (d), (e), (g), (h), (i), (j), (k), (l), and (n) of section 207 shall apply to mortgages insured under this section and all references therein to section 207 shall be deemed to refer to this section.

TITLE III—[FEDERAL] NATIONAL MORTGAGE [ASSOCIATION] ASSOCIATIONS

PURPOSES

SEC. 301. The Congress hereby declares that the purposes of this title are to establish [in the Federal Government a] secondary market [facility] facilities for home mortgages, to provide that the operations [of such facility] thereof shall be financed by private capital to the maximum extent feasible, and to authorize such [facility] facilities to—

(a) provide supplementary assistance to the secondary market for home mortgages by providing a degree of liquidity for mortgage investments, thereby improving the distribution of investment capital available for home mortgage financing;

(b) provide special assistance (when, and to the extent that, the President has determined that it is in the public interest) for the financing of (1) selected types of home mortgages (pending the establishment of their marketability) originated under special housing programs designed to provide housing of acceptable standards at full economic costs for segments of the national population which are unable to obtain adequate housing under established home financing programs, and (2) home mortgages generally as a means of retarding or stopping a decline in mortgage lending and home building activities which threatens materially the stability of a high level national economy; and

(c) manage and liquidate [the existing mortgage portfolio of the Federal National Mortgage Association] federally owned mortgage portfolios in an orderly manner, with a minimum of adverse effect upon the home mortgage market and minimum loss to the Federal Government.

CREATION OF ASSOCIATION

SEC. 302. (a)(1) There is hereby created a body corporate to be known as the "Federal National Mortgage Association" [(hereinafter referred to as the "Association")], which shall be in the Department of Housing and Urban Development. The Association shall have succession until dissolved by Act of Congress. It shall maintain its principal office in the District of Columbia and shall be deemed, for purposes of venue in civil actions, to be a resident thereof. Agencies or offices may be established by the Association in such other place or places as it may deem necessary or appropriate in the conduct of its business.

(2) On the effective date established pursuant to section 708 of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968, the body corporate described in the foregoing paragraph shall cease to exist in that form and is hereby partitioned into two separate and distinct bodies corporate, each of which shall have continuity and corporate succession as a separated portion of the previously existing body corporate, as follows:

(A) One of such separated portions shall be a body corporate without capital stock to be known as Government National Mortgage Association (hereinafter referred to as the Association), which shall be in the Department of Housing and Urban Development and which shall retain the assets and liabilities acquired and incurred under sections 305 and 306 prior to such effective date, including any and all liabilities incurred pursuant to section 302(c). The Association shall have succession until dissolved by Act of Congress. It shall maintain its principal office in the District of Columbia and shall be deemed, for purposes of venue in civil actions, to be a resident thereof. Agencies or offices may be established by the Association in such other place or places as it may deem necessary or appropriate in the conduct of its business.

(B) The other such separated portion shall be a body corporate to be known as Federal National Mortgage Association (hereinafter referred to as the corporation), which shall retain the assets and liabilities acquired and incurred under sections 303 and 304 prior to such effective date. The corporation shall have succession until dissolved by Act of Congress. It shall maintain its principal office in the District of Columbia and shall be deemed, for purposes of venue in civil actions, to be a resident thereof.

(b) For the purposes set forth in section 301 and subject to the limitations and restrictions of this title, [the Association] each of the bodies corporate named in subsection (a)(2) is authorized, pursuant to commitments or otherwise, to purchase, [lend (under section 304) on the security of,] service, sell, or otherwise deal in any mortgages which are insured under the National Housing Act or title V of the Housing Act of 1949, or which are insured or guaranteed under the Servicemen's Readjustment Act of 1944 or chapter 37 of title 38, United States Code*; and the corporation is authorized to lend on the security of any such mortgages and to purchase, sell, or otherwise deal in any securities guaranteed by the Association under section 306(g)* : Provided, That (1) [no mortgage may be purchased] the Association may not purchase any mortgage at a price exceeding 100 per centum of the unpaid principal amount thereof at the time of purchase, with adjustments for interest and any comparable item; (2) the Association may not purchase any mortgage, except a mortgage insured under title V of the Housing Act of 1949, if it is offered by, or covers property held by, a State, territorial, or municipal instrumentality; and (3) the Association may not purchase any mortgage under section 305, except a mortgage insured under section 220 or title VIII, or under title X with respect to a new community approved under section 1004 thereof, or insured under section 213 and covering property located in an urban renewal area, or a mortgage covering property located in Alaska, Guam, or Hawaii, if the original principal obligation thereof exceeds or exceeded $17,500 for each family residence or dwelling unit covered by the mortgage (plus an additional $2,500 for each such family residence or dwelling unit which has four or more bedrooms). Notwithstanding the provisions of clause (3) in the preceding sentence, the Association may purchase a mortgage under section 305 with an original principal obligation that exceeds $17,500 per dwelling unit if the mortgage (1) is a below-market interest rate mortgage insured under section 221(d)(3), and (2) covers property which has the benefit of local tax abatement in an amount determined by the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development to be sufficient to make possible rentals not in excess of those that would be approved by the Secretary if the mortgage amount did not exceed $17,500 per dwelling unit and if local tax abatement were not provided. For the purposes of this title, the terms "mortgages" and "home mortgages" shall be inclusive of any mortgages or other loans insured under any of the provisions of the National Housing Act or title V of the Housing Act of 1949.

(c)(1) Notwithstanding any other provision of this Act or of any other law, the Association is authorized under section 306 to create, accept, execute, and otherwise administer in all respects such trusts, receiverships, conservatorships, liquidating or other agencies, or other fiduciary and representative undertakings and activities, hereinafter in this subsection called "trusts", as might be appropriate for financing purposes; and in relation thereto the Association may acquire, hold and manage, dispose of, and otherwise deal in any mortgages or other types of obligations in which any department or agency of the United States listed in paragraph (2) of this subsection may have a financial interest. The Association may join in any such undertakings and activities notwithstanding that it is also serving in a fiduciary or representative capacity; and is authorized[, consistent with section 307,] to guarantee any participations or other instruments, whether evidence of property rights or debt, issued for such financing purposes. Participations or other instruments issued by the Association pursuant to this subsection shall to the same extent as securities which are direct obligations of or obligations guaranteed as to principal or interest by the United States be deemed to be exempt securities within the meaning of laws administered by the Securities and Exchange Commission. The amounts of any mortgages and other obligations acquired by the Association under section 306, pursuant to this subsection, shall not be included in the total amounts set forth in section 306(c).

(2) Subject to the limitations provided in paragraph (4) of this subsection, one or more trusts may be established as provided in this subsection by each of the following departments or agencies:

(A) The Farmers Home Administration of the Department of Agriculture, but only with respect to operating loans, direct farm ownership loans, direct housing loans, and direct soil and water loans. Such trusts may not be established with respect to loans for housing for the elderly under sections 502 and 515(a) of the Housing Act of 1949, nor with respect to loans for nonfarm recreational development.

(B) The Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, but only with respect to loans made by the Commissioner of Education for construction of academic facilities, and loans to help finance student loan programs.

(C) The Department of Housing and Urban Development[, except that such authority may not be used with respect to secondary market operations of the Federal National Mortgage Association].

(D) The Veterans' Administration.

(E) The Export-Import Bank.

(F) The Small Business Administration.

The head of each such department or agency, hereinafter in this subsection called the "trustor", is authorized to set aside a part or all of any obligations held by him and subject them to a trust or trusts and, incident thereto, shall guarantee to the trustee timely payment thereof. The trust instrument may provide for the issuance and sale of beneficial interests or participations, by the trustee, in such obligations or in the right to receive interest and principal collections therefrom; and may provide for the substitution or withdrawal of such obligations, or for the substitution of cash for obligations. The trust or trusts shall be exempt from all taxation. The trust instrument may also contain other appropriate provisions in keeping with the purposes of this subsection. The Association shall be named and shall act as trustee of any such trusts and, for the purposes thereof, the title to such obligations shall be deemed to have passed to the Association in trust. The trust instrument shall provide that custody, control, and administration of the obligations shall remain in the trustor subjecting the obligations to the trust, subject to transfer to the trustee in event of default or probable default, as determined by the trustee, in the payment of principal and interest of the beneficial interests or participations. Collections from obligations subject to the trust shall be dealt with as provided in the instrument creating the trust. The trust instrument shall provide that the trustee will promptly pay to the trustor the full net proceeds of any sale of beneficial interests or participations to the extent they are based upon such obligations or collections. Such proceeds shall be dealt with as otherwise provided by law for sales or repayment of such obligations. The effect of both past and future sales of any issue of beneficial interests or participations shall be the same, to the extent of the principal of such issue, as the direct sale with recourse of the obligations subject to the trust. Any trustor creating a trust or trusts hereunder is authorized to purchase, through the facilities of the trustee, outstanding beneficial interests or participations to the extent of the amount of his responsibility to the trustee on beneficial interests or participations outstanding, and to pay his proper share of the costs and expenses incurred by the [Federal National Mortgage] Association as trustee pursuant to the trust instrument.

(3) When any trustor guarantees to the trustee the timely payment of obligations he subjects to a trust pursuant to this subsection, and it becomes necessary for such trustor to meet his responsibilities under such guaranty, he is authorized to fulfill such guaranty.

(4) Beneficial interests or participations shall not be issued for the account of any trustor in an aggregate principal amount greater than is authorized with respect to such trustor in an appropriation Act. Any such authorization shall remain available only for the fiscal year for which it is granted and for the succeeding fiscal year.

(5) The Association, as trustee, is authorized to issue and sell beneficial interests or participations under this subsection, notwithstanding that there may be an insufficiency in aggregate receipts from obligations subject to the related trust to provide for the payment by the trustee (on a timely basis out of current receipts or otherwise) of all interest or principal on such interests or participations (after provision for all costs and expenses incurred by the trustee, fairly prorated among trustors). There are authorized to be appropriated without fiscal year limitation such sums as may be necessary to enable any trustor to pay the trustee such insufficiency as the trustee may require on account of outstanding beneficial interests or participations authorized to be issued pursuant to paragraph (4) of this subsection. Such trustor shall make timely payments to the trustee from such appropriations, subject to and in accord with the trust instrument. In the event that the insufficiency required by the trustee is on account of principal maturities of outstanding beneficial interests or participations authorized to be issued pursuant to paragraph (4) of this subsection, or pursuant hereto, the trustee is authorized to elect to issue additional beneficial interests or participations for refinancing purposes in lieu of requiring any trustor or trustors to make payments to the trustee from appropriated funds or other sources. Each such issue of beneficial interests or participations shall be in an amount determined by the trustee but not in excess of the aggregate amount which the trustee would otherwise require the trustor or trustors to pay from appropriated funds or other sources, and may be issued without regard to the provisions of paragraph (4) of this subsection. All refinancing issues of beneficial interests or participations shall be deemed to have been issued pursuant to the authority contained in the appropriation Act or Acts under which the beneficial interests or participations were originally issued.

CAPITALIZATION—FEDERAL NATIONAL MORTGAGE ASSOCIATION

SEC. 303. (a) The [Association] corporation shall have [nonvoting] common stock, without par value, which shall be vested with all voting rights, each share being entitled to one vote with rights of cumulative voting at all elections of directors; and initially shall also have nonvoting preferred stock, with a par value of $100 per share, to which the Secretary of the Treasury shall subscribe as provided in subsections (d) and (e) of this section. [All stock of the Association shall have a par value of $100 per share, and shall not be transferable except on the books of the Association. At the option of the Association all such stock shall be retirable at par value at any time, except that retirements of common stock shall not be made if, as a consequence, the amount thereof remaining outstanding would be less than $100,000,000.] The free transferability of the common stock at all times to any person, firm, corporation, or other entity shall not be restricted except that, as to the corporation, it shall be transferable only on the books of the corporation. With respect to the preferred stock held by him, the Secretary of the Treasury shall be entitled to cumulative dividends for each fiscal year or portion thereof, from the date or dates the capital represented by such preferred stock is initially utilized until such preferred stock is retired, at rates determined by him at the beginning of each such fiscal year, taking into consideration the current average interest rate on outstanding marketable obligations of the United States as of the last day of the preceding fiscal year. The Secretary of the Treasury shall permit the retirement of the preferred stock held by him in the manner provided in this section. Funds [of the capital surplus and the general surplus accounts] of the [Association] corporation shall be available to retire, at par, the preferred stock held by the Secretary of the Treasury as rapidly as [the Association shall deem feasible] possible subsequent to the effective date established pursuant to section 708 of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968. Concurrently with the retirement of the last of such outstanding shares of preferred stock, the [Association] corporation shall pay to the Secretary of the Treasury for covering into miscellaneous receipts an amount equal to that part of the general surplus and reserves of the [Association] corporation (other than reserves established to provide for any depreciation in value of its assets, including mortgages) which shall be deemed to have been earned through the use of the capital represented by the shares held by him from time to time. The amount of such payment shall be determined by applying to such surplus and reserves that percentage which is equivalent to the proportion borne by the employed capital represented by the Secretary of the Treasury's stock to the total employed capital of the [Association] corporation, computed monthly for the period from the cutoff date determined pursuant to section 303(d) of this title to the aforesaid retirement of the last of the out standing shares of preferred stock of the [Association] corporation.

(b) The [Association] corporation shall accumulate funds for its capital surplus account from private and other sources by requiring each mortgage seller to make payments of nonrefundable capital contributions, equal to not more than 2 per centum nor less than 1 per centum of the unpaid principal amounts of mortgages purchased or to be purchased by the [Association] corporation from such seller under section 304, as determined from time to time by the [Association] corporation, taking into consideration conditions in the mortgage market and the general economy; and by requiring each borrower to make such payments, equal to not more than one-half of 1 per centum of the amount lent by the [Association] corporation to such borrower under section 304. In addition, the [Association] corporation may impose charges or fees [for its services], which may be regarded as elements of pricing, with the objective that all costs and expenses of its operations should be within its income derived from such operations and that such operations should be fully self-supporting. All earnings from the operations of the [Association] corporation shall annually be transferred to its general surplus account. At any time, funds of the general surplus account may, in the discretion of the board of directors, be transferred to reserves. All dividends shall be charged against the general surplus account. [This subsection (b) shall be subject to the exceptions set forth in section 307 of this title.]

(c) The [Association] corporation shall issue from time to time, to each mortgage seller or borrower, its common stock [only in denominations of $100 or multiples thereof] evidencing any capital contributions (adjusted by reason of any payments into surplus required by the [Association] corporation) made by such seller or borrower pursuant to subsection (b) of this section. In addition to the shares of common stock issued under the foregoing sentence, the corporation may issue additional shares in return for appropriate payments into capital or capital and surplus. The corporation shall at all times require each servicer of its mortgages to own a minimum amount of common stock of the corporation, measured by its stated value. Such minimum amount shall not exceed 2 per centum, as determined from time to time by the corporation with the approval of the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development, of the aggregate outstanding principal balances of all mortgages of the corporation which have been purchased subsequent to the effective date established pursuant to section 708 of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968 and which are then serviced by such servicer for the corporation. Such dividends as may be declared by the board of directors in its discretion shall be paid by the [Association] corporation to the holders of its common stock, but in any one fiscal year [the general surplus account of the Association shall not be reduced through the payment of dividends applicable to such common stock which exceed in the aggregate 5 per centum of the par value of the outstanding common stock of the Association] the aggregate amount of cash dividends paid on account of any share of such stock shall not exceed any rate which may be determined from time to time by the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development to be a fair rate of return after consideration of the current earnings and capital condition of the corporation: Provided, That pending the retirement of all the outstanding preferred stock of the [Association] corporation such percentage with respect to any one fiscal year shall not exceed the precentage rate of the cumulative dividend applicable to the preferred stock of the [Association] corporation for that fiscal year.

(d) Within ninety days following the effective date of the Housing Act of 1954, as of the day following a cutoff date to be determined by the [Association] corporation, the [Association] corporation is authorized and directed to issue and deliver to the Secretary of the Treasury, and the Secretary of the Treasury is authorized and directed to accept, preferred stock of the [Association] corporation having an aggregate par value equal to the sum of (1) the amount of $21,000,000 (being the amount of the original subscription for capital stock of $20,000,000 and paid-in surplus of $1,000,000 of the [Association] corporation) and (2) an amount equal to the [Association's] corporation's surplus, surplus reserves, and undistributed earnings, computed as of the close of the cutoff date. In addition to the preferred stock provided for in the first sentence of this subsection, the [Association] corporation is authorized and directed to issue and deliver to the Secretary of the Treasury, and the Secretary of the Treasury is authorized and directed to accept, preferred stock of the [Association] corporation having an aggregate par value equal to $225,000,000*; but no such stock may be issued subsequent to the effective date established pursuant to section 708 of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968.*

(e) The preferred stock of the [Association] corporation delivered to the Secretary of the Treasury pursuant to the first sentence of subsection (d) of this section shall be in exchange for (1) the note or notes evidencing the aforesaid original $21,000,000 (upon which the accrued interest shall have been paid through the cutoff date referred to in subsection (d) of this section), and (2) the release to the [Association] corporation of any and all rights or claims which the United States might otherwise have or claim in and to the [Association's] corporation's capital, surplus, surplus reserves, and undistributed earnings, computed as of the close of the aforesaid cutoff date. The preferred stock of the [Association] corporation delivered to the Secretary of the Treasury pursuant to the second sentence of subsection (d) of this section shall be in exchange for a note or notes of the [Association] corporation, aggregating $225,000,000 in principal amount (and upon which the accrued interest shall have been paid through the date of delivery), held by the Secretary of the Treasury pursuant to the authority contained in section 304(c).

(f) Notwithstanding any other provision of law, any institution, including a national bank or State member bank of the Federal Reserve System or any member of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, trust company, or other banking organization, organized under any law of the United States, including the laws relating to the District of Columbia, shall be authorized to make payments to the [Association] corporation of the nonrefundable capital contributions referred to in subsection (b) of this section, to receive stock of the [Association] corporation evidencing such capital contributions, to purchase additional shares of such stock, and to hold or dispose of such stock, subject to the provisions of this title.

[(g) As promptly as practicable after all of the preferred stock of the Association held by the Secretary of the Treasury has been retired, the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development shall transmit to the President for submission to the Congress recommendations for such legislation as may be necessary or desirable to make appropriate provisions to transfer to the owners of the outstanding common stock of the Association the assets and liabilities of the Association in connection with, and the control and management of, the secondary market operations of the Association under section 304 of this title in order that such operations may thereafter be carried out by a privately financed corporation.]

SECONDARY MARKET OPERATIONS—FEDERAL NATIONAL MORTGAGE ASSOCIATION

SEC. 304. (a)(1) To carry out the purposes set forth in paragraph (a) of section 301, the operations of the [Association] corporation under this section shall be confined, so far as practicable, to mortgages which are deemed by the [Association] corporation to be of such quality, type, and class as to meet, generally, the purchase standards imposed by private institutional mortgage investors [and the Association shall not purchase any mortgage insured or guaranteed prior to the effective date of the Housing Act of 1954]. In the interest of assuring sound operation, the prices to be paid by the [Association] corporation for mortgages purchased in its secondary market operations under this section, should be established, from time to time, within the range of market prices for the particular class of mortgages involved, as determined by the [Association] corporation. The volume of the [Association's] corporation's purchases and sales, and the establishment of the purchase prices, sale prices, and charges or fees, in its secondary market operations under this section, should be determined by the [Association] corporation from time to time, and such determinations should be consistent with the objectives that such purchases and sales should be effected only at such prices and on such terms as will reasonably prevent excessive use of the [Association's] corporation's facilities, and that the operations of the [Association] corporation under this section should be within its income derived from such operations and that such operations should be fully self-supporting.

(2) In the further interest of assuring sound operation, any loan made by the [Association] corporation in its secondary market opera- made by the [Association] corporation in its secondary market operations under this section, and any extension or renewal thereof, shall not exceed 90 per centum of the unpaid principal balances of the mortgages securing the loan, and shall bear interest at a rate consistent with general loan policies established from time to time by the [Association's] corporation's board of directors. Any such loan shall mature in not more than twelve months and the term of any extension or renewal shall not exceed twelve months. The volume of the [Association's] corporation's lending activities and the establishment of its loan ratios, interest rates, maturities, and charges or fees, in its secondary market operations under this section, should be determined by the [Association] corporation from time to time; and such determinations, in conjunction with determinations made under paragraph (1) should be consistent with the objectives that the lending activities should be conducted on such terms as will reasonably prevent excessive use of the [Association's] corporation's facilities, and that the operations of the [Association] corporation under this section should be within its income derived from such operations and that such operations should be fully self-supporting. Notwithstanding any Federal, State, or other law to the contrary, the [Association] corporation is hereby empowered, in connection with any loan under this section, whether before or after any default, to provide by contract with the borrower for the settlement or extinguishment, upon default, of any redemption, equitable, legal, or other right, title, or interest of the borrower in any mortgage or mortgages that constitute the security for the loan; and with respect to any such loan, in the event of default and pursuant otherwise to the terms of the contract, the mortgages that constitute such security shall become the absolute property of the [Association] corporation.

(b) For the purposes of this section, the [Association] corporation is authorized to issue, upon the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury, and have outstanding at any one time obligations having such maturities and bearing such rate or rates of interest as may be determined by the [Association] corporation with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury, to be redeemable at the option of the [Association] corporation before maturity in such manner as may be stipulated in such obligations; but the aggregate amount of obligations of the [Association] corporation under this subsection outstanding at any one time shall not exceed fifteen times the sum of its capital, capital surplus, general surplus, reserves, and undistributed earnings [, and in] unless a greater ratio shall be fixed at any time or from time to time by its board of directors. In no event shall any such obligations be issued if, at the time of such proposed issuance, and as a consequence thereof, the resulting aggregate amount of its outstanding obligations under this subsection would exceed the amount of the [Association's] corporation's ownership pursuant to this section, free from any liens or encumbrances, of cash, mortgages, or other security holdings and obligations of the United States or guaranteed thereby, or obligations, participations, or other instruments which are lawful investments for fiduciary, trust, or public funds. The [Association] corporation shall insert appropriate language in all of its obligations issued under this subsection clearly indicating that such obligations, together with the interest thereon, are not guaranteed by the United States and do not constitute a debt or obligation of the United States or of any agency or instrumentality thereof other than the [Association] corporation. The [Association] corporation is authorized to purchase in the open market any of its obligations outstanding under this subsection at any time and at any price.

(c) The Secretary of the Treasury is authorized in his discretion to purchase any obligations issued pursuant to subsection (b) of this section, as now or hereafter in force, and for such purpose the Secretary of the Treasury is authorized to use as a public debt transaction the proceeds of the sale of any securities hereafter issued under the Second Liberty Bond Act as now or hereafter in force, and the purposes for which securities may be issued under the Second Liberty Bond Act, as now or hereafter in force, are extended to include such purchases. The Secretary of the Treasury shall not at any time purchase any obligations under this subsection if [(1) all of the preferred stock of the Association held by the Secretary of the Treasury has been retired, or (2)] such purchase would increase the aggregate principal amount of his then outstanding holdings of such obligations under this subsection to an amount greater than $2,250,000,000. Each purchase of obligations by the Secretary of the Treasury under this subsection shall be upon such terms and conditions as to yield a return at a rate determined by the Secretary of the Treasury taking into consideration the current average rate on outstanding marketable obligations of the United States as of the last day of the month preceding the making of such purchase. The Secretary of the Treasury may, at any time, sell, upon such terms and conditions and at such price or prices as he shall determine any of the obligations acquired by him under this subsection. All redemptions, purchases, and sales by the Secretary of the Treasury of such obligations under this subsection shall be treated as public debt transactions of the United States.

(d) To provide a greater degree of liquidity to the mortgage investment market and an additional means of financing its operations under this section, the corporation is authorized to set aside any mortgages held by it under this section, and, upon approval of the Secretary of the Treasury, to issue and sell securities based upon the mortgages so set aside. Securities issued under this subsection may be in the form of debt obligations or trust certificates of beneficial interest, or both. Securities issued under this subsection shall have maturities and bear such rate or rates of interest as may be determined by the corporation with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury. Securities issued by the corporation under this subsection shall, to the same extent as securities which are direct obligations of or obligations guaranteed as to principal and interest by the United States, be deemed to be exempt securities within the meaning of laws administered by the Securities and Exchange Commission. Mortgages set aside pursuant to this subsection shall at all times be adequate to enable the corporation to make timely principal and interest payments on the securities issued and sold pursuant to this subsection.

(e) For the purposes of this section, the corporation is authorized to issue, upon the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury, obligations which are subordinated to any or all other obligations of the corporation, including subsequent obligations. The obligations issued under this subsection shall have such maturities and bear such rate or rates of interest as may be determined by the corporation with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury and may be made redeemable at the option of the corporation before maturity in such manner as may be stipulated in such obligations. Any of such obligations may be made convertible into shares of common stock in such manner, at such price or prices, and at such time or times as may be stipulated therein. The total principal amount of such subordinated obligations which may be outstanding at any one time shall not exceed two times the sum of the (1) capital of the corporation represented by its outstanding common stock and (2) its surplus and undistributed earnings at such time. The outstanding total principal amount of such obligations which are entirely subordinated to the obligations of the corporation issued or to be issued under subsection (b) shall be deemed to be capital of the corporation for the purpose of determining the aggregate amount of obligations issued under subsection (b) which may be outstanding at any one time. Obligations issued by the corporation under this subsection shall, to the same extent as securities which are direct obligations of or obligations guaranteed as to principal or interest by the United States, be deemed to be exempt securities within the meaning of laws administered by the Securities and Exchange Commission. The corporation shall insert appropriate language in all of its obligations issued under this subsection clearly indicating that such obligations, together with the interest thereon, are not guaranteed by the United States and do not constitute a debt or obligation of the United States or of any agency or instrumentality thereof other than the corporation. The corporation is authorized to purchase in the open market any of its obligations outstanding under this subsection at any time and at any price.

SPECIAL ASSISTANCE FUNCTIONS—

GOVERNMENT NATIONAL MORTGAGE ASSOCIATION

* * * * * * *

(c) The total amount of purchase and commitments authorized by the President pursuant to subsection (a) of this section shall not exceed $1,700,000,000 outstanding at any one time, which limit shall be increased by $100,000,000 on the date of the enactment of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965, by $550,000,000 on July 1, 1967, [and] by $525,000,000 on July 1, 1968, and by $500,000,000 on July 1, 1969.

* * * * * * *

(i) In any case where the Association makes a commitment to purchase under this section (1) a mortgage insured under section 213, (2) a mortgage insured under section 220, [or] (3) a mortgage insured under section 221(d)(3) and executed by a cooperative (including an investor-sponsor), a limited dividend corporation, a private non-profit corporation or association, or a mortgagor qualified under section 221(e), or (4) a mortgage insured under section 236, such commitment may provide for participation by the Association in the making of insured advances on the mortgage during construction. Such participation shall be limited to 95 per centum of the amount of each of the advances involved, and the mortgagee providing the balance of such amount shall perform all necessary servicing and processing of such advances until the final insurance endorsement of the mortgage. The Secretary of Housing and Urban Development shall approve the reasonableness of the fee to be paid a participating mortgagee, taking into account its services and the extent of its participation in the advances.

MANAGEMENT AND LIQUIDATING FUNCTIONS—GOVERNMENT NATIONAL MORTGAGE ASSOCIATION

* * * * * * *

(g) The Association is authorized, upon such terms and conditions as it may deem appropriate, to guarantee the timely payment of principal of and interest on such trust certificates or other securities as shall (1) be issued by the corporation under section 304(d), or by any other issuer approved for the purposes of this subsection by the Association, and (2) be based on and backed by a trust or pool composed of mortgages which are insured under the National Housing Act or title V of the Housing Act of 1949, or which are insured or guaranteed under the Servicemen's Readjustment Act of 1944 or chapter 37 of title 38, United States Code. The Association shall collect from the issuer a reasonable fee for any guaranty under this subsection and shall make such charges as it may determine to be reasonable for the analysis of any trust or other security arrangement proposed by the issuer. In the event the issuer is unable to make any payment of principal of or interest on any security guaranteed under this subsection, the Association shall make such payment as and when due in cash, and thereupon shall be subrogated fully to the rights satisfied by such payment. Any Federal, State, or other law to the contrary notwithstanding, the Association is hereby empowered, in connection with any guaranty under this subsection, whether before or after any default, to provide by contracts with the issuer for the extinguishment, upon default by the issuer, of any redemption, equitable, legal, or other right, title, or interest of the issuer in any mortgage or mortgages constituting the trust or pool against which the guaranteed securities are issued; and with respect to any issue of guaranteed securities, in the event of default and pursuant otherwise to the terms of the contract, the mortgages that constitute such trust or pool shall become the absolute property of the Association subject only to the unsatified rights of the holders of the securities based on and backed by such trust or pool. the full faith and credit of the United States is pledged to the payment of all amounts which may be required to be paid under any guaranty under this subsection. There shall be excluded from the total amounts set forth in subsection (c) the amounts of any mortgages acquired by the Association as a result of its operations under this subsection.

SEPARATE ACCOUNTABILITY

[SEC. 307. (a) The association shall establish and at all times maintain separate accountability for (1) its secondary market operations authorized by section 304 hereof, (2) its special assistance functions authorized by section 305 hereof, and (3) its management and liquidating functions authorized by section 306 hereof.

[(b) With respect to the functions or operations of the Association under sections 305 and 306, respectively, of this title, (1) there shall be no recourse to the capitalization of the Association provided for by section 303 of this title, and (2) mortgage sellers shall not be required to make payment to the Association of the capital contributions provided for by section 303(b) of this title.]

[(c)] SEC. 307. All of the benefits and burdens incident to the administration of the functions and operations of the Association under sections 305 and 306, respectively of this title, after allowance for related obligations of the Association, its prorated expenses, and the like, including amounts required for the establishment of such reserves as the [board of directors of the Association] Secretary of Housing and Urban Development shall deem appropriate, shall inure solely to the Secretary of the Treasury, and such related earnings or other amounts as become available shall be paid annually by the Association to the Secretary of the Treasury for covering into miscellaneous receipts.

[BOARD OF DIRECTORS] MANAGEMENT

SEC. 308. (a) [The] All the powers and duties of the Government National Mortgage Association shall [have a Board of Directors consisting of five persons, one of whom shall] be vested in the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development and the Association shall be administered under the direction of the Secretary [as Chairman of the Board, and four of whom shall be appointed by the Secretary from among the officers or employees of the Association, of the immediate office of the Secretary, or (with the consent of the head of such department or agency) of any other department or agency of the Federal Government. The board of directors shall meet at the call of its chairman, who shall require it to meet not less often than once each month.] Within the limitations of law, the [board] Secretary shall determine the general policies which shall govern the operations of the Association, and shall have power to adopt, amend, and repeal bylaws governing the performance of the powers and duties granted to or imposed upon it by law. The [chairman of the board] Secretary shall select and effect the appointment of qualified persons to fill the offices of president and vice president, and such other offices as may be provided for in the bylaws, with such executive functions, powers, and duties as may be prescribed by the bylaws or by the [board of directors] Secretary, and such persons shall be the executive officers of the Association and shall discharge all such executive functions, powers, and duties. [The members of the board, as such, shall not receive compensation for their services.]

(b) The Federal National Mortgage Association shall have a board of directors which shall consist of fifteen persons, one-third of whom shall be appointed annually by the President of the United States, and the remainder of whom shall be elected annually by the common stockholders. The board shall at all times have as members appointed by the President at least one person from the homebuilding industry and at least one person from the real estate industry. Each member of the board of directors shall be appointed or elected for a term ending on the date of the next annual meeting of the stockholders, except that any such member may be removed from office by the Secretary for good cause. Any elective seat on the board which becomes vacant after the annual election of the directors shall be filled by the board, but only for the unexpired portion of the term. Any appointive seat which becomes vacant shall be filled by appointment of the President, but only for the unexpired portion of the term. Within the limitations of law and regulation, the board shall determine the general policies which shall govern the operations of the corporation, and shall have power to adopt, amend, and repeal bylaws governing the performance of the powers and duties granted to or imposed upon it by law. The board of directors shall select and effect the appointment of qualified persons to fill the offices of president and vice president, and such other offices as may be provided for in the bylaws. Any member of the board who is a full-time officer or employee of the Federal Government shall not, as such member, receive compensation for his services.

GENERAL POWERS

SEC. 309. (a) [The Association] Each of the bodies corporate named in section 302(a)(2) shall have power to adopt, alter, and use a corporate seal, which shall be judicially noticed; [by its board of directors, to adopt, amend, and repeal bylaws governing the performance of the powers and duties granted to or imposed upon it by law;] to enter into and perform contracts, leases, cooperative agreements, or other transactions, on such terms as it may deem appropriate, with any agency or instrumentality of the United States, or with any State, Territory, or possession, or the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, or with any political subdivision thereof, or with any person, firm, association, or corporation; to execute, in accordance with its bylaws, all instruments necessary or appropriate in the exercise of any of its powers; in its corporate name, to sue and to be sued, and to complain and to defend, in any court of competent jurisdiction, State or Federal, but no attachment, injunction, or other similar process, mesne or final, shall be issued against the property of the Association or against the Association with respect to its property; to conduct its business without regard to any qualification or similar statute in any State of the United States, including the District of Columbia, the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, and the Territories and possessions of the United States; to lease, purchase, or acquire any property, real, personal, or mixed, or any interest therein, to hold, rent, maintain, modernize, renovate, improve, use, and operate such property, and to sell, for cash or credit, lease, or otherwise dispose of the same, at such time and in such manner as and to the extent that [the Association] it may deem necessary or appropriate; to prescribe, repeal, and amend or modify, rules, regulations, or requirements governing the manner in which its general business may be conducted; to accept gifts or donations of services, or of property, real, personal, or mixed, tangible, or intangible, in aid of any of [the] its purposes [of the Association]; and to do all things as are necessary or incidental to the proper management of its affairs and the proper conduct of its business.

(b) Except as may be otherwise provided in this title, in the Government Corporation Control Act, or in other laws specifically applicable to Government corporations, the Association shall determine the necessity for and the character and amount of its obligations and expenditures and the manner in which they shall be incurred, allowed, paid, and accounted for.

(c)(1) The Association, including its franchise, capital, reserves, surplus, mortgages or other security holdings, and income shall be exempt from all taxation now or hereafter imposed by the United States, by any territory, dependency, or possession thereof, or by any State, county, municipality, or local taxing authority, except that [(1)] any real property of the Association shall be subject to State, territorial, county, municipal, or local taxation to the same extent according to its value as other real property is taxed[, and (2) the Association shall, with respect to its secondary market operations under section 304 after the cutoff date referred to in section 303(d) of this title, pay annually to the Secretary of the Treasury, for covering into miscellaneous receipts, an amount equivalent to the amount of Federal income taxes for which it would be subject if it were not exempt from such taxes with respect to such secondary market operations].

(2) The corporation, including its franchise, capital, reserves, surplus, mortgages or other security holdings, and income, shall be exempt from all taxation now or hereafter imposed by any State, territory, possession, Commonwealth, or dependency of the United States, or by the District of Columbia, or by any county, municipality, or local taxing authority, except that any real property of the corporation shall be subject to State, territorial, county, municipal, or local taxation to the same extent as other real property is taxed.

(d)(1) The [Chairman of the Board] Secretary of Housing and Urban Development shall have power to select and appoint or employ such officers, attorneys, employees, and agents of the Government National Mortgage Association, to vest them with such powers and duties, and to fix and to cause the Association to pay such compensation to them for their services, as he may determine, subject to the civil service and classification laws. Bonds may be required for the faithful performance of their duties, and the Association may pay the premiums therefor. With the consent of any Government corporation or Federal Reserve bank, or of any board, commission, independent establishment, or executive department of the Government, the Association may avail itself on a reimbursable basis of the use of information, services, facilities, officers, and employees thereof, including any field service thereof, in carrying out the provisions of this title.

(2) The board of directors of the corporation shall have the power to select and appoint or employ such officers, attorneys, employees, and agents, to vest them with such powers and duties, and to fix and to cause the corporation to pay such compensation to them for their services, as it may determine; and any such action shall be without regard to the Federal civil service and classification laws. Appointments, promotions, and separations so made shall be based on merit and efficiency, and no political test or qualification shall be permitted or given consideration. Each officer and employee of the corporation who is employed by the corporation prior to the termination of the transitional period referred to in section 710(b) of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968 and who on the day previous to the beginning to such employment will have been subject to the civil service retirement law (subch. III of ch. 83 of title 5, United States Code), shall, so long as his employment by the corporation continues without a break in continuity of service, continue to be subject to such law; and for the purpose of such law his employment by the corporation without a break in continuity of service shall be deemed to be employment by the Government of the United States. The corporation shall contribute to the Civil Service Retirement and Disability Fund a sum as provided by section 8334(a) of title 5, United States Code, except that such sum shall be determined by applying to the total basic pay (as defined in 5 U.S.C. 8331(3) and except as hereinafter provided) paid to the employees of the corporation who are covered by the civil service retirement law, the per centum rate determined annually by the United States Civil Service Commission to be the excess of the total normal cost per centum rate of the civil service retirement system over the employee deduction rate specified in section 8334(a) of title 5, United States Code. The corporation shall also pay into the Civil Service Retirement and Disability Fund such portion of the cost of administration of the Fund as is determined by the United States Civil Service Commission to be attributable to its employees. Notwithstanding the foregoing provisions, there shall not be considered for the purposes of the civil service law that portion of the basic pay in any one year of any officer or employee of the corporation which exceeds the basic pay provided for in section 5312 of title 5, United States Code, on the last day of such year. Except as provided in this subsection, the corporation shall not be subject to the provisions of title 5, United States Code.

(e) No individual, association, partnership, or corporation, except the [body] bodies corporate [created by] named in section [302] 302(a)(2) of this title, shall hereafter use the words "Federal National Mortgage Association", "Government National Mortgage Association", or any combination of such words as the name or a part thereof under which he or it shall do business. [Every individual, partnership, association, or corporation violating this prohibition shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be punished by a fine of not exceeding $100 or imprisonment not exceeding thirty days, or both, for each day during which such violation is committed or repeated.] Violations of the foregoing sentence may be enjoined by any court of general jurisdiction at the suit of the proper body corporate. In any such suit, the plaintiff may recover any actual damages flowing from such violation, and, in addition, shall be entitled to punitive damages (regardless of the existence or nonexistence of actual damages) of not exceeding $100 for each day during which such violation is committed or repeated.

(f) In order that the Association may be supplied with such forms of obligations or certificates as it may need for issuance under this title, the Secretary of the Treasury is authorized, upon request of the Association, to prepare such forms as shall be suitable and approved by the Association, to be held in the Treasury, subject to delivery, upon order of the Association. The engraved plates, dies, bed pieces, and other material executed in connection therewith shall remain in the custody of the Secretary of the Treasury. The Association shall reimburse the Secretary of the Treasury for any expenses incurred in the preparation, custody, and delivery of such forms.

(g) The Federal Reserve banks are authorized and directed to act as depositaries, custodians, and fiscal agents for [the Association in the general performance of its powers, and the Association shall reimburse such Federal Reserve banks for such services in such manner as may be agreed upon.] each of the bodies corporate named in section 302(a)(2), for its own account or as fiduciary, and such banks shall be reimbursed for such services in such manner as may be agreed upon; and each of such bodies corporate may itself act in such capacities, for its own account or as fiduciary, and for the account of others.

(h) The Secretary of Housing and Urban Development shall have general regulatory power over the Federal National Mortgage Association and shall make such rules and regulations as shall be necessary and proper to insure that the purposes of this title are accomplished. No stock, obligation, security, or other instrument shall be issued by the corporation without the prior approval of the Secretary. The Secretary may require that a reasonable portion of the corporation's mortgage purchases be related to the national goal of providing adequate housing for low- and moderate-income families, but with reasonable economic return to the corporation. The Secretary may examine and audit the books and financial transactions of the corporation, and he may require the corporation to make such reports on its activities as he deems advisable.

INVESTMENT OF FUNDS

SEC. 310. Moneys of the Association not invested in mortgages or other security holdings or in operating facilities shall be kept in cash on hand or on deposit, or invested in obligations of the United States or guaranteed thereby, or in obligations, participations, or other instruments which are lawful investments for fiduciary, trust, or public funds.

OBLIGATIONS OF ASSOCIATION LEGAL INVESTMENTS

SEC. 311. All obligations, participations, or other instruments issued by [the Association] either of the bodies corporate named in section 302(a)(2) shall be lawful investments, and may be accepted as security for all fiduciary, trust, and public funds, the investment or deposit of which shall be under the authority and control of the United States or any officer or officers thereof. All stock, obligations, securities, participations, or other instruments issued pursuant to this title shall, to the same extent as securities which are direct obligations of or obligations guaranteed as to principal or interest by the United States, be deemed to be exempt securities within the meaning of laws administered by the Securities and Exchange Commission; but all such issuances shall be made only with the approval of the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development.

SHORT TITLE

SEC. 312. This title III may be referred to as the "Federal National Mortgage Association Charter Act".

TITLE IV—INSURANCE OF SAVINGS AND LOAN ACCOUNTS

* * * * * * *

SECTION 401. As used in this title—

* * * * * * *

(c) The term "insured account" means a share, certificate, or deposit account of a type approved by the Federal Savings [and Loan] Insurance Corporation which is held by an insured member in an insured institution and which is insured under the provisions of this title.

* * * * * * *

CREATION OF FEDERAL SAVINGS [AND LOAN] INSURANCE CORPORATION

SEC. 402. (a) There is hereby created a Federal Savings [and Loan] Insurance Corporation (hereinafter referred to as the "Corporation"), which shall insure the accounts of institutions eligible for insurance as hereinafter provided, and shall be under the direction of a board of trustees to be composed of five members and operated by it under such bylaws, rules, and regulations as it may prescribe for carrying out the purposes of this title. The members of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board shall constitute the board of trustees of the Corporation and shall serve as such without additional compensation. The principal office of the Corporation shall be in the District of Columbia.

* * * * * * *

(g) No individual, association, partnership, or corporation shall use the words "Federal Savings [and Loan] Insurance Corporation", or any combination of any of these words which would have the effect of leading the public in general to believe there was any connection, actually not existing, between such individual, association, partnership, or corporation and the Federal Savings [and Loan] Insurance Corporation, as the name under which he or it shall hereafter do business. No individual, association, partnership, or corporation shall advertise or otherwise represent falsely by any device whatsoever that his or its accounts are insured or in anywise guaranteed by the Federal Savings [and Loan] Insurance Corporation, or by the Government of the United States, or by any instrumentality thereof; and no insured member shall advertise or otherwise represent falsely by any device whatsoever the extent to which or the manner in which its accounts are insured by the Federal Savings [and Loan] Insurance Corporation. Every individual, partnership, association, or corporation violating this subsection shall be punished by a fine of not exceeding $1,000, or by imprisonment not exceeding one year, or both.

* * * * * * *

INSURANCE OF ACCOUNTS AND ELIGIBILITY PROVISIONS

[SEC. 403. (a) It shall be the duty of the Corporation to insure the accounts of all Federal savings and loan associations, and it may insure the accounts of building and loan, savings and loan, and homestead associations and cooperative banks organized and operated according to the laws of the State, District, Territory, or possession in which they are chartered or organized.]

SEC. 403. (a)(1) The Corporation shall insure the accounts and deposits of all Federal savings and loan associations and of all Federal savings associations.

(2) The Corporation may insure the accounts and deposits of mutual savings banks not eligible to make application to become insured banks of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, building and loan, savings and loan, and homestead associations, and cooperative banks chartered or organized under the laws of a State, District, territory, or possession.

(b) Application for such insurance shall be made immediately by each [Federal savings and loan association] institution referred to in subsection (a)(1) of this section, and may be made at any time by [other eligible institutions] any institution referred to in subsection (a)(2) of this section. Such applications shall be in such form as the Corporation shall prescribe, and shall contain an agreement (1) to pay the reasonable cost of such examinations as the Corporation shall deem necessary in connection with such insurance, and (2) if the insurance is granted, to permit and pay the cost of such examinations as in the judgment of the Corporation may from time to time be necessary for its protection and the protection of other insured institutions, to permit the Corporation to have access to any information or report with respect to any examination made by any public regulatory authority and to furnish any additional information with respect thereto as the Corporation may require, and to pay the premium charges for insurance as hereinafter provided. Each applicant for such insurance shall also file with its application an agreement that during the period that the insurance is in force it will not make any loans beyond one hundred miles from its principal office, except (1) loans in the area beyond such one-hundred-mile limit in which it was operating prior to June 27, 1934, and (2) loans which are made pursuant to regulations of the Coperation: Provided, That such agreement shall further provide that any loan made beyond fifty miles from the applicant's principal office (and outside the territory in which it was operating on such date) shall also be subject to such regulations; will not, after it becomes an insured institution, issue securities which guarantee a definite return or which have a definite maturity except with the specific approval of the Corporation, or issue any securities the form of which has not been approved by the Corporation; will not carry on any sales plan or practices, or any advertising, in violation of regulations to be made by the Corporation; will provide adequate reserves satisfactory to the Corporation, to be established in accordance with regulations made by the Corporation, before paying dividends to its insured members; but such regulations shall require the building up of reserves to 5 per centum of all insured accounts within a reasonable period, not exceeding twenty years, and shall prohibit the payment of dividends from such reserves, or the payment of any dividends if any losses are chargeable to such reserves: Provided, That for any year dividends may be declared and paid when losses are chargeable to such reserves if the declaration of such dividends in such case is approved by the Corporation.

LIQUIDATION OF INSURED INSTITUTIONS

SEC. 406. (a) In order to facilitate the liquidation of insured institutions, the Corporation is authorized (1) to contract with any insured institution with respect to the making available of insured accounts to the insured members of any insured institution in default, or (2) to provide for the organization of a new Federal savings [and loan] association for such purpose subject to the approval of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board.

(b) In the event that a Federal savings and loan association or Federal savings association is in default, the Corporation shall be appointed as conservator or receiver and is authorized as such (1) to take over the assets of and operate such association, (2) to take such action as may be necessary to put it in a sound and solvent condition, (3) to merge it with another insured institution, (4) to organize a new Federal savings [and loan] association to take over its assets, or (5) to proceed to liquidate its assets in an orderly manner, whichever shall appear to be to the best interests of the insured members of the association in default; and in any event the Corporation shall pay the insurance as provided in section 405 and all valid credit obligations of such association. The surrender and transfer to the Corporation of an insured account in any such association which is in default shall subrogate the Corporation with respect to such insured account, but shall not affect any right which the insured member may have in the uninsured portion of his account or any right which he may have to participate in the distribution of the net proceeds remaining from the disposition of the assets of such association.

(c) In the event any insured institution other than a Federal savings and loan association or a Federal savings association is in default, the Corporation shall have authority to act as conservator, receiver, or other legal custodian of such insured institution, and the services of the Corporation are tendered to the court or other public authority having the power of appointment. If the Corporation is so appointed, it shall have the same powers and duties with respect to the insured institution in default as are conferred upon it under subsection (b) of this section with respect to Federal savings and loan associations. If the Corporation is not so appointed it shall pay the insurance as provided in section 405, and shall have power (1) to bid for the assets of the insured institution in default, (2) to negotiate for the merger of the insured institution or the transfer of its assets, or (3) to make any other disposition of the matter as it may deem in the best interests of all concerned.

* * * * * * *

SEC. 407. TERMINATION OF INSURANCE AND ENFORCEMENT PROVISIONS.—

(a) VOLUNTARY TERMINATION OF INSURANCE.—Any insured institution [other than a Federal savings and loan association] referred to in section 403(a)(2) of this title may terminate its status as an insured institution by written notice to the Corporation specifying a date for such termination.

* * * * * * *

REGULATION OF HOLDING COMPANIES

SEC. 408. (a)(1) As used in this section, the term "company" means any corporation, business trust, association, or similar organization, but does not include the Federal Savings [and Loan] Insurance Corporation, any partnership, or any company the majority of the shares of which is owned by the United States or by any State.

* * * * * * *

SEC. 411. (a) Except with the prior written approval of the Corporation, no insured institution shall—

(1) merge or consolidate with any other institution;

(2) assume liability to pay any deposits, share accounts, or similar liabilities of any other institution;

(3) transfer assets to any other institution in consideration of the assumption of liabilities for any portion of the deposits, share accounts, or similar liabilities of such insured institution.

(b) Notice of any proposed transaction for which approval is required under subsection (a) (referred to hereafter in this section as a "merger transaction") shall, unless the Corporation finds that it must act immediately in order to prevent the probable failure of one of the institutions involved, be published—

(1) prior to the granting of approval of such transaction,

(2) in a form approved by the Corporation,

(3) at appropriate intervals during a period at least as long as the period allowed for furnishing a report under subsection (c) of this section, and

(4) in a newspaper of general circulation in the community or communities where the main offices of the institutions involved are loacted, or, if there is no such newspaper in any such community, then in the newspaper of general circulation published nearest thereto.

(c) In the interests of uniform standards, before acting on any application for approval of a merger transaction, the Corporation, unless it finds that it must act immediately in order to prevent the probable failure of one of the institutions involved, shall request a report on the competitive factors involved from the Attorney General. The report shall be furnished within thirty calendar days of the date on which it is requested, or within ten calendar days of such date if the Corporation advises the Attorney General that an emergency exists requiring expeditious action.

(d) The Corporation shall not approve—

(A) any proposed merger transaction which would result in a monopoly, or which would be in furtherance of any combination or conspiracy to monopolize or to attempt to monopolize the business of thrift institutions in any part of the United States, or

(B) any other proposed merger transaction whose effect in any section of the country may be substantially to lessen competition, or to tend to create a monopoly, or which in any other manner would be in restraint of trade, unless it finds that the anticompetitive effects of the proposed transaction are clearly outweighed in the public interest by the probable effect of the transaction in meeting the convenience and needs of the community to be served.

In every case, the Corporation shall take into consideration the financial and managerial resources and future prospects of the existing and proposed institutions, and the convenience and needs of the community to be served.

(e) The Corporation shall immediately notify the Attorney General of any approval by it pursuant to this subsection of a proposed merger transaction. If the Corporation has found that it must act immediately to prevent the probable failure of one of the institutions involved and the report on the competitive factors has been dispensed with, the transaction may be consummated immediately upon approval by the Corporation. If the Corporation has advised the Attorney General of the existence of an emergency requiring expeditious action and has requested the report on the competitive factors within ten days, the transaction may not be comsummated before the fifth calendar day after the date of approval by the Corporation. In all other cases, the transaction may not be consummated before the thirtieth calendar day after the date of approval by the Corporation.

(f) (1) Any action brought under the antitrust laws arising out of a merger transaction shall be commenced prior to the earliest time under subsection (e) at which a merger transaction approved under subsection (d) might be consummated. The commencement of such an action shall stay the effectiveness of the Corporation's approval unless the court shall otherwise specifically order. In any such action the court shall review de novo the issues presented.

(2) In any judicail proceeding attacking a merger transaction approved under subsection (d) on the ground that the merger transaction alone and of itself constituted a violation of any antitrust laws other than section 2 of the Act of July 2, 1890 (section 2 of the Sherman Antitrust Act, 15

U.S.C. 2), the standards applied by the court shall be identical with those that the Corporation is directed to apply under subsection (d).

(3) Upon the consummation of a merger transaction in compliance with this section and after the termination of any antitrust litigation commenced within the period prescribed in this subsection, or upon the termination of such period if no such litigation is commenced therein, the transaction may not thereafter be attacked in any judicial proceeding on the ground that it alone and of itself constituted a violation of any antitrust laws other than section 2 of the Act of July 2, 1890 (section 2 of the Sherman Antitrust Act, 15 U.S.C. 2), but nothing in this section shall exempt any institution resulting from a merger transaction from complying with the antitrust laws after the consummation of such transaction.

(4) In any action brought under the antitrust laws arising out of a merger transaction approved by the Corporation pursuant to this section, the Corporation, and any State banking supervisory agency having jurisdiction within the State involved, may appear as a party of its own motion and as of right, and be represented by its counsel.

(g) For the purposes of this section, the term "antitrust laws" means. the Act of July 2, 1890 (the Sherman Antitrust Act, 15 U.S.C. 1–7), the Act of October 15, 1914 (the Clayton Act, 15 U.S.C. 12–27), and any other Acts in pari materia.

(h) The Corporation shall include in its annual report to the Congress a description of each merger transaction approved by it during the period covered by the report, along with the following information:

(1) the name and total resources of each institution involved;

(2) whether a report was submitted by the Attorney General under paragraph (4), and, if so, a summary by the Attorney General of the substance of such report; and

(3) a statement by the Corporation of the basis for its approval.

TITLE V—MISCELLANEOUS

* * * * * * *

ESTABLISHMENT OF GENERAL INSURANCE FUND

SEC. 519. (a) There is hereby created a General Insurance Fund which shall be used by the Secretary, on and after the date of the enactment of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965, as a revolving fund for carrying out all the insurance provisions of this Act with the exception of those specified in subsection (e). All mortgages or loans insured under this Act pursuant to commitments issued on or after the date of the enactment of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965, except those specified in subsection (e), and all loans reported for insurance under section 2 on or after the date of the enactment of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965, shall be insured under the General Insurance Fund. The Secretary shall transfer to the General Insurance Fund—

(1) the assets and liabilities of all insurance accounts and funds, except the Mutual Mortgage Insurance Fund, existing under this Act immediately prior to the enactment of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965;

(2) all outstanding commitments for insurance issued prior to the date of the enactment of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965, except those specified in subsection (e);

(3) the insurance on all mortgages and loans insured prior to the date of the enactment of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965, except insurance specified in subsection (e); and

(4) the insurance of all loans made by approved financial institutions pursuant to section 2 prior to the date of the enactment of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965.

* * * * * * *

(e) The General Insurance Fund shall not be used for carrying out the provisions of sections 203(b), 203(h), and 203(i), or the provisions of section 213 to the extent that they involve mortgages the insurance for which is the obligation of the Cooperative Management Housing Insurance Fund created by section 213(k), or the provisions of sections 223(e), 233(a)(2), 235, 236, and 237; and nothing in this section shall apply to or affect any mortgages, loans, commitments, or insurance under such provisions.

OPTIONAL CASH PAYMENT OF INSURANCE BENEFITS

SEC. 520. (a) Notwithstanding any other provisions of this Act with respect to the payment of insurance benefits, the Secretary is authorized, in his discretion, to pay in cash or in debentures any insurance claim or part thereof which is paid on or after the date of the enactment of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965 on a mortgage or a loan which was insured under any section of this Act either before or after such date. If payment is made in cash, it shall be in an amount equivalent to the face amount of the debentures that would otherwise be issued plus an amount equivalent to the interest which the debentures would have earned, computed to a date to be established pursuant to regulations issued by the Secretary.

(b) The Secretary is authorized to borrow from the Treasury from time to time such amounts as the Secretary shall determine are necessary (1) to make payments in cash (in lieu of issuing debentures guaranteed by the United States, as provided in this Act) pursuant to the provisions of this section, and (2) to make payments for reinsured losses under title XII of this Act: Provided, however, That borrowings to make payments for reinsured losses under title XII shall be limited to $150,000,000 or such further sum as the Congress, by joint resolution, may from time to time determine. Notes or other obligations issued by the Secretary in borrowing under this subsection shall be subject to such terms and conditions as the Secretary of the Treasury may prescribe. Each sum borrowed pursuant to this subsection shall bear interest at a rate determined by the Secretary of the Treasury, taking into consideration the average market yield on outstanding marketable obligations of the United States of comparable maturities during the month preceding the issuance of such notes or other obligations.

TITLE VIII—ARMED SERVICES HOUSING MORTGAGE INSURANCE

* * * * * * *

SEC. 810. (a) Notwithstanding any other provision of this title, the Secretary may insure and make commitments to insure any mortgages under this section which meets the eligibility requirements hereinafter set forth.

(e) For the purpose of providing multifamily rental housing projects or housing projects consisting of individual single-family dwellings for sale, the Secretary is authorized to insure mortgages (including advances on such mortgages during construction) which cover property held by a [private corporation, association, cooperative society or trust] mortgagor approved by the Secretary. Any such mortgagor shall possess powers necessary therefor and incidental thereto and shall until the termination of all obligations of the Secretary under such insurance be regulated or restricted as to rents or sales, charges, capital structure, rate of return, and methods of operation to such extent and in such manner as to provide reasonable rentals to tenants and a reasonable return on the investment. The Secretary may make such contracts with, and acquire for not to exceed $100 such stock or interest in, any such [corporation, association cooperative society, or trust] mortgagor as he may deem necessary to render effective such restriction or regulation. Such stock or interest shall be paid for out of the General Insurance Fund, and shall be redemmed by the [corporation, association, cooperative society, or trust] mortgagor at par upon the termination of all obligations of the Secretary under the insurance.

TITLE X—MORTGAGE INSURANCE FOR LAND DEVELOPMENT

BASIC CONDITIONS FOR INSURANCE

SEC. 1002. (a) The Secretary is authorized (1) to insure upon such terms and conditions as he may prescribe, any first mortgage (including advances on such mortgage) in accordance with the provisions of this title, and (2) to make a commitment for the insurance of such mortgage prior to the date of execution of such mortgage or prior to the date of disbursement of the mortgage proceeds. No mortgage shall be insured under this title after October 1, 1969, except pursuant to a commitment to insure issued before such date.

(b) The mortgage shall—

(1) be executed by a mortgagor, other than a public body, approved by the Secretary;

(2) be made to and held by a mortgagee approved by the Secretary; and

(3) cover the land to be developed and the improvements to be made with the assistance of the mortgage insurance under this title, except facilities intended for public use and in public ownership.

(c) The principal obligation of the mortgage shall (1) not exceed 75 per centum of the Secretary's estimate of the value of the property upon completion of the land development, and (2) not exceed the sum of 50 per centum of the Secretary's estimate of the value of the land before development and 90 per centum of his estimate of the cost of such development. The outstanding principal obligations of mortgages involving a single land development undertaking, as defined by the Secretary, shall at no time exceed $25,000,000.

(d) The mortgage shall—

(1) contain repayment provisions satisfactory to the Secretary and have a maturity not to exceed [seven] ten years, or such longer maturity as the Secretary deems reasonable (A) in the case of a privately owned system for water or sewerage, and (B) in the case of a new community approved under section 1004;

(2) bear interest at a rate satisfactory to the Secretary, and such interest shall be exclusive of premium charges for mortgage insurance and such service charges and fees as may be approved by the Secretary; and

(3) contain such terms and provisions with respect to protection of the security, payment of taxes, delinquency charges, prepayment, additional and secondary liens, and other matters as the Secretary may in his discretion prescribe.

(e) A property or project to be financed by a mortgage insured under this title shall—

(1) represent a good mortgage insurance risk; and

(2) involve improvements that comply with all applicable State and local governmental requirements and with minimum standards approved by the Secretary.

* * * * * * *

TITLE XI—MORTGAGE INSURANCE FOR GROUP PRACTICE FACILITIES

INSURANCE OF MORTGAGES

SEC. 1101. (a) The Secretary is authorized (1) to insure mortgages (including advances on such mortgages during construction), upon such terms and conditions as he may prescribe, in accordance with the provisions of this title, and (2) to make commitments for the insuring of such mortgages prior to the date of their execution or disbursement thereon. No mortgage shall be insured under this title after October 1, 1969, except pursuant to a commitment to insure issued before that date.

(b) To be eligible for insurance under this title, the mortgage shall (1) be executed by a mortgagor that is a group practice unit or organization, approved by the Secretary, (2) be made to and held by a mortgagee approved by the Secretary as responsible and able to service the mortgage properly, and (3) cover a property or project which is approved for mortgage insurance prior to the beginning of construction or rehabilitation and is designed for use as a group practice facility which the Secretary finds will be constructed in an economical manner, will not be of elaborate or extravagant design or materials, and will be adequate and suitable for carrying out the purposes of this title. No mortgage shall be insured under this title unless it is shown to the satisfaction of the Secretary that the applicant would be unable to obtain the mortgage loan without such insurance on terms comparable to those specified in subsection (c).

(c) The mortgage shall—

(1) not exceed $5,000,000;

(2) not exceed 90 per centum of the amount which the Secretary estimates will be the value of the property or project when construction or rehabilitation is completed. The value of the property may include the land and the proposed physical improvements, equipment, utilities within the boundaries of the property, architects' fees, taxes, and interest accruing during construction or rehabilitation, and other miscellaneous charges incident to construction or rehabilitation and approved by the Secretary;

(3) have a maturity satisfactory to the Secretary but not to exceed twenty-five years from the beginning of amortization of the mortgage, and provide for complete amortization of the principal obligation by periodic payments within such term as the Secretary shall prescribe; and

(4) bear interest (exclusive of premium charges for insurance, and service charges if any) at a rate of not to exceed 5 per centum per annum of the amount of the principal obligation outstanding at any time, or not to exceed such rate (not in excess of 6 per centum per annum) as the Secretary finds necessary to meet the mortgage market.

(d) Any contract of insurance executed by the Secretary under this title shall be conclusive evidence of the eligibility of the mortgage for insurance, and the validity of any contract for insurance so executed shall be incontestable in the hands of an approved mortgagee from the date of the execution of such contract, except for fraud or misrepresentation on the part of such approved mortgagee.

(e) Each mortgage insured under this title shall contain an undertaking (in accordance with regulations prescribed under this title and in force at the time the mortgage is approved for insurance) to the effect that, except as authorized by the Secretary and the mortgagee, the property will be used as a group practice facility until the mortgage has been paid in full or the contract of insurance otherwise terminated.

(f) No mortgage shall be insured under this title unless the mortgagor and the mortgagee certify (1) that they will keep such records relating to the mortgage transaction and indebtedness, to the construction of the facility covered by the mortgage, and to the use of such facility as a group practice facility as are prescribed by the Secretary at the time of such certification, (2) that they will make such reports as may from time to time be required by the Secretary pertaining to such matters, and (3) that the Secretary shall have access to and the right to examine and audit such records.

TITLE XII—NATIONAL INSURANCE DEVELOPMENT PROGRAM

PROGRAM AUTHORITY

SEC. 1201. (a) The Secretary is authorized to establish and carry out the programs provided for in parts A, B, and C of this title.

(b)(1) The powers of the Secretary under this title shall terminate on April 30, 1973, except to the extent necessary—

(A) to continue reinsurance in accordance with the provisions of section 1223(b) until April 30, 1976;

(B) to process, verify, and pay claims for reinsured losses and perform other necessary functions in connection therewith; and

(C) to complete the liquidation and termination of the reinsurance program.

(2) On April 30, 1976, or as soon thereafter as possible, the Secretary shall submit to the Congress, for its approval, a plan for the liquidation and termination of the reinsurance program.

ADVISORY BOARD; MEETINGS, DUTIES, COMPENSATION, AND EXPENSES

SEC. 1202. (a)(1) There is established an Advisory Board (hereinafter called the "Board") consisting of nineteen members appointed by the Secretary. Members of the Board shall be selected from among representatives of the general public, the insurance industry, State and local governments including State insurance authorities, and the Federal Government. Of these members of the Board, not more than six shall be regular full-time employees of the Federal Government, and not less than four shall be representatives of the private insurance industry and not less than four shall be representatives of State insurance authorities.

(2) The Secretary shall designate a Chairman and Vice Chairman of the Board.

(3) Each member shall serve for a term of two years or until his successor has been appointed, except that no person who is appointed while a full-time employee of a State or the Federal Government shall serve in such position after he ceases to be so employed, unless he is reappointed.

(4) Any member appointed to fill a vacancy occurring prior to the expiration of the term for which his predecessor was appointed shall be appointed for the remainder of that term.

(b) The Chairman shall preside at all meetings, and the Vice Chairman shall preside in the absence or disability of the Chairman. In the absence of both the Chairman and Vice Chairman, the Secretary may appoint any member to act as Chairman pro tempore. The Board shall meet at such times and places as it or the Secretary may fix and determine, but shall hold at least four regularly scheduled meetings a year. Special meetings may be held at the call of the Chairman or any three members of the Board, or at the call of the Secretary.

(c) The Board shall review general policies and shall advise the Secretary with respect thereto, and perform such other functions as are specified in this title.

(d) The members of the Board shall not, by reason of such membership, be deemed to be employees of the United States, and such members, except those who are regular full-time employees of the Government, shall receive for their services, as members, the per diem equivalent to the rate for grade GS–18 of the General Schedule under section 5332 of title 5, United States Code, when engaged in the performance of their duties, and each member of the Board shall be allowed travel expenses, including per diem in lieu of subsistence, as authorized by section 5703 of such title for persons in the Government service employed intermittently.

DEFINITIONS

SEC. 1203. (a) When used in this title, unless the context otherwise requires, the term—

(1) "environmental hazard" means any hazardous condition that might give rise to loss under an insurance contract, but which is beyond the control of the property owner;

(2) "essential property insurance" means insurance against direct loss to property as defined and limited in standard fire policies and extended coverage endorsement thereon, as approved by the State insurance authority and the Secretary, and insurance for such types, classes, and locations or property against the perils of vandalism, malicious mischief, burlgary, or theft, as the Secretary by rule shall designate. Such insurance shall not include automobile insurance and shall not include insurance on such types of manufacturing risks as may be excluded by the State insurance authority;

(3) "inspection facility", with respect to any State, means any rating bureau or other person designated by the State insurance authority to perform inspections under fair access to insurance requirements plans under part A;

(4) "insurer" includes any insurance company or group of companies under common ownership which is authorized to engage in the insurance business under the laws of any State;

(5) "pool" means any pool or association of insurance companies in any State which is formed, associated, or otherwise created for the purpose of making property insurance more readily available;

(6) "losses resulting from riots or civil disorders" means losses resulting from riots or civil disorders under policies for standard lines of property insurance for which reinsurance is offered under section 1221, as determined under regulations of the Secretary;

(7) "property owner", with respect to any real, personal, or mixed real and personal property, means any person having an insurable interest in such property;

(8) "person" includes any individual or group of individuals, corporation, partnership, or association, or any other organized group of persons;

(9) "reinsured losses" means losses on reinsurance claims and all direct expenses incurred in connection therewith including, but not limited to, expenses for processing, verifying, and paying such losses;

(10) "standard line of property insurance" includes—

(A) fire and extended coverage;

(B) vandalism and malicious mischief;

(C) other allied lines of fire insurance;

(D) burglary and theft;

(E) those portions of multiple peril policies covering perils similar to those provided for in subparagraphs (A), (B), (C), and (D);

(F) inland marine;
(G) glass;
(H) boiler and machinery;
(I) ocean marine;
(J) aircraft physical damage; and
(K) such other lines generally offered to the public which include protection against damage from riot or civil commotion as the Secretary by regulation may designate;

(11) "State" means the several States, the District of Columbia, the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, Guam, American Samoa, and the Trust Territory of the Pacific;

(12) "urban area" includes any municipality or other political subdivision of a State, subject to population or other limitations defined in rules and regulations of the Secretary and such additional areas as may be designated by the State insurance authority; and

(13) "year" means a calendar year, fiscal year of a company, or such other period of twelve months as may be designated by the Secretary.

(b) The Secretary is authorized to define, by rules and regulations, any technical or trade term, insofar as such definition is not inconsistent with the provisions of this title.

PART A—STATEWIDE PLANS TO ASSURE FAIR ACCESS TO INSURANCE REQUIREMENTS

FAIR PLANS

SEC. 1211. (a) Each insurer reinsured under this title shall cooperate with the State insurance authority in each State in which it is to acquire such reinsurance in establishing and carrying out statewide plans to assure fair access to insurance requirements (FAIR plans).

(b) Such plans must be approved by the State insurance authority, or be authorized or required by State law, and shall be designed to make essential property insurance more readily available in, but not necessarily limited to, urban areas. Such plans may vary in detail from State to State because of local conditions, but all plans shall contain provision that—

(1) no risk shall be written at surcharged rates or be denied insurance coverage for essential property insurance unless there has first been an inspection of the risk, without cost to the owner, by an inspection facility and a determination by the insurer, based on information in the inspection report and other sources, that the risk does not meet reasonable underwriting standards at the applicable premium rate;

(2) inspections under the plan may be requested by the property owner or his representative, the insurer, or the insurance agent, broker or other producer, and such requests need not be made in writing;

(3) the absence of a building owner or his representative during an inspection shall not preclude a tenant seeking insurance from obtaining an inspection under the plan;

(4) following the inspection, a copy of the inspection report shall be promptly sent by the inspection facility to the insurer or insurers, or to an all-industry placement facility referred to under section 1212, as may be designated by the person requesting the inspection;

(5) after the inspection report is received by an insurer, it shall promptly determine if the risk meets reasonable underwriting standards at the applicable premium rate, and shall promptly return to the inspection facility the inspection report and provide an action report setting forth—

(A)(i) the amount of coverage it agrees to write; and if the insurer agrees to write the coverage with a surcharge (if such a surcharge is authorized by the State insurance authority), the improvements necessary before it will provide coverage at an unsurcharged premium rate; and

(ii) the amount of coverage it agrees to write if certain improvements specified in the action report are made; or

(B) the specific reasons it declines to write coverage;

(6) if the insurer declines the risk, or agrees to write the coverage sought on condition that the property will be improved, it shall also promptly send a copy of both the inspection and action reports to the property owner and the State insurance authority, and at the time the insurer sends such reports to the property owner, it shall also explain his right, under applicable State laws, to appeal the decision of the insurer to the State insurance authority, setting forth the procedures to be followed for such appeal;

(7) all policies written pursuant to the plan shall be promptly written after inspection or reinspection and shall be separately coded so that appropriate records may be compiled for purposes of performing loss prevention and other studies of the operation of the plan;

(8) the inspection facility shall submit to the State insurance authority and to the Secretary periodic reports setting forth information, by individual insurers, including the number of risks inspected under the plan, the number of risks accepted, the number of risks conditionally accepted and reinspections made, the number of risks declined, and such other information as the State insurance authority may request;

(9) notice will be given to any policyholder a reasonable time prior to the cancellation or nonrenewal of any risk eligible under the plan except in case of nonpayment of premium or evidence of incendiarism), to allow ample time for an application for new coverage to be made and a new policy to be written under the plan, and the insurer shall, in writing, explain to the policyholder the procedures for obtaining an inspection under the plan in the notice of cancellation or nonrenewal; and

(10) a continuing public education program will be undertaken by the participating insurers, agents, and brokers to assure that the plan receives adequate public attention.

ALL-INDUSTRY PLACEMENT FACILITY

SEC. 1212. Any plan under this part shall include an all-industry placement facility doing business with every insurer participating in the plan in the State, and shall provide that this facility shall perform certain functions including, but not limited to, the following:

(1) seeking, upon request by or on behalf of any property owner requesting an inspection under the plan, to distribute the risks involved equitably among the insurers with which it is doing business; and

(2) seeking to place insurance up to the full insurable value of the risk to be insured with one or more insurers with which it is doing business, except to the extent that deductibles, percentage participation clauses, and other underwriting devices are employed to meet special problems of insurability.

INDUSTRY COOPERATION

SEC. 1213. (a) Every insurer seeking reinsurance under this title shall file a statement with the State insurance authority in each State in which it is participating in a plan under this part, pledging its full participation and cooperation in carrying out the plan, and shall file a copy of such statement with the Secretary.

(b) No insurer acquiring reinsurance under this title shall direct any agent or broker or other producer not to solicit business through such a plan, nor shall any agent, broker, or other producer be penalized by such insurer in any way for submitting applications for insurance to an insurer under the plan.

PLAN EVALUATION

SEC. 1214. (a) In accordance with such rules and regulations as the Secretary may prescribe, each State insurance authority shall—

(1) transmit to the Secretary any proposed or adopted plan, or amendments thereto; and

(2) advise the Secretary, from time to time, concerning the operation of the plan, its effectiveness in providing essential property insurance, and the need to form a pool of insurers or adopt other programs to make essential property insurance more readily available in urban areas of the State.

(b) The Secretary may, after full consultation with the Board, by rules and regulations, modify the plan criteria set forth under this part, if it finds, on the basis of experience, that such action is necessary or desirable to carry out the purposes of this title. The Secretary may also, with respect to any State, waive compliance with one or more of the plan criteria, upon certification by the State insurance authority that compliance is unnecessary or inadvisable under local conditions or State law.

SEC. 1221. (a)(1) The Secretary is authorized to offer to any insurer or pool, subject to the conditions set forth in section 1223, reinsurance against property losses resulting from riots or civil disorders in any one or more States.

(2) Reinsurance shall be offered to any such insurer or pool only on all standard lines of property insurance enumerated under subparagraphs (A) through (E) of section 1203(a)(10) together, and any insurer or pool purchasing such reinsurance shall also be eligible to purchase reinsurance on any one or more standard lines of property insurance enumerated under subparagraphs (F) through (J) of section 1203(a)(10) or which may be designated by regulation pursuant to subparagraph (K) of that section.

(b) Reinsurance coverage under this section may be provided immediately following the enactment of this title to any insurer or pool in any State on a temporary basis, and on such terms and conditions as may be agreed upon, and coverage under such terms and conditions may be bound with respect to any such insurer or pool by means of a written binder which shall remain in force not more than ninety days and shall expire at the earlier of either—

(1) the termination of such ninety-day period, or

(2) the effective date of any governing contract, agreement, treaty, or other arrangement entered into between the insurer or pool and the Secretary under section 1222 for the purpose of providing reinsurance coverage against losses resulting from riots or civil disorders.

(c) No reinsurance shall be offered to any insurer or pool in a State after the expiration of the written binder entered into under subsection (b) unless there is in effect in such State a plan as set forth under part A and the insurer or pool is participating in such plan, and unless, in the case of an insurer in a State where a pool has been established pursuant to State law, the insurer is participating in such a pool.

SEC. 1222. (a) During the first year following the date of the enactment of this title, the Secretary is authorized to enter into any contract, agreement, treaty, or other arrangement with any insurer or pool for reinsurance coverage, in consideration of payment of such premiums, fees, or other charges by insurers or pools which the Secretary, after full consultation with the Board, deems to be adequate to obtain aggregate reinsurance premiums for deposit in the National Insurance Development Fund established under section 1233 in excess of the estimated amount of insured riot losses during the calendar year 1967, on the assumption that a substantial proportion of the property insurance written will be reinsured under this title, and thereafter the Secretary may increase or decrease such premiums for reinsurance if it is found after full consultation with the Board and the National Association of Insurance Commissioners that such action is necessary or appropriate to carry out the purposes of this title.

(b) Reinsurance offered under this title shall reimburse an insurer or pool for its total proved and approved claims for covered losses resulting from riots or civil disorders during the term of the reinsurance contract, agreement, treaty, or other arrangement, over and above the amount of the insurer's or pool's retention of such losses as provided in such reinsurance contract, agreement, treaty, or other arrangement entered into under this section.

(c) Such contracts, agreements, treaties, or other arrangements may be made without regard to section 3679(a) of the Revised Statutes of the United States (31 U.S.C. 665(a)), and shall include any terms and conditions which the Secretary deems necessary to carry out the purposes of this title. The premium rates, terms, and conditions of such contracts with insurers or pools, throughout the country, in any one year shall be uniform.

(d) Any contract, agreement, treaty, or other arrangement for reinsurance under this section shall be for a term expiring on April 30, 1969, and on April 30 each year thereafter, and shall be entered into within ninety days after the date of the enactment of this title or within ninety days prior to April 30 each year thereafter, or within ninety days after an insurer is authorized to write insurance eligible for reinsurance in a State which it was not authorized to write in the preceding year.

SEC. 1223. (a) Subject to the provisions of subsection (b), reinsurance shall not be offered by the Secretary in a State or be applicable to insurance policies written in that State by an insurer—

(1) after one year following the date of the enactment of this title, or, if the appropriate State legislative body has not met in regular session during that year, by the close of its next regular session, in any State which has not adopted appropriate legislation, retroactive to the date of the enactment of this title, under which the State, its political subdivisions, or a governmental corporation or fund established pursuant to State law, will reimburse the Secretary, in an amount up to 5 per centum of the aggregate property insurance premiums earned in that State during the preceding calendar year on those lines of insurance reinsured by the Secretary in that State during the current year, such that the Secretary may be reimbursed for amounts paid by him in respect to reinsured losses that occurred in that State during a calendar year in excess of (A) reinsurance premiums received in that State during the same calendar year plus (B) the excess of (i) the total premiums received by the Secretary for reinsurance in that State during a preceding period measured from the end of the most recent calendar year with respect to which the Secretary was reimbursed for losses under this title over (ii) any amounts paid by the Secretary for reinsured losses that occurred during this same period;

(2) after thirty days following notification to the insurer that the Secretary finds that there has not been adopted by the State, or the property insurance industry in that State, a suitable program or programs, in addition to plans under part A, to make essential property insurance available without regard to environmental hazards, and that such action is necessary to carry out the purposes of this title; except that this paragraph shall not become effective until two years after the date of the enactment of this title, or at such earlier date as the Secretary, after consultation with the State insurance authority, may determine;

(3) after thirty days following notification to the insurer that the Secretary, or the State insurance authority, finds that such insurer is not fully participating—

(A) in the plan in the State;

(B) where it exists, in a pool; and

(C) where it exists, in any other program found by the Secretary to aid in making essential property insurance more readily available in the State;

(4) following a merger, acquisition, consolidation or reorganization involving one or more insurers having lines of property insurance in the State reinsured under this title and one or more insurers with or without such reinsurance, unless the surviving company—

(A) meets the criteria of eligibility for reinsurance, other than as provided under section 1222 (d); and

(B) within ten days pays any reinsurance premiums due; or

(5) upon receipt of notice from the insurer or pool that it desires to cancel its reinsurance agreement with the Secretary in the State.

(b) Notwithstanding the foregoing provisions of this section, reinsurance may be continued for the term of the policies written prior to the date of termination or nonrenewal of reinsurance under this section, for as long as the insurer pays reinsurance premiums annually in such amounts as are determined under section 1222, based on the annual premiums earned on such reinsured policies, and for the purpose of this subsection, the renewal, extension, modification, or other change in a policy, for which any additional premium is charged, shall be deemed to be a policy written on the date such change was made.

RECOVERY OF PREMIUMS; STATUTE OF LIMITATIONS

SEC. 1224. (a) The Secretary, in a suit brought in the appropriate United States district court, shall be entitled to recover from any insurer the amount of any unpaid premiums lawfully payable by such insurer to the Secretary.

(b) No action or proceeding shall be brought for the recovery of any premium due to the Secretary for reinsurance, or for the recovery of any premium paid to the Secretary in excess of the amount due to him, unless such action or proceeding shall have been brought within five years after the right accrued for which the claim is made, except that, where the insurer has made or filed with the Secretary a false or fraudulent annual statement, or other document with the intent to evade, in whole or in part, the payment of premiums, the claim shall not be deemed to have accrued until its discovery by the Secretary.

PART C—PROVISIONS OF GENERAL APPLICABILITY

CLAIMS AND JUDICIAL REVIEW

SEC. 1231. (a) All reinsurance claims for losses under this title shall be submitted by insurers in accordance with such terms and conditions as may be established by the Secretary.

(b)(1) Upon disallowance of any claim under color of reinsurance made available under this title, or upon refusal of the claimant to accept the amount allowed upon any such claim, the claimant may institute an action against the Secretary on such claim in the United States district court for the district in which a major portion (in terms of value) of the claim arose.

(2) Any such action must be begun within one year after the date upon which the claimant received written notice of disallowance or partial disallowance of the claim, and exclusive jurisdiction is hereby conferred upon United States district courts to hear and determine such actions without regard to the amount in controversy.

FISCAL INTERMEDIARIES AND SERVICING AGENTS

SEC. 1232. (a) In order to provide for maximum efficiency in the administration of the reinsurance program under this title, and in order to facilitate the expeditious payment of any funds under such program, the Secretary may enter into contracts with any insurer, pool, or other person, for the purpose of providing for the performance of any or all of the following functions:

(1) estimating or determining any amounts of payments for reinsurance claims;

(2) receiving and disbursing and accounting for funds in making payments for reinsurance claims;

(3) auditing the records of any insurer, pool, or other person to the extent necessary to assure that proper payments are made;

(4) establishing the basis of liability for reinsurance payments, including the total amount of proved and approved claims which may be payable to any insurer, and the total amount of premiums earned by any insurer in the respective States for reinsured lines of property insurance; and

(5) otherwise assisting in any manner provided in the contract to further the purposes of this title.

(b) (1) Any such contract may require the insurer, pool, or other person, or any of its officers or employees certifying payments or disbursing funds pursuant to the contract, or otherwise participating in carrying out the contract, to give surety bond to the United States in such amounts as the Secretary may deem appropriate.

(2) In the absence of gross negligence or intent to defraud the United States—

(A) no individual designated pursuant to a contract under this section to certify payments shall be liable with respect to any payment certified by him under this section; and

(B) no officer of the United States disbursing funds shall be liable with respect to any otherwise proper payment by him if it was based on a voucher signed by an individual designated pursuant to a contract under this section to certify payments.

NATIONAL INSURANCE DEVELOPMENT FUND

SEC. 1233. (a) To carry out the programs authorized under this title, the Secretary is authorized to establish a National Insurance Development Fund (hereinafter called the "fund") which shall be available, without fiscal year limitations—

(1) to make such payments as may, from time to time, be required under reinsurance contracts under this title;

(2) to pay such administrative expenses as may be necessary or appropriate to carry out the purposes of this title; and

(3) to repay to the Secretary of the Treasury such sums, including interest thereon, as may be borrowed from him for purposes of such programs under section 520(b).

(b) The fund shall be credited with—

(1) reinsurance premiums, fees, and other charges which may be paid or collected in connection with reinsurance provided under part B;

(2) interest which may be earned on investments of the fund;

(3) such amounts as may be advanced to the fund from appropriations in order to maintain the fund in an operative condition adequate to meet its liabilities;

(4) receipts from any other source which may, from time to time, be credited to the fund; and

(5) funds borrowed by the Secretary under section 520(b) and deposited in the fund.

(c) If, after any amounts which may have been advanced to the fund from appropriations have been credited to the appropriation from which advanced (including interest thereon at the rate prescribed under section 520(b)), the Secretary determines that the moneys of the fund are in excess current needs, he may request the investment of such amounts as he deems advisable by the Secretary of the Treasury in obligations issued or guaranteed by the United States.

RECORDS, ANNUAL STATEMENT, AND AUDITS

SEC. 1234. (a) Any insurer or pool acquiring reinsurance under this title shall furnish the Secretary with such summaries and analyses of information in its records as may be necessary to carry out the purposes of this title, in such form as the Secretary, in cooperation with the State insurance authority, shall, by rules and regulations, prescribe. The Secretary shall make use of State insurance authority examination reports and facilities to the maximum extent feasible.

(b) Any insurer or pool acquiring reinsurance under this title shall file with the Secretary a true and correct copy of any annual statement, or amendment thereof, filed with the State insurance authority of its domiciliary State, at the time it files such statement or amendment with such State insurance authority.

(c) Any insurer or other person executing any contract, agreement, or other appropriate arrangement with the Secretary under section 1222 or section 1232 shall keep reasonable records which fully disclose the total costs of the programs undertaken or the services being rendered, and such other records as will facilitate an effective audit of liability for reinsurance payments by the Secretary.

(d) The Secretary and the Comptroller General of the United States, or any of their duly authorized representatives, shall have access for the purpose of investigation, audit, and examination to any books, documents, papers, and records of any insurer or other person that are pertinent to the costs of any program undertaken for, or services rendered to, the Secretary. Such audits shall be conducted to the maximum extent feasible in cooperation with the State insurance authorities and through the use of their examining facilities.

STUDY OF REINSURANCE AND OTHER PROGRAMS

SEC. 1235. (a) The Secretary is authorized and directed to conduct a study of reinsurance and other means to help assure—

(1) an adequate market for burglary and theft and other property insurance in urban areas; and

(2) adequate availability of surety bonds for construction contractors in urban areas.

(b) The Secretary shall submit the results of this study, together with appropriate recommendations, to the President and Congress no later than one year following the date of the enactment of this title.

OTHER STUDIES

SEC. 1236. (a) The Secretary is authorized to undertake such studies as may be necessary to carry out the purposes of this title including, but not limited to, inquiries concerning—

(1) the operation of plans under part A;

(2) the extent to which essential property insurance is unavailable in urban areas;

(3) the market for private reinsurance; and

(4) loss prevention methods and procedures, insurance marketing methods, and underwriting techniques.

(b) To such extent and under such circumstances as he deems appropriate, the Secretary may conduct any study authorized under this section in cooperation with State insurance authorities and the private insurance industry.

GENERAL POWERS

SEC. 1237. In the performance of, and with respect to, the functions, powers, and duties vested in him by this title, the Secretary shall (in addition to any authority otherwise vested in him) have the functions, powers, and duties (including the authority to issue rules and regulations) set forth in section 402, except subsections (c) (2), (d), and (f), of the Housing Act of 1950.

SERVICES AND FACILITIES OF OTHER AGENCIES—UTILIZATION OF PERSONNEL, SERVICES, FACILITIES, AND INFORMATION

SEC. 1238. The Secretary may, with the consent of the agency concerned, accept and utilize, on a reimbursable basis the officers, employees, services, facilities, and information of any agency of the Federal Government, except that any such agency having custody of any data relating to any of the matters within the jurisdiction of the Secretary shall, to the extent permitted by law, upon request of the Secretary, make such data available to the Secretary.

ADVANCE PAYMENTS

SEC. 1239. Any payments which are made under the authority of this title may be made, after necessary adjustments on account of previously made underpayments or overpayments in advance or by way of reimbursement. Payments may be made in such installments and on such conditions as the Secretary may determine.

TAXATION

SEC. 1240. (a) The National Insurance Development Fund, including its reserves, surplus, and income, shall be exempt from all taxation now or hereafter imposed by the United States, or by any State, or any subdivision thereof, except that any real property acquired by the Secretary as a result of reinsurance shall be subject to taxation by any State or political subdivision thereof, to the same extent, according to its value, as other real property is taxed.

(b) Any measures undertaken by any State to meet or to fund its obligations under section 1223(a)(1) shall not be the subject of any retaliatory or fiscal imposition by any other State.

APPROPRIATIONS

SEC. 1241. There are hereby authorized to be appropriated such sums as may be necessary to carry out this title.

UNITED STATES HOUSING ACT OF 1937

[Public Law 412, 75th Congress; 50 Stat. 888; 42 U.S.C. 1401 et seq.]

AN ACT To provide financial assistance to the States and political subdivisions thereof for the elimination of unsafe and insanitary housing conditions, for the eradication of slums, for the provisions of decent, safe, and sanitary dwellings for familes of low income, and for the reduction of unemployment and the stimulation of business activity, to create a United States Housing Authority, and for other purposes.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

DECLARATION OF POLICY

SECTION 1. It is hereby declared to be the policy of the United States to promote the general welfare of the Nation by employing its funds and credit, as provided in this Act, to assist the several States and their political subdivisions to alleviate present and recurring unemployment and to remedy the unsafe and insanitary housing conditions and the acute shortage of decent, safe, and sanitary dwellings for families of low income, in [urban and rural nonfarm] urban, rural nonfarm, and Indian areas, that are injurious to the health, safety, and morals of the citizens of the Nation. In the development of low-rent housing it shall be the policy of the United States to make adequate provisions for larger families and for families consisting of elderly persons. It is the policy of the United States to vest in the local public housing agencies the maximum amount of responsibility in the administration of the low-rent-housing program, including responsibility for the establishment of rents and eligibility requirements (subject to the approval of the Authority), with due consideration to accomplishing the objectives of this Act while effecting economies.

DEFINITIONS

SEC. 2. When used in this Act—

(1) The term "low-rent housing" means decent, safe, and sanitary dwellings within the financial reach of families of low income, and developed and administered to promote serviceability, efficiency, economy, and stability, and embraces all necessary appurtenances thereto. The dwellings in low-rent housing shall be available solely for families of low income.

Except as otherwise provided in section 23, income limits for occupancy and rents shall be fixed by the public housing agency and approved by the Authority after taking into consideration (A) the family size, composition, age, physical handicaps, and other factors which might affect the rent-paying ability of the family, and (B) the economic factors which affect the financial stability and solvency of the project.

(2) The term "families of low income" means families (including elderly and displaced families) who are in the lowest income group and who cannot afford to pay enough to cause private enterprise in their locality or metropolitan area to build an adequate supply of decent, safe, and sanitary dwellings for their use. The term "families" includes families consisting of a single person in the case of elderly families and displaced families, and includes the remaining member of a tenant family. The term "elderly families" means families whose heads (or their spouses), or whose sole members, have attained the age at which an individual may elect to receive an old-age benefit under title II of the Social Security Act, or are under a disability as defined in section 223 of that Act, or are handicapped within the meaning of section 202 of the Housing Act of 1959. The term "displaced families" means families displaced by urban renewal or other governmental action, or families whose present or former dwellings are situated in areas determined by the Small Business Administration, subsequent to April 1, 1965, to have been affected by a natural disaster, and which have been extensively damaged or destroyed as the result of such disaster. The term "large-families" means families which include four or more minors. The term "families of unusually low income" means families with incomes below the income level established by the public housing agency, as approved by the Authority, who could not be housed without the additional subsidy authorized under section 10(a).

(3) The term "slum" means any area where dwellings predominate which, by reason of dilapidation, overcrowding, faulty arrangement or design, lack of ventilation, light or sanitation facilities, or any combination of these factors, are detrimental to safety, health, or morals.

(4) The term "slum clearance" means the demolition and removal of buildings from any slum area.

(5) The term "development" means any or all undertakings necessary for planning, land acquisition, demolition, construction, or equipment, in connection with a low-rent housing project. The term "development cost" shall comprise the costs incurred by a public housing agency in such undertakings and their necessary financing (including the payment of carrying charges, but not beyond the point of physical completion), and in otherwise carrying out the development of such project. Construction activity in connection with a low-rent housing project may be confined to the reconstruction, remodeling, or repair of existing buildings. In cases where the public housing agency is also the local public agency for the purposes of title I of the Housing Act of 1949, or in cases where the public housing agency and the local public agency for purposes of such title I operate under a combined central adminstrative office staff, an administration building included in a low-rent housing project to provide central administrative office facilities may also include sufficient facilities for the administration of the functions of such local public agency, and in such case, the Authority shall require that an economic rent shall be charged for the facilities in such building which are used for the administration of the functions of such local public agency, and shall be paid from funds derived from sources other than the low-rent housing projects of such public housing agency.

(6) The term "administration" means any or all undertakings necessary for management, operation, maintenance, or financing in connection with a low-rent housing or slum-clearance project, subsequent to physical completion.

(7) The term "Federal project" means any project owned or administered by the Authority.

(8) The term "acquisition cost" means the amount prudently required to be expended by a public housing agency in acquiring a low-rent housing or slum-clearance project.

(9) The term "non-dwelling facilities" shall include site development, improvements and facilities located outside building walls (including streets, sidewalks, and sanitary, utility, and other facilities).

(10) The term "going Federal rate" means the annual rate of interest (or, if there shall be two or more such rates of interest, the highest thereof) specified in the most recently issued bonds of the Federal Government having a maturity of ten years or more, determined, in the case of loans or annual contributions, respectively, at the date of Presidential approval of the contract pursuant to which such loans or contributions are made: Provided, That, with respect to any loans or annual contributions made pursuant to a contract approved by the President after the first annual rate has been specified as provided in this proviso, the term "going Federal rate" means the annual rate of interest which the Secretary of the Treasury shall specify as applicable to the six-month period (beginning with the six-month period ending December 31, 1953) during which the contract is approved by the President, which applicable rate for each six-month period shall be determined by the Secretary of the Treasury by estimating the average yield to maturity, on the basis of daily closing market bid quotations or prices during the month of May or the month of November, as the case may be, next preceding such six-month period, on all outstanding marketable obligations of the United States having a maturity date of fifteen or more years from the first day of such month of May or November, and by adjusting such estimated average annual yield to the nearest one-eighth of one per centum: And provided further, That for the purposes of this Act, the going Federal rate shall be deemed to be not less than 2½ per centum.

(11) The term "public housing agency" means any State, county, municipality, or other governmental entity or public body (excluding the Authority), which is authorized to engage in the development or administration of low-rent housing or slum clearance. The Authority shall enter into contracts for financial assistance with a State or State agency where such State or State agency makes application for such assistance for an eligible project which, under the applicable laws of the State, is to be developed and administered by such State or State agency.

(12) The term "State" includes the States of the Union, the District of Columbia, and the Territories, dependencies, and possessions of the United States.

(13) The term "Authority" means the United States Housing Authority created by section 3 of this Act.

(14) The term "initiated" when used in reference to the date on which a project was initiated refers to the date of the first contract for financial assistance in respect to such project entered into by the Authority and the public housing agency.

UNITED STATES HOUSING AUTHORITY

SEC. 3. There is hereby created in the Department of Housing and Urban Development [a body corporate of perpetual duration to be known as] the United States Housing Authority, which shall be an agency and instrumentality of the United States. The functions, powers, and duties of the Authority are vested in and shall be exercised by the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development (hereinafter referred to as the "Secretary"). No officer or employee of the Department of Housing and Urban Development, in the performance of any such functions, powers, or duties, shall participate in any matter affecting his personal interest or the interest of any corporation, partnership, or association in which he is directly or indirectly interested.

ANNUAL CONTRIBUTIONS IN ASSISTANCE OF LOW RENTALS

SEC. 10. (a) The Authority may make annual contributions to public housing agencies to assist in achieving and maintaining the low-rent character of their housing projects. The annual contributions for any such project shall be fixed in uniform amounts, and shall be paid in such amounts over a fixed period of years. The Authority shall embody the provisions for such annual contributions in a contract guaranteeing their payment over such fixed period: Provided, That the Authority may, in addition to the payments guaranteed under the contract, pay not to exceed $120 per annum per dwelling unit occupied by an elderly family, or a large family, or a family of unusually low income, or a displaced family if such family was displaced by an urban renewal or low-rent housing project on or after January 27, 1964, on the last day of the project fiscal year where such amount, in the determination of the Authority, was necessary to enable the public housing agency [to lease the dwelling unit to an elderly or displaced family at a rental it could afford and] to operate the project on a solvent basis[, and, in the case of displaced families, if and to the extent that the average or estimated average rental for units so occupied by such families was less than the rental which the Authority determines, on the basis of the average or estimated average project rentals, would have been established in leasing the units to families which were neither elderly nor similarly displaced]. The Authority shall not make any contract for loans (other than preliminary loans) or for annual contributions or for capital grants pursuant to this Act with respect to any low-rent housing project initiated after March 1, 1949, unless the governing body of the locality involved has entered into an agreement with the public housing agency providing that, subsequent to the initiation of the low-rent housing project and within five years after the completion thereof, there has been or will be elimination, as certified by the local governing body, by demolition, condemnation, effective closing, or compulsory repair or improvement, of unsafe or insanitary dwelling units situated in the locality or metropolitan area substantially equal in number to the number of newly constructed dwelling units provided by such project: Provided, however, That where more than one family is living in an unsafe or insanitary dwelling unit the elimination of such unit shall count as the elimination of units equal to the number of families accommodated therein:

Provided further, That such elimination may, in the discretion of the Authority be deferred in any locality or metropolitan area where there is an acute shortage of decent, safe, or sanitary housing available to families of low income: And provided further, That this requirement shall not apply in the case of any low-rent housing project located in a rural nonfarm or Indian area, or to any low-rent housing project developed on the site of a slum cleared subsequent to the date of enactment of the Housing Act of 1949 and that the dwelling units which had been eliminated by the clearance of the site of such project shall not be counted as elimination for any other low-rent project.

(e) The Authority is authorized to enter into contracts for annual contributions aggregating not more than [$366,250,000 per annum, which limit shall be increased by $47,000,000 on the date of the enactment of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965, and by further amounts of $47,000,000 on July 1 in each of the years 1966, 1967, and 1968, respectively,] $554,250,000 per annum, which limit shall be increased by $100,000,000 on the date of enactment of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968 and by further amounts of $150,000,000 on July 1 in each of the years 1969 and 1970, but any such contracts for additional units for any one State shall not, after the date of enactment of the Housing Act of 1961, be entered into for more than 15 per centum of the aggregate amount not already guaranteed under contracts for annual contributions on such date: Provided, That subject to any contractual obligation outstanding on the date of the enactment of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965, any units not under construction within five years from the date they were reserved to a public housing agency may be reserved, allocated, or placed under contract for annual contributions in any State without limitation as to the aggregate amount of units which may be placed under contract for annual contributions in any one State: Provided further, That no such new contract for additional housing units shall be entered into after the date of enactment of the Housing Act of 1961 except with respect to low-rent housing for a locality respecting which the Secretary has made the determination and certification relating to a workable program as prescribed in section 101(c) of the Housing Act of 1949, and the Authority shall enter into only such new contracts for preliminary loans as are consistent with the number of dwelling units for which contracts for annual contributions may be entered into. Without further authorization from Congress, no new contracts for annual contributions beyond those herein authorized shall be entered into by the Authority. The faith of the United States is solemnly pledged to the payment of all annual contributions contracted for pursuant to this section, and there is hereby authorized to be appropriated in each fiscal year, out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, the amounts necessary to provide for such payments.

SEC. 15. In order to insure that the low-rent character of housing projects will be preserved, and that the other purposes of this Act will be achieved, it is hereby provided that—substantial breach of the condition (which shall be embodied in the loan agreement) providing for the maintenance of the low-rent character of the housing project involved or in the event of the acquisition (except pursuant to paragraph (9) of section 15) of such project by a third party in any manner including a bona-fide foreclosure under a mortgage or other lien held by a third party, to increase the interest payable thereafter on the balance of said loan then held by the Authority to a rate not in excess of the going Federal rate (at the time of such breach or acquisition) plus 2 per centum per annum or to declare the unpaid principal on said loan due forthwith.

(9) Notwithstanding any other provision of this Act, but subject to the provisions of any contract with the Authority, any public housing agency may permit any member of a tenant family to enter into a contract (either individually or as a member of a group) for the acquisition of a dwelling unit in any project of the public housing agency [which is suitable by reason of its detached or semidetached construction], if the property to be acquired is sufficiently separable from other property retained by the public housing agency to make it suitable for sale and for occupancy by such purchaser or a member or members of his family, upon the following terms:

(A) The purchaser shall pay at least (i) a pro rata share cost of any services furnished him by the public agency, including but not limited to, administration, maintenance, repairs, utilities, insurance, provision of reserves, and other expenses, (ii) local taxes on his dwelling unit, and (iii) monthly payments of interest and principal sufficient to amortize a sales price, equal to the greater of the unamortized debt or the appraised value (at the time such purchase contract is entered into) of the dwelling unit, in not more than forty years: Provided, That the public housing agency may, under terms and conditions to be prescribed by it, permit a purchaser to apply an amount equal to the net rent paid for his dwelling unit, over a period not exceeding three years prior to the entering into of any such contract, toward the purchase price of such unit;

(B) The interest rate shall be fixed at not less than the average interest cost of loans outstanding on the project, except that in the case of a project on which bonds are not outstanding the interest rate shall be fixed at not less than the going Federal rate applicable to such project;

(C) The principal payments shall be not less than one-half of 1 per centum per annum of the sales price during the first five years after purchase, 1 per centum per annum during the next five years, 1½ per centum per annum during the third five years, and thereafter not less than the principal payments resulting from a level debt service of interest and principal over the balance of the payment period; and

(D) If at any time (i) a purchaser fails to carry out his contract with the public housing agency and if no member of his family who resides in the dwelling assumes such contract, or (ii) the purchaser or a member of his family who assumes the contract does not reside in the dwelling, the public housing agency shall have an option to acquire his interest under such contract upon payment to him or his estate of an amount equal to his aggregate principal payments plus the value to the public housing agency of any improvements made by him, less an amount equal to 2½ per centum of the sale price.

(10) The Secretary is authorized to enter into contracts to make grants to public housing agencies to assist, where necessary, in financing tenant services for families living in low-rent housing projects. In making such contracts and grants, the Secretary shall give preference to programs providing for the maximum feasible participation of the tenants in the development and operation of such tenant services. For purposes of this paragraph the term "tenant services" includes (without being limited to) the following services and activities for families living in low-rent housing projects: counseling on household management, housekeeping, budgeting money management, child care, and similar matters; advice as to resources for job training and placement, education, welfare, health, and other community services; services which are directly related to meeting tenant needs and providing a wholesome living environment, including intertenant activities; and referral to appropriate agencies when necessary for the provision of such services. There are authorized to be appropriated for the purposes of this paragraph not to exceed $20,000,000 for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1969, and not to exceed $40,000,000 for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1970.

(11) Except in the case of housing predominantly for the elderly, upon enactment of this paragraph, the Secretary shall not approve high-rise elevator projects for families with children unless he makes a determination that there is no practical alternative.

SEC. 16. In order to protect labor standards—

(1) The provisions of the Act of August 30, 1935, entitled "An Act to amend the Act approved March 3, 1931, relating to the rate of wages for laborers and mechanics employed by contractors and subcontractors on public buildings" (49 Stat. 1011), and of the Act of August 24, 1935, entitled "An Act requiring contracts for the construction, alteration, and repair of any public building or public work of the United States to be accompanied by a performance bond protecting the United States and by an additional bond for the protection of persons furnishing material and labor for the construction, alteration, or repair of said public buildings or public work" (U.S.C., 1934 edition, Supp. II, title 40, secs. 270a to 270d, inclusive) shall apply to contracts in connection with the development or administration of Federal projects and the furnishing of materials and labor for such projects: Provided, That suits may be brought in the name of the Authority and that the Authority shall itself perform the duties prescribed by section 3(a) of the Act of August 30, 1935, and section 3 of the Act of August 24, 1935.

(2) Any contract for loans, annual contributions, capital grants, sale, or lease pursuant to this Act shall contain a provision requiring that not less than the salaries or wages prevailing in the locality, as determined or adopted (subsequent to a determination under applicable State or local law) by the Authority, shall be paid to all architects, technical engineers, draftsmen, and technicians, employed in the development and to all maintenance laborers and mechanics employed in the administration of the low-rent housing or slum-clearance project involved; and shall also contain a provision that not less than the wages prevailing in the locality, as predetermined by the Secretary of Labor pursuant to the Davis-Bacon Act (49 Stat. 1011), shall be paid to all laborers and mechanics employed in the development of the project involved (including a project for the use of privately built housing in any case, other than under the authority of section 23 of this Act, where the public housing agency and the builder or sponsor enter into an agreement for such use before construction or rehabilitation is commenced), and that each such laborer or mechanic shall receive compensation at a rate not less than one and one-half times his basic rate of pay for all hours worked in any workweek in excess of eight hours in any workday or forty hours in the workweek, as the case may be; and the Authority shall require certification as to compliance with the provisions of this paragraph prior to making any payment under such contract.

(3) The provisions of sections 1 and 2 of the Act of June 13, 1934 (U.S.C., 1934 edition, title 40, secs. 276b and 276c), shall apply to any low-rent-housing or slum-clearance project financed in whole or in part with funds made available pursuant to this Act.

(4) Repealed.

FINANCIAL PROVISIONS

[SEC. 17. The Authority shall have a capital stock of $1,000,000, which shall be subscribed by the United States and paid by the Secretary of the Treasury out of any available funds. Receipts for such payment shall be issued to the Secretary of the Treasury by the Authority and shall evidence the stock ownership of the United States of America.]

SEC. 17. In the performance of, and with respect to, his functions, powers, and duties under this Act, the Secretary shall have (in addition to any authority otherwise vested in him) the functions, powers, and duties set forth in subsections (a), (b), and (e) of section 402 of the Housing Act of 1950.

SEC. 18. There is hereby authorized to be appropriated, out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, the sum of $26,000,000 for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1938, of which $1,000,000 shall be available to pay the subscription to the capital stock of the Authority. Such sum, and all receipts and assets of the Authority, shall be available for the purposes of this Act until expended.

SEC. 19. Any funds available under any Act of Congress for allocation for housing or slum clearance may, in the discretion of the President, be allocated to the Authority for the purposes of this Act.

SEC. 20. The Authority may issue and have outstanding at any one time notes and other obligations for purchase by the Secretary of the Treasury in an amount [not to exceed $1,500,000,000] which shall not, unless authorized by the President, exceed $1,500,000,000. For the purpose of determining obligations incurred to make loans pursuant to this Act against any limitation otherwise applicable with respect to such loans, the Secretary shall estimate the maximum amount to be loaned at any one time pursuant to loan agreements then outstanding with public housing agencies. Such notes or other obligations shall be in such forms and denominations, shall have such maturities, and shall be subject to such terms and conditions as may be prescribed by the Authority with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury. Such notes or other obligations shall bear interest at a rate determined by the Secretary of the Treasury, taking into consideratiou the current average rate on outstanding marketable obligations of the United States as of the last day of the month preceding the issuance of the notes or other obligations by the Authority. The Secretary of the Treasury is authorized and directed to purchase any notes or other obligations of the Authority issued hereunder and for such purpose is authorized to use as a public debt transaction the proceeds from the sale of any securities issued under the Second Liberty Bond Act, as amended, and the purposes for which securities may be issued under such Act, as amended, are extended to include any purchases of such obligations. The Secretary of the Treasury may at any time sell any of the notes or other obligations acquired by him under this section. All redemptions, purchases, and sales by the Secretary of the Treasury of such notes or other obligations shall be treated as public debt transactions of the United States.

LOW-RENT HOUSING IN PRIVATE ACCOMMODATIONS

SEC. 23. (a)(1) For the purpose of providing a supplementary form of low-rent housing which will aid in assuring a decent place to live for every citizen and promote efficiency and economy in the program under this Act by taking full advantage of vacancies or potential vacancies in the private housing market, each public housing agency shall, to the maximum extent consistent with the achievement of the objectives of this Act, provide low-rent housing under this Act in the form of low-rent housing in private accommodations in accordance with this section where such housing in private accommodations can be provided at a cost equal to or less than housing in projects assisted under other provisions of this Act.

(2) The provisions of this section shall not apply to any locality unless the governing body of the locality has by resolution approved the application of such provisions to such locality.

(3) As used in this section, the term "low-rent housing in private accommodations" means dwelling units in an existing structure, leased from a private owner, which provide decent, safe, and sanitary dwelling accommodations and related facilities effectively supplementing the accommodations and facilities in low-rent housing assisted under the other provisions of this Act in a manner calculated to meet the total housing needs of the community in which they are located; and the term "owner" means any person or entity having the legal right to lease or sublease property containing one or more dwelling units as described in this section.

(b) Beginning as soon as practicable after the date of the enactment of this section, each public housing agency shall conduct a continuing survey and listing of the available dwelling units within the community or communities under its jurisdiction which provide decent, safe, and sanitary dwelling accommodations and related facilities and are, or may be made, suitable for use as low-rent housing in private accommodations under this section.

(c) Each public housing agency, by notification to the owners of housing listed under subsection (b), or by publication or advertisement, or otherwise, shall from time to time make known to the public in the community or communities under its jurisdiction the anticipated need for dwelling units in such community or communities to be used as low-rent housing in private accommodations under this section, inviting the owners of such dwelling units to make available for purposes of this section one or more of such units ([not exceeding 10 per centum of the units in any single structure except] not exceeding, in the case of any single structure, the lesser of (i) ten units or 10 per centum of the units in the structure, whichever is greater, or (ii) 50 per centum of the units in the structure, with such lesser number being increased (if it is not a whole number) to the next higher whole number; except to the extent that the agency, because of the limited number of units in the structure or for any other reason, determines that such limit should not be applied). The public housing agency shall conduct appropriate inspections of the units offered to be made available in any residential structure by the owner thereof in response to such invitation, and if—

(1) it finds that such units are, or may be made, suitable for use as low-rent housing in private accommodations within the meaning of subsection (a)(3), and

(2) the rentals to be charged for such units, as negotiated and agreed to by the agency and the owner of the structure in a manner consistent with subsection (d)(2), are within the financial range of families of low income, such agency may approve such units for use as low-rent housing in private accommodations in accordance with (and subject to the applicable limitations contained in) this section. Each public housing agency shall maintain and keep current a list of units approved by it under this subsection, including such information with respect to each such unit as it may consider necessary or appropriate.

(d) To the extent of contracts for annual contributions entered into by the Authority with a public housing agency under section 10(e), such agency may enter into contracts with the owners of structures containing dwelling units approved under subsection (c) for the use of such units in accordance with this section (and no limitation not specifically provided for in this section shall be imposed by regulations of the Authority on the types or categories of structures or dwelling units, qualifying under subsection (a)(3) and approved under subsection (c), which may be so used in any community). Each such contract with an owner shall provide (with respect to any unit) that—

(1) the selection of tenants for such unit shall be the function of the owner, subject to the provisions of the contract between the Authority and the agency;

(2) the rental and other charges to be received by the owner shall be negotiated and agreed to by the agency and the owner, and the rental and other charges to be paid by the tenant shall be determined in accordance with the standards applicable to units in low-rent housing projects assisted under the other provisions of this Act;

(3) the agency shall have the sole right to give notice to vacate, with the owner having the right to make representations to the agency for termination of a tenancy;

(4) maintenance and replacements (including redecoration) shall be in accordance with the standard practice for the building concerned, as established by the owner and agreed to by the agency; and

(5) the agency and the owner shall carry out such other appropriate terms and conditions as may be mutually agreed to by them.

Each contract between a public housing agency and an owner entered into under this subsection shall be for a term of not less than twelve months nor more than sixty months, and shall be renewable by such agency and owner at the expiration of such term.

(e) The annual contribution under this Act for a project of a public housing agency for low-rent housing in private accommodations under this section in lieu of any other guaranteed contribution authorized by section 10 shall not exceed the amount of the fixed annual contribution which would be established under this Act for a newly constructed project by such public housing agency designed to accommodate the comparable number, sizes, and kinds of families. The period over which payments will be made to a public housing agency for a project of low-rent housing in private accommodations under this section, and the aggregate amount of such payments, under a contract for annual contributions, shall be determined on the basis of the number of units in the community or communities under the jurisdiction of such agency which are in use (or can reasonably be expected to be placed in use) as low-rent housing in private accommodations under this section, taking into account the terms of the leases under which such units are (or will be) so used. In addition, contracts for financial assistance entered into by the Authority with a public housing agency pursuant to this section shall provide for reimbursement of reasonable and necessary expenses incurred by such agency in conducting surveys, listings, and inspections described in subsections (b) and (c).

(f) The provisions of sections 10(h) and 15(7) of this Act, and the workable program requirement in section 10(e) of this Act and section 101(c) of the Housing Act of 1949, shall not apply to (1) low-rent housing in private accommodations provided under this section, or (2) housing purchased (or in the process of purchase) by the public housing agency for resale to tenants as provided in subsection (g).

(g) To the extent authorized in contracts entered into by the Authority with a public housing agency, such agency may purchase any structure containing one or more dwelling units leased to provide low-rent housing in private accommodations under this section for the purpose of reselling the structure to the tenant or tenants of the structure or to a group of such tenants occupying units aggregating in value at least 80 per centum of the structure's total value. Any such resale shall be made subject to such terms and conditions (including provision for deferment of the required downpayment and for elimination of or adjustments in the required interest payments during a temporary period) as may be necessary to enable the tenants involved to make the purchase without undue financial hardship.

TITLE I, HOUSING ACT OF 1949, AS AMENDED

[Public Law 171, 81st Congress; 63 Stat. 413, 414; 42 U.S.C. 1450]

TITLE I—SLUM CLEARANCE AND URBAN RENEWAL

Part A—Urban Renewal Projects, Demolition Programs, and Code Enforcement Programs

URBAN RENEWAL FUND

SEC. 100. The authorizations, funds, and appropriations available pursuant to sections 102 and 103 hereof shall constitute a fund, to be known as the "Urban Renewal Fund", and shall be available for advances, loans, and grants to local public agencies for urban renewal projects in accordance with the provisions of this title, and all contracts, obligations, assets, and liabilities existing under or pursuant to said sections prior to the enactment of the Housing Act of 1954 are hereby transferred to said Fund.

LOCAL RESPONSIBILITIES

* * * * * * *

(c) No contract shall be entered into for any loan or capital grant under this title, or for annual contributions or capital grants pursuant to the United States Housing Act of 1937, as amended, for any project or projects not constructed or covered by a contract for annual contributions prior to August 1, 1956, and no mortgage shall be insured, and no commitment to insure a mortgage shall be issued, under section 220 or section 221(d)(3) of the National Housing Act, as amended, unless (1) there is presented to the Secretary by the locality a workable program for community improvement (which shall include an official plan of action, as it exists from time to time, for effectively dealing with the problem of urban slums and blight within the community and for the establishment and preservation of a well-planned community with well-organized residential neighborhoods of decent homes and suitable living environment for adequate family life) for utilizing appropriate private and public resources to eliminate, and prevent the development or spread of, slums and urban blight, to encourage needed urban rehabilitation, to provide for the redevelopment of blighted, deteriorated, or slum areas, or to undertake such of the aforesaid activities or other feasible community activities as may be suitably employed to achieve the objectives of such a program, and (2) on the basis of his review of such program, the Secretary determines that such program meets the requirements of this subsection and certifies that the Federal assistance may be made available in such community: Provided, That this sentence shall not apply to the insurance of, or commitment to insure, a mortgage under (i) section 220 of the National Housing Act, as amended, if the mortgaged property is in an area referred to in clause (A)(i) of paragraph (1) of section 220(d) of the National Housing Act, or (ii) section 221(d)(3) of the National Housing Act if payments with respect to the mortgaged property are made or are to be made under section 101 of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965, except that no such mortgage shall be insured, and no commitment to insure such a mortgage shall be issued, with respect to property in any community for which a workable program for community improvement was required and in effect at the time a contract for a loan or capital grant was entered into under this title, or a contract for annual contributions or capital grants was entered into pursuant to the United States Housing Act of 1937, unless there is a workable program for community improvement which meets the requirements of this subsection in effect in such community at the time of such insurance or commitment: Provided further, That commencing three years after the date of enactment of the Housing Act of 1964, or, in the case of an Indian tribe, band, or nation, commencing January 1, 1969 no workable program shall be certified or re-certified unless (A) the locality has had in effect, for at least six months prior to such certification or re-certification, a minimum standards housing code, related but not limited to health, sanitation, and occupancy requirements, which is deemed adequate by the Secretary, and (B) the Secretary is satisfied that the locality is carrying out an effective program of enforcement to achieve compliance with such housing code. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, in the case of a contract with an Indian tribe, band, or nation (or a public housing or other public agency for such tribe, band, or nation established under State or tribal law), the workable program and minimum standards housing code, referred to in the preceding sentence, may be presented to the Secretary by such tribe, band, or nation, and it shall be subject to the requirements of law with respect to such program and code only to the extent that such tribe, band, or nation has the legal jurisdiction and power to carry out such requirements.

LOANS

SEC. 102. (a) To assist local communities in the elimination of slums and blighted or deteriorated or deteriorating areas, in preventing the spread of slums, blight or deterioration, and in providing maximum opportunity for the redevelopment, rehabilitation, and conservation of such areas by private enterprise, the Secretary may make temporary and definitive loans to local public agencies in accordance with the provisions of this title for the undertaking of urban renewal projects. Such loans (outstanding at any one time) shall be in such amounts not exceeding the estimated expenditures to be made by the local public agency for such purposes, bear interest at such rate (not less than the applicable going Federal rate), be secured in such manner and be repaid within such period (not exceeding, in the case of definitive loans, forty years from the date of the bonds or other obligations evidencing such loans), as may be deemed advisable by the Secretary. In any case where, in connection with its undertaking and carrying out of an urban renewal project, a local public agency is authorized (under the circumstances in which the temporary loan herein provided is requested) to acquire real property in the urban renewal area, the Secretary, in addition to all other authority under this title and notwithstanding any other provisions of this title, regardless of the stage of development of the urban renewal plan and whether before or after the approval thereof, may make a temporary loan or loans to any such local public agency to finance the acquisition of such real property: Provided, That no loan for such purpose shall be made unless (1) the governing body of the locality involved shall have approved by resolution or ordinance the acquisition of real property in the urban renewal area, and (2) either (A) the Secretary shall have determined that such loan is reasonably secured by a first mortgage or other prior lien upon such real property or is otherwise reasonably secured, or (B) the governing body of the locality shall have assumed the responsibility to bear any loss that may arise as the result of such acquisition in the event that the property so acquired is not used for urban renewal purposes because the urban renewal plan for the project is not approved, or is amended to omit any of the acquired property, or is abandoned for any reason: Provided further, That the Secretary may, in his discretion and subject to such conditions as he may impose, permit any structure so acquired to be demolished and removed, and may include in any loan authorized by this section the cost of such demolition and removal, together with administrative, relocation, and other related costs and payments, if the approval of the local governing body extends to such demolition and removal: And provided further, That the loan contract shall provide that the local public agency shall not dispose of such real property (except in lieu of foreclosure) until the local governing body of the locality involved shall have either approved the urban renewal plan for the project or consented to the disposal of such real property. Notwithstanding any other provision of this title, the Secretary may make a temporary loan, as described in the first two sentences of this subsection, for two or more urban renewal projects being carried out by the same local public agency. The principal amount of any such loan which is outstanding at any one time shall not exceed the estimated expenditures to be made by the local public agency for such projects.

(b) In connection with any project on land which is open or predominantly open, the Secretary may make temporary loans to municipalities or other public bodies for the provision of public buildings or facilities necessary to serve or support the new uses of such land in the project area. Such temporary loans shall be in such amounts not exceeding the expenditures to be made for such purpose, bear interest at such rate (not less than the applicable going Federal rate), be secured in such manner, and be repaid within such period (not exceeding ten years from the date of the obligations evidencing such loans), as may be deemed advisable by the Secretary.

(c) Loans made pursuant to subsection (a) or (b) hereof may be made subject to the condition that, if at any time or times or for any period or periods during the life of the loan contract the local public agency can obtain loan funds from sources other than the Federal Government [at interest rates lower than provided in the loan contract], it may do so with the consent of the Secretary at such times and for such periods without waiving or surrendering any rights to loan funds under the contract for the remainder of the life of such contract, and in any such case, the Secretary is authorized to consent to a pledge by the local public agency of the loan contract, and any or all of its rights thereunder, as security for the repayment of the principal of and the interest on the loan funds so obtained from other sources: Provided, That, if at any time during the undertaking of the project, the interest rate on such a loan from a source other than the Federal Government is greater than the rate at which funds could be made available under the Federal loan contract, the Secretary may make a supplemental grant to the local public agency in the amount of the difference between the interest cost from such sources and the interest cost at the contract rate, and no part of the amount of any such grant shall be required to be contributed as a part of the local grant-in-aid. In connection with any such pledge of a loan contract, including loan payments thereunder, as security for the repayment of obligations of the local public agency held by other than the Federal Government, the Secretary is authorized to agree to pay, through operations of a paying agent or agents, and to pay or cause to be paid when due, from funds obtained pursuant to subsection (e) of this section, to the holders of such obligations (or to their agents or designees) the principal of and the interest on such obligations, subject to such conditions as the Secretary may determine but without regard to any other condition or requirement. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, any contract or other instrument executed by the Secretary which, by its terms, includes an obligation of the Secretary to make payment pursuant to this subsection shall be construed by all officers of the United States separate and apart from the loan contract and shall be incontestable in the hands of a bearer and the full faith and credit of the United States is pledged to the payment of all amounts agreed to be paid by the Secretary pursuant to this subsection.

CAPITAL GRANTS

SEC. 103. (a)(1) The Secretary may make capital grants to local public agencies in accordance with the provisions of this title for urban renewal projects: Provided, That the Secretary shall not make any contract for capital grant with respect to a project which consists of open land, except that he may contract for such a grant in an amount not to exceed two-thirds of the difference between the proceeds from any land disposed of pursuant to section 107 and the fair value of the land without regard to such section.

be increased by $1,400,000,000 on July 1, 1969. In addition to the authority to make grants provided in the first sentence of this subsection, the Secretary may contract to make grants under this title, on or after July 1, 1967, in an amount not to exceed [$250,000,000] $600,000,000: Provided, That the authority to contract to make grants provided by this sentence shall be exercised only with respect to an urban renewal project which is identified and scheduled to be carried out as one of the projects or activities included within an approved comprehensive city demonstration program assisted under the provisions of section 105(c) of the Demonstration Cities and Metropolitan Development Act of 1966. Such grants shall not be used for major long-term capital improvement; shall not exceed two-thirds of the cost, as determined or estimated by the Secretary, of the project for which the grant is made; and shall be subject to such other terms and conditions as he may prescribe. The Secretary is authorized, notwithstanding the provisions of section 3648 of the Revised Statutes, as amended, to make advance or progress payments on account of any grant contracted to be made pursuant to this section. The faith of the United States is solemnly pledged to the payment of all grants contracted for under this title, and there are hereby authorized to be appropriated, out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, the amounts necessary to provide for such payments: Provided, That any amounts so appropriated shall also be available for repaying to the Secretary of the Treasury, for application to notes of the Secretary, the principal amounts of any funds advanced to local public agencies under this title which the Secretary determines to be uncollectible because of the termination of activities for which such advances were made, together with the interest paid or accrued to the Secretary of the Treasury (as determined by him) attributable to notes given by the Secretary in connection with such advances, but all such repayments shall constitute a charge against the authorization to make contracts for grants contained in this section: Provided further, That no such determination of the Secretary shall be construed to prejudice the rights of the United States with respect to any such advance.

LOCAL DETERMINATIONS

SEC. 105. Contracts for loans or capital grants shall be made only with a duly authorized local public agency and shall require that—

(a) The urban renewal plan for the urban renewal area be approved by the governing body of the locality in which the project is situated, and that such approval include findings by the governing body that (i) the financial aid to be provided in the contract is necessary to enable the project to be undertaken in accordance with the urban renewal plan; (ii) the urban renewal plan will afford maximum opportunity, consistent with the sound needs of the locality as a whole, for the rehabilitation or redevelopment of the urban renewal area by private enterprise; (iii) the urban renewal plan conforms to a general plan for the development of the locality as a whole; and (iv) the urban renewal plan gives due consideration to the provision of adequate park and recreational areas and facilities, as may be desirable for neighborhood improvement with special consideration for the health, safety, and welfare of children residing in the general vicinity of the site covered by the plan;

[(f) The redevelopment of the urban renewal area, unless such redevelopment is for predominantly nonresidential uses, will provide a substantial number of units of standard housing of low and moderate cost and result in marked progress in serving the poor and disadvantaged people living in slum and blighted areas.]

(f) A majority of the housing units provided in each community's total of such approved urban renewal projects as will be redeveloped for predominantly residential uses and which receive Federal recognition after the date of enactment of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968 shall be standard housing units for low and moderate income families or individuals: Provided, That the units in each community's total of such approved urban renewal projects which are for low income families or individuals shall constitute at least 20 per centum of the units in such projects.

(g) Consideration has been given to development of a sewer system to serve the urban renewal area which will, to the maximum extent feasible, provide for effective control of storm and sanitary wastes.

GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. 106. (a) In the performance of, and with respect to, the functions, powers, and duties vested in him by this title, the Secretary, notwithstanding the provisions of any other law, shall—

(1) prepare annually and submit a budget program as provided for wholly owned Government corporations by the Government Corporation Control Act, as amended;

(2) maintain an integral set of accounts which shall be audited annually by the General Accounting Office in accordance with the principles and procedures applicable to commercial transactions as provided by the Government Corporation Control Act, as amended, and no other audit shall be required: Provided, That such financial transactions of the Secretary as the making of advances of funds, loans, or grants and vouchers approved by the Secretary in connection with such financial transactions shall be final and conclusive upon all officers of the Government.

* * * * * * *

(h) Notwithstanding any other provision of this title, no contract shall be entered into for any loan or capital grant under this title with any local public agency unless the local public agency establishes, by evidence satisfactory to the Secretary, that any urban renewal project with respect to which such local public agency has received a loan or capital grant under this title has been, or will be, undertaken and carried out in substantial accordance with the urban renewal plan, and any amendments thereto, approved with respect to such project, and the terms of the contract for loan or capital grant covering such project.

(i) Upon a determination by the Secretary that (1) not more than 5 per centum of the total area of land acquired as part of an urban renewal project remains to be disposed of, (2) the local public agency does not expect to be able, due to circumstances beyond its control, to dispose of such land in the near future, (3) all other project activities are completed, and (4) the local public agency has agreed to dispose of or retain such land for uses in accordance with the urban renewal plan, the urban renewal project may be deemed completed, and the net project cost may be computed and the capital grant paid.

PROPERTY TO BE USED FOR PUBLIC HOUSING OR HOUSING FOR MODERATE INCOME FAMILIES

SEC. 107. (a) Upon approval of the Secretary and subject to such conditions as he may determine to be in the public interest, any real property held as part of an urban renewal project may be made available to (1) a limited dividend corporation, nonprofit corporation or association, cooperative, or public body or agency, or other approved purchaser or lessee, or (2) a purchaser or lessee who would be eligible for a mortgage insured under section 221 (d)(3) or (d)(4), section 221 (h)(1), section 235(j)(1), or section 236 of the National Housing Act, for purchase or lease at fair value for use by such purchaser or lessee in the provision of new or rehabilitated [rental or cooperative] housing for occupancy by families or individuals of low or moderate income.

SEC. 110. The following terms shall have the meanings, respectively, ascribed to them below, and, unless the context clearly indicates otherwise, shall include the plural as well as the singular number:

(a) "Urban renewal area" means a slum area or a blighted, deteriorated, or deteriorating area in the locality involved which the Secretary approves as appropriate for an urban renewal project.

(b) "Urban renewal plan" means a plan, as it exists from time to time, for an urban renewal project, which plan (1) shall conform to the general plan of the locality as a whole and to the workable program referred to in section 101 hereof and shall be consistent with definite local objectives respecting appropriate land uses, improved traffic, public transportation, public utilities, recreational and community facilities, and other public improvements; and (2) shall be sufficiently complete to indicate, to the extent required by the Secretary for the making of loans and grants under this title such land acquisition, historic and architectural preservation, demolition and removal of structures, redevelopment, improvements, and rehabilitation as may be proposed to be carried out in the urban renewal area, zoning and planning changes, if any, land uses, maximum densities, and building requirements.

(c) "Urban renewal project" or "project" may include undertakings and activities of a local public agency in an urban renewal area for the elimination and for the prevention of the development or spread of slums and blight, and may involve slum clearance and redevelopment in an urban renewal area, or rehabilitation or conservation in an urban renewal area, or any combination or part thereof, in accordance with such urban renewal plan. Such undertakings and activities may include—

(1) acquisition of (i) a slum area or a deteriorated or deteriorating area, or (ii) land which is predominantly open and which because of oboslete platting, diversity of ownership, deterioration of structures or of site improvements, or otherwise, substantially impairs or arrests the sound growth of the community, or (iii) open land necessary for sound community growth which is to be developed for predominantly residential uses, or (iv) air rights in an area consisting principally of land in highways, railway or subway tracks, bridge or tunnel entrances, or other similar facilities which have a blighting influence on the surrounding area and over which air rights sites are to be developed for the elimination of such blighting influences and for the provision of housing (and related facilities and uses) designed specifically for, and limited to, families and individuals of low or moderate income or, if the area is found by the local public agency to be unsuitable for use for low or moderate income housing, for use for [industrial development] the development of industrial or educational facilities: Provided, That the requirement in paragraph (a) of this section that the area be a slum area or a blighted, deteriorated or deteriorating area shall not be applicable in the case of projects under clauses (iii) and (iv) hereof: Provided further, That the aggregate amount of capital grants for projects under clause (iv) shall not exceed 5 per centum of the aggregate amount of grants authorized by this title to be contracted for after the date of enactment of the Housing Act of 1964;

(2) demolition and removal of buildings and improvements;

(3) installation, construction, or reconstruction of streets, utilities, parks, playgrounds, and other improvements necessary for carrying out in the urban renewal area the urban renewal objectives of this title in accordance with the urban renewal plan;

(4) disposition of any property acquired in the urban renewal area (including sale, leasing or retention by the local public agency itself) at its fair value for uses in accordance with the urban renewal plan or as provided in section 107;

(5) carrying out plans for programs of code enforcement or voluntary repair and rehabilitation of buildings or other improvements in accordance with the urban renewal plan.

(6) acquisition of any other real property in the urban renewal area where necessary to eliminate unhealthful, insanitary or unsafe conditions, lessen density, eliminate obsolete or other uses detrimental to the public welfare, or otherwise to remove or prevent the spread of blight or deterioration, to promote historic and architectural preservation, or to provide land for needed public facilities;

(7) construction of foundations and platforms necessary for the provision on air rights sites of housings (and related facilities and uses) designed specifically for, and limited to, families and individuals of low or moderate income, or construction of foundations and platforms necessary for the provision of air rights sites for [industrial development] the development of industrial or educational facilities;

(8) acquisition and repair or rehabilitation for [guidance purposes, and] resale by the local public agency, of structures which are located in the urban renewal area, and which, under the urban renewal plan, are to be repaired or rehabilitated for dwelling use or related facilities [: Provided, That the local public agency shall not acquire for such purposes, in any urban renewal area, structures which contain or will contain more than (A) one hundred dwelling units, or (B) 5 per centum of the total number of dwelling units in such area which, under the urban renewal plan, are to be repaired or rehabilitated, whichever is the lesser];

(9) relocation within or outside the project area of structures which will be restored and maintained for architectural or historic purposes; and

(10) restoration of acquired properties of historic or architectural value.

Notwithstanding any other provision of this title, (A) no contract shall be entered into for any loan or capital grant under this title for any project which provides for demolition and removal of buildings and improvements unless the Secretary determines that the objectives of the urban renewal plan could not be achieved through rehabilitation of the project area, and (B) not less than (10) per centum of the aggregate amount of (i) grants authorized to be contracted for under this title by the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965 and subsequent Acts, and (ii) loans authorized to be made under section 312 of the Housing Act of 1964, shall be available for projects assisted with such grants or loans which involve primarily code enforcement and rehabilitation.

For the purposes of this title, the term "project" shall not include (except as provided in paragraphs (7), (8), [and] (9) and (10) above) the construction or improvement of any building, and the term "redevelopment" and derivatives thereof shall mean development as well as redevelopment. For any of the purposes of section 109 hereof, the term "project" shall not include any donations or provisions made as local grants-in-aid and eligible as such pursuant to clauses (2) and (3) of section 110(d) hereof.

Financial assistance shall not be extended under this title with respect to any urban renewal area which is not predominantly residential in character and which, under the urban renewal plan therefor, is not to be redeveloped for predominantly residential uses: Provided, That, if the governing body of the local public agency determines that the redevelopment of such an area for predominantly nonresidential uses is necessary for the proper development of the community, the Secretary may extend financial assistance under this title for such a project: Provided further, That the aggregate amount of capital grants contracted to be made pursuant to this title with respect to such projects after the date of the enactment of the Housing Act of 1959 shall not exceed 30 per centum of the aggregate amount of grants authorized by this title to be contracted for after such date: And provided further, That the aggregate amount of capital grants made available under this title with respect to such projects after the date of the enactment of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965 may be in an amount not to exceed (in addition to amounts previously available for such projects) 35 per centum of the amount of additional capital grants authorized under this title by such Act.

In addition to all other powers hereunder vested, where land within the purview of clause (1)(ii) or (1)(iii) of the first paragraph of this subsection (whether it be predominantly residential or nonresidential in character) is to be redeveloped for predominantly nonresidential uses, loans and advances under this title may be extended therefor if the governing body of the local public agency determines that such redevelopment for predominantly nonresidential uses is necessary and appropriate to facilitate the proper growth and development of the community in accordance with sound planning standards and local community objectives and to afford maximum opportunity for the redevelopment of the project area by private enterprise: Provided, That loans and outstanding advances to any local public agency pursuant to the authorization of this sentence shall not exceed 2½ per centum of the estimated gross project costs of the projects undertaken under other contracts with such local public agency pursuant to this title.

(d) "Local grants-in-aid" shall mean assistance by a State, municipality, or other public body, or (in the case of cash grants or donations of land or other real property) and other entity, in connection with any project on which a contract for capital grant has been made under this title, in the form of (1) cash grants to defray expenditures within the purview of section 110(e)(1) hereof; (2) donations, at cash value, of land or other real property (exclusive of land in streets, alleys, and other public rights-of-way which may be vacated in connection with the project, or of air rights over streets, alleys, and other public rights-of-way) in the urban renewal area, and demolition, removal, or other work or improvements in the urban renewal area, at the cost thereof, of the types described in clauses (2), (3), (7), (9), and (10) of the second sentence of section 110(c); and (3) the provision, at their cost, of public buildings or other public facilities (other than publicly owned housing and revenue producing public utilities the capital cost of which is wholly financed with local bonds or obligations payable solely out of revenues derived from service charges) which are necessary for carrying out in the area the urban renewal objectives of this title in accordance with the urban renewal plan: Provided, That in any case where, in the determination of the Secretary, any park, playground, public building, or other public facility is of direct benefit both to the urban renewal area and to other areas, and the approximate degree of the benefit to such other areas is estimated by the Secretary at 20 per centum or more of the total benefits, the Secretary shall provide that, for the purpose of computing the amount of the local grants-in-aid for the project there shall be included only such portion of the cost of such facility as the Secretary estimates to be proportionate to the approximate degree of the benefit of such facility to the urban renewal area: Provided further, That any publicly owned facility, the construction of which was begun not earlier than three years prior to the date of enactment of the Demonstration Cities and Metropolitan Development Act of 1966, shall be deemed to benefit an urban renewal project or projects to the extent of 25 per centum of the total benefits of such facility, or $3,500,000, whichever is less, if such facility (A)(i) is used, or is to be used, by the public predominantly for cultural, exhibition, or civic purposes, or is a city hall or a public safety building, or (ii) is a facility, constructed or rehabilitated by a public university, which is or will be devoted to the treatment of physical or mental disabilities and illness or to medical research; (B) is located within, adjacent to, or in the immediate vicinity of such urban renewal project or projects; (C) is found to contribute materially to the objectives of the urban renewal plan or plans for such project or projects; and (D) is not otherwise eligible as a local grant-in-aid: And provided further, That for the purpose of computing the amount of local grants-in-aid under this section 110(d) with respect to any project covered by a Federal-aid contract under this title, the estimated cost (as determined by the Secretary) of parks, playgrounds, public buildings, or other public facilities may be deemed to be the actual cost thereof if (i) the construction or provision thereof is not completed at the time of final disposition of land in the project to be acquired and disposed of under the urban renewal plan, and (ii) the Secretary has received assurance satisfactory to him that such park, playground, public building, or other public facility will be constructed or completed when needed and within a time prescribed by him: And provided further, That in any case where a public facility furnished as a local grant-in-aid is financed in whole or in part by special assessments against real property in the project area acquired by the local public agency as part of the project, an amount equal to the total special assessments against such real property (or, in the case of a computation pursuant to the proviso immediately preceding, the estimated amount of such total special assessments) shall be deducted from the cost of such facility for the purpose of computing the amount of the local grants-in-aid for the project. With respect to any demolition or removal work, improvement or facility for which a State, municipality, or other public body has received or has contracted to receive any grant or subsidy from the United States, or any agency or instrumentality thereof, the portion of the cost thereof defrayed or estimated by the Secretary to be defrayed with such subsidy or grant shall not be eligible for inclusion as a local grant-in-aid.

Notwithstanding any other provision of this subsection, no donation or provision of a public improvement or public facility of a type falling within the purview of this subsection shall be deemed to be ineligible as a local grant-in-aid for any project solely on the basis that the construction of such improvement or facility was commenced without notification to the Secretary or prior to Federal recognition of such project, if such construction was commenced not more than three years prior to the authorization by the Secretary of a contract for loan or capital grant for the project.

Where a project in any municipality includes an area affected by an underground mine fire or by a coal mine subsidence and where it is necessary in such project to remove any underlying coal deposits in order to stabilize the soil or to control the underground mine fire, then any royalties received by the project from the removal and sale of such coal deposits shall be credited to the project as a local grant-in-aid made by such municipality.

(e) "Gross project cost" shall comprise (1) the amount of the expenditures by the local public agency with respect to any and all undertakings necessary to carry out the project (including the payment of carrying charges, but not beyond the point where the project is completed), and (2) the amount of such local grants-in-aid as are furnished in forms other than cash. There may be included as part of the gross project cost, under any contract for loan or grant heretofore or hereafter executed under this title, with respect to moneys of the local public agency which are actually expended and outstanding for undertakings (other than in the form of local grants-in-aid) necessary to carry out the project, in the absence of carrying charges on such moneys, an amount in lieu of carrying charges which might otherwise have been payable thereon for the period such moneys are expended and outstanding but not beyond the point where the project is completed, computed for each six-month period or portion thereof, at an interest rate to be determined by the Secretary after taking into consideration for each preceding six-month period the average interest rate borne by any obligations of local public agencies for short-term funds obtained from sources other than the Federal Government in the manner provided in section 102(c): Provided, That such amount may be computed on the net total of all such moneys of the local public agency remaining expended and outstanding, less other moneys received from the project undertaken in excess of project expenditures, in all projects of the local public agency under this title and allocated, as the Secretary may determine, to each of such projects. With respect to a project for which a contract for capital grant has been executed on a three-fourths basis pursuant to section 103(a)(2)(C), gross project cost shall include, in lieu of the amount specified in clause (1) above, the amount of the expenditures by the local public agency with respect to the following undertakings and activities necessary to carry out such project:

(i) acquisition of land (but only to the extent of the consideration paid to the owner and not title, appraisal, negotiating, legal, or any other expenditures of the local public agency incidental to acquiring land), disposition of land, staff services in connection with programs of code enforcement and voluntary rehabilitation and repair (including community organization), demolition and removal of buildings and improvements, and site preparation and improvements, all as provided in paragraphs (1), (2), (3), (4), (5), (6), (7), (8), [and (9)] (9), and (10) of subsection (c); and

but not the cost of any other undertakings, and activities (including, but without being limited to, the cost of surveys and plans, legal services of any kind, and all administrative and overhead expenses of the local public agency) with respect to such project. Where real property in the project area is acquired and is owned as part of the project by the local public agency and such property is not subject to ad valorem taxes by reason of its ownership by the local public agency and payments in lieu of taxes are not made on account of such property, there may (with respect to any project for which a contract of Federal assistance under this title is in force or is hereafter executed, other than a project on which a contract for capital grant is made on a three-fourths basis pursuant to section 103(a)(2)(C)) be included, at the discretion of the Secretary, in gross project cost an amount equal to the ad valorem taxes which would have been levied upon such property if it had been subject to ad valorem taxes, but in all cases prorated for the period during which such property is owned by the local public agency as part of the project, and such amount shall also be considered a cash local grant-in-aid within the purview of section 110(d) hereof. Such amount, and the amount of taxes or payments in lieu of taxes included in gross project cost, shall be subject to the approval of the Secretary and such rules, regulations, limitations, and conditions as he may prescribe.

Where a project includes the acquisition of property which has been damaged because of the collapse or subsidence of underlying coal mines, or underground mine fires, and the property is to be acquired from an individual, family, business concern, or nonprofit organization which was the owner of such property at the time the damage first occurred, the amount otherwise allowable as the acquisition price of such property may be increased by an amount equal to so much of any diminution in the value of such property as is determined to be reasonably attributable to such damage and to represent an otherwise uncompensated and (but for such acquisition) uncompensable loss actually sustained by such owner.

(f) "Net project cost" shall mean the difference between the gross project cost and the aggregate of (1) the total sales prices of all land or other property sold, and (2) the total capital values (i) imputed, on a basis approved by the Secretary, to all land or other property leased, and (ii) used as a basis for determining the amounts to be transferred to the project from other funds of the local public agency to compensate for any land or other property retained by it for use in accordance with the urban renewal plan or for subsequent disposition or retention as provided under section 106(i).

(g) "Going Federal rate" means (with respect to any contract for a loan or advance entered into after the first annual rate has been specified as provided in this sentence) the annual rate of interest which the Secretary of the Treasury shall specify as applicable to the six-month period (beginning with the six-month period ending December 31, 1953) during which the contract for loan or advance under this title is authorized by the Secretary, which applicable rate for each six-month period shall be determined by the Secretary of the Treasury by estimating the average yield to maturity, on the basis of daily closing market bid quotations or prices during the month of May or the month of November, as the case may be, next preceding such six-month period, on all outstanding marketable obligations of the United States having a maturity date of fifteen or more years from the first day of such month of May or November, and by adjusting such estimated average annual yield to the nearest one-eighth of 1 per centum. Any contract for a loan or advance, authorized by the Secretary after the date of enactment of the Housing Act of 1964, shall provide for a single interest rate which shall be applicable also to future amendments of the contract which provide additional funds thereunder, and shall further provide for a periodic revision of the interest rate on the balance outstanding or to be outstanding on such loan or advance based on the going Federal rate on the date of such revision: Provided, That any contract for a loan or advance authorized prior to the date of enactment of the Housing Act of 1964 shall be amended (with the first amendment to such contract authorized after the date of enactment of such Act) to provide for such a single interest rate (based on the going Federal rate at the time such amendment is authorized) and for periodic revision thereof.

(h) "Local public agency" means any State, county, municipality, or other governmental entity or public body, or two or more such entities or bodies, authorized to undertake the project for which assistance is sought. "State" includes the several States, the District of Columbia, the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, and the Territories and possessions of the United States.

(i) "Land" means any real property, including improved or unimproved land, structures, improvements, easements, incorporeal hereditaments, estates, and other rights in land, legal or equitable.

(j) "Secretary" means the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development.

(k) "Federal recognition" means execution of any contract for financial assistance under this title or concurrence by the Secretary in the commencement, without such assistance, of surveys and plans.

REHABILITATION GRANTS

SEC. 115. (a) (1) Notwithstanding any other provision of this title, the Secretary may authorize a local public agency to make grants (and the urban renewal project may include the making of such grants) as prescribed in this section. Any such grant may be made only to an individual or family, as described in subsection [(b)] (c), who owns and occupies [a structure] real property in an urban renewal area, and only for the purpose of covering the cost of repairs and improvements necessary to make such [structure] real property conform to public standards for decent, safe, and sanitary housing as required by applicable codes or other requirements of the urban renewal plan for the area. Any contract for financial assistance under this title shall provide that the capital grant otherwise payable for the project shall be increased by an amount equal to the total amount of the grants under this section and that no part of the total amount of such grants shall be required to be contributed as part of the local grant-in-aid.

(2) In addition to the authority conferred by paragraph (1), and notwithstanding any other provision of this title, the Secretary is authorized, through the utilization of local public agencies where feasible, to make grants (payable from any grant funds provided under section 103(b)) to an individual or family, as described in subsection (c), to cover the cost of repairs and improvements necessary to make real property owned and occupied by such individual or family conform to public standards for decent, safe, and sanitary housing as required by applicable codes. No grants shall be made under this paragraph in the case of any property unless such property is in an area within a locality (other than an urban renewal area or an area in which a program of concentrated code enforcement is being carried out pursuant to section 117) which the governing body of the locality has determined, and so certifies to the Secretary, contains a substantial number of structures in need of rehabilitation.

(b) The Secretary is authorized to make grants (payable from any grant funds provided under section 103(b)), through the utilization of local public and private agencies where feasible, to an individual or family, as described in subsection (c), who owns and occupies real property which has been determined to be uninsurable because of physical hazards after an inspection pursuant to a statewide property insurance plan approved by the Secretary under title XII of the National Housing Act. Such grants may only be made to rehabilitate such property to the extent which the Secretary determines to be necessary to make it meet reasonable underwriting standards imposed by such plan and only where the property is located in an area which the Secretary determines (1) is sufficiently stable and contains sufficient public facilities and amenities to support long-term values, or (2) is one in which public or private actions are being carried out, or are proposed to be carried out, of such scope and quality as to give reasonable promise that a stable environment will be created.

[(b)] (c) A grant authorized by this section may be made to an individual or family whose income does not exceed $3,000 a year, and such grant may be in the amount which does not exceed the lesser of (1) the actual (and approved) cost of the repairs and improvements involved, or (2) [$1,500] $3,000. In case the income of the individual or family exceeds $3,000 a year, a grant may be made under this section, subject to the limitations specified in clauses (1) and (2) of the preceding sentence, but only in an amount not to exceed that portion of the cost of the repairs and improvements which cannot be paid for with any available loan that can be amortized as part of such individual's or family's monthly housing expense without requiring such monthly housing expense to exceed 25 per centum of such individual's or family's monthly income.

DEMOLITION

SEC. 116. (a) Notwithstanding any other provision of this title, the Secretary is authorized to enter into contracts to make, and to make, grants as provided in this section (payable from any grant funds provided under section 103(b)) to cities, other municipalities, and counties to assist in financing the cost of demolishing structures which under State or local law have been determined to be structurally unsound, a harborage or potential harborage of rats, or unfit for human habitation, and which such city, municipality, or county has authority to demolish. The amount of any grant under this section shall not exceed two-thirds of the cost of the demolition of such structures.

(b) No grants shall be made under this section unless the structures to be demolished are located in an urban renewal area, or, in the case of structures outside an urban renewal area, (1) the locality involved has an approved workable program for community improvement in accordance with the requirements of section 101(c), as determined by the Secretary, (2) the demolition to be assisted will be on a planned neighborhood basis and will further the over-all renewal objectives of such locality, or will be consistent with a systematic rodent control program being undertaken in the neighborhood, (3) there is in such locality a program of enforcement of existing local housing and related codes, (4) the structures to be demolished constitute a public nuisance and a serious hazard to the public health or welfare, and (5) the governing body of such locality has determined that other available legal procedures have been exhausted to secure remedial action by the owner of the structures involved and that demolition by governmental action is required.

CODE ENFORCEMENT

SEC. 117. Notwithstanding any other provision of this title, the Secretary is authorized to enter into contracts to make, and to make, grants as provided in this section (payable from any grant funds provided under section 103(b)) to cities, other municipalities, and counties for the purpose of assisting such localities in carrying out programs of concentrated code enforcement in deteriorated or deteriorating areas in which such enforcement, together with those public improvements to be provided by the locality, may be expected to arrest the decline of the area. Such grants shall not exceed two-thirds (or three-fourths in the case of any city, other municipality, or county having a population of 50,000 or less according to the most recent decennial census) of the cost of planning and carrying out such programs which may include the provision and repair of necessary streets, curbs, sidewalks, street lighting, tree planting, and similar improvements within such areas. The Secretary shall not make any grant under this section unless he has obtained adequate assurances (1) that the locality will maintain during the period of the contract, in addition to its expenditures for planning and carrying out any program assisted under this section, a level of expenditures for code enforcement activities at not less than its normal expenditures for such activities prior to the execution of such contract, and (2) that the locality has a satisfactory program for the provision of all necessary public improvements for such areas. The provisions of sections 101(c), 106, 114, and 115 shall be applicable to activities and undertakings assisted under this section to the same extent as if such activities and undertakings were being carried out in an urban renewal area as part of an urban renewal project.

INTERIM ASSISTANCE FOR BLIGHTED AREAS

SEC. 118. Notwithstanding any other provision of this title, the Secretary is authorized to enter into contracts (in an aggregate amount not to exceed $40,000,000 in any fiscal year) to make, and to make, grants as provided in this section (payable from any grant funds provided under section 103(b)) to cities, other municipalities, and counties for the purpose of assisting such localities in carrying out programs to alleviate harmful conditions in slum and blighted areas which are planned for substantial clearance, rehabilitation, or federally assisted code enforcement in the near future but in which some immediate public action is needed until clearance, rehabilitation, or code enforcement activities can be undertaken. Such grants shall not exceed two-thirds (or three-fourths in the case of any city, other municipality, or county having a population of fifty thousand or less according to the most recent decennial census) of the cost of planning and carrying out programs which may include (1) the repair of streets, sidewalks, parks, playgrounds, publicly owned utilities, and public buildings to meet needs consistent with the short-term continued use of the area prior to the undertaking of the contemplated clearance or upgrading activities, (2) the improvement of private properties to the extent needed to eliminate the most immediate dangers to public health and safety, (3) the demolition of structures determined to be structurally unsound or unfit for human habitation and which constitute a public nuisance and serious hazard to the public health and safety, (4) the establishment of temporary public playgrounds on vacant land within the area, and (5) the improvement of garbage and trash collection, street cleaning, and similar activities. The Secretary shall encourage, wherever feasible, the employment of otherwise unemployed or underemployed residents of the area in carrying out the activities and undertakings assisted under this section. The provisions of sections 101(c), 106, and 114 shall be applicable to activities and undertakings assisted under this section to the same extent as if such activities and undertakings were being carried out in an urban renewal area as part of an urban renewal project.

Part B—Neighborhood Development Programs

PURPOSE AND AUTHORITY

Sec. 131. (a) To facilitate more rapid renewal and development of urban areas on an effective scale, and to encourage more efficient and flexible utilization of public and private development opportunities by local communities in such areas, the Secretary is authorized to make financial assistance available under this title to local public agencies for undertakings and activities which are carried out under a neighborhood development program approved by him pursuant to this part.

(b) A neighborhood development program shall consist of urban renewal project undertakings and activities in one or more urban renewal areas which are planned and carried out on the basis of annual increments in accordance with the provisions of this title for planning and carrying out urban renewal projects, except as modified by the provisions of this part.

(c) No application for financial assistance in planning and carrying out a neighborhood development program shall be approved by the Secretary unless—

(1) the governing body of the locality has, by resolution or ordinance approved the proposed program and the annual increment covered by the application and authorizing the filing of the application for financial assistance; and

(2) the Secretary has concluded that there is the necessary capacity to carry out the undertakings and activities included under the program.

FINANCIAL PROVISIONS

Sec. 132. (a) Upon the approval of a neighborhood development program by the Secretary, the cost of any undertatings and activities authorized as part of the program shall be financed in accordance with the loan, capital grant, and project cost provisions of part A, except that—

(1) net project cost may be calculated on the basis of costs incurred and proceeds derived for the account of the program during a specified twelve-month period, and may be recalculated for succeeding periods of twelve months to reflect additional costs and additional proceeds since the date of the last computation or recomputation; and

(2) if property has been acquired but not disposed of prior to the computation or recomputation of net project cost, temporary loans made or secured under this title to finance undertakings or activities included in the program may remain outstanding until the property has been disposed of and the proceeds thereof, together with additional funds becoming available to the program, are sufficient to permit repayment of the loans.

(b) In the event that gross project cost as computed for a specified twelve-month period is exceeded, with respect to that period, by the sum of (1) the sales price of land or other property sold, and (2) the imputed capital value of land or other property leased or retained by the local public agency in accordance with the provisions of the urban renewal plan, the local public agency shall pay to the Secretary two-thirds of the excess (or three-fourths in the case of a program on a three-fourths grant basis), which amount shall be available to the Secretary for grant payments under section 103.

LOCAL GRANTS-IN-AID

SEC. 133. (a) For the purpose of determining the eligibility of local grants-in-aid in connection with undertakings and activities carried out under a neighborhood development program, the three-year period referred to in the second paragraph of section 110 (d) shall be deemed to be a period of three years prior to the authorization by the Secretary of the first contract for financial assistance under the program which includes the urban renewal area which is benefited by the public improvement or facility for which credit is claimed; and the seven-year period referred to in clause (1) of section 112(b) shall be deemed to be a period of seven years prior to the date of authorization by the Secretary of the first contract for financial assistance under the program which includes the urban renewal area which is benefited by the expenditures for which credit is claimed.

(b) No portion of the cost of a public improvement or public facility (to the extent otherwise eligible) may be included as a local grant-in-aid in computing the gross project cost of an approved program for any twelve-month period—

(1) prior to commencement of construction of the improvement or facility, or

(2) in excess of the amount actually expended or obligated by contract.

(c) The provisions of section 104 with respect to the pooling of local grants-in-aid among the various projects undertaken by a local public agency shall not be applicable with respect to any excess local grants-in-aid resulting from the urban renewal projects contained in a neighborhood development program.

GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. 134. (a) For purposes of this part—

(1) the workable program requirement in section 101(c) shall apply to the authorization, rather than the execution, of any contract for loans or capital grants;

(2) capital grants on a three-fourths basis may only be made under section 103(a)(2)(B);

(3) the relocation requirements specified in section 105(c) shall apply to each annual increment of an approved program;

(4) section 106(g) (relating to transient housing) shall apply to activities undertaken under approved programs, except that the determination as to need for transient housing shall be made with respect to any sale or lease of land for construction of such housing prior to such sale or lease; and

(5) the requirement concerning demolition and removal of buildings and improvements stated in clause (A) of the sentence following paragraph (10) of section 110(c) shall apply to each annual increment of an approved program.

(b) The approval by the Secretary of financial assistance for one or more annual increments of a neighborhood development program shall not be considered as obligating him to provide financial assistance for any subsequent annual increments.

(c) The urban renewal plan referred to in section 110(b) may cover one or more of the urban renewal areas covered by a neighborhood development program and such plan may be modified from time to time to cover additional urban renewal areas added to the program. The Secretary may establish such requirements as he deems appropriate prescribing the scope and content of such plan, taking into consideration, among other matters, the degree of detail needed in the plan to properly and expeditiously carry out the activities and undertakings proposed in any annual increment of a neighborhood development program.

TITLE V—FARM HOUSING

SEC. 501. (a) The Secretary of Agriculture (hereinafter referred to as the "Secretary") is authorized, subject to the terms and conditions of this title, to extend financial assistance, through the Farmers Home Administration, (1) to owners of farms in the United States and in Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands, to enable them to construct, improve, alter, repair, or replace dwellings and other farm buildings on their farms, and to purchase buildings and land constituting a minimum adequate site, in order to provide them, their tenants, lessees, sharecroppers, and laborers with decent, safe, and sanitary living conditions and adequate farm buildings as specified in this title, and (2) to owners of other real estate in rural areas for the construction, improvement, alteration, or repair of dwellings, related facilities, and farm buildings and to rural residents for such purposes and for the purchase of buildings and the purchase of land constituting a minimum adequate site, in order to enable them to provide dwelling and related facilities for their own use and buildings adequate for their farming operations, and (3) to elderly persons who are or will be the owners of land in rural areas for the construction, improvement, alteration, or repair of dwellings and related facilities, the purchase of dwellings and related facilities and the purchase of land constituting a minimum adequate site, in order to provide them with adequate dwellings and related facilities for their own use, and (4) to an owner described in clause (1), (2), or (3) for refinancing indebtedness which—

(A) was incurred for an eligible purpose described in such clause,

(B) if not refinanced, is likely to result at an early date in loss of the applicant's necessary dwelling or essential farm service buildings,

(C) is not held or insured by the United States or any agency thereof, and

(D) was incurred prior to the enactment of this clause.

(b)(1) For the purpose of this title, the term "farm" shall mean a parcel or parcels of land operated as a single unit which is used for the production of one or more agricultural commodities and which customarily produces or is capable of producing such commodities for sale and for home use of a gross annual value of not less than the equivalent of a gross annual value of $400 in 1944, as determined by the Secretary. The Secretary shall promptly determine whether any parcel or parcels of land constitute a farm for the purposes of this title whenever requested to do so by any interested Federal, State, or local public agency, and his determination shall be conclusive.

(2) For the purposes of this title, the terms "owner", "farm", and "mortgage" shall be deemed to include, respectively, the lessee of, the land included in, and other security interest in, any leasehold interest which the Secretary determines has an unexpired term (A) in the case of a loan, for a period sufficiently beyond the repayment period of the loan to provide adequate security and a reasonable probability of accomplishing the objectives for which the loan is made, and (B) in the case of a grant for a period sufficient to accomplish the objectives for which the grant is made.

(3) For the purposes of this title, the term "elderly persons" means persons who are 62 years of age or over.

(c) In order to be eligible for the assistance authorized by paragraph (a), the applicant must show (1) that he is the owner of a farm which is without a decent, safe, and sanitary dwelling for himself and his family and necessary resident farm labor, or for the family of the operating tenant, lessee, or sharecropper, or without other farm buildings adequate for the type of farming in which he engages or desires to engage, or that he is the owner of other real estate in a rural area or a rural resident without an adequate dwelling or related facilities for his own use or buildings adequate for his farming operations, or that he is an elderly person in a rural area without an adequate dwelling or related facilities for his own use, or that he is the owner of a farm or other real estate in a rural area who needs refinancing of indebtedness described in clause (4) of subsection (a); (2) that he is without sufficient resources to provide the necessary housing and buildings on his own account; and (3) that he is unable to secure the credit necessary for such housing and buildings from other sources upon terms and conditions which he could reasonably be expected to fulfill.

(d) As used in this title (except in sections 503 and 504(b)), the terms "farm," "farm dwelling," and "farm housing" shall include dwellings or other essential buildings of eligible applicants.

SEC. 513. There is hereby authorized to be appropriated to the Secretary (a) such sums as may be necessary to meet payments on notes or other obligations issued by the Secretary under section 511 equal to

(i) the aggregate of the contributions made by the Secretary in the form of credits on principal due on loans made pursuant to section 503, and (ii) the interest due on a similar sum represented by notes or other obligations issued by the Secretary; (b) not to exceed $50,000,000 for grants pursuant to section 504(a) and loans pursuant to section 504(b) during the period beginning July 1, 1956, and ending October 1, 1969; (c) not to exceed $50,000,000 for financial assistance pursuant to section 516 for the period ending October 1, 1969; (d) not to exceed $250,000 per year for research and study programs pursuant to subsections (b), (c), and (d) of section 506 during the period beginning July 1, 1961, and ending October 1, 1969; [and] (e) such further sums as may be necessary to enable the Secretary to carry out the provisions of this title; and (f) such sums as may be required by the Secretary to administer the provisions of sections 235 and 236 of the National Housing Act.

INSURANCE OF LOANS FOR THE PROVISION OF HOUSING AND RELATED FACILITIES FOR DOMESTIC FARM LABOR

SEC. 514. (a) The Secretary is authorized to insure and make commitments to insure loans made by lenders other than the United States to the owner of any farm, any association of farmers, any State or political subdivision thereof, or any public or private nonprofit organization for the purpose of providing housing and related facilities for domestic farm labor in accordance with terms and conditions substantially identical with those specified in section 502; except that—

(1) no such loan shall be insured in an amount in excess of the value of the farm involved less any prior liens in the case of a loan to an individual owner of a farm, or the total estimated value of the structures and facilities with respect to which the loan is made in the case of any other loan;

* * * * * * *

(f) As used in this section—

(1) the term "housing" means (A) new structures suitable for dwelling use by domestic farm labor, and (B) existing structures which can be made suitable for dwelling use by domestic farm labor by rehabilitation, alteration, conversion, or improvement; and

(2) the term "related facilities" means (A) new structures suitable for use as dining halls, community rooms or buildings, or infirmaries, or for other essential services facilities, [and] (B) existing structures which can be made suitable for the above uses by rehabilitation, alteration, conversion, or improvement and (C) land necessary for an adequate site; and

(3) the term "domestic farm labor" means persons who receive a substantial portion (as determined by the Secretary) of their income as laborers on farms situated in the United States and either (A) are citizens of the United States or (B) reside in the United States after being legally admitted for permanent residence therein.

* * * * * * *

DEFINITION OF RURAL AREA

SEC. 520. As used in this title, the terms "rural" and "rural area" mean any open country, or any place, town, village, or city which is not part of or associated with an urban area and which (1) has a population not in excess of 2,500 inhabitants, or (2) has a population in excess of 2,500 but not in excess of 5,500 if it is rural in character.

LOANS TO PROVIDE OCCUPANT-OWNED, RENTAL, AND COOPERATIVE HOUSING FOR LOW AND MODERATE INCOME PERSONS AND FAMILIES

SEC. 521. (a) Notwithstanding the provisions of sections 502, 517(a), and 515, loans to persons of low or moderate income under section 502 or 517(a)(1), and loans under section 515 to provide rental or cooperative housing and related facilities for persons and families of low or moderate income or elderly persons and elderly families, shall bear interest at a rate prescribed by the Secretary at not less than a rate determined by the Secretary of the Treasury taking into consideration the current average market yield on outstanding marketable obligations of the United States with remaining periods to maturity comparable to the average maturities of such loans, adjusted to the nearest one-eighth of 1 per centum, less not to exceed the difference between the adjusted rate determined by the Secretary of the Treasury and 1 per centum per annum: Provided, That such a loan may be made only when the Secretary determines that the needs of the applicant for necessary housing cannot be met with financial assistance from other sources including assistance under section 235 or 236 of the National Housing Act: Provided further, That interest on loans under section 502 or 517(a) to victims of natural disasters shall not exceed the rate which would be applicable to such loans under section 502 without regard to this section.

(b) Housing and related facilities provided with loans described in subsection (a) shall be located in rural areas; and applicants eligible for such loans under section 502 or 517(a)(1), or for occupancy of housing provided with such loans under section 515, shall include otherwise qualified nonrural residents who will become rural residents.

(c) There shall be reimbursed to the Rural Housing Insurance Fund by annual appropriations the amounts by which nonprincipal payments made from the fund during each fiscal year to the holders of insured loans described in subsection (a) exceed interest due from the borrowers during each year; and the Secretary from time to time may issue notes to the Secretary of the Treasury under section 517(h) to obtain amounts equal to such unreimbursed excess payments, pending the annual reimbursement by appropriation.

HOUSING FOR RURAL TRAINEES

SEC. 522. (a) Upon the application of any State or political subdivision thereof, or any public or private nonprofit organization, the Secretary is authorized, after consultation with the Secretary of Labor, the Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare, the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development, and the Director of the Office of Economic Opportunity, and after the Secretary determines that the housing and related facilities cannot reasonably be provided in any other way, to provide financial and technical assistance for the establishment, in rural areas, of housing and related facilities for trainees and their families who are residents of a rural area and have a rural background, while such trainees are enrolled and participating in training courses designed to improve their employment capability. The selection of training sites and location of housing shall be made with due regard to the economic viability of the area, and only after consideration of a labor area survey and full coordination among all Government agencies having primary responsibility for administering related programs.

(b) Housing and related facilities assisted under this section shall be safe and sanitary, constructed in the most economical manner, and of modest design, giving due consideration to the purposes to be served and the needs of the occupants, and may, in the discretion of the Secretary, include mobile family quarters. Design and location shall be such as to facilitate, as feasible, the use of such housing and related facilities for other purposes when no longer needed for the primary purpose.

(c) The applicant shall contribute the necessary land, or funds to acquire such land, from its own resources, including land acquired by donation or from funds repayable under subsection (e) or borrowed from other sources.

(d) No financial assistance shall be made available under this section unless, to the extent and for the periods required by the Secretary, the applicant agrees that—

(1) such housing will be maintained at all times in a safe and sanitary condition in accordance with standards prescribed by State or local law, or, in the absence of such standards, with requirements prescribed by the Secretary;

(2) priority shall be given at all times, in granting occupancy of such housing and facilities, to the trainees and their families described in subsection (a); and

(3) rentals charged them shall not exceed amounts approved by the Secretary after considering the portion of the actual total family income which the family can afford to pay for rent while meeting its other immediate needs during occupancy.

(e) The Secretary may make advances pursuant to any contract for financial assistance under this section at such times and in such manner as may be specified in the contract. Such advances for the purchase of land shall be repayable with interest and within a period not to exceed thirty-three years and may be made upon such security, if any, as the Secretary requires. Advances for other purposes may be made repayable with or without interest or nonrepayable, as determined by the Secretary on the basis of the anticipated income and cost of operation of the housing and related facilities and the ability of each applicant to finance such facilities. Any advances shall be limited to cover the capital costs of constructing such facilities, plus interest on borrowings to cover such costs.

(f) Should housing and related facilities assisted pursuant to a contract under this section be sold to an ineligible transferee or diverted to a use other than its primary purpose within a period specified in the contract, all advances made under such contract shall be repaid to the Secretary, up to the amount of the sales price or the fair value of the property as determined by the Secretary, whichever is higher, with interest from the date of the sale or diversion. If no suitable alternate use of the property is available, as determined by the Secretary, after the purpose of this section can no longer be served, the property shall be returned to its original condition by the recipient of the assistance.

(g) Interest charged on advances made under this section shall be at a rate, prescribed by the Secretary, which shall be not less than a rate determined by the Secretary of the Treasury taking into consideration the current average market yield on outstanding marketable obligations of the United States with remaining periods to maturity comparable to the average maturities of such loans, adjusted to the nearest one-eighth of 1 per centum, less not to exceed the difference between the adjusted rate determined by the Secretary of the Treasury and 1 per centum per annum, as determined by the Secretary.

(h) The Secretary shall prescribe regulations to insure that Federal funds expended under this section are not wasted or dissipated.

(i) As used in this section (1) the term "related facilities" shall include any necessary community rooms or buildings, infirmaries, utilities, access roads, water and sewer services, and the minimum fixed or movable equipment determined by the Secretary to be necessary to make the housing reasonably habitable by trainees and their families; and (2) the term "trainee" means any person receiving training under any federally assisted training program.

(j) All laborers and mechanics employed in connection with the provision of housing and related facilities assisted under this section, where such housing includes 8 or more dwelling units, shall be paid wages at rates not less than those prevailing on similar construction in the locality as determined by the Secretary of Labor in accordance with the Davis-Bacon Act, as amended (40 U.S.C. 276a—276a–5); and no assistance shall be extended under this section with respect to such housing and the related facilities without first obtaining adequate assurance that these labor standards will be maintained upon the construction work involved. The Secretary of Labor shall have, with respect to the labor standards specified in this subsection, the authority and functions set forth in Reorganization Plan Numbered 14 of 1950 (64 Stat. 1267) and section 2 of the Act of June 13, 1934 (40 U.S.C. 276c).

(k) There are authorized to be appropriated such sums as may be necessary to carry out this section.

MUTUAL AND SELF-HELP HOUSING

SEC. 523. (a) The purposes of this section are (1) to make financial assistance available on reasonable terms and conditions in rural areas and small towns to needy low-income individuals and their families who, with the benefit of technical assistance and overall guidance and supervision, participate in approved programs of mutual or self-help housing by acquiring and developing necessary land, acquiring building materials, providing their own labor, and working cooperatively with others for the provision of decent, safe, and sanitary dwellings for themselves, their families, and others in the area or town involved, and (2) to facilitate the efforts of both public and private nonprofit organizations providing assistance to such individuals to contribute their technical and supervisory skills toward more effective and comprehensive programs of mutual or self-help housing in rural areas and small towns wherever necessary.

(b) In order to carry out the purposes of this section, the Secretary of Agriculture (in this section referred to as the "Secretary") is authorized—

(1) to make grants to, or contract with, public or private nonprofit corporations, agencies, institutions, organizations, and other associations approved by him, to pay part or all of the costs of developing, conducting, administering, or coordinating effective and comprehensive programs of technical and supervisory assistance which will aid needy low-income individuals and their families in carrying out mutual or self-help housing efforts;

(2) to make loans, on such terms and conditions and in such amounts as he deems necessary, to needy low-income individuals participating in programs of mutual or self-help housing approved by him, for the acquisition and development of land and for the purchase of such other building materials as may be necessary in order to enable them, by providing substantially all of their own labor, and by cooperating with others participating in such programs, to carry out to completion the construction of decent, safe, and sanitary dwellings for such individuals and their families, subject to the following limitations:

(A) there is reasonable assurance of repayment of the loan;

(B) the amount of the loan, together with other funds which may be available, is adequate to achieve the purpose for which the loan is made;

(C) the credit assistance is not otherwise available on like terms or conditions from private sources or through other Federal, State, or local programs;

(D) the loan bears interest at a rate not to exceed 3 per centum per annum on the unpaid balance of principal, plus such additional charge, if any, toward covering other costs of the loan program as the Secretary may determine to be consistent with its purposes; and

(E) the loan is repayable within not more than thirty-three years.

(c) In determining whether to extend financial assistance under paragraph (1) or (2) of subsection (b), the Secretary shall take into consideration, among other factors, the suitability of the area within which construction will be carried out to the type of dwelling which can be provided under mutual or self-help housing programs, the extent to which the assistance will facilitate the provision of more decent, safe, and sanitary housing conditions than presently exist in the area, the extent to which the assistance will be utilized efficiently and expeditiously, the extent to which the assistance will effect an increase in the standard of living of low-income individuals participating in the mutual or self-help housing program, and whether the assistance will fulfill a need in the area which is not otherwise being met through other programs, including those carried out by other Federal, State, or local agencies.

(d) As used in this section, the term "construction" includes the erection of new dwellings, and the rehabilitation, alteration, conversion, or improvement of existing structures.

(e) The Secretary is authorized to establish appropriate criteria and procedures in order to determine the eligibility of applicants for the financial assistance provided under this section, including criteria and procedures with respect to the periodic review of any construction carried out with such financial assistance.

(f) There are hereby authorized to be appropriated for each fiscal year commencing after June 30, 1968, and ending prior to July 1, 1973, such sums, not in excess of $5,000,000 for any such fiscal year, as may be necessary to carry out the provisions of this section. No grant or loan may be made or contract entered into under the authority of this section after June 30, 1973, except pursuant to a commitment or other obligation entered into pursuant to this section before that date.

TITLE IV OF THE HOUSING ACT OF 1950

[Public Law 475, 81st Congress, 64 Stat. 48, 77, 12 U.S.C. 1749]

TITLE IV—HOUSING FOR EDUCATIONAL INSTITUTIONS

FEDERAL [LOANS] ASSISTANCE IN THE FORM OF LOANS OR ANNUAL GRANTS

SEC. 401. (a) To assist educational institutions in providing housing and other educational facilities for students and faculties, the Secretary may make loans of funds to such institutions for the construction or purchase of such facilities[: Provided, That (1) no such loan shall be made unless the educational institution shows that it is unable to secure the necessary funds for such construction from other sources upon terms and conditions equally as favorable as the terms and conditions applicable to loans under this title, and (2) no such loan shall be made unless the Secretary finds that the construction will be undertaken in an economical manner, and that it will not be of elaborate or extravagant design or materials.] or may, as an alternative to all or part of the loan (in the case of any such institution), make annual grants to the institution to reduce the cost of its borrowing from other sources for such construction or purchase: Provided, That no such assistance shall be provided unless (1) the educational institution involved is unable to secure the necessary funds for the construction or purchase from other sources upon terms and conditions equally as favorable as the terms and conditions applicable to loans under this title, and (2) the Secretary finds that any such construction will be undertaken in an economical manner, and that any such facilities are not or will not be of elaborate or extravagant design or materials.

(b) Any educational institution which, prior to the date of enactment of this Act, has contracted for housing or other educational facilities may, in connection therewith, receive loans authorized under this title, as the Secretary may determine: Provided, That no such loan shall be made for any housing or other educational facilities, the construction of which was begun prior to the effective date of this Act, or completed prior to the filing of an application under this title.

(c) (1) A loan to an educational institution may be in an amount not exceeding the total development cost of the facility, as determined by the Secretary; shall be secured in such manner and be repaid within such period, not exceeding fifty years, as may be determined by him; and with respect to loan contracts under which loan funds have not been fully disbursed prior to the date of enactment of the College Housing Amendments of 1955 shall bear interest at a rate determined by the Secretary which shall be not more than the lower of [(1)] (A) 3 per centum per annum, or [(2)] (B) the total of one-quarter of 1 per centum per annum added to the rate of interest paid by the Secretary on funds obtained from the Secretary of the Treasury as provided in subsection (e) of this section.

(2) Annual grants to an educational institution with respect to any housing or other educational facilities shall be made over a fixed period not exceeding 40 years, and provision for such grants shall be embodied in a contract guaranteeing their payment over such period. Each such grant shall be in an amount equal to the difference between (A) the average annual debt service which would be required to be paid, during the life of the loan, on the amount borrowed from other sources for the construction of such facilities, and (B) the average annual debt service which the institution would have been required to pay, during the life of the loan, with respect to such amounts if the applicable interest rate were the rate specified in paragraph (1): Provided, That the amount on which such grant is based shall be approved by the Secretary but in no event shall exceed the total development cost of the facilities.

(d)(1) To obtain funds for loans under subsection (a) of this section, the Secretary may issue and have outstanding at any one time notes and obligations for purchase by the Secretary of the Treasury in an amount not to exceed $1,675,000,000, which amount shall be increased by $300,000,000 on July 1 in each of the years 1961 through 1965, and 1967, and 1968: Provided, That the amount outstanding for other educational facilities, as defined herein, shall not exceed $175,000,000, which limit shall be increased by $30,000,000 on July 1 in each of the years 1961 through 1968: Provided further, That the amount outstanding for hospitals, referred to in clause (2) of section 404(b) of this title, shall not exceed $100,000,000, which limit shall be increased by $30,000,000 on July 1 in each of the years 1961 through 1968 and, notwithstanding the first proviso of this subsection, the amount of this annual increase which is not utilized for loans for hospitals may be utilized for loans for other educational facilities, as defined herein.

(2) There are hereby authorized to be appropriated to the Secretary such sums as may be necessary, together with loan principal and interest payments made by educational institutions assisted with loans made hereunder, for payments on notes or other obligations issued by the Secretary under this section.

(e) Notes or other obligations issued by the Secretary under this title shall be in such forms and denominations, have such maturities, and be subject to such terms and conditions as may be prescribed by the Secretary, with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury. Such notes or other obligations issued to obtain funds for loan contracts entered into after the effective date of the College Housing Amendments of 1955 shall bear interest at a rate determined by the Secretary of the Treasury which shall be not more than the lower of (1) 2¾ per centum per annum, or (2) the average annual interest rate on all interest-bearing obligations of the United States then forming a part of the public debt as computed at the end of the fiscal year next preceding the issuance by the Secretary and adjusted to the nearest one-eighth of 1 per centum. The Secretary of the Treasury is authorized and directed to purchase any notes and other obligations of the Secretary issued under this title and for such purpose is authorized to use as a public debt transaction the proceeds from the sale of any securities issued under the Second Liberty Bond Act, as amended, and the purposes for which securities may be issued under such Act, as amended, are extended to include any purchases of such notes and other obligations. The Secretary of the Treasury may at any time sell any of the notes or other obligations acquired by him under this section. All redemptions, purchases, and sales by the Secretary of the Treasury of such notes or other obligations shall be treated as public-debt transactions of the United States.

[(f) There are hereby authorized to be appropriated to the Secretary such sums as may be necessary, together with loan principal and interest payments made by educational institutions assisted hereunder, for payments on notes or other obligations issued by the Secretary under this section.]

(f)(1) There are hereby authorized to be appropriated to the Secretary such sums as may be necessary for the payment of annual grants to educational institutions in accordance with this section.

(2) Contracts for annual grants under this section shall not be entered into in an aggregate amount greater than is authorized in appropriation Acts; and in any event the total amount of annual grants which may be paid to educational institutions in any year pursuant to contracts entered into under this section shall not exceed $10,000,000, which amount shall be increased by $10,000,000 on July 1, 1969.

(g) Except as otherwise provided in the second paragraph of section 404(b), in the case of any loan which is made under this section to a nonprofit student housing cooperative corporation referred to in clause (5) of section 404(b), or which is obtained from other sources by such a corporation and is the subject of a contract for annual grants entered into under this section, the Secretary shall require that the note securing such loan be cosigned by the educational institution (referred to in clause (1) of such section) at which such corporation is [located; and] located, and that, in the event of the dissolution of such corporation, title to the housing constructed with such loan [shall] will vest in such educational institution.

APPORTIONMENT

SEC. 403. Not more than 12½ per centum of the amount of the funds provided for in this title in the form of loans, and not more than 12½ per centum of the funds provided for in this title for grants, shall be made available to educational institutions within any one State.

DEFINITIONS

SEC. 404. For the purposes of this title, the following terms shall have the meanings, respectively, ascribed to them below:

(a) "Housing" means (1) new structures suitable for dwelling use, including single-room dormitories and apartments, and (2) dwelling facilities provided by rehabilitation, alteration, conversion, or improvement of existing structures which are otherwise inadequate for the proposed dwelling use.

(b) "Educational institution" means (1) (A) any educational institution which offers, or provides satisfactory assurance to the Secretary that it will offer within a reasonable time after completion of a facility for which assistance is requested under this title, at least a two-year program acceptable for full credit toward a baccalaureate degree (including any educational institution, or any private educational institution no part of the net earnings of which inures to the benefit of any private shareholder or individual), or (B) any public educational institution which (i) is administered by a college or university which is accredited by a nationally recognized accrediting agency or association, (ii) offers technical or vocational instruction, and (iii) provides residential facilities for some or all of the students receiving such instruction, (2) any hospital operating a school of nursing beyond the level of high school approved by the appropriate State authority, or any hospital approved for internships by recognized authority, if such hospital is either a public hospital or a private hospital, no part of the net earnings of which inures to the benefit of any private shareholder or individual, (3) any corporation (no part of the net earnings of which inures to the benefit of any private shareholder or individual) (A) established for the sole purpose of providing housing or other educational facilities for students or students and faculty of one or more institutions included in clause (1) of this subsection without regard to their membership in or affiliation with any social, fraternal, or honorary society or organization, and (B) upon dissolution of which all title to any property purchased or built from the proceeds of any loan [secured under this title] which is made under section 401, or is the subject of a contract for annual grants entered into under section 401, will pass to such institution (or to any one or more of such institutions) unless it is shown to the satisfaction of the Secretary that such property or the proceeds from its sale will be used for some other nonprofit educational purpose, (4) any agency, public authority, or other instrumentality of any State established for the purpose of providing or financing housing or other educational facilities for students or faculty of any public educational institution included in clause (1) of this subsection, but nothing herein contained shall require an institution included in clause (1) of this subsection to obtain loans or grants through any instrumentality included in this clause of this subsection, and (5) any nonprofit student housing cooperative corporation established for the purpose of providing housing for students or students and faculty of any institution included in clause (1) of this subsection.

In the case of any loan made under section 401 to a corporation described in clause (3) of this subsection which was not established by the institution or institutions for whose students or students and faculty it would provide housing, or to a student housing cooperative corporation described in clause (5) of this subsection, and in the case of any loan which is obtained from other sources by such a corporation and is the subject of a contract for annual grants entered into under section 401, the Secretary shall require that the note securing such loan be cosigned by such institution (or by any one or more of such institutions): Provided, That where the law of any State in effect on the date of enactment of the Housing Act of 1964 prevents the institution or institutions, for whose students or students and faculty the housing is to be provided, from cosigning the note, the Secretary shall require the corporation and the proposed project to be approved by such institution (or by any one or more of such institutions) in lieu of such cosigning.

(c) "Development cost" means costs of the construction of the housing or other educational facilities and the land on which it is located, including necessary site improvements to permit its use for housing or other educational facilities*; except that in the case of the purchase of facilities such term means the cost as approved by the Secretary.*

(d) "Facilities" means members of the faculty and their families.

(e) "State" shall include the several States, the District of Columbia, and the Territories and possessions of the United States.

(f) "Secretary" means the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development.

(g) "Construction" means erection of new structures, or rehabilitation, alteration, conversion, or improvement of existing structures.

(h) "Other educational facilities" means (1) new structures suitable for use as cafeterias or dining halls, student centers or student unions, infirmaries or other inpatient or outpatient health facilities, or for other essential service facilities, and (2) structures suitable for the above uses provided by rehabilitation, alteration, conversion, or improvement of existing structures which are otherwise inadequate for such uses.

SEC. 314. (a) The Secretary of Housing and Urban Development is authorized to make grants, subject to such terms and conditions as he shall prescribe, [to public bodies, including cities and other political subdivisions,] to public bodies (including cities and other political subdivisions) and nonprofit organizations, to assist them in developing, testing, and reporting methods and techniques, and carrying out demonstrations and other activities for the prevention and the elimination of slums and urban blight. In the case of any such grant to a nonprofit organization, the Secretary shall require that the assisted activities and undertakings are not inconsistent with the program of the local public agency. No such grant shall exceed [two-thirds] 90 per centum of the cost, as determined or estimated by [said] the Secretary, of [such] the assisted activities or undertakings, but such a grant may in addition cover the full cost of writing and publishing the reports on such activities and undertakings. In administering this section, said Secretary shall give preference to those activities and undertakings which in his judgment can reasonably be expected to (1) contribute most significantly to the improvement of methods and techniques for the elimination and prevention of slums and blight, and (2) best serve to guide renewal programs in other communities.

(b) The Secretary is further authorized to pay for the cost of (1) writing and publishing reports on activities and undertakings financed by grants made under this section, as well as reports on similar activities and undertakings, not so financed, which are of significant value in furthering the purposes of this section, and (2) writing and publishing summaries and other informational material on such reports.

(c) The aggregate amount of grants made under subsection (a), and other costs incurred pursuant to subsection (b), shall not exceed [$10,000,000] $20,000,000 and shall be payable from the grant funds provided under and authorized by section 103(b) of the Housing Act of 1949. The Secretary may make advance or progress payments on account of any contract entered into pursuant to this section, notwithstanding the provisions of section 3648 of the Revised Statutes, as amended.

[URBAN PLANNING

[SEC. 701. (a) In order to assist State and local governments in solving planning problems resulting from the increasing concentration of population in metropolitan and other urban areas, including smaller communities; to facilitate comprehensive planning for urban development, including coordinated transportation systems, on a continuing basis by such governments; and to encourage such governments to establish and improve planning staffs, the Secretary is authorized to make planning grants to—

[(1) State planning agencies, or (in States where no such planning agency exists) to agencies or instrumentalities of State government designated by the Governor of the State and acceptable to the Secretary as capable of carrying out the planning functions contemplated by the section, for the provision of planning assistance to (A) cities and other municipalities having a population of less than 50,000 according to the latest decennial census, and counties without regard to population: Provided, That grants shall be made under this paragraph for planning assistance to counties having a population of 50,000 or more, according to the latest decennial census, which are within metropolitan areas, only if (i) the Secretary finds that planning and plans for such county will be coordinated with the program of comprehensive planning, if any, which is being carried out for the metropolitan area of which the county is a part, and (ii) the aggregate amount of the grants made subject to this proviso does not exceed 15 per centum of the aggregate amount appropriated, after the date of enactment of the Housing Act of 1964, for the purposes of this section, (B) any group of adjacent communities, either incorporated or unincorporated, having a total population of less than 50,000 according to the latest decennial census and having common or related urban planning problems, (C) cities, other municipalities, and counties, referred to in paragraph (3) of this subsection and areas referred to in paragraph (4) of this subsection, and (D) Indian reservations;

[(2) official State, metropolitan, and regional planning agencies, or other agencies and instrumentalities designated by the Governor (or Governors in the case of interstate planning) and acceptable to the Secretary, empowered under State or local laws or interstate compact to perform metropolitan or regional planning;

[(3) cities, other municipalities, and counties which (A) are situated in areas designated by the Secretary of Commerce under section 5 of the Area Redevelopment Act as redevelopment areas or (B) have suffered substantial damage as a result of a catastrophe which the President, pursuant to section 2(a) of "An Act to authorize Federal assistance to States and local governments in major disasters, and for other purposes" has determined to be a major disaster;

[(4) to official governmental planning agencies for areas where rapid urbanization has resulted or is expected to result from the establishment or rapid and substantial expansion of a Federal installation, or for areas where rapid urbanization is expected to result on land developed or to be developed as a new community approved under section 1004 of the National Housing Act;

[(5) State planning agencies for State and interstate comprehensive planning (as defined in subsection (d)) and for research and coordination activity related thereto;

[(6) metropolitan and regional planning agencies, with the approval of the State planning agency or (in States where no such planning agency exists) of the Governor of the State, for the provision of planning assistance within the metropolitan area or region to cities, other municipalities, counties, groups of adjacent communities, or Indian reservations described in clauses (A), (B), (C), and (D) of paragraph (1) of this subsection;

[(7) to official governmental planning agencies for any area where there has occurred a substantial reduction in employment opportunities as the result of (A) the closing (in whole or in part) of a Federal installation, or (B) a decline in the volume of Government orders for the procurement of articles or materials produced or manufactured in such area;

[(8) tribal planning councils or other tribal bodies designated by the Secretary of the Interior for planning for an Indian reservation to which no State planning agency or other agency or instrumentality is empowered to provide planning assistance under clause (D) of paragraph (1) above;

[(9) the Appalachian Regional Commission, for comprehensive planning for the Appalachian region as defined by section 403 of the Appalachian Regional Development Act of 1965; and

[(10) local development districts, certified under section 301 of the Appalachian Regional Development Act of 1965, for comprehensive planning for their entire areas, or for metropolitan planning, urban planning, county planning, or small municipality planning within such areas, in the Appalachian region, and for planning for Appalachian regional programs.

Planning assisted under this section shall, to the maximum extent feasible, cover entire urban areas having common or related urban development problems. The Secretary shall encourage cooperation in preparing and carrying out plans among all interested municipalities, political subdivisions, public agencies, and other parties in order to achieve coordinated development of entire areas. To the maximum extent feasible, pertinent plans and studies already made for areas shall be utilized so as to avoid unnecessary repetition of effort and expense. Planning which may be assisted under this section includes the preparation of comprehensive urban transportation surveys, studies, and plans to aid in solving problems of traffic congestion, facilitating the circulation of people and goods in metropolitan and other urban areas, and reducing transportation needs. Funds available under this section shall be in addition to and may be used jointly with funds available for planning surveys and investigations under other Federally-aided programs, and nothing contained in this section shall be construed as affecting the authority of the Secretary of Commerce under section 307 of title 23, United States Code.

[(b) A planning grant made under this section shall not exceed two-thirds of the estimated cost of the work for which the grant is made: Provided, That such a grant may be in an amount not exceeding three-fourths of such estimated cost to an official governmental planning agency for an area described in subsection (a)(7), or for planning being carried out for a city, other municipality, county, group of adjacent communities, or Indian reservation in an area designated by the Secretary of Commerce as a redevelopment area under section 5 of the Area Redevelopment Act (or under any Act supplementary thereto), to States and local development districts participating in planning for Appalachian regional programs, for expenses incurred in the course of such planning, or to the Appalachian Regional Commission. All grants made under this section shall be subject to terms and conditions prescribed by the Secretary. No portion of any grant made under this section shall be used for the preparation of plans for specific public works. The Secretary is authorized, notwithstanding the provisions of section 3648 of the Revised Statutes, as amended, to make advance or progress payment on account of any grant made under this section. There is hereby authorized to be appropriated not exceeding $230,000,000, to carry out the purposes of this section, and any amounts so appropriated shall remain available until expended: Provided, That not to exceed 5 per centum of any funds so appropriated may be used by the Secretary for studies, research, and demonstration projects, undertaken independently or by contract, for the development and improvement of techniques and methods for comprehensive planning and for the advancement of the purposes of this section, and for grants to assist in the conduct of studies and research relating to needed revisions in State statutes which create, govern, or control local governments and local governmental operations.

[(c) The Secretary is authorized, in areas embracing several municipalities or other political subdivisions, to encourage planning on a unified metropolitan basis and to provide technical assistance for such planning and the solution of problems relating thereto.

[(d) It is the further intent of this section to encourage comprehensive planning, including transportation planning, for States, cities, counties, metropolitan areas, urban regions, and Indian reservations and the establishment and development of the organizational units needed therefore. The Secretary is authorized to provide technical assistance to State and local governments and their agencies and instrumentalities, and to Indian tribal bodies, undertaking such planning and, by contract or otherwise, to make studies and publish information on related problems. In extending financial assistance under this section, the Secretary may require such assurances as he deems adequate that the appropriate State and local agencies are making reasonable progress in the development of the elements of comprehensive planning. Comprehensive planning, as used in this section, includes the following, to the extent directly related to urban needs: (1) preparation, as a guide for long-range development, of general physical plans with respect to the pattern and intensity of land use and the provision of public facilities, including transportation facilities, together with long-range fiscal plans for such development; (2) programming of capital improvements based on a determination of relative urgency, together with definitive financing plans for the improvements to be constructed in the earlier years of the program; (3) coordination of all related plans of the departments or subdivisions of the government concerned; (4) intergovernmental coordination of all related planned activities among the State and local governmental agencies concerned; and (5) preparation of regulatory and administrative measures in support of the foregoing.

[(e) In the exercise of his function of encouraging comprehensive planning by the States, the Secretary shall consult with those officials of the Federal Government responsible for the administration of programs of Federal assistance to the States and municipalities for various categories of public facilities.

[(f) The consent of the Congress is hereby given to any two or more States to enter into agreements or compacts, not in conflict with any law of the United States, for cooperative efforts and mutual assistance in the comprehensive planning for the physical growth and development of interstate, metropolitan, or other urban areas, and to establish such agencies, joint or otherwise, as they may deem desirable for making effective such agreements and compacts.

[(g) In addition to the planning grants authorized by subsection (a), the Secretary is further authorized to make grants to organizations composed of public officials whom he finds to be representative of the political jurisdictions within a metropolitan area or urban region for the purpose of assisting such organizations to undertake studies, collect data, develop regional plans and programs, and engage in such other activities as the Secretary finds necessary or desirable for the solution of the metropolitan or regional problems in such areas or regions. To the maximum extent feasible, all grants under this subsection shall be for activities relating to all the developmental aspects of the total metropolitan area or urban region, including, but not limited to, land use, transportation, housing, economic development, natural resources development, community facilities, and the general improvement of living environments. A grant under this subsection shall not exceed two-thirds of the estimated cost of the work for which the grant is made.

[(h) In addition to the other grants authorized by this section, the Secretary is authorized to make grants to assist any city, other municipality, or county in making a survey of the structures and sites in such locality which are determined by its appropriate authorities to be of historic or architectural value. Any such survey shall be designed to identify the historic structures and sites in the locality, determine the cost of their rehabilitation or restoration, and provide such other information as may be necessary or appropriate to serve as a foundation for a balanced and effective program of historic preservation in such locality. The aspects of any such survey which relate to the identification of historic and architectural values shall be conducted in accordance with criteria found by the Secretary to be comparable to those used in establishing the National Register maintained by the Secretary of the Interior under other provisions of law; and the results of each such survey shall be made available to the Secretary of the Interior. A grant under this subsection shall not exceed two-thirds of the cost of the survey for which it is made, and shall be made to the appropriate agency or entity specified in paragraphs (1) through (9) of subsection (a) or, if there is no such agency or entity which is qualified and willing to receive the grant and provide for its utilization in accordance with this subsection, directly to the city, other municipality, or county involved.]

COMPREHENSIVE PLANNING

SEC. 701. (a) In order to assist State and local governments in solving planning problems, including those resulting from the increasing concentration of population in metropolitan and other urban areas and the out-migration from and lack of coordinated development of resources and services in rural areas; to facilitate comprehensive planning for urban and rural development, including coordinated transportation systems, on a continuing basis by such governments; and to encourage such governments to establish and improve planning staffs and techniques on an areawide basis, and to engage private consultants where their professional services are deemed appropriate by the assisted governments, the Secretary is authorized to make planning grants to—

(1) State planning agencies for the provision of planning assistance to (A) cities and other municipalities having a population of less than 50,000 according to the latest decennial census, and counties without regard to population: Provided, That grants shall be made under this paragraph for planning assistance to counties having a population of 50,000 or more, according to the latest decennial census, which are within metropolitan areas, only if (i) the Secretary finds that planning and plans for such county will be coordinated with the program of comprehensive planning, if any, which is being carried out for the metropolitan area of which the county is a part, and (ii) the aggregate amount of the grants made subject to this proviso does not exceed 15 per centum of the aggregate amount appropriated, after September 2, 1964, for the purposes of this section, (B) any group of adjacent communities, either incorporated or unincorporated, having a total population of less than 50,000 according to the latest decennial census and having common or related urban planning problems, (C) cities, other municipalities, and counties referred to in paragraph (3) of this subsection, and areas referred to in paragraph (4) of this subsection, and (D) Indian reservations;

(2) State, metropolitan, and regional planning agencies for metropolitan or regional planning, and to cities within metropolitan areas for planning which is part of comprehensive metropolitan planning and which shall supplement and be coordinated with State, metropolitan, and regional planning;

(3) cities, other municipalities, and counties which (A) are situated in redevelopment areas or economic development districts designated by the Secretary of Commerce under title IV of the Public Works and Economic Development Act of 1965, or (B) have suffered substantial damage as a result of a catastrophe which the President, pursuant to section 2(a) of the Act entitled "An Act to authorize Federal assistance to States and local governments in major disasters, and for other purposes", approved September 30, 1950, as amended (42 U.S.C. 1855a), has determined to be a major disaster;

(4) official governmental planning agencies for areas where rapid urbanization has resulted or is expected to result from the establishment or rapid and substantial expansion of a Federal installation, or for areas where rapid urbanization is expected to result on land developed or to be developed as a new community approved under section 1004 of the National Housing Act;

(5) States for State and interstate comprehensive planning and for research and coordination activity related thereto, including technical and other assistance for the establishment and operation of intrastate and interstate planning agencies;

(6) State planning agencies for assistance to district planning, or planning for areas within districts, carried on by or for district planning agencies;

(7) metropolitan and regional planning agencies, with the approval of the State planning agency or (in States where no such planning agency exists) of the Governor of the State, for the provision of planning assistance within the metropolitan area or region to cities, other municipalities, counties, groups of adjacent communities, or Indian reservations described in clauses (A), (B), (C), and (D) of paragraph (1) of this subsection;

(8) official governmental planning agencies for any area where there has occurred a substantial reduction in employment opportunities as the result of (A) the closing (in whole or in part) of a Federal installation, or (B) a decline in the volume of Government orders for the procurement of articles or materials produced or manufactured in such area;

(9) tribal planning councils or other tribal bodies designated by the Secretary of the Interior for planning for an Indian reservation;

(10) the Appalachian Regional Commission, established by the Appalachian Regional Development Act of 1965, for comprehensive planning for the Appalachian region as defined by section 403 of such Act (or State agencies or instrumentalities participating in such planning); and

(11) local development districts, certified under section 301 of the Appalachian Regional Development Act of 1965, for comprehensive planning for their entire areas, or for metropolitan planning, urban planning, county planning, or small municipality planning within such areas in the Appalachian region, and for planning for Appalachian regional programs.

Planning assisted under this section shall, to the maximum extent feasible, cover entire areas having common or related development problems. The Secretary shall encourage cooperation in preparing and carrying out plans among all interested municipalities, political subdivisions, public agencies, and other parties in order to achieve coordinated development of entire areas. To the maximum extent feasible, pertinent plans and studies already made for areas shall be utilized so as to avoid unnecessary repetition of effort and expense. Planning which may be assisted under this section includes the preparation of comprehensive transportation surveys, studies, and plans to aid in solving problems of traffic congestion, facilitating the circulation of people and goods in metropolitan and other areas and reducing transportation needs. Planning carried out with assistance under this section shall also include a housing element as part of the preparation of comprehensive land use plans, and this consideration of the housing needs and land use requirements for housing in each comprehensive plan shall take into account all available evidence of the assumptions and statistical basis upon which the projection of zoning, community facilities, and population growth is based, so that the housing needs of both the region and the local communities studied in the planning will be adequately covered in terms of existing and prospective in-migrant population growth. Funds available under this section shall be in addition to and may be used jointly with funds available for planning surveys and investigations under other federally aided programs, and nothing contained in this section shall be construed as affecting the authority of the Secretary of Transportation under section 307 of title 23, United States Code.

(b) A planning grant made under subsection (a) shall not exceed two-thirds of the estimated cost of the work for which the grant is made: Provided, That such a grant may be made for up to 74 per centum of such estimated cost when made for planning primarily for (1) redevelopment areas, local development districts, or economic development districts, or portions thereof, described in paragraphs (3)(A) and (11) of subsection (a), (2) areas described in subsection (a)(8), and (3) the Appalachian region, as described in subsection (a)(10). All grants made under this section shall be subject to terms and conditions prescribed by the Secretary. No portion of any grant made under this section shall be used for the preparation of plans for specific public works. The Secretary is authorized, notwithstanding the provisions of section 3648 of the Revised Statutes, as amended, to make advance or progress payments on account of any grant made under this section. There are authorized to be appropriated for the purposes of this section not to exceed $265,000,000 prior to July 1, 1969, and not to exceed $390,000,000 prior to July 1, 1970. Of the amount available prior to July 1, 1969, $20,000,000 may be used only for district planning grants under subsection (a)(6), which amount shall be increased by $10,000,000 on July 1, 1969. Any amounts appropriated under this section shall remain available until expended: Provided, That of any funds appropriated under this section, not to exceed an aggregate of $10,000,000 plus 5 per centum of the funds so appropriated may be used by the Secretary for studies, research, and demonstration projects undertaken independently or by contract, for the development and improvement of techniques and methods for comprehensive planning and for the advancement of the purposes of this section, and for grants to assist in the conduct of studies and research relating to needed revisions in State statutes which create, govern, or control local governments and local governmental operations.

(c) The Secretary is authorized, in areas embracing several municipalities or other political subdivisions, to encourage planning on a unified regional, district, or metropolitan basis and to provide technical assistance for such planning and the solution of problems relating thereto.

(d) It is the further intent of this section to encourage comprehensive planning, including transportatiou planning, for States, cities, counties, metropolitan areas, districts, regions, and Indian reservations and the establishment and development of the organizational units needed therefor. In extending financial assistance under this section, the Secretary may require such assurances as he deems adequate that the appropriate State and local agencies are making reasonable progress in the development of the elements of comprehensive planning. The Secretary is authorized to provide technical assistance to State and local governments and their agencies and instrumentalities, and to Indian tribal bodies, undertaking such planning and, by contract or otherwise, to make studies and publish information on related problems.

(e) In the exercise of his responsibilities under this section, the Secretary shall consult with those officials of the Federal Government responsible for the administration of programs of Federal assistance to the States and municipalities for various categories of public facilities and other comprehensively planned activities. He shall, particularly, consult with the Secretary of Agriculture prior to his approval of any district planning grants under subsections (a)(6) and (g). The Secretary of Agriculture may provide technical assistance, with or without reimbursement, in connection with the establishment of such districts and the carrying out of such planning.

(f) The consent of the Congress is hereby given to any two or more States to enter into agreements or compacts, not in conflict with any law of the United States, for cooperative efforts and mutual assistance in the comprehensive planning for the growth and development of interstate, metropolitan, or other urban areas, and to establish such agencies, joint or otherwise, as they may deem desirable for making effective such agreements and compacts.

(g) In addition to the planning grants authorized by subsection (a), the Secretary is further authorized to make grants to organizations composed of public officials representative of the political jurisdictions within a metropolitan area, region, or district for the purpose of assisting such organizations to undertake studies, collect data, develop metropolitan, regional, and district plans and programs, and engage in such other activities as the Secretary finds necessary or desirable for the solution of the metropolitan, regional, or district problems in such areas, regions, or districts. To the maximum extent feasible, all grants under this subsection shall be for activities relating to all the developmental aspects of the total metropolitan area, region, or district including, but not limited to, land use, transportation, housing, economic development, natural resources development, community facilities, and the general improvement of living environments. A grant under this subsection shall not exceed two-thirds of the estimated cost of the work for which the grant is made.

(h) In addition to the other grants authorized by this section, the Secretary is authorized to make grants to assist any city, other municipality, or county in making a survey of the structures and sites in such locality which are determined by its appropaiate authorities to be of historic or architectural value. Any such survey shall be designed to identify the historic structures and sites in the locality, determine the cost of their rehabilitation or restoration, and provide such other information as may be necessary to appropriate to serve as a foundation for a balance and effective program of historic preservation in such locality. The aspects of any such survey which relate to the identification of historic and architectural values shall be conducted in accordance with criteria found by the Secretary to be comparable or those used in establishing the national register maintained by the Secretary of the Interior under other provisions of law; and the results of each such survey shall be made available to the Secretary of the Interior. A grant under this subsection shall not exceed two-thirds of the cost of the survey for which it is made, and shall be made to the appropriate agency or entity specified in paragraphs (1) through (11) of subsection (a) or, if there is no such agency or entity which is qualified and willing to receive the grant and provide for its utilization in accordance with this subsection, directly to the city, other municipality, or county involved.

(i) As used in this section—

(1) The term "metropolitan area" means a standard metropolitan statistical area, as established by the Bureau of the Budget, subject, however, to such modifications or extensions as the Secretary deems to be appropriate for the purposes of this section.

(2) The term "region" includes (A) all or part of the area of jurisdiction of one or more units of general local government, and (B) one or more metropolitan areas.

(3) The term "district" includes all or part of the area of jurisdiction of (A) one or more counties, and (B) one or more other units of general local government, but does not include any portion of a metropolitan area.

(4) The term "comprehensive planning" includes the following:

(A) preparation, as a guide for governmental policies and action, of general plans with respect to (i) the pattern and intensity of land use, (ii) the provision of public facilities (including transportation facilities) and other government services, and (iii) the effective development and utilization of human and natural resources;

(B) long-range physical and fiscal plans for such action;

(C) programing of capital improvements and other major expenditures, based on a determination of relative urgency, together with definitive financing plans for such expenditures in the earlier years of the program;

(D) coordination of all related plans and activities of the State and local governments and agencies concerned; and

(E) preparation of regulatory and administrative measures in support of the foregoing.

Comprehensive planning for the purpose of districts shall not include planning for or assistance to establishments in relocating from one area to another or assist subcontractors whose purpose is to divest, or whose economic success is dependent upon divesting, other contractors or subcontractors of contracts theretofore customarily performed by them: Provided, That this limitation shall not be construed to prohibit assistance for the expansion of an existing business entity through the establishment of a new branch, affiliate, or subsidiary of such entity, if the Secretary finds that the establishment of such branch, affiliate, or subsidiary will not result in an increase in unemployment in the area of original location or in any other area where such entity conducts business operations, unless the Secretary has reason to believe that such branch, affiliate, or subsidiary is being established with the intention of closing down the operations of the existing business entity in the area of its original location or in any other area where it conducts such operations.

(5) The term "State planning agencies" includes official State planning agencies and (in States where no such planning agency exists) agencies or instrumentalities of State government designated by the Governor of the State and acceptable to the Secretary.

(6) The terms "metropolitan planning agencies", "regional planning agencies", and "district planning agencies" mean official metropolitan, regional, and district planning agencies, or other agencies and instrumentalities designated by the Governor (or Governors in the case of interstate planning), and acceptable to the Secretary, empowered under State or local law or interstate compact to perform metropolitan, regional, or district planning, respectively: Provided, That such agencies and instrumentalities shall, to the greatest practicable extent, be composed of or responsible to the elected officials of the unit or units of general local government for whose jurisdictions they are empowered to engage in planning.

RESERVE OF PLANNED PUBLIC WORKS

SEC. 702. (a) In order (1) to encourage municipalities and other public agencies and Indian tribes to maintain at all times a current and adequate reserve of planned public works the construction of which can rapidly be commenced, particularly when the national or local economic situation makes such action desirable, and (2) to help attain maximum economy and efficiency in the planning and construction of public works, the Secretary is hereby authorized to make advances to public agencies and Indian tribes (notwithstanding the provisions of section 3648 of the Revised Statutes, as amended) to aid in financing the cost of feasibility studies, engineering and architectural surveys, designs, plans, working drawings, specifications, or other action preliminary to and in preparation for the construction of public works, including, in the case of public works to be constructed in connection with the development of a medical center, a general plan for the development of such center: Provided, That the making of advances hereunder shall not in any way commit the Congress to appropriate funds to assist in financing the construction of any public works so planned: And provided further, That advances outstanding to public agencies and Indian tribes in any one State shall at no time exceed 12½ per centum of the aggregate then authorized to be appropriated to the revolving fund established pursuant to subsection (e) of this section.

SECTION 604 OF THE HOUSING ACT OF 1957

EXCHANGE OF DATA

[SEC. 604. The Secretary of Housing and Urban Development shall exchange data relating to housing and urban planning and development with other nations where such exchange is deemed by him to be beneficial to the programs of the Department of Housing and Urban Development.]

SEC. 604. (a) The Secretary of Housing and Urban Development may exchange data relating to housing and urban planning and development with other nations and assemble such data from other nations, through participation in international conferences and other means, where such exchange or assembly is deemed by him to be beneficial in carrying out his responsiblities under the Department of Housing and Urban Development Act or other legislation. In carrying out his responsibilities under this subsection the Secretary may—

(1) pay the expenses of participation in activities conducted under authority of this section including, but not limited to, the compensation, travel expenses, and per diem in lieu of subsistence of persons serving in an advisory capacity while away from their homes or regular places of business in connection with attendance at international meetings and conferences, or other travel for the purpose of exchange or assembly of data relating to housing and urban planning and development; but such travel expenses shall not exceed those authorized for regular officers and employees traveling in connection with said activities; and

(2) accept from international organizations, foreign countries, and private nonprofit foundations, funds, services, facilities, materials, and other donations to be utilized jointly in carrying out activities under this section.

(b) International programs and activities carried out by the Secretary under the authority provided in subsection (a) shall be subject to the approval of the Secretary of State for the purpose of assuring that such authority shall be exercised in a manner consistent with the foreign policy of the United States.

TITLE II—HOUSING FOR THE ELDERLY OR HANDICAPPED

* * * * * * *

LOAN PROGRAM

SEC. 202. (a)(1) The purpose of this section is to assist private nonprofit corporations, limited profits sponsors, consumer cooperatives, or public bodies or agencies to provide housing and related facilities for elderly or handicapped families.

(2) In order to carry out the purpose of this section the Secretary may make loans to any corporation (as defined in subsection (d)(2)), to any limited profit sponsor approved by the Secretary, to any consumer cooperative, or to any public body or agency for the provision of rental or cooperative housing and related facilities for elderly or handicapped families, except that (A) no such loan shall be made unless the applicant shows that it is unable to secure the necessary funds from other sources upon terms and conditions equally as favorable as the terms and conditions applicable to loans under this section, (B) no such loan shall be made unless the Secretary finds that the construction will be undertaken in an economical manner and that it will not be of elaborate or extravagant design or materials, and (C) no such loan shall be made to a public body or agency unless it certifies that it is not receiving financial assistance from the United States exclusively pursuant to the United States Housing Act of 1937.

(3) A loan under this section may be in an amount not exceeding the total development cost (as defined in subsection (d)(3) as determined by the Secretary, except that in the case of other than a corporation consumer cooperative, or public body or agency the amount of the loan shall not exceed 90 per centum of the development cost; shall be secured in such a manner and be repaid within such period, not exceeding fifty years, as may be determined by him; and shall bear interest at a rate determined by him which shall be not more than the lower of (A) 3 per centum per annum, or (B) the total of one-quarter of 1 per centum added to the average annual interest rate on all interest-bearing obligations of the United States then forming a part of the public debt as computed at the end of the fiscal year next preceding the date on which the loan is made and adjusted to the nearest one-eighth of 1 per centum.

(4) There is authorized to be appropriated not to exceed $500,000,000 which shall consitute a revolving fund to be used by the Secretary in carrying out this section.

(b) In the performance of, and with respect to, the functions, powers, and duties vested in him by this section the Secretary shall (in addition to any authority otherwise vested in him) have the functions, powers, and duties set forth in section 402 (except subsection (c)(2)) of the Housing Act of 1950.

(c)(1) Housing constructed with a loan made under this section shall not be used for transient or hotel purposes while such loan is outstanding.

(2) As used in paragraph (1), the term "transient or hotel purposes" shall have such meaning as may be prescribed by the Secretary, but rental for any period less than thirty days shall in any event constitute use for such purposes. The provisions of subsections (f) through (j) of section 513 of the National Housing Act (as added by section 132 of the Housing Act of 1954) shall apply in the case of violations of paragraph (l) as though the housing described in such subsection were multifamily housing (as defined in section 513(e)(2) of the National Housing Act) with respect to which a mortgage is insured under such Act.

(3) The Secretary shall take such action as may be necessary to insure that all laborers and mechanics employed by contractors and subcontractors in the construction of housing assisted under this section shall be paid wages at rates not less than those prevailing in the locality involved for the corresponding classes of laborers and mechanics employed on construction of a similar character, as determined by the Secretary of Labor in accordance with the Act of March 3, 1931, as amended (the Davis-Bacon Act); but the Secretary may waive the application of this paragraph in cases or classes of cases where laborers or mechanics, not otherwise employed at any time in the construction of such housing, voluntarily donate their services without [full] compensation for the purposes of lowering the costs of construction and the Secretary determines that any amounts saved thereby are fully credited to the corporation, cooperative, or public body or agency undertaking the construction.

(d) As used in this section—

(1) The term "housing" means structures suitable for dwelling use by elderly or handicapped families which are (A) new structures, or (B) provided by rehabilitation, alteration, conversion, or improvement of existing structures which are otherwise inadequate for proposed dwelling use by such families.

(2) The term "corporation" means any incorporated private institution or foundation no part of the net earnings of which inures to the benefit of any private shareholder, contributor, or individual, if such institution or foundation is approved by the Secretary as to financial responsibility.

(3) The term "development cost" means costs of construction of housing and of other related facilities, and of the land on which it is located, including necessary site improvement.

(4) The term "elderly or handicapped families" means families which consist of two or more persons and the head of which (or his spouse) is sixty-two years of age or over or is handicapped, and such term also means a single person who is sixty-two years of age or over or is handicapped. A person shall be considered handicapped if such person is determined, pursuant to regulations issued by the Secretary, to have a physical impairment which (A) is expected to be of long-continued and indefinite duration, (B) substantially impedes his ability to live independently, and (C) is of such a nature that such ability could be improved by more suitable housing conditions. The Secretary shall prescribe such regulations as may be necessary to prevent abuses in determining, under the definitions contained in this paragraph, the eligibility of families and persons for admission to and occupancy of housing constructed with assistance under this section.

(5) The term "State" includes the several States, the District of Columbia, the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, and the possessions of the United States.

(6) The term "Secretary" means the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development.

(7) The term "construction" means erection of new structures or rehabilitation, alteration, conversion, or improvement of existing structures.

(8) The term "related facilities" means (A) new structures suitable for use by elderly or handicapped families as cafeterias or dining halls, community rooms or buildings, workshops, or infirmaries or other inpatient or outpatient health facilities, or other essential service facilities, and (B) structures suitable for the above uses provided by rehabilitation, alteration, conversion, or improvement of existing structures which are otherwise inadequate for such uses.

(e) Nothing in this section or in regulations promulgated under this section shall prevent a corporation or consumer cooperative from obtaining a loan under this section for the provision of housing and related facilities for elderly or handicapped families, notwithstanding the fact that such corporation or cooperative has theretofore obtained a commitment from the Federal Housing Administration for mortgage insurance under section 231 of the National Housing Act with respect to the housing involved, if (1) such corporation or cooperative is otherwise eligible for such loan under this section, (2) such commitment was obtained prior to the date of enactment of the Housing Act of 1961, and (3) the Secretary determines that the financing of such housing through a loan under this section rather than through mortgage insurance under such section 231 is necessary or desirable in order to avoid hardship for the elderly or handicapped families who are the prospective tenants of such housing.

GRANTS FOR PRESERVATION AND DEVELOPMENT OF OPEN-SPACE LAND

SEC. 702. (a) In order to encourage and assist in the timely acquisition and development of land to be used as permanent open-space land, as defined herein, the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development (hereinafter referred to as the "Secretary") is authorized to enter into contracts to make grants to States and local public bodies to help finance the acquisition of title to, or other permanent interests in, such land, and the development, for open-space uses, of land acquired under this title. The amount of any such grant shall not exceed 50 per centum of the total cost, as approved by the Secretary, of such acquisition and development. The faith of the United States is pledged to the payment of all grants contracted for under this title.

[(b) The Secretary may enter into contracts to make grants under this title aggregating not to exceed $310,000,000: Provided, That of such sum the Secretary may contract to make grants under section 705 aggregating not to exceed $64,000,000, and grants under section 706 aggregating not to exceed $36,000,000. There are hereby authorized to be appropriated, out of any moneys in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, the amounts necessary to provide for the payment of such grants as well as to carry out all other purposes of this title. All funds so appropriated shall remain available until expended.]

(b) There are authorized to be appropriated, for the purpose of making grants under this title, not to exceed $310,000,000 prior to July 1, 1969, and not to exceed $460,000,000 prior to July 1, 1970, Any amounts appropriated under this section shall remain available until expended.

TITLE III—URBAN RENEWAL

* * * * * * *

REHABILITATION LOANS

SEC. 312. (a) [To assist rehabilitation in an urban renewal area or an area in which a program of concentrated code enforcement activities is being carried out pursuant to section 117 of the Housing Act of 1949 and thereby reduce the need for demolition and removal of structures, the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development is hereby authorized, through the utilization of local public and private agencies where feasible, to make loans as herein provided to the owners or tenants of property in such area to finance rehabilitation required to make the property conform to applicable code requirements or to carry out the objectives of the urban renewal plan for the area. No loan shall be made under this section unless the Secretary finds (1) that the applicant is unable to secure the necessary funds from other sources upon comparable terms and conditions, and (2) the loan is an acceptable risk taking into consideration the need for the rehabilitation, the security available for the loan, and the ability of the applicant to repay the loan.] The Secretary is authorized, through the utilization of local public and private agencies where feasible, to make loans as herein provided to the owners and tenants of property to finance the rehabilitation of such property. No loan shall be made under this section unless—

(1)(A) the property is situated in an urban renewal area or an area in which a program of concentrated code enforcement activity is being carried out pursuant to section 117 of the Housing Act of 1949, and the rehabilitation is required to make the property conform to applicable code requirements or to carry out the objectives of the urban renewal plan for the area and, in addition, to generally improve the condition of the property; or

(B)(i) the property is in an area (other than an area described in subparagraph (A)) which the governing body of the locality has determined, and so certifies to the Secretary, contains a substantial number of structures in need of rehabilitation and (ii) the property is residential, owner-occupied, and in need of substantial rehabilitation; or

(C) (i) the property has been determined to be uninsurable because of physical hazards after an inspection pursuant to a statewide property insurance plan approved by the Secretary under title XII of the National Housing Act, (ii) the loan is made to the owner or tenant of the property to finance rehabilitation which the Secretary determines to be necessary to make the property meet reasonable underwriting standards, and (iii) the property is located in an area which the Secretary determines is sufficiently stable and contains sufficient public facilities and amenities to support long-term values, or is one in which public or private actions are being carried out, or are proposed to be carried out, of such scope and quality as to give reasonable promise that a stable environment will be created;

(2) the applicant is unable to secure the necessary funds from other sources upon comparable terms and conditions; and

(3) the loan is an acceptable risk taking into consideration the need for the rehabilitation, the security available for the loan, and the ability of the applicant to repay the loan.

(b) For the purposes of this section—

(1) the term "rehabilitation" means the improvement or repair of a structure or facilities in connection with a structure, and may include the provision of such sanitary or other facilities as are required by applicable codes [or], the urban renewal plan, or a Statewide property insurance plan to be provided by the owner or tenant of the property;

(2) the term "urban renewal area" means a slum area or a blighted, deteriorated, or deteriorating area as defined in section 110(a) of the Housing Act of 1949;

(3) the term "tenant" means a person or organization who is occupying a structure under a lease having a period to run at the time a rehabilitation loan is made under this section of not less than the term of the loan; and

(4) the term "Secretary" means the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development.

* * * * * * *

(d) There is authorized to be appropriated [not to exceed $100,000,000] for each fiscal year such amounts as may be necessary which shall constitute a revolving fund to be used by the Secretary in carrying out this section. All moneys in such revolving fund shall be available for necessary expenses of servicing loans made pursuant to this section, including reimbursement or payment for services and facilities of the [Federal] Government National Mortgage Association and of any public or private agency for the servicing of such loans.

* * * * * * *

(h) No loan shall be made under the authority of this section after [October 1, 1969] June 30, 1973, except pursuant to a contract, commitment, or other obligation entered into pursuant to this section before that date.

TITLE VIII—TRAINING AND FELLOWSHIP PROGRAMS

Part 1—Federal-State Training Programs

FINDINGS AND PURPOSE

Sec. 801. (a) The Congress finds that the rapid expansion of the Nation's urban areas and urban population has caused severe problems in urban and suburban development and created a national need to (1) provide special training in skills needed for economic and efficient community development and (2) support research in new or improved methods of dealing with community development problems.

(b) It is the purpose of this part to assist and encourage the States, in cooperation with public or private universities and colleges and urban centers, and with business firms and associations, labor unions, and other interests associations and organizations, to (1) organize, initiate, develop, and expand programs which will provide special training in skills needed for economic and efficient community development to those [technical and professional people] technical, professional, and other persons wi h the capacity to master and employ such skills who are, or are training to be, employed by a governmental or public body which has responsibility for community development, or by a private nonprofit organization which is conducting or has responsibility for housing and community development programs; and (2) support State and local research that is needed in connection with housing programs and needs, public improvement programing, code problems, efficient land use, urban transportation, and similar community development problems.

MATCHING GRANTS TO STATES

SEC. 802. (a) Subject to the provisions of this part and in accordance with regulations prescribed by him, the Secretary may make matching grants to States to assist in—

(1) organizing, initiating, developing, or expanding programs to provide special training in skills needed for economic and efficient community development to those [technical and professional people] technical, professional, and other persons with the capacity to master and employ such skills who are, or are training to be, employed by a governmental or public body which has responsibilities for community development, or by a private nonprofit organization which is conducting or has responsibilty for housing and community development programs; and

(2) supporting State and local research that is needed in connection with housing programs and needs, public improvement programing, code problems, efficient land use, urban transportation, and similar community development problems, and collecting, collating, and publishing statistics and information relating to such research.

MISCELLANEOUS

SEC. 805. (a) As used in this part, the term "State" means any State of the United States, the District of Columbia, the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, Guam, American Samoa, the Trust Territory of the Pacific Islands, and the Virgin Islands; and the term "Secretary" means the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development.

HOUSING AND URBAN DEVELOPMENT ACT OF 1965

TITLE I—SPECIAL PROVISIONS FOR DISADVANTAGED PERSONS

FINANCIAL ASSISTANCE TO ENABLE CERTAIN PRIVATE HOUSING TO BE AVAILABLE FOR LOWER INCOME FAMILIES WHO ARE ELDERLY, HANDICAPPED, DISPLACED, VICTIMS OF A NATURAL DISASTER, OR OCCUPANTS OF SUBSTANDARD HOUSING

SEC. 101. (a) The Secretary of Housing and Urban Development (hereinafter referred to as the "Secretary") is authorized to make, and contract to make, annual payments to a "housing owner" on behalf of "qualified tenants", as those terms are defined herein, in such amounts and under such circumstances as are prescribed in or pursuant to this section. In no case shall a contract provide for such payments with respect to any housing for a period exceeding forty years. The aggregate amount of the contracts to make such payments shall not exceed amounts approved in appropriations Acts and payments pursuant to such contracts shall not exceed [$30,000,000 per annum prior to July 1 1966, which maximum dollar amount shall be increased by $35,000,000 on July 1, 1966, by $40,000,000 on July 1, 1967, and by $45,000,000 on July 1, 1968.] $150,000,000 per annum prior to July 1, 1969, which maximum dollar amount shall be increased by $40,000,000 on July 1, 1969, and by $100,000,000 on July 1, 1970.

(b) As used in this section, the term "housing owner" means a private nonprofit corporation or other private nonprofit legal entity, a limited dividend corporation or other limited dividend legal entity, or a cooperative housing corporation, which is a mortgagor under section 221(d)(3) of the National Housing Act and which, after the enactment of this section, has been approved for mortgage insurance thereunder and has been approved for receiving the benefits of this section: Provided, That, except as provided in subsection (j), no payments under this section may be made with respect to any property financed with a mortgage receiving the benefits of the interest rate provided for in the proviso in section 221(d)(5) of that Act. Such term also includes a private nonprofit corporation or other private nonprofit legal entity, a limited dividend corporation or other limited dividend legal entity, or a cooperative housing corporation, which is the owner of a rental or cooperative housing project financed under a State or local program providing assistance through loans, loan insurance, or tax abatement and which prior to completion of construction or rehabilitation is approved for receiving the benefits of this section. Subject to the limitations provided in subsection (j), the term "housing owner" also has the meaning prescribed in such subsection.

(d) The amount of the annual payment with respect to any dwelling unit shall not exceed the amount by which the fair market rental for such unit exceeds [one-fourth] one-fifth of the tenant's income as determined by the Secretary pursuant to procedures and regulations established by him.

* * * * * * *

(g) The Secretary is authorized to make such rules and regulations, to enter into such agreements, and to adopt such procedures as he may deem necessary or desirable to carry out the provisions of this section. Nothing contained in this section shall affect the authority of the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development with respect to any housing assisted under this section, section 221(d)(3), [or section 231(c)(3)], section 231(c)(3), or section 236 of the National Housing Act, or section 202 of the Housing Act of 1959, including the authority to prescribe occupancy requirements under other provisions of law or to determine the portion of any such housing which may be occupied by qualified tenants.

(j)(1) For the purpose of assisting housing under this section on an experimental basis, subject to the limitations of this subsection, the term "housing owner" (in addition to the meaning prescribed in subsection (b)) includes—

(A) a private nonprofit corporation or other private nonprofit legal entity, a limited dividend corporation or other limited dividend legal entity, or a cooperative housing corporation, which is a mortgagor under a mortgage which receives the benefits of the interest rate provided for in the proviso in section 221(d)(5) of the National Housing Act and which, after the date of the enactment of this Act has been approved for mortgage insurance under section 221(d)(3) of the National Housing Act and has been approved for receiving the benefits of this section;

(B) a private nonprofit corporation or other private nonprofit legal entity which is a mortgagor under a mortgage insured under section 231(c)(3) of the National Housing Act and which, after the date of the enactment of this Act, has obtained final endorsement of such mortgage for mortgage insurance and has been approved for receiving the benefits of this section; [and]

(C) a private nonprofit corporation, a public body or agency, or a cooperative housing corporation, which is a borrower under section 202 of the Housing Act of 1959 and has been approved for receiving the benefits of this section: Provided, That, with respect to properties financed with loans under such section made on or before the date of the enactment of this Act, payments shall not be made with respect to more than 20 per centum of the dwelling units in any property so financed[.]; and

(D) a private nonprofit corporation or other private nonprofit legal entity, a limited dividend corporation or other limited dividend legal entity, or a cooperative housing corporation, which is a mortgagor under a mortgage insured under section 236(j) of the National Housing Act which has been approved for receiving the benefits of this section: Provided, That payments shall not be made with respect to more than 20 per centum of the dwelling units in any property so financed.

TITLE VII—COMMUNITY FACILITIES

PURPOSE

[SEC. 701. The purpose of this title is to assist and encourage the communities of the Nation fully to meet the needs of their citizens by making it possible, with Federal grant assistance, for their governmental bodies (1) to construct adequate basic water and sewer facilities needed to promote the efficient and orderly growth and development of our communities, (2) to construct neighborhood facilities needed to enable them to carry on programs of necessary social services, and (3) to acquire, in a planned and orderly fashion, land to be utilized [in connection with the future construction of public works and facilities] in the future for public purposes.

GRANTS FOR BASIC WATER AND SEWER FACILITIES

(b) The amount of any grant made under the authority of this section shall not exceed 50 per centum of the development cost of the project: Provided, That in the case of a community, or an unincorporated area served by a water district or improvement district, having a population of less than ten thousand, according to the most recent decennial census, which is situated within a metropolitan area, the Secretary may increase the amount of a grant for a basic public water or sewer facility assisted under this section to not more than 90 per centum of the development cost of such facility, if the community or area is unable to finance the construction of such facility without the increased grant authorized under this subsection, and if in such community or area (1) there does not exist a public or other adequate sewer facility which serves a substantial portion of the inhabitants of the community or area, and (2) the rate of unemployment is, and has been continuously for the preceding calendar year, 100 per centum above the national average: And provided further, That the limitations and restrictions contained in subsection (c) of this section shall not be applicable to any community or area applying for an increased grant under this subsection.

(c) No grant shall be made under this section in connection with any project unless the Secretary determines that the project is necessary to provide adequate water or sewer facilities for, and will contribute to the improvement of the health or living standards of, the people in the community to be served, and that the project is (1) designed so that an adequate capacity will be available to serve the reasonably foreseeable growth needs of the area; (2) consistent with a program meeting criteria, established by the Secretary, for a unified or officially coordinated areawide water or sewer facilities system as part of the comprehensively planned development of the area, except that prior to [July 1, 1968,] October 1, 1969, grants may, in the discretion of the Secretary, be made under this section when such a program for an areawide water and sewer facilities system is under active preparation, although not yet completed, if the facility or facilities for which assistance is sought can reasonably be expected to be required as a part of such program, and there is urgent need for the facility or facilities; and (3) necessary to orderly community development.

(d) In the administration of this section the Secretary shall require that, to the greatest extent practicable, new job opportunities be provided for unemployed or underemployed persons in connection with projects the financing of which is assisted under this section.

* * * * * * *

[SEC. 704. (a) In order to encourage and assist in the timely acquisition of land planned to be utilized in connection with the future construction of public works or facilities, the Secretary is authorized to make grants to local public bodies and agencies to assist in financing the acquisition of a fee simple estate or other interest in such land.

[(b) The amount of any grant made under the authority of this section shall not exceed the aggregate amount of reasonable interest charges on the loan or other financial obligation incurred to finance the acquisition of such land for a period not exceeding the lesser of (1) five years from the date such loan was made or such financial obligation was incurred, or (2) the period of time between the date such loan was made or such financial obligation was incurred and the date construction is begun on the public work or facility for which the land acquired was planned to be utilized.

[(c) No grant shall be made under this section for any project for the acquisition of land unless the Secretary determines that the public work or facility for which such land is to be utilized is planned to be constructed or initiated within a reasonable period of time (not to exceed five years after a contract to make such grant is entered into) and that construction of such public work or facility will contribute to economy, efficiency, and the comprehensively planned development of the area.

[(d) As a condition to providing assistance under this section, the Secretary may, under terms and conditions prescribed by him, require an applicant to agree to repay such assistance, if (1) the land purchased with such assistance is not utilized within five years after the agreement is entered into in connection with the construction of the public work or facility for which such land was acquired, or (2) such land is diverted to other uses.]

ADVANCE ACQUISITION OF LAND

SEC. 704. (a) In order to encourage and assist the timely acquisition of land planned to be utilized in the future for public purposes, the Secretary is authorized to make grants to States and local public bodies and agencies to assist in financing the acquisition of a fee simple estate or other interest in such land.

(b) The amount of any grant made under this section shall not exceed the aggregate amount of reasonable interest charges on the loans or other financial obligations incurred to finance the acquisition of such land for a period not in excess of the lesser of (1) five years from the date of acquisition of such land or (2) the period of time between the date on which the land was acquired and the date its use began for the purpose for which it was acquired: Provided, That where all or any portion of the cost of such land is not financed through borrowings, the amount of the grant shall be computed on the basis of the aggregate amount of reasonable interest charges that the Secretary determines would have been required.

(c) No grant shall be made under this section unless the Secretary determines that the land will be utilized for a public purpose within a reasonable period of time and that such utilization will contribute to economy, efficiency, and the comprehensively planned development of the area. The Secretary shall in all cases require that land acquired with the assistance of a grant under this section be utilized for a public purpose within five years after the date on which a contract to make such grant is entered into, unless the Secretary (1) determines that due to unusual circumstances a longer period of time is necessary and in the public interest, and (2) reports such determination promptly to the Committees on Banking and Currency of the Senate and House of Representatives.

(d) No land acquired with assistance under this section shall, without approval of the Secretary, be diverted from the purpose originally approved. The Secretary shall approve no such diversion unless he finds that the diversion is in accord with the then applicable comprehensive plan for the area. In cases of a diversion of land to other than a public purpose, the Secretary may require repayment of the grant, or substitution of land of approximately equal fair market value, whichever he deems appropriate. An interim use of the land for a public or private purpose in accordance with standards prescribed by the Secretary, or approved by him, shall not constitute a diversion within the meaning of this subsection.

(e) Nowithstanding any other provision of law, no project for which land is acquired with assistance under this section shall, solely as a result of such advance acquisition, be considered ineligible for the purpose of any other Federal loan or grant program, and the amount of the purchase price paid for the land by the recipient of a grant under this section may be considered an eligible cost for the purpose of such other Federal loan or grant program.

TITLE II—PLANNED [METROPOLITAN] AREAWIDE DEVELOPMENT

FINDINGS AND DECLARATION OF PURPOSE

SEC. 201. (a) The Congress hereby finds that the welfare of the Nation and of its people is directly dependent upon the sound and orderly development and the effective organization and functioning of [the metropolitan areas in which two-thirds of its people live and work.] our State and local governments.

[It further finds that the continuing rapid growth of these areas makes it essential that they prepare, keep current, and carry out comprehensive plans and programs for their orderly physical development with a view to meeting efficiently all their economic and social needs.]

It further finds that it is essential that our State and local governments prepare, keep current, and carry out comprehensive plans and programs for their orderly physical development with a view to meeting efficiently all their economic and social needs.

It further finds that our State and local governments are especially handicapped in this task by the complexity and scope of governmental services required [in such rapidly growing areas], the multiplicity of political jurisdictions and agencies involved, and the inadequacy of the operational and administrative arrangements available for cooperation among them.

It further finds that present requirements for areawide planning and programing in connection with various Federal programs have materially assisted in the solution of [metropolitan] areawide problems, but that greater coordination of Federal programs and additional participation and cooperation are needed from the States and localities in perfecting and carrying out such efforts.

(b) It is the purpose of this title to provide through greater coordination of Federal programs, and through supplementary grants for certain federally assisted development projects, additional encouragement and assistance to States and localities for making comprehensive [metropolitan] areawide planning and programing effective.

COOPERATION BETWEEN FEDERAL AGENCIES

SEC. 202. In order to insure that all Federal programs related to [metropolitan] areawide development are carried out in a coordinated manner—

(1) the Secretary is authorized to call upon other Federal agencies to supply such statistical data, program reports, and other materials as he deems necessary to discharge his responsibilities for [metropolitan] areawide development, and to assist the President in coordinating the [metropolitan] areawide development efforts of all Federal agencies; and

(2) all Federal agencies which are engaged in administering programs related to [metropolitan] areawide development, or which otherwise perform functions relating thereto, shall, to the maximum extent practicable, consult with and seek advice from all other significantly affected Federal departments and agencies in an effort to assure fully coordinated programs.

* * * * * * *

GRANTS TO ASSIST IN PLANNED METROPOLITAN DEVELOPMENT

SEC. 205. (a) The Secretary is authorized to make supplementary grants to applicant State and local public bodies and agencies carrying out, or assisting in carrying out, [metropolitan] areawide development projects meeting the requirements of this section.

(b) Grants may be made under this section only for [metropolitan] areawide development projects in [metropolitan] areas for which it has been demonstrated, to the satisfaction of the Secretary, that—

(1) [metropolitanwide] areawide comprehensive planning and programing provide an adequate basis for evaluating (A) the location, financing, and scheduling of individual public facility projects (including but not limited to hospitals and libraries; sewer, water, and sewage treatment facilities; highway, mass transit, airport, and other transportation facilities; and recreation and other open-space areas) whether or not federally assisted; and (B) other proposed land development or uses, which projects or uses, because of their size, density, type, or location, have public [metropolitanwide] areawide or interjurisdictional significance;

(2) adequate [metropolitanwide] areawide institutional or other arrangements exist for coordinating, on the basis of such [metropolitanwide] areawide comprehensive planning and programing, local public policies and activities affecting the development of the area; and

(3) public facility projects and other land development or uses which have a major impact on the development of the area are, in fact, being carried out in accord with such [metropolitanwide] areawide comprehensive planning and programing.

(c)(1) Where the applicant for a grant under this section is a unit of general local government, it must demonstrate to the satisfaction of the Secretary that, taking into consideration the scope of its authority and responsibilities, it is adequately assuring that public facility projects and other land development or uses of public [metropolitan] areawide or interjurisdictional significance are being, and will be, carried out in accord with [metropolitan] areawide planning and programing meeting the requirements of subsection (b). In making this determination the Secretary shall give special consideration to whether the applicant is effectively assisting in, and conforming to, [metropolitan] areawide planning and programing through (A) the location and scheduling of public facility projects, whether or not federally assisted; and (B) where appropriate, the establishment and consistent administration of zoning codes, subdivision regulations, and similar land-use and density controls.

(2) Where the applicant for a grant under this section is not a unit of general local government, both it and the unit of general local government having jurisdiction over the location of the project must meet the requirements of this subsection.

(d) In making the determinations required under this section, the Secretary shall obtain, and give full consideration to, the comments of the body or bodies (State or local) responsible for comprehensive planning and programing for the [metropolitan] area.

(e) No grant shall be made under this section with respect to a [metropolitan] areawide development project for which a Federal grant has been made, or a contract of assistance has been entered into, under the legislation referred to in paragraph (2) of section 208, prior to February 21, 1966, or more than one year prior to the date on which the Secretary has made the determinations required under this section with respect to the applicant and to the area in which the project is located: Provided, That in the case of a project for which a contract of assistance under the legislation referred to in paragraph (2) of section 208 has been entered into after June 30, 1967, no grant shall be made under this section unless an application for such grant has been made on or before the date of such contract.

(f) Nothing in this section shall authorize the Secretary to require (or condition the availability or amount of financial assistance authorized to be provided under this title upon) the adoption by any community of a program to achieve a racial balance or to eliminate racial imbalance within school districts [within the metropolitanwide area].

EXTENT OF GRANT

SEC. 206. (a) A grant under section 205 shall not exceed (1) 20 per centum of the cost of the project for which the grant is made; nor (2) the Federal grant made with respect to the project under the legislation referred to in paragraph (2) of section 208. In no case shall the total Federal contributions to the cost of such project be more than 80 per centum. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, including requirements with respect to non-Federal contributions, grants under section 205 shall be eligible for inclusion (directly or through refunds or credits) as part of the financing for such projects: Provided, That projects or activities on the basis of which assistance is provided under section 105(c) shall not be eligible for assistance under section 205.

(b) There are authorized to be appropriated for grants under section 205 not to exceed $25,000,000 for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1967, and not to exceed $50,000,000 for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1968. [Appropriations authorized under this section shall remain available until expended.] Any amounts appropriated under this section shall remain available until expended, and any amounts authorized for any fiscal year under this section but not appropriated may be appropriated for any succeeding fiscal year commencing prior to July 1, 1970.

* * * * * * *

SEC. 208. As used in this title—

(1) "[Metropolitan] Areawide development" means all projects or programs for the acquisition, use, and development of open-space land; and the planning and construction of hospitals, libraries, airports, water supply and distribution facilities, sewerage facilities and waste treatment works, transportation facilities, highways, water development and land conservation, and other public works facilities.

(2) "[Metropolitan] Areawide development project" means a project assisted or to be assisted under section 702 of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965; title II of the Library Services and Construction Act; section 606 of the Public Health Service Act; section 8 of the Federal Water Pollution Control Act; section 120(a) of title 23, United States Code; section 12 of the Federal Airport Act; section 3 of the Urban Mass Transportation Act of 1964; title VII of the Housing Act of 1961; or section 5(e) of the Land and Water Conservation Fund Act of 1965; or under section 101(a)(1) of the Public Works and Economic Development Act of 1965 (for a project of a type which the Secretary determines to be eligible for assistance under any of the other provisions listed above).

(3) "State" means any State of the United States, the District of Columbia, the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, any territory or possession of the United States, or any agency or instrumentality of any of the foregoing.

(4) "Metropolitan area" means a standard metropolitan statistical area as established by the Bureau of the Budget, subject however to such modifications and extensions as the Secretary may determine to be appropriate for the purposes of this title.

(5) "Comprehensive planning" includes the following, to the extent directly related to area needs or needs of a unit of general local government: (A) preparation, as a guide for long-range development, of general physical plans with respect to the pattern and intensity of land use and the provision of public facilities, including transportation facilities; (B) programing of capital improvements based on a determination of relative urgency; (C) long-range fiscal plans for implementing such plans and programs; and (D) proposed regulatory and administrative measures which aid in achieving coordination of all related plans of the departments or subdivisions of the governments concerned and intergovernmental coordination of related planned activities among the State and local governmental agencies concerned.

(6) "Hospital" means any public health center or general, tuberculosis, mental, chronic disease, or other type of hospital and related facilities, such as laboratories, outpatient departments, nurses' home and training facilities, and central service facilities normally operated in connection with hospitals, but does not include any hospital furnishing primarily domiciliary care.

(7) "Areawide agency" means an official State [or metropolitan or regional], metropolitan, regional, or district agency empowered under State or local laws or under an interstate compact or agreement to perform comprehensive planning in an area; an organization of the type referred to in section 701(g) of the Housing Act of 1954; or such other agency or instrumentality as may be designated by the Governor (or, in the case of [metropolitan] areas crossing State lines, any one or more of such agencies or instrumentalities as may be designated by the Governor of the States involved) to perform such planning.

(8) "Special purpose unit of local government" means any special district, public-purpose corporation, or other limited-purpose political subdivision of a State, but shall not include a school district.

(9) "Unit of general local government" means any city, county, town, parish, village, or other general-purpose political subdivision of a State.

(10) "Secretary" means the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development.

TRANSFERS TO DEPARTMENT

SEC. 5. (a) Except as otherwise provided in subsection (b) of this section, there are hereby transferred to and vested in the Secretary all of the functions, powers, and duties of the Housing and Home Finance Agency, of the Federal Housing Administration and the Public Housing Administration in that Agency, and of the heads and other officers and offices of said agencies.

(b) The [Federal] Government National Mortgage Association, together with its functions, powers, and duties, is hereby transferred to the Department. The next to the last sentence of section 308 of the Federal National Mortgage Association Charter Act and the item numbered (94) of section 303(e) of the Federal Executive Salary Act of 1964 are hereby repealed[, and the position of the President of said Association is hereby allocated among the positions referred to in section 7(c) hereof].

ADMINISTRATION PROVISIONS

SEC. 7. (a) The personnel employed in connection with, and the assets, liabilities, contracts, property, records, and unexpended balances of appropriations, authorizations, allocations, or other funds held, used, arising from, or available or to be made available in connection with, the functions, powers, and duties transferred by section 5 of this Act are hereby transferred with such functions, powers, and duties, respectively.

[(b) No transfer of functions, powers, and duties shall at any time be made within the Department in connection with the secondary market operations of the Federal National Mortgage Association unless the Secretary finds that the rights and interests of owners of outstanding common stock issued under the Federal National Mortgage Association Charter Act will not be adversely affected thereby.]

URBAN MASS TRANSPORTATION ACT OF 1964

[Public Law 88–365, 78 Stat. 302; 49 U.S.C. 1601]

AN ACT To authorize the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development to provide additional assistance for the development of comprehensive and coordinated mass transportation systems, both public and private, in metropolitan and other urban areas, and for other purposes.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That this Act may be cited as the "Urban Mass Transportation Act of 1964".

LONG-RANGE PROGRAM

SEC. 4. (a) Except as specified in section 5, no Federal financial assistance shall be provided pursuant to section 3 unless the Secretary determines that the facilities and equipment for which the assistance is sought are needed for carrying out a program, meeting criteria established by him, for a unified or officially coordinated urban transportation system as a part of the comprehensively planned development of the urban area, and are necessary for the sound, economic, and desirable development of such area. Such program shall encourage to the maximum extent feasible the participation of private enterprise. Where facilities and equipment are to be acquired which are already being used in mass transportation service in the urban area, the program must provide that they shall be so improved (through modernization, extension, addition, or otherwise) that they will better serve the transportation needs of the area. The Secretary, on the basis of engineering studies, studies of economic feasibility, and data showing the nature and extent of expected utilization of the facilities and equipment, shall estimate what portion of the cost of a project to be assisted under section 3 cannot be reasonably financed from revenues—which portion shall hereinafter be called "net project cost". The Federal grant for such a project shall not exceed two-thirds of the net project cost. [The remainder of the net project cost shall be provided, in cash, from sources other than Federal funds, and no refund or reduction of that portion so provided shall be made at any time unless there is at the same time a refund of a proportional amount of the Federal grant.] The remainder of the net project cost shall be provided, in cash, from sources other than Federal funds. Not more than 50 per centum of such remainder may be provided from other than public sources, and any public or private transit system funds shall be provided solely from undistributed cash surpluses, replacement or depreciation funds or reserves available in cash, or new capital; except that in cases of demonstrated fiscal inability of an applicant actively engaged in preparing and effectuating a program for a unified or officially coordinated urban transportation system as part of the comprehensively planned development of the urban area, such remainder may be provided from other than public sources. No refund or reduction of the remainder of the net project cost shall be made at any time unless there is at the same time a refund of a proportional amount of the Federal grant.

(b) To finance grants under this Act there is hereby authorized to be appropriated at any time after its enactment not to exceed $75,000,000 for fiscal year 1965; $150,000,000 for fiscal year 1966; [and] $150,000,000 for each of the fiscal years 1967, 1968, and 1969; and $190,000,000 for fiscal year 1970. Any amount so appropriated shall remain available until expended; and any amount authorized but not appropriated for any fiscal year may be appropriated for any succeeding fiscal year. The Secretary is authorized, notwithstanding the provisions of section 3648 of the Revised Statutes, as amended, to make advance or progress payments on account of any grant made pursuant to this Act.

EMERGENCY PROGRAM

SEC. 5. Prior to [November 1, 1968] October 1, 1969, Federal financial assistance may be provided pursuant to section 3 where (1) the program for the development of a unified or officially coordinated urban transportation system, referred to in section 4(a), is under active preparation although not yet completed, (2) the facilities and equipment for which the assistance is sought can reasonably be expected to be required for such a system, and (3) there is an urgent need for their preservation or provision. The Federal grant for such a project shall not exceed one-half of the net project cost: Provided, That where a Federal grant is made on such a one-half basis, and the planning requirements specified in section 4(a) are fully met within a three-year period after the execution of the grant agreement, an additional grant may then be made to the applicant equal to one-sixth of the net project cost. [The remainder of the net project cost shall be provided, in cash, from sources other than Federal funds, and no refund or reduction of that portion so provided shall be made at any time unless there is at the same time a refund of a proportional amount of the Federal grant.] The remainder of the net project cost shall be provided, in cash, from sources other than Federal funds. Not more than 50 per centum of such remainder may be provided from other than public sources, and any public or private transit system funds shall be provided solely from undistributed cash surpluses, replacement or depreciation funds or reserves available in cash, or new capital; except that in cases of demonstrated fiscal inability of an applicant actively engaged in preparing and effectuating a program for a unified or officially coordinated urban transportation system as part of the comprehensively planned development of the urban area, such remainder may be provided from other than public sources. No refund or reduction of the remainder of the net project cost shall be made at any time unless there is at the same time a refund of a proportional amount of the Federal grant.

(c) The Secretary may make available to finance projects under this section not to exceed $10,000,000 of the mass transportation grant authorization provided in section 4(b), which limit shall be increased to $20,000,000 on July 1, 1965, to $30,000,000 on July 1, 1966, to $40,-

000,000 on July 1, 1967, and to [$50,000,000] $56,000,000 on July 1, 1968. On or after July 1, 1969 the Secretary may make available to finance projects under this section such additional sums out of the grant authorization provided in section 4(b) as he deems appropriate.

(d) Nothing contained in this section shall limit any authority of the Secretary under section 602 of the Housing Act of 1956 or any other provision of law.

FEDERAL FLOOD INSURANCE ACT OF 1956

AN ACT To provide insurance against flood damage, and for other purposes

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That this Act may be cited as the "Federal Flood Insurance Act of 1956".

[FINDINGS AND DECLARATION OF PURPOSE

[SEC. 2. (a) The Congress finds that in the case of recurring natural disasters, including recurring floods, insurance protection against individual and public loss is not always practically available through private or public sources. With specific reference to insurance against flood loss, the Congress finds that insurance against certain losses resulting from this peril is not so available. Since preventive and protective means and structures against the effects of these disasters can never wholly anticipate the geographic incidence and infinite variety of the destructive aspects of these forces, the Congress finds that the safeguards of insurance are a necessary adjunct of preventive and protective means and structures.

[Inasmuch as these disasters impede interstate and foreign commerce, hamper national defense, and cause widespread distress and hardship adversely affecting the general welfare, without regard to State boundary lines, and in the absence of insurance protection from private or public sources, the Congress ought to provide for such protection in the case of flood, and study the feasibility and need for similar programs in the case of other forms of natural disaster against which insurance protection is not generally and practically available in all geographical areas.

[(b)(1) It is the purpose of this Act to authorize the establishment of a program of Federal insurance and reinsurance against the risks of loss resulting from flood as hereinafter defined, and to require a study and report on insurance and reinsurance against still other natural disaster perils to the extent that such insurance or reinsurance is not available on reasonable terms and conditions from other public or private sources; and

[(2) It is the further purpose of this Act to encourage private insurance companies to write insurance covering the extent of the risks above the limits prescribed in section 10(a) and to provide Federal reinsurance to the extent desirable and necessary to carry out this purpose.

[(3) It is the further purpose of this Act to authorize the establishment of a program of loans, and a program combining insurance and loans, to assist flood victims who have entered into contracts with the Administrator under this Act.

[ADMINISTRATION

[SEC. 3. (a) To assist in carrying out the functions, powers, and duties vested in him by this Act, the Administrator may appoint a Commissioner, and the basic rate of compensation of such position shall be the same as the basic rate of compensation established for the Commissioners of the constituents of the Housing and Home Finance Agency.

[(b) The provisions of the Government Corporation Control Act, as amended, shall apply to the functions vested in the Administrator by this Act, to the same extent as applicable to wholly owned Government corporations.

[(c) In the performance of, and with respect to, the functions, powers, and duties vested in him by this Act, the Administrator, notwithstanding the provisions of any other law, shall maintain an integral set of accounts which shall be audited annually by the General Accounting Office in accordance with the principles and procedures applicable to commercial transactions as provided by the Government Corporation Control Act, as amended, and no other audit shall be required: Provided, That such financial transactions of the Administrator as the issuing of insurance policies, the making of reinsurance agreements, and the making and guaranteeing of loans, and vouchers approved by the Administrator in connection with such financial transactions, shall be final and conclusive upon all officers of the Government.

[AUTHORITY TO INSURE AND REINSURE

[SEC. 4. To aid in carrying out the purposes of this Act, the Administrator is authorized to provide, upon such terms and conditions (including coinsurance requirements) as he may establish, insurance and reinsurance against loss resulting from damage to or destruction of real or personal property (including property owned by any State or local government) due to flood, as hereinafter defined, occurring within the United States: Provided, That insurance policies issued under this Act after June 30, 1959, shall be issued only with respect to property in those States which participate as provided in section 7(a) of this Act.

[LOAN CONTRACT

[SEC. 5. (a) The Administrator is authorized to enter into contracts with any persons (not including State and local governments and agencies thereof) to the effect that, in the event of any subsequent loss resulting from damage to or destruction of real and personal property due to flood, as hereinafter defined, occurring within the United States—

[(1) the Administrator will guarantee any public or private financing institution against loss of principal and interest with respect to any loan in an amount not to exceed such subsequent flood loss (as modified by subsection (f) of this section, relating to deductibility), which may be made by such institution to any such person in connection with such flood loss; and

[(2) to the extent that a loan to finance such flood loss is not available from any such institution on reasonable terms, the Administrator will make a loan directly to such person in an amount covering all or part (as provided for in the loan contract between the Administrator and such person) of the difference between the amount of such flood loss (as modified by such subsection (f), relating to deductibility) and the amount of the loan available from such institution.

Each such contract shall contain such terms and conditions and require from any such person such monetary consideration, as the Administrator may prescribe by regulation. In issuing such regulations the Administrator shall fix such monetary consideration at the lowest practicable amount, following generally the same principles as apply under section 7(a) with respect to the establishment of fees for insurance.

[(b) Any loan made or guaranteed under this section shall bear interest at the rate, as determined by the Administrator, which is prevailing in the area where the money loaned is to be used but such rate shall not exceed 4 per centum per annum on the unpaid principal balance.

[(c) Any Federal Reserve bank, when designated by the Administrator, is hereby authorized to act, on behalf of the Administrator, as fiscal agent of the United States in guaranteeing loans under this section and in otherwise taking action in connection with such guarantees. Such funds as may be necessary to enable such bank to carry out any such guarantee shall be supplied and disbursed by or under authority of the Administrator from the Disaster Loan Fund. Such bank shall not have any responsibility or accountability except as agent in taking any action in connection with such guarantees. Each such bank shall be reimbursed by the Administrator, from funds appropriated by the Federal Government, for all expenses incurred by the bank in acting as agent on behalf of the Administrator, including among such expenses, notwithstanding any other provision of law, attorneys' fees and expenses of litigation.

[(d) Actions and operations of such banks under authority of subsection (c) of this section shall be subject to the supervision of the Administrator and subject to such regulations as he may prescribe. The Administrator is authorized to prescribe the term and incidental charges for loans guaranteed under subsection (c) of this section. The Administrator is further authorized to prescribe regulations with respect to the forms and procedures (which shall be uniform to the maximum extent practicable) to be utilized in connection with such guarantees.

[(e) To the maximum extent practicable, loans under this section shall be on a long-term basis in accordance with regulations prescribed by the Administrator, if so requested by the person obtaining the loan.

[(f) Loans under this section shall be made only with respect to amounts exceeding the first $500 of the amount of the loss.

[(g) The face amount of all loan contracts outstanding under this section at any one time shall not exceed $2,000,000,000; but such amount may be increased, with the approval of the President, by not to exceed $500,000,000 in any one fiscal year.

[(h) The provisions of sections 8, 9, 10(a), 10(b), 12(b), 12(c), 13, 14, 15(e), 15(g), 17(a), 18, 19, 20, 22, and 23 of this Act shall be applicable with respect to the loan contract program under this section.

[COMBINATION OF INSURANCE AND LOANS

[SEC. 6. The Administrator is authorized to establish, under such regulations as he may prescribe, a program combining insurance and loans in order to provide the greatest variety and amount of protection against loss to the greatest number of affected parties in accordance with individual needs.

[ESTIMATED RATES AND FEES

[SEC. 7. (a) The Administrator shall from time to time establish a schedule of "estimated rates" for insurance offered under the provisions of this Act, which would be adequate, in his judgment, to produce sufficient proceeds to pay all claims for probable losses over a reasonable period of years. Such "estimated rates" shall be used as a basis for determining the fees to be paid by the persons insured. They shall be based on consideration of the risks involved and shall be uniform for similar risks within a given classification of property. They shall not include any loading for administrative expenses of the Federal Government under this Act. The Administrator shall establish a schedule of fees to provide insurance protection at reasonable costs designed to achieve marketability: Provided, That no insurance policy shall be issued for a fee less than 60 per centum of such "estimated rate". The Administrator is authorized to establish such classifications of fees as he deems necessary to carry out the purposes of this Act based on the use of the property to be insured, the availability of insurance from private sources covering such property, and the ability of the insured to self-insure or reinsure and may establish differentials in levels of fees for such classifications: Provided, That all such fees shall be uniform for similar risks within a given classification of property. Prior to July 1, 1959, the Administrator shall pay into the Disaster Insurance Fund, hereinafter created from time to time, an amount equal to the difference between the fees charged for insurance policies issued and the amount which would have been charged if the "estimated rates" were applied: Provided, That after June 30, 1959, each State shall pay from time to time into the Disaster Insurance Fund, an amount equal to one-half the difference between the fees charged for insurance policies issued after such date on property in such State, and the amount which would have been charged if the "estimated rates" were applied, and the Administrator shall pay into such Fund, from time to time, an amount equal to the State's contribution for each policy issued.

[(b) The Administrator from time to time shall also negotiate with insurance companies seeking reinsurance for the purpose of establishing fees for reinsurance offered under the provisions of this Act. Such fees shall be based on consideration of the risks involved and shall be adequate, in the judgment of the Administrator, to produce sufficient proceeds over a reasonable period of years to pay all claims for losses. The fees shall not include any loading for administrative expenses of the Federal Government under this Act.

[PROPERTY AND LOSS LIMITS

[SEC. 8. The Administrator is authorized to provide for the determination of types and location of property with respect to which insurance or reinsurance shall be made available under this Act, the nature and limits of loss or damage in any area (including subdivisions thereof) which may be covered by such insurance or reinsurance, and such other matters as may be necessary to carry out the purposes of this Act.

[RISK CLASSIFICATION

[SEC. 9. The Administrator may from time to time issue appropriate regulations regarding the classification, limitation, and rejection of risks assumed by him under authority of this Act.

[POLICY AND PROGRAM LIMITS

[SEC. 10. (a) The outstanding face amount of insurance issued by the Administrator under this Act shall not exceed $250,000 per person: Provided, That the face amount of such insurance on any dwelling unit (including any structures and personal property connected therewith) shall not exceed $10,000.

[(b) The Administrator may from time to time issue appropriate regulations regarding insurance coverage available to joint owners and subsidiary and affiliated corporations as he shall deem advisable to effectuate the purposes of this Act.

[(c) Each insurance policy issued by the Administrator shall contain a loss-deductible clause relieving him from any liability for paying the first $100 of a proved and approved claim for loss, plus 5 per centum of the remainder, or such larger amount or percentage as may be specified by the Administrator upon issuance of the insurance policy, taking into consideration the class of risk involved.

[(d) The face amount of insurance policies and reinsurance agreements outstanding at any one time under this Act shall not exceed $3,000,000,000 (which limit may be increased with the approval of the President by further amounts not to exceed $2,000,000,000 in the aggregate if such increase is deemed advisable to effectuate the purposes of this Act) minus the aggregate amount of claims proved and approved under insurance policies and reinsurance agreements issued under this Act, but plus fees collected hereunder. For the purpose of applying this limitation, the face amount of any policy or agreement shall be deemed to be the original amount minus claims proved and approved thereunder.

[REINSURANCE REGULATORY AUTHORITY

[SEC. 11. (a) The Administrator is authorized to issue such regulations regarding reinsurance under this Act as he deems advisable in order to carry out the purposes of this Act.

[(b) The premium rate and terms and conditions of any policy reinsured under the provisions of this Act shall be subject to approval by the Administrator.

[(c) The Administrator shall use his best efforts to encourage private insurance companies to undertake the issuance of insurance policies covering that portion of the loss in excess of the limits specified in section 10(a) of this Act resulting from damage to or destruction of real or personal property due to flood as defined in this Act. The Administrator may seek to achieve this end by offering a program of appropriate reinsurance within the authority granted him by this Act.

[(d) Wherever practicable, the Administrator may encourage, by offering suitable reinsurance subject to the provisions of this Act, the issuance by private insurance companies of policies insuring against loss resulting from damage to or destruction of real or personal property due to flood.

[NONDUPLICATION OF AVAILABLE INSURANCE

[SEC. 12. (a) No insurance or reinsurance, or loan contract, shall be issued under the provisions of this Act covering risks against which insurance is available on reasonable terms from other public or private sources.

[(b) No insurance or reinsurance shall be issued under the provisions of this Act on any property declared by a duly constituted State or local zoning authority, or other authorized public body, to be in violation of State or local flood zoning laws.

[(c) After June 30, 1958, no insurance or reinsurance shall be issued under the provisions of this Act in any geographical location unless an appropriate public body shall have adopted and shall keep in effect such flood zoning restrictions, if any, as may be deemed necessary by the Administrator to reduce, within practical limits, damages from flood in such location.

[USE OF OTHER PUBLIC AND PRIVATE FACILITIES

[SEC. 13. (a) In providing insurance or reinsurance under this Act, the Administrator shall use to the maximum practicable extent the facilities and services of private organizations and persons authorized to engage in the insurance business under the laws of any State (including insurance companies, agents, brokers, and adjustment organizations); and the Administrator may arrange for payment of reasonable compensation therefor.

[(b) In providing insurance or reinsurance under this Act, the Administrator may use the services of other public agencies, and pay reasonable compensation therefor.

[(c) The Administrator may supply, receive from and exchange with other agencies of the Federal Government, State, local, and interstate commissions or agencies, and private organizations experienced in the fields of insurance or reinsurance, such information as may be useful in the administration of the programs authorized by this Act.

[(d) In carrying out the functions authorized in this Act, the Administrator may consult with other agencies of the Federal Government and interstate, State, and local public agencies having responsibilities for land use and flood control and for flood zoning and flood-damage prevention in order to assure that the insurance and reinsurance programs are consistent with the programs of such agencies. Where the program of the Administrator may affect existing or proposed flood-control works under the jurisdiction of agencies of the Federal Government these agencies shall cooperate with the Administrator in coordinating their respective programs. The Secretary of Agriculture and the Administrator shall coordinate the administration of their respective programs relating to flood insurance and reinsurance for agricultural commodities.

[(e) The Administrator may from time to time consult with representatives of the various States to the extent deemed necessary by him to effectuate the purposes of this Act.

[CLAIMS PAYMENT AND JUDICIAL REVIEW

[SEC. 14. (a) Under such regulations as the Administrator may prescribe, he shall arrange for prompt adjustment and payment of valid claims for losses covered by insurance or reinsurance under this Act.

[(b) Upon disallowance of any claim against the Administrator under color of any insurance or reinsurance made available under this Act, or upon refusal of the claimant to accept the amount allowed upon any such claim, the claimant may institute an action against the Administrator on such claim in the United States district court in which a major portion (in terms of value) of the insured property is located. Any such action must be begun within one year after the date upon which the claimant receives from the Administrator written notice of disallowance or partial disallowance of the claim. For the purposes of this section, the Administrator may be sued and he shall appoint one or more agents within the jurisdiction of each United States district court upon whom service of process can be made in any action instituted under this section. Exclusive jurisdiction is hereby conferred upon all United States district courts to hear and determine such actions without regard to the amount in controversy.]

FUNDS AND TREASURY BORROWINGS

SEC. 15. [(a) To carry out the purposes of this Act, the Administrator is authorized to establish three funds to be known as the (1) Disaster Insurance Fund, (2) Disaster Reinsurance Fund, and (3) Disaster Loan Fund.

[(b) Into the Disaster Insurance Fund shall be deposited all insurance fees collected by the Administrator for insurance policies issued by him under this Act, and the contributions made by the Administrator and the respective States in accordance with section 7(a) of this Act. Into the Disaster Reinsurance Fund shall be deposited all fees collected by the Administrator in connection with reinsurance made available by him under this Act. Into the Disaster Loan Fund shall be deposited amounts accruing to the United States in connection with loan contract transactions.

[(c) Moneys in each of the funds may be invested in obligations of the United States or in obligations guaranteed as to principal and interest by the United States. Such obligations may be sold and the proceeds derived therefrom may be reinvested as above provided if deemed advisable by the Administrator. Income from such investment or reinvestment shall be deposited in the respective fund from which the investment was made.

[(d) All salvage proceeds realized by the Administrator in connection with insurance made available under this Act shall be deposited in the Disaster Insurance Fund; and all salvage proceeds realized by the Administrator in connection with reinsurance made available under this Act shall be deposited in the Disaster Reinsurance Fund.]

(e) The Administrator is authorized to issue to the Secretary of the Treasury from time to time and have outstanding at any one time, in an amount not exceeding $500,000,000 (or such greater amount as may be approved by the President) notes or other obligations in such forms and denominations, bearing such maturities, and subject to such terms and conditions as may be prescribed by the Administrator, with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury. Such notes or other obligations shall bear interest at a rate determined by the Secretary of the Treasury, taking into consideration the current average [rate] market yield on outstanding marketable obligations of the United States of comparable maturities [as of the last day of] during the month preceding the issuance of such notes or other obligations. The Secretary of the Treasury is authorized and directed to purchase any notes and other obligations to be issued hereunder and for such purpose he is authorized to use as a public debt transaction the proceeds from the sale of any securities issued under the Second Liberty Bond Act, as amended, and the purposes for which securities may be issued under such Act, as amended, are extended to include any purchases of such notes and obligations.

The Secretary of the Treasury may at any time sell any of the notes or other obligations acquired by him under this section. All redemptions, purchases, and sales by the Secretary of the Treasury of such notes or other obligations shall be treated as public debt transactions of the United States. [Funds borrowed under this section shall be deposited, in such proportions as the Administrator deems advisable, in the Disaster Insurance Fund, the Disaster Reinsurance Fund, and the Disaster Loan Fund.

[(f) Moneys in the Disaster Insurance Fund, the Disaster Reinsurance Fund, and the Disaster Loan Fund may be used for the following purposes as deemed necessary by the Administrator:

[(1) To pay from the Disaster Insurance Fund proved and approved claims for loss under, and other nonadministrative expenses arising in connection with, insurance policies issued by the Administrator under this Act;

[(2) To pay from the Disaster Reinsurance Fund proved and approved claims under, and other nonadministrative expenses arising in connection with, reinsurance agreements entered into by the Administrator under this Act.

[(3) To pay from the Disaster Loan Fund the amounts of loans made by the Administrator, amounts in payment of guarantees, and other nonadministrative expenses in connection with direct and guaranteed loans under this Act; and

[(4) To repay to the Secretary of the Treasury sums borrowed from him in accordance with the provisions of subsection (e) of this section.

[(g) All administrative expenses of the Federal Government under this Act shall be paid from funds appropriated by the Federal Government.

[ADVISORY COMMITTEE

[SEC. 16. In carrying out his functions under this Act, the Administrator shall appoint an advisory committee as authorized by section 601 of the Housing Act of 1949, as amended (68 Stat. 590, 645). Such committee shall consist of not less than three nor more than fifteen persons familiar with the problems of insurance or reinsurance, to advise the Administrator with respect to the formulation of policies and the execution of functions under this Act.

[STUDIES

[SEC. 17. (a) The Administrator shall undertake a continuing study of the practicability of extending the coverage of insurance programs similar to those authorized under this Act to any one or more natural disaster perils, other than flood, against which, and for the period during which, insurance protection is not generally and practically available in all geographical locations from other public or private sources.

[(b) The Administrator shall also undertake a continuing study of participation by private insurance companies in the programs authorized by this Act, in order that the protection it authorizes can be provided, whenever practicable, through insurance policies issued by private insurance companies and reinsured with the Administrator, in lieu of providing such protection through insurance policies issued in the name of the Administrator.

[(c) The Administrator shall undertake a continuing study of the feasibility of having private insurance companies take over, with or without some form of Federal financial support, the insurance programs authorized by this Act.

[ADDITIONAL FUNCTIONS

[SEC. 18. For the purpose of carrying out functions under this Act the Administrator may—

[(a) sue or be sued;

[(b) without regard to sections 3648 and 3709 of the Revised Statutes, as amended (31 U.S.C. 529 and 41 U.S.C. 5), and section 322 of the Act of June 30, 1932 (47 Stat. 412, as amended (40 U.S.C. 278a)), enter into and perform contracts, leases, cooperative agreements, or other transactions, on such terms as he may deem appropriate, with any agency or instrumentality of the United States, or with any State or agency or political subdivision thereof, or with any person, firm, association, or corporation and consent to modification thereof, and make advance or progress payments in connection therewith;

[(c) without regard to sections 3648 and 3709 of the Revised Statutes, as amended (31 U.S.C. 529 and 41 U.S.C. 5), and section 322 of the Act of June 30, 1932 (47 Stat. 412, as amended (40 U.S.C. 278a)), by purchase, lease, or donation acquire such real and personal property and any interest therein, make advance or progress payments in connection therewith, and hold, use, maintain, insure against loss, sell, lease, or otherwise dispose of such real and personal property as the Administrator deems necessary to carry out the purposes of this Act;

[(d) appoint, pursuant to civil-service laws and regulations, such officers, attorneys, and employees as may be necessary to carry out the purposes of this Act; fix their compensation in accordance with the provisions of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended; define their authority and duties; provide bonds for such of them as he may deem necessary; and delegate to them, and authorize successive redelegations by them, of such of the powers vested in him by this Act as he may determine;

[(e) conduct researches, surveys, and investigations relating to flood insurance and reinsurance and assemble data for the purpose of establishing estimated rates, fees, and premiums for flood insurance and reinsurance under this Act;

[(f) issue such rules and regulations as he deems necessary to carry out the purposes of this Act; and

[(g) exercise all powers specifically granted by the provisions of this Act and such incidental powers as are necessary to carry out the purposes of this Act.

[RESERVATION OF RIGHTS IN REAL ESTATE ACQUIRED

[SEC. 19. The acquisition by the Administrator of any real property pursuant to this Act shall not deprive any State or political subdivision thereof of its civil or criminal jurisdiction in and over such property or impair the civil rights under the State or local law of the inhabitants on such property.

[TAXATION

[SEC. 20. Nothing in this Act shall be construed to exempt any real property, acquired and held by the Administrator in connection with the payment of any claim under this Act, from taxation by any State or political subdivision thereof, to the same extent, according to its value, as other real property is taxed.

[ANNUAL REPORT

[SEC. 21. The annual report made by the Administrator to the President for submission to the Congress under existing law on all programs provided for under this Act shall contain a comprehensive report concerning (1) the operation of insurance, reinsurance, and loan programs authorized under this Act, and (2) the status and result of studies authorized under section 17 of this Act, together with such recommendations, if any, for legislative changes deemed by the Administrator desirable to improve the operation of programs authorized under this Act. The annual report for the calendar year ending December 31, 1958, shall contain a list of the States which can be expected to participate in the insurance program authorized by this Act after June 30, 1959. The annual report for the calendar year ending December 31, 1961, shall contain an express opinion of the Administrator, supported by pertinent findings, concerning the advisability of withdrawing in whole or in part Federal financial support for insurance policies to be issued at any time after June 30, 1962, offering protection as authorized in this Act, taking into consideration the desirability of offering such protection. Such opinion shall be accompanied by recommendations for legislative changes deemed desirable by the Administrator in the event the opinion is to the effect that any such withdrawal of financial support is advisable.

[(e) "Administrator" means the Housing and Home Finance Administrator.

[SEPARABILITY PROVISION

[SEC. 23. If any provision of this Act or the application of such provision to any person or circumstances shall be held invalid, the remainder of the Act and the application of such provision to any person or circumstance other than those as to which it is held invalid shall not be affected thereby.]

SECTION 5136 OF THE REVISED STATUTES

SEC. 5136. Upon duly making and filing articles of association and an organization certificate a national banking association shall become, as from the date of the execution of its organization certificate, a body corporate, and as such, and in the name designated in the organization certificate, it shall have power—

* * * * * * *

Seventh. To exercise by its board of directors or duly authorized officers or agents, subject to law, all such incidental powers as shall be necessary to carry on the business of banking; by discounting and negotiating promissory notes, drafts, bills of exchange, and other evidences of debt; by receiving deposits; by buying and selling exchange, coin, and bullion; by loaning money on personal security; and by obtaining, issuing, and circulating notes according to the provisions of this chapter. The business of dealing in securities and stock by the association shall be limited to purchasing and selling such securities and stock without recourse, solely upon the order, and for the account of, customers, and in no case for its own account, and the association shall not underwrite any issue of securities or stock: Provided, That the association may purchase for its own account investment securities under such limitations and restrictions as the Comptroller of the Currency may by regulation prescribe. In no event shall the total amount of the investment securities of any one obligor or maker, held by the association for its own account, exceed at any time 10 per centum of its capital stock actually paid in and unimpaired and 10 per centum of its unimpaired surplus fund, except that this limitation shall not require any association to dispose of any securities lawfully held by it on August 23, 1935. As used in this section the term "investment securities" shall mean marketable obligations, evidencing indebtedness of any person, copartnership, association, or corporation in the form of bonds, notes and/or debentures commonly known as investment securities under such further definition of the term "investment securities" as may by regulation be prescribed by the Comptroller of the Currency. Except as hereinafter provided or otherwise permitted by law, nothing herein contained shall authorize the purchase by the association for its own account of any shares of stock of any corporation. The limitations and restrictions herein contained as to dealing in, underwriting and purchasing for its own account, investment securities shall not apply to obligations of the United States, or general obligations of any State or of any political subdivision thereof, or obligations issued under authority of the Federal Farm Loan Act, as amended, or issued by the thirteen banks for cooperatives of any of them or the Federal Home Loan Banks or obligations which are insured by the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development under title XI of the National Housing Act, or obligations which are insured by the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development (hereafter in this sentence referred to as the "Secretary") pursuant to section 1713 of this title, if the debentures to be issued in payment of such insured obligations are guaranteed as to principal and interest by the United States, or obligations, participations, or other instruments of or issued by the Federal National Mortgage Association or the Government National Mortgage Association or such obligations of any local public agency (as defined in section 1460(h) of Title 42) as are secured by an agreement between the local public agency and the Secretary in which the local public agency agrees to borrow from said Secretary, and said Secretary agrees to lend to said local public agency, monies in an aggregate amount which (together with any other monies irrevocably committed to the payment of interest on such obligations) will suffice to pay, when due, the interest on and all installments (including the final installment) of the principal of such obligations, which monies under the terms of said agreement are required to be used for such payments, or such obligations of a public housing agency (as defined in the United States Housing Act of 1937, as amended) as are secured either (1) by an agreement between the public housing agency and the Secretary in which the public housing agency agrees to borrow from the Secretary, and the Secretary agrees to lend to the public housing agency, prior to the maturity of such obligations (which obligations shall have a maturity of not more than eighteen months), monies in an amount which (together with any other monies irrevocably committed to the payment of interest on such obligations) will suffice to pay the principal of such obligations with interest to maturity thereon, which monies under the terms of said agreement are required to be used for the purpose of paying the principal of and the interest on such obligations at their maturity, or (2) by a pledge of annual contributions under an annual contributions contract between such public housing agency and the Secretary if such contract shall contain the covenant by the Secretary which is authorized by section 1421a(b) of Title 42, and if the maximum sum and the maximum period specified in such contract pursuant to section 1421a(b) of Title 42 shall not be less than the annual amount and the period for payment which are requisite to provide for the payment when due of all installments of principal and interest on such obligations: Provided, That in carrying on the business commonly known as the safe-deposit business the association shall not invest in the capital stock of a corporation organized under the law of any State to conduct a safe-deposit business in an amount in excess of 15 per centum of the capital stock of the association actually paid in and unimpaired and 15 per centum of its unimpaired surplus. The limitations and restrictions herein contained as to dealing in and underwriting investment securities shall not apply to obligations issued by the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development, the Inter-American Development Bank, or the Asian Development Bank which are at the time eligible for purchase by a national bank for its own account, nor to bonds, notes and other obligations issued by the Tennessee Valley Authority: Provided, That no association shall hold obligations issued by any of said organizations as a result of underwriting, dealing, or purchasing for its own account (and for this purpose obligations as to which it is under commitment shall be deemed to be held by it) in a total amount exceeding at any one time 10 per centum of its capital stock actually paid in and unimpaired and 10 per centum of its unimpaired surplus fund. Notwithstanding any other provision in this paragraph, the association may purchase for its own account shares of stock issued by a corporation authorized to be created pursuant to title VIII of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968, and may make investments in a partnership, limited partnership, or joint venture formed pursuant to section 807(a) or 807(c) of that Act.

SEC. 12. (a) * * *

(b) Subject to such regulations as may be prescribed by the Board, one or more Federal home loan banks may acquire, hold, or dispose of, in whole or in part, or facilitate such acquisition, holding, or disposition, by members of any such bank of, housing project loans, or interests therein, having the benefit of any guaranty under section 221 of the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961, as now or hereafter in effect, or loans, or interests therein, having the benefit of any guaranty under section 224 of such Act, or any commitment or agreement with respect to such loans, or interests therein, made pursuant to either of such sections.

* * * * * * *

Sec. 16. Each Federal Home Loan Bank shall carry to a reserve account semiannually 20 per centum of its net earnings until said reserve account shall show a credit balance equal to 100 per centum of the paid-in capital of such bank. After said reserve has reached 100 per centum of the paid-in capital of said bank, 5 per centum of its net earnings shall be added thereto semiannually. Whenever said reserve shall have been impaired below 100 per centum of the paid-in capital it shall be restored before any dividends are paid. Each Federal Home Loan Bank shall establish such additional reserves and/or make such charge-offs on account of depreciation or impairment of its assets as the board shall require from time to time. No dividends shall be paid except out of net earnings remaining after all reserves and charge-offs required under this chapter have been provided for, and then only with the approval of the board. The reserves of each Federal Home Loan Bank shall be invested, subject to such regulations, restrictions, and limitations as may be prescribed by the board, in direct obligations of the United States, in obligations, participations, or other instruments of or issued by the Federal National Mortgage Association for the Government National Mortgage Association, and in such securities as fiduciary and trust funds may be invested in under the laws of the State in which the Federal Home Loan Bank is located.

SEC. 8. A Federal credit union shall have succession in its corporate name during its existence and shall have power—

* * * * * * *

(8) to invest its funds (A) in loans exclusively to members; (B) in obligations of the United States of America, or securities fully guaranteed as to principal and interest thereby; (C) in accordance with rules and regulations prescribed by the Director, in loans to other credit unions in the total amount not exceeding 25 per centum of its paid-in and unimpaired capital and surplus; (D) in shares or accounts of savings and loan associations or mutual savings banks, the accounts of which are insured by the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation or the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation; (E) in obligations issued by banks for cooperatives, Federal land banks, Federal intermediate credit banks, Federal home loan banks, the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, or any corporation designated in section 101 of the Government Corporation Control Act as a wholly owned Government coporation; or in obligations, participations, or other instruments of or issued by, or fully guaranteed as to principal and interest by, the Federal National Mortgage Association or the Government National Mortgage Association; or (F) in participation certificates evidencing beneficial interests in obligations, or in the right to receive interest and principal collections therefrom, which obligations have been subjected by one or more Government agencies, to a trust or trusts for which any executive department, agency, or instrumentality of the United States (or the head thereof) has been named to act as trustees;

APPALACHIAN REGIONAL DEVELOPMENT ACT OF 1965

ASSISTANCE FOR PLANNING AND OTHER PRELIMINARY EXPENSES OF PROPOSED HOUSING PROJECTS UNDER SECTION 221 AND SECTION 236 OF THE NATIONAL HOUSING ACT

SEC. 207. (a) In order to encourage and facilitate the construction or rehabilitation of housing to meet the needs of low- and moderate-income families and individuals, the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development (hereafter in this section referred to as the "Secretary") is authorized to make grants and loans from the Appalachian Housing Fund established by this section, under such terms and conditions as he may prescribe, to nonprofit, limited dividend, or cooperative organizations, or to public bodies, for expenses of planning and of obtaining an insured mortgage for a housing construction or rehabilitation project, under section 221 or section 236 of the National Housing Act (hereafter in this section referred to as "section 221" or "section 236"), in any area of the Appalachian region determined by the Commission to have significant potential for future growth.

(b) No grant under this section shall exceed 80 per centum of those administrative expenses, incident to planning a project and obtaining an insured mortgage under section 221 or section 236, which the Secretary considers not to be recoverable from the proceeds of a mortgage insured under such section: Provided, That no grant shall be made to an organization established for profit.

(c) No loan under this section shall exceed 80 per centum of the cost of planning a project and obtaining an insured mortgage under section 221 or section 236, including, but not limited to, preliminary surveys and analyses of market needs, preliminary site engineering and architectural fees, site options, Federal Housing Administration, Government National Mortgage Association, and Federal National Mortgage Association fees, and construction loan fees and discounts. Loans may be made without interest, or at any market or below market interest rate authorized for a mortgage insured under section 221 or section 236: Provided, That any loan made to an organization established for profit shall bear interest at the prevailing market rate authorized for a mortgage insured under such section. The Secretary may, except in the case of a loan to an organization established for profit, waive the repayment of all or any part of a loan made under this section, including interest, which he finds the borrower is unable to recover from the proceeds of a mortgage insured under section 221 or section 236.

(d) All funds allocated to the Secretary for the purposes of this section shall be deposited in a fund which shall be known as the Appalachian Housing Fund and shall be used as a revolving fund by the Secretary for carrying out such purposes. General expenses of administration of this section may be charged to the fund. Moneys in the fund not needed for current operation may be invested in bonds or other obligations guaranteed as to principal and interest by the United States.

(e) Not to exceed $5,000,000 of the funds authorized in section 401 of this Act for the two-fiscal-year period ending June 30, 1969, shall be available to carry out this section.

TITLE 38, UNITED STATES CODE

* * * * * * *

§ 1820. Powers of Administrator

* * * * * * *

(e)(1) The Administrator is authorized from time to time, as he determines advisable, to set aside first mortgage loans, and installment sale contracts, owned and held by him under this chapter as the basis for the sale of participation certificates as herein provided. For this purpose the Administrator may enter into agreements, including trust agreements, with the [Federal] Government National Mortgage Association, and any other Federal agency, under which the Association as fiduciary may sell certificates of participation based on principal and interest collections to be received by the Administrator and the Association or any other such agency on first mortgage loans and installment sale contracts comprising mortgage pools established by them. The agreement may provide for substitution or withdrawal of mortgage loans, or installment sale contracts, or for substitution of cash for mortgages in the pool. The agreement shall provide that the [Federal] Government National Mortgage Association shall promptly pay to the Administrator the entire proceeds of any sale of certificates of participation to the extent such certificates are based on mortgages, including installment sale contracts, set aside by the Administrator and he shall periodically pay to the Association, as fiduciary, such funds as are required for payment of interest and principal due on outstanding certificates of participation to the extent of the pro rata amount allocated to the Administrator pursuant to the agreement. The agreement shall also provide that the Administrator shall retain ownership of mortgage loans and installment sale contracts set aside by him pursuant to the agreement unless transfer of ownership to the fiduciary is required in the event of default or probable default in the payment of participation cetrificates. The Administrator is authorized to purchase outstanding certificates of participation to the extent of the amount of his commitment to the fiduciary on participations outstanding and to pay his proper share of the costs and expenses incurred by the [Federal] Government National Mortgage Association as fiduciary pursuant to the agreement.

FEDERAL SAVINGS AND LOAN ASSOCIATIONS

SEC. 5. (a) In order to provide local mutual thrift institutions in which people may invest their funds and in order to provide for the financing of homes, the Board is authorized, under such rules and regulations as it may prescribe, to provide for the organization, incorporation, examination, operation, and regulation of associations to be known as "Federal Savings and Loan Associations", and to issue charters therefor, giving primary consideration to the best practices of local mutual thrift and home-financing institutions in the United States.

[(b) Such associations shall raise their capital only in the form of payments on such shares as are authorized in their charter, which shares may be retired as is therein provided. No deposits shall be accepted and no certificates of indebtedness shall be issued except for such borrowed money as may be authorized by regulations of the Board.]

(b) (1) An association may raise capital in the form of such savings deposits, shares, or other accounts, for fixed, minimum, or indefinite periods of time (all of which are referred to in this section as savings accounts and all of which shall have the same priority upon liquidation) as are authorized by its charter or by regulations of the Board, and may issue such passbooks, time certificates of deposit, or other evidence of savings accounts as are so authorized. Holders of savings accounts and obligors of an association shall, to such extent as may be provided by its charter or by regulations of the Board, be members of the association, and shall have such voting rights and such other rights as are thereby provided. Except as may be otherwise authorized by the association's charter or regulation of the Board in the case of savings accounts for fixed or minimum terms of not less than thirty days, the payment of any savings account shall be subject to the right of the association to require such advance notice, not less than thirty days, as shall be provided for by the charter of the association or the regulations of the Board. The payment of withdrawals from savings accounts in the event an association does not pay all withdrawals in full (subject to the right of the association to require notice) shall be subject to such rules and procedures as may be prescribed by the association's charter or by regulation of the Board, but any association which, except as authorized in writing by the Board, fails to make full payment of any withdrawal when due shall be deemed to be in an unsafe or unsound condition to transact business within the meaning of subsection (d) of this section. Savings accounts shall not be subject to check or to withdrawal or transfer on negotiable or transferable order or authorization to the association, but the Board may by regulation provide for withdrawal or transfer of savings accounts upon nontransferable order or authorization.

(2) To such extent as the Board may authorize by regulation or advice in writing, an association may borrow, may give security, and may issue such notes, bonds, debentures, or other obligations, or other securities (except capital stock) as the Board may so authorize.

(c) Such associations shall lend their funds only on the security of their [shares] savings accounts or securities or on the security of first liens upon real property within one hundred miles of their home office which constitute first liens upon homes, combinations of homes and business property, other dwelling units, or combinations of dwelling units, including homes, and business property involving only minor or incidental business use (all of which may be defined by the Board): Provided, That not more than $40,000 for each single-family dwelling, and not more than such amount per room as the Board may determine by regulation within the limits allowable (at the time of the loan) in section 207(c)(3) of the National Housing Act for any other dwelling unit covered by such lien shall be loaned on the security of any such lien, and the Board shall by regulation limit to not more than 15 per centum of the assets of the association the aggregate amount or amounts of the investments which may be made by an association under the foregoing provisions of this sentence on the security of property which comprises or includes more than four dwelling units or does not constitute homes or combinations of homes and business property; except that not exceeding 20 per centum of the assets of such association may be loaned on the security of first liens upon improved real estate without regard to the foregoing limitations, and additional sums not exceeding 20 per centum of the assets of an association may be used without regard to such area restriction for the making or purchase of participating interests in first liens on real property of the type described in this sentence in the matter preceding this proviso: And provided further, That any portion of the assets of such associations may be invested in obligations of, or fully guaranteed as to principal and interest by, the United States, or in the stock or bonds of a Federal Home Loan Bank, or in obligations, participations, or other instruments of or issued by, or fully guaranteed as to principal and interest by, the Federal National Mortgage Association or the Government National Mortgage Association, or any other agency of the United States or the stock of the Federal National Mortgage Association; or in time deposits, certificates, or accounts of any bank the deposits of which are insured by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation; or in general obligations of any State or of any political subdivision thereof; and as used in this proviso the term "State" shall include the District of Columbia, the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, and the possessions of the United States: And provided further, That any such association which is converted from a State-chartered institution may continue to make loans in the territory in which it made loans while operating under State charter. In addition to the loans and investments otherwise authorized, such associations may purchase, subject to all the provisions of this paragraph except the area restriction, loans secured by first liens on improved real estate which are insured under the provisions of the National Housing Act, as amended, or insured as provided in the Servicemen's Readjustment Act of 1944, as amended, or chapter 37 of title 38, United States Code. Structures or parts thereof designed or used as fraternity or sorority houses which include sleeping accommodations for students of a college or university, or designed or used principally for the provision of living accommodations for persons who are students, employees, or members of the staff of a college, university, or hospital, shall be considered, subject to such regulations as the Board may prescribe, "other dwelling units" for the purposes of this subsection.

* * * * * * *

Without regard to any other provision of this subsection, any such association may make and invest in any loan not exceeding $5,000—

(A) for the repair, equipping, alteration, or improvement of any real property, including the construction of new structures related to residential use of the property, or

(B) for the purpose of mobile home financing, subject to such prohibitions, limitations, and conditions as the Board may by regulation prescribe.

* * * * * * *

Without regard to any other provision of this subsection, any such association may, to such extent as the Federal Home Loan Bank Board may by regulation permit, invest in loans, and interests in loans, (1) secured by mortgages as to which the association has the benefit of insurance under title X of the National Housing Act or of a commitment or agreement for such insurance, or (2) guaranteed by the President under section 224 of the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961, as amended. Investments under clause (1) of this paragraph shall not be included in any percentage of assets or other percentage referred to in this subsection. Investments under clause (2) of this paragraph shall not exceed, in the case of any association, 1 per centum of the assets of such association.

Notwithstanding any other provision of this subsection, an association may invest in loans or obligations, or interests therein, as to which the association has the benefit of insurance under section 240 of the National Housing Act, or of a commitment or agreement therefor, and such investments shall not be included in any percentage of assets or other percentage referred to in this subsection.

No building and loan association incorporated under the laws of the District of Columbia or organized in such District or doing business in such District shall establish any branch or move its principal office or any branch without the prior written approval of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, and no other building and loan association shall establish any branch in such District or move its principal office or any branch in such District without such approval. As used in the sentence next preceding, "branch" means any office, place of business, or facility, other than the principal office as defined by the Board, of a building and loan association at which accounts are opened or payments thereon are received or withdrawals therefrom are paid, or any other office, place of business, or facility of a building and loan association defined by the Board as a branch within the meaning of such sentence, and as used in such sentence and in this sentence "building and loan association" means any incorporated or unincorporated building, building or loan, building and loan, savings and loan, or homestead association or cooperative bank.

Any such association may invest in loans, or interests in loans secured by loans, obligations, or investments in which it has any statutory authority to invest directly.

(d) (1) The Board shall have power to enforce this section and rules and regulations made hereunder. In the enforcement of any provision of this section or rules and regulations made hereunder, or any other law or regulation, or in any other action, suit, or proceeding to which it is a party or in which it is interested, and in the administration of conservatorships and receiverships, the Board is authorized to act in its own name and through its own attorneys. Except as otherwise provided herein, the Board shall be subject to suit (other than suits on claims for money damages) by any Federal savings and loan association or director or officer thereof with respect to any matter under this section or any other applicable law, or rules or regulations thereunder, in the United States district court for the judicial district in which the home office of the association is located, or in the United States District Court for the District of Columbia, and the Board may be served with process in the manner prescribed by the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure.

MINORITY VIEWS

The minority joins in reporting of H.R. 17989 because it believes that this bill, of 280 pages and over 200 sections and subsections, deserves the fullest and frankest discussion possible. The proposed legislation calls for over $5 billion in authorizations to be committed largely by the end of fiscal year 1970 and expands hugely the power of the Secretary of the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

A major attack on the problems of the poor in the field of housing is one which the minority believes should be made. We do not, however, believe it should be made if the various concepts of the operation are not backed by sufficient specifics to insure its success. To date, the proposals of the administration are only promises. The administration's performance has not lived up to such promises in recent years and we object to any "brave" new programs, whether borrowed or dreamed, when they amount to a cruel hoax on the very section of the public which they are supposed to serve. It is time we stopped promising a brighter tomorrow when we cannot produce a streetlight today.

We do not agree with the fulsome statement of the majority that the bill presented to the Congress carries provisions that perfect nearly every one of our existing programs in this field and that it contains a number of imaginative new approaches.

Undeniably the bill is big.

Parts of it are also bad.

Too many of our existing housing programs are the result of budgetary gimickry. In order to reduce the impact of a program on the present administration's budget, the costs are spread over as many as 40 years. This may be good public relations and good politics but it is bad economics. It increases substantially the financing costs of housing obtained under the program. It misleads the public as to the true cost of the program with only one-fortieth of the cost showing in the first year, but thirty-nine fortieths hidden in the future—much worse than a hidden iceberg and potentially more dangerous to our future fiscal stability. Rent supplement is a case in point.

We can endorse the attempt to establish means of extending home ownership to the Nation's poor. We deplore the fact that a praiseworthy attempt to enlist private enterprise should be perverted, once again, into a raid on the Federal Treasury in a time of financial crisis and made an excuse to once more expand the Federal housing bureaucracy.

We question the setting up of a separate high-risk mortgage insurance fund apart from the normal operations of FHA, but believe that the statement on page 12 of the report that the fund "would not be intended to be actuarially sound" carries with it its own indictment.

We, also, endorse the setting up of a National Homeownership Foundation, but think that in providing interest-free loans to nonprofit housing sponsors to cover preconstruction expenses, the administration should have also placed some limit on salaries and expenses of those same nonprofit sponsors.

We endorse the new plans for an alternative form of urban renewal, since one of the difficulties of the existing program is that it attempts too much too soon. We do think that since only 12-month increments will be now attempted, some adjustment might well be made in the request for mammoth appropriations currently requested, particularly since HUD has had difficulty moving the funds appropriated into activity.

We applaud the emphasis in mass transit and particularly the means taken to implement the raising of the non-Federal share.

We believe the return of the Federal National Mortgage Association to private control and management is long overdue, and endorse the retention of FNMA's special assistance and management and liquidation functions into a new setup—the Government National Mortgage Association.

We believe that the new urban riot and flood insurance programs are matters of urgent priority. We regret that due to the administration's deficit funding policies, it is necessary to propose these programs be supported, when catastrophe strikes, by Treasury borrowing.

We are disturbed that there is no limit on the Government's liability. Particularly since the Government's responsibility in the case of any nuclear incident is limited to $500 million under the Price-Anderson Act. We think there should be flexible liability limits based on a formula which would encompass geographic location, population density, and the amount of existing liabilities underwritten by the insurance agencies.

The new program of mortgage insurance for nonprofit hospitals, proposed by both the chairman of the committee and the minority leader of the House we believe to be a proposal most worthwhile and a fit companion to the medical facilities and nursing home legislation already on the statute books. Since the legislation now provides for the inclusion of equipment in the mortgage, we question whether the mortgage should be for a term of years in excess of what would be considered the useful life of the equipment included. We also believe that some ratio should be established between the cost of the equipment and that of the housing as in this instance the real estate's worth could conceivably be far less than that of the equipment.

We think the expansion of the water and sewer program, as recommended by the chairman of the committee and the ranking minority member, Mr. Widnall, is something that is long overdue. When there is a backlog of billions in applications, when it is a question in some instances of whether or not a town's inhabitants have to import water to drink, we think the Congress should expand a program that is in demand in every congressional district in the country. We think this should be done despite the Secretary of HUD's attempt to place a low priority on its authorizations and appropriations. We deplore the administration's failure in recent years to seek full appropriations for this program when the public demand was 20 times the authorization. Disagreements in this field between the Congress and the administration are fundamental.

The foregoing is placed in the record to indicate that there is much in H.R. 17989 that the undersigned can and will support. It is completely logical that we should do so.

It is, however, completely illogical to expect this Congress to pass a tax increase amounting to $10 billion, coupling that action to a $6 billion cut in governmental expenditures, and 2 weeks later pass authorizations for increased expenditures amounting to close to $6 billion. Yet this is what this bill would have us do. This measure is being ballyhooed as an administrative legislative accomplishment, but the executive cannot have it both ways.

The President cannot both applaud the Congress' action in levying the increased taxes and call for the expansion of programs that have failed of their goals without at the same time defying the sensibilities of the national legislature. And neither he nor his legislative leaders can overlook, nor justify a lack of performance on the part of the Department of Housing and Urban Development and call for more of the same at greater cost. Yet he, and his supporters are attempting that impossibility.

In this time of financial crisis, when the Congress has just enacted a tax bill increasing the burdens of its taxpaying citizens by $5 billion for the remainder of 1968, the administration has forced through the Banking and Currency Committee, a bill calling for new expenditures of $5 billion plus covering the next 3 years. This inflationary policy also has the effect of almost completely diluting the $6 billion cut in expenditures which the Congress—in the name of fiscal sanity—forced the executive branch to make as its price for producing the dollars necessary if the budget was not to get completely out of hand.

The administration attempts to justify this additional gigantic and multimillion dollar expenditure on the grounds that it is for "poor people". It is not. The entire subsidy, which runs to the payment of interest down to 1 percent, goes not to the hopeful low-income wage earner, but to the lending institution holding the mortgage, the mortgagee, not the mortgagor. The homeowner's equity will not be increased by so much as a red cent. Furthermore, that equity will build up so slowly under the administration's plan that at the end of 15 or 20 years, it will be barely enough to cover the additional expense of major maintenance repairs and replacement logically becoming necessary at that time.

And for this, if this bill is enacted, the Department of Housing and Urban Development will be paying an average of $1,000 per unit annually to enable an estimated 300,000 to 500,000 low income families to become homeowners in the next 3 fiscal years. If the record of HUD achievement in its much touted rent supplement (1965) and the demonstration cities (1966) programs are any measure of its home producing abilities, HUD will fall far short of its ambitions. It has locked up $42 million in rent supplement funds for which it must continue paying for 40 years and has produced only 2,526 homes to date, two-thirds of which were already in existence when funded.

Further, almost 2 years after HUD's first receipt of authorizations and appropriations, it has yet to make its first grant in the demonstration city program, one that has consistently been oversold and underfunded, not to mention distorted out of its original concept and image.

A number of Congressmen following the initiative of Congressman Widnall and Senator Percy introduced a proposal of homeownership for the low- and moderate-income wage earners in 1967. The legislation proposed contained the framework, income levels, eligibility both of property and prospective homeowners, loan terms, the amount of Federal financial assistance, et cetera, that have been modified by HUD for the political purpose of capturing the impetus which the Widnall-Percy proposals generated. The administration device is more expensive, filled with Federal controls that necessitate the hiring of hundreds of additional bureaucrats, at a time when we have passed legislation requiring a reduction in Federal personnel to the levels of 1966, but the gilt edged with the promise of hundreds of thousands of homes which HUD says it can produce.

There is nothing in the Department's record that indicates this as a possibility that can be realized. What private enterprise might accomplish, the dead hand of bureaucracy will, expensively, burden.

Unfilled expectations of the rent supplement and demonstration city programs have led to the growing conclusion that these previously much-heralded devices have been oversold and underfunded. We believe this has contributed materially to the discontent that has manifested itself in the streets of the Nation, in its communities, in its city councils, and even at the level of its State governments. Consequently, we agree with the statement of the majority, made as a result of a motion by Mrs. Dwyer unanimously adopted by the committee, found on page 4 of the report, which expressed the sense of the committee as follows and which we, therefore, repeat:

> In reference to the several programs administered by the Department of Housing and Urban Development, including those which would be extended by the bill, the committee desires to call attention to the continuing dissatisfaction within the Congress and outside, the Department's apparent inability to do a more effective job of administration and coordination.
>
> The committee's hearings reveal considerable evidence of failures in program management: excessive redtape, extensive delays in processing applications, inordinately cumbersome and complicated procedural requirements.
>
> The committee strongly urges, and will expect, the Department to redouble its efforts to correct these inadequacies, to achieve a greater degree of uniformity and standardization in program requirements, to simplify procedures, to expedite the consideration of proposed projects, to provide more useful and specific assistance to communities, organizations, and individuals seeking to utilize the programs, and to enable potential beneficiaries to adapt programs more specifically to their individual needs.
>
> The committee is concerned that, in the absence of more effective efforts to eliminate these problems, the various programs we have enacted will tend to benefit exclusively those communities and groups which can afford to employ high-priced staffs and consultants whose expertise gives them a disproportionate advantage over other applicants in availing themselves of Federal assistance.
>
> At a time when limited resources and compelling needs combine to increase competition for available Federal help, the committee believes the Department must take extraordinary measures to assure both equitable treatment of applicants and the maximum effectiveness, in terms of visible results, of its programs.

A good example of the need to simplify programs is the Federal Housing Administration. For 34 years, one FHA program has been tacked onto another until now there is such a maze of overlapping and complicated programs—some economically sound, others not—that only a handful of experts have a thorough knowledge of them. Even FHA employees in local offices have often only a fragmentary knowledge of all the different programs.

Certainly this mass of duplicating programs should be simplified so that they are understandable. We call upon the Department of Housing and Urban Development to send to this committee no later than January of 1969 legislation that would eliminate the existing duplications and reduce them to concise programs for single-family and multifamily housing, rental or sales, subsidized or unsubsidized.

We would also agree with the majority that the greatest single housing need of our Nation is decent, safe, and sanitary housing for our low-income citizens. As the minority has maintained for some time, this need will be best fulfilled by the principles inherent in homeownership and serviced by private enterprise. We intend to assist the attainment of the goal of homeownership wherever possible within reason.

We do not believe it reasonable to reach that goal if we adopt ground rules which include subsidization of 70 percent of the families of the Nation. Yet that is possible under the bill reported out by the Committee. Attempts to limit the number of families eligible to be subsidized failed in the House committee considering the legislation despite the fact that it is absurd to subsidize a potential 70 percent of the housing of the families living in this Nation.

In the course of the last few years, the administration has incessantly propagandized its desire to help the poor, even while proposing programs that will, at least in part, subsidize a select but by no means poor strata of American society. Anyone who so desires may turn to page 21 of this report and see, in black and white, how this administration proposes to give $66.83 a month subsidies to families making $7,600 a year so that they can live in apartments with a fair market rental charge of $194.42 a month. So long as the Federal Government indulges itself in this kind of gimmickry—and we believe it represents a desire of something other than helping the genuine poor—the expectancy gap between low-income housing promise and low-income housing construction will continue to grow. This sort of deceptive and wasteful housing program is the stuff of which false hopes, broken dreams, and bloody streets are fashioned. Title II of this bill is another thread in the fabric of failure to realistically deal with the Nation's low-income housing needs.

The Census Bureau, in its population survey of March 1967, showed the following median income breakdown for the 48.9 million families in the United States for 1966:

Annual income	Families	Percentage of total
Under $3,000	7,000,000	14
$3,000 to $5,000	6,800,000	14
$5,000 to $7,000	8,700,000	18
$7,000 to $10,000	11,900,000	24
$10,000 and up	14,500,000	30
Total	48,900,000	100

Note: Median income of all families, $7,400.

The above income breakdown shows that if Government-assisted housing programs are confined to families with annual incomes of $5,000 and under, as we generally believe they should be, a maximum of 28 percent of our families would possibly be eligible for such assistance.

If families making up to $7,000, close to the national median income level, are given such assistance, then 46 percent of all American families, supposedly incapable of providing for their own housing needs without Government assistance, will be subsidized.

Testimony delivered to the Senate committee during its hearings showed the quality of American housing by increments of income as follows:

Annual income	Standard units	Substandard units
Under $4,000	13,558,060	6,333,848
$4,000 to $8,000	18,991,396	1,827,169
$8,000 and over	12,000,715	312,683

This illustration would serve to show that 75 percent of substandard homes are occupied by families with income of $4,000 or less.

To us, this indicates that those families with incomes of $5,000 and under occupy most of the Nation's substandard housing. This is the income range upon which Government assistance should be concentrated. If it is not, the new lower income housing programs created in this bill will end up benefiting families who can reasonably be deemed capable of providing for themselves to the detriment of those families who truly need such assistance.

Many of our Nation's families have incomes so low that they could not be expected to bear the responsibilities and obligations of homeownership, even with Government assistance. This new program if enacted, however, should be so oriented as to reach down to the lowest income levels possible and benefit those in truly needy and deserving circumstances. It has been stated that the bill's eligibility formula will generally cover families with incomes from $3,000 to $7,000. But it is possible under the proposed legislation to aid families with incomes of $10,000. HUD proposes to do this. It has its mind on the large cities of the Nation.

Contrary to popular opinion, most of the country's substandard housing is located not in the deteriorated slum neighborhoods of our major cities, but in rural areas or small towns. Dr. Weaver, in answering to a question from Congressman Reuss, has stated that:

> In 1960, over 52 percent of the dilapidated units were in rural open country or in small towns under 2,500 population; 64 percent of the nondilapidated housing units that were deficient in plumbing facilities were also found in such localities. Conversely, only 23 percent of all the dilapidated housing in the United States was located in cities over 50,000 population—which make up the predominant part of our standard metropolitan statistical areas; and only 21 percent of the nondilapidated units that had plumbing deficiencies were in such cities. These figures show that the bulk of American's substandard housing is concentrated primarily in our smaller urban and rural areas.

Be that as it may, a survey of the President's Commission on Civil Disorders, covering 20 cities, showed that the median income of white families in the disturbed areas which experienced riots during 1967 was $5,335; $4,218 in the case of nonwhite families.

These are the families most liable to benefit from the values of homes that are decent, safe, and sanitary. They number almost 14 million and are more than enough to keep all of HUD's bureaucrats busy for the next decade and thereafter. HUD has been talking in terms of 6 million units in the next decade. Yet HUD has insisted that the program be sufficiently flexible to enable them to extend their assistance to families earning up to $10,000 a year which would encompass 70 percent of all families in the Nation, or some 34 million families.

Costs in such cases could be catastrophic. Far beyond not only HUD's power, but the economy of the Nation as well.

The administration has indicated that their present proposals are part and parcel of an ambitious plan to provide 6 million units of low- and moderate-income housing within the next decade. This stepped up production of housing means that the Government would, by subsidization produce on the average, 10 times what it has produced in this field in its best year to date. It also means a considerable competition with private enterprise for financing, labor, and materials. The private sector, of course, would be bound by the laws of economics which the administration would hope to disregard.

This, however, was not enough for the President's Commission on Civil Disorders, the so-called Kerner Commission. This body called for the 6 million units of housing to be produced in 5 years, at an average rate of 1.2 million housing units a year for 5 years. What this would do to the national economy in general, and the national housing industry in particular was reviewed at length by the Department of Housing and Urban Development, the testimony being filed with the Senate Committee.

The general thesis is that if it should be attempted to do in 5 years what the administration is recommending be done in 10 years the effect would be chaotic and damaging to the national economy.

Attempts, however, to complete 6 million units in either period of time would be self-defeating and damaging. There would be a sharp rise in prices. The salary rates paid to construction workers and engineers would rise accordingly and a disportionate amount of overtime work and salary compenation would occur. There is now not enough trained personnel to complete such a task and time is not available for training of the additional manpower that would be necessary.

With all reverence to past experience, it is likely that there would be a shortage of mortgage funds available for new housing, such as was experienced in the 1966–67 tight money crisis. Municipal security interest rates would rise as a result of the great increase in public housing bond issues.

Consideration also needs to be given to the housing market. Housing construction costs, labor costs, and mortgage costs will necessarily drive the cost of buying new homes up. Since the salaries of prospective buyers and renters will not have increased proportionately, the demand for housing will be much less and, therefore low- and moderate-income families will not be able for financial reasons to take advantage of the homes being built for them, even with subsidy.

Difficulties besetting the building industry and the availability of land sites would also deter the success of either the 5- or 10-year program.

There are seven major industry difficulties. In detail:

(1) Relationship to the GNP—In the past 2 years new housing unit construction account for only about 2½ percent of the GNP. Under the proposed production schedule, a comparable measurement would range from 3.3 percent in fiscal 1969 to 4.4 percent in 1973, reaching almost 5.1 percent by 1978. The economy is not flexible enough for this.

(2) Building industry capacity—The building industry might, with difficulty, handle the increased construction provided an easy mortgage and money market. But to guarantee such easy capital, considering the squeeze of the recent tight money period, would be ridiculous. The Department of Houssing and Urban Development feels that increasingly the rate of new starts—now 1,566,000—to 1,650,000 plus 50,000 public assistance rehabilitation units will not be difficult. However an 18-percent expansion of this rate has to occur in 1970 under the proposed 10-year program and a 26-percent expansion under a 5-year program. HUD's record is not reassuring.

(3) Availability of building sites—Land is available but can it be readied, as would be necessary for 6 million units in the next 5 or 10 years.

(4) Potential construction cost effects—If the annual housing starts were to increase by 20 percent in a year, proportionately other costs would rise. The prices of construction materials in such heavy demand would surely increase, likewise workers' salaries and with them the materials costs. There would be competition in the labor market. Overtime pay would hit an alltime high as construction deadlines neared.

Architects, engineers, management associations, realtors and other professional personnel connected with the housing field would command higher wages. Altogether, there would be a severe shortage in the housing manpower field leaving no replenishing force of people to train replacements.

(5) Materials availability—While the supply of building materials will not be exhausted, but obviously, the prices will go up, cheaper quality will be used.

(6) Manpower availability—On-site manpower requirements would increase from 1.1 million currently to 2.3 million by 1978. These additional personnel can be trained by the time they are needed, HUD feels, but not for a 5-year program. Their 10-year program by the same reasoning does not fare much better. Says Hud:

> It does not appear possible to more than double the labor resources for new housing construction in about 5 years, given the training periods that are required and the competition for new entrants to the labor force in a practically full employment economy.

(7) Mortgage money availability—There is not much of a question about the availability of mortgage money—while it lasts. Municipal securities will feel the press and the rates will increase accordingly.

There would be a decrease of bond sales for other urban public improvements. Although the administration's request for 6 million units—federally assisted—in the next 10 years is far more feasible than the Kerner Commission's request for a 5-year plan, neither can be realized without many more years of careful planning, spending, and coordination with current housing and rehabilitation efforts.

The committee, as did its counterpart in the Senate, cut back the suggestion of HUD that its annual support funds for public housing be increased $800 million, authorizing but half that sum—$400 million. When all increments are added the Congress, if this legislation is passed, will have authorized supporting public housing with a total annual subsidy of $950 plus million, just short of a billion dollars every year.

This is in keeping with the greatly expanded housing program which the administration proposes. It is not in keeping with the administration's performance. HUD's contribution to the total supply of public housing units has been inadequate, inept, and inefficient, totaling barely 30,000 units annually or below in the early sixties. Able to support public housing by subsidy at the present time by more than $500 million annually, actual support expenditures are less than $300 million according to the last available figures.

Another matter that has generally been overlooked in the public housing program is that the first of the 40-year public housing bonds will be completely paid off in 1981, with the bond retirement picking up an increasing tempo thereafter. Congress has not, however, made any provision for a corresponding reduction in the amount of funds that remain available for the support of the program. Congress should face up to the fact that by the turn of the century they will have created a revolving fund to which they are obligated but over which they have minimal control.

At a time when actual, available support of the program is about twice what is needed for amortization, it would seem to us that an increased funding is not needed in the amounts that the administration is requesting. The provision of units of the project type still moves slowly. Only the Republican rent certificate leasing program has shown any swiftness of operation, far outstripping the expectation of the HUD bureaucrats who opposed its enactment. Today, the leasing program is housing over 60,000 people, about seven times or more the number of the much touted rent supplement program, and at less cost per unit. The hoped for advancement of the turnkey program still shows only 3,878 units in operation. And in face of this, HUD wishes authorization annually of an additional half billion dollars and more for public housing.

The dissatisfaction with project public housing operations in the large cities is revealed in amendments adopted in committee which prohibit, without waiver by the Secretary, of the use of high-rise buildings for families with children; increases the amount of subsidy for large families and those with unusually low incomes—the latter, incidentally, being open end and without limit—the provision for the sale of public housing units to the tenants if they so desire. With these dissatisfactions manifesting themselves amongst supporters of the program and even within HUD itself, the wisdom of doubling the present support authorization appears increasingly doubtful. Obviously, both the Congress and the Executive are searching for a better program. Why then propose to double the operation of a program that is unsatisfactory even to its sponsors?

Section 204 would authorize the Secretary of HUD to make grants to local housing authorities to assist them where necessary in upgrading their management activities and in providing tenant services. The language contained on page 67 of the bill, defining tenant services, will create wholesale envy among those paying economic rent on apartments or homes. It provides "counseling on household management, housekeeping, budgeting, money management, child care, and similar matters; advice as to resources for job training and placement, education, welfare, health, and other community services; services which are directly related to meeting tenant needs and providing a wholesome living environment, including intertenant activities; and referral to appropriate agencies when necessary for the provision of such services." There are authorized for this purpose $20 million for fiscal 1969 and $40 million for 1970. The sums will doubtless grow, if the legislation is enacted.

Regardless of the sums involved, this (204) title involves HUD in sociological work heretofore performed by local and State agencies, both private and public. The assumption of this responsibility by a Federal agency can only cause local responsibility to atrophy—and ultimately die. This to us represents an assault upon the strengths of local government, not its weakness.

This is a radical departure from the present public housing concept which limits the Federal Government's contribution to the amortization of the bonds by which funds are raised to construct public housing. It has up to now been the position that tenant services and management activities, that is salaries of local housing authority personnel, were a local responsibility to come either from rents paid, or community or State funds. At present, the Federal Government, desperate itself for money, is paying 90 percent of the cost of construction of public housing units as exemplified in the amortization of public housing bonds, close to 100 percent of the amortization in the major cities where it operates. It is now being asked to open the door to obligate itself for increasing costs in the management and service field. In a time of fiscal difficulty, this proposal would seem better directed to the States or localities, the latter being the recipient of 10 percent of all rents collected.

The 312 rehabilitation program is one which makes 3-percent residential loans up to $10,000, and business loans up to $50,000 in urban renewal and code enforcement areas. These loans are made to individuals who have not been able to obtain them otherwise. The program has stepped up the rehabilitation program considerably since being introduced as legislation in 1964 by the ranking minority member.

Mr. WIDNALL. Its expansion poses a series of problems. It is hard to go to the edge of a urban renewal or code enforcement area, stop there, and refuse to make loans to individuals across the street and outside the areas concerned, on property that needs rehabilitation just as much as do the properties within those areas.

H.R. 17989, however, is wide open on this point. Any property which is certified locally to the Secretary as being within an area having a substantial number of properties in need of rehabilitation is eligible.

This seems to be most subject to abuse. We do not even think that the Secretary could conceive of regulations that would protect any decision made by his subordinates that would protect him in this area from the charge that his authority has been misused.

We acknowledge the need to do something, but since the authorization is open ended, and since abuses of what has been a most successful program are now quite within the realm of possibility, we recommend the addition of safeguards.

We are also most concerned with the provision of up to $40 million in any fiscal year for interim assistance for blighted areas prior to the execution of urban renewal contracts. These programs would include:

"(1) the repair of streets, sidewalks, parks, playgrounds, publicly owned utilities, and public buildings to meet needs consistent with the short-term continued use of the area prior to the undertaking of the contemplated clearance or upgrading activities;

"(2) the improvement of private properties to the extent needed to eliminate the most immediate dangers to public health and safety;

"(3) the demolition of structures determined to be structually unsound or unfit for human habitation and which constitute a public nuisance and serious hazard to the public health and safety;

"(4) the establishment of temporary public playgrounds on vacant land within the area; and

"(5) the improvement of garbage and trash collection, street cleaning, and similar activities."

These activities are all needed and praiseworthy. They are also very much the business of the local community. We think this is a further encroachment by the Federal Government on activities of local government. If the Federal Government is going to pay for these rehabilitation functions the Federal Government is also going to rule them. We think the precedent is bad and should not be established.

Title V, particularly section 501, is concerned with planning, particularly that for rural communities, but would also produce another layer of planning for a variety of town, city, and area operations now existing. It is a thin rewrite of legislation first proposed in the 89th Congress. At that time, the House Agriculture Committee, narrowly reported the measure and the committee's minority had this to say about what was proposed:

> It is unnecessary and would duplicate other Federal, State, and local planning activities;
>
> It would create still more bureaucracy in the Department of Agriculture;
>
> It represents a further and unwarranted intrusion upon a responsibility that more properly should be exercised by State and local governments;
>
> It would reverse the action taken by the House Appropriations Committee and the House itself earlier this year;
>
> It is inflationary legislation that should be postponed during the critical wartime period.

The proposal did not become law and was hastily withdrawn when presented for debate.

The passage of time has only made more factual what the House Agricultural Committee's minority had to say at the time the planning feature was first proposed, leaving aside questions of jurisdiction.

The fact is that what is proposed is still another unnecessary intrusion of the Federal bureaucracy into rural, suburban, and community affairs. It would add still another layer of Government activity onto the too many layers already existing. Planning groups that have spent long hours to successfully achieve coordination would but find still another bureaucratic hurdle to negotiate before final approval. There would be still more raids into the already short supply of planners, a further escalation in salaries and Government costs. And for what? Better coordination? More assistance? We doubt it.

In the miscellaneous title, the first section is concerned with obtaining $1 billion for the model cities program. Regardless of the size of this mammoth sum, it represents underfunding of the costs of the demonstration cities program, now misnamed the model cities program for semantic reasons.

In 1966 the 15 mayors testifying before the Housing Subcommittee stated their collective needs at $11 billion. The Department of HUD has since advanced planning funds, with assurances of total funding, to 75 cities, advised that it expects to do as much for as many more cities. HUD has also now belatedly come to the realization of its need for specially earmarked urban renewal money and has upped its fund requests to include currently $350 million in addition to the $1 billion previously mentioned. The program is still underfunded—and oversold—and slow. One of the chief arguments for the enactment of its legislation originally was ironically to be its speed of operation.

HUD has funds for planning and took a year to release the first of them. It had its appropriation grants for several months and has yet to make its first to any city, although it promises to do so this summer and has released some urban renewal funds in advance of the approval of final city plans. The Congress still does not know what those plans are—how innovative they might be, as was promised—if they are grounded in economic soundness or unproved social theory—if they have lived up to the promises made by HUD for them or not.

Congress has in effect written several blank checks for this program. We do not see why it should continue to do so in the absence of knowledge as to just what is being done, and with the hopes for the program as presently constituted in such disarray. We do not quarrel with the concept of the program. We do believe that its specifics are lacking, perhaps fading into bureaucratic disrepair.

As to the making of urban renewal grants to other than public bodies, specifically nonprofit organizations, we believe that these organizations should make a better case for the granting of $20 million. We are worried that the flexible tool will become too flexible, so much so that it will resemble a boondoggle.

The granting of funds, an additional $20 million for "urban information and technical assistance services" we regard as a means of propagandizing the ways that cities and their planners may obtain Federal funds. We think it should stop.

The request for the authorization as to advances in technology in housing and urban development we do not believe should be open-ended until we have had a chance to see the results of what HUD has accomplished to date.

As far as section 1408 is concerned, we do not feel that an Assistant Secretary for Research and Technology in HUD is warranted, or has been justified by the administration. This stand is based upon two facts: The research efforts by the Department to date and the manner they are being carried out do not qualify the office for such an upgrading in status and the creation of another Secretary in the Department simply adds another layer of unneeded bureaucracy.

One of the administration's main arguments for creation of the Department at the Secretarial level was the sprawl and the overcrusted hierarchy which rendered ineffective the old Housing and Home Finance Agency. Yet the Department was barely launched with a full complement of executives before the administration comes back to the Congress with a request for more high paid officials to enlarge its web of bureaucracy, spread the confusion, and increase the costs.

In the act which created the Department, the Congress authorized five assistant secretaries. Already this year another assistant secretary has been added to carry out the Department's open housing under the Civil Rights Act of 1968. In the bill now before the Congress there is created in the Department a National Insurance Development Corporation with an executive director. This would be an appointment by the President, with the advice and consent of the Senate and would be equal to the rating of an assistant secretary. So, in effect, we are authorizing two new assistant secretaries for the Department to make a total of eight assistant secretaries for HUD, which was created as recently as November 9, 1965. In contrast is the staid old Treasury Department, still managing to get by with only five assistant secretaries.

More to the point is whether HUD's research efforts justify an assistant secretary? Not by any stretch of the imagination. The Department's research budget was jumped by the Congress from $1½ million annually to $10 million this fiscal year. HUD's officials, however did not spend the $10 million appropriated and are now seeking in this very bill to extend the authority to spend or commit the money between June 30 and the end of the next fiscal year. Obviously, they had few or no plans for real research. In addition the manner in which the office is currently administered does not inspire any outburst of confidence. Its accomplishments, if any, are shrouded in a pentagon-like air of secrecy which characterize its day-to-day operations.

Its one meager undertaking as far as we can determine is the "in-city" experimental housing research program for which bids were sought, with little notice, from a selected group of firms which are largely defense industry oriented. The traditional housing groups got shortshrift or were ignored all together. We do not even know how this experiment is developing because no program reports have been made on it. If the much desired assistant secretaries sole purpose is to sublet research to newly created firms, it all adds up to a lack of need for another assistant secretary.

We can agree with two out of three proposals made in section 1409 regarding international housing. We do not think the Secretary should be empowered to employ private persons to attend international meetings. Surely, in the thousands of HUD employees there are those that would be qualified for such purposes as would develop. If there are not, why are we bothered with international housing?

As to ending the corporate status of the U.S. Housing Authority and returning its million dollar Treasury investment to that body, inquiries as to what has become of the Authority's assets has not yet been productive. Explanations by HUD fail to deal with the Authority's corporate assets, which have been variously given as $80 to $40 million. Until the intent of the Department is spelled out to better purpose, we fail to see why Congress should be a party to the budget gimmickry which hides HUD and/or Treasury excess expenditures.

SUPPLEMENTAL VIEWS OF REPRESENTATIVE WILLIAM B. WIDNALL TO BANKING AND CURRENCY COMMITTEE REPORT ON HOUSING ACT OF 1968

In supporting H.R. 17989, I am not unmindful of the fact that reasonable men may differ over certain provisions, or that new programs authorized or old ones extended by the measure are open to constructive criticism relating to conception and execution. On balance, however, I believe the bill is both necessary and worthwhile. It has benefited from ideas and proposals offered by the minority, and I think it is appropriate to call particular attention to this fact.

Foremost among these minority suggestions has been the concept of fostering on a major scale homeownership among low- and moderate-income citizens. Homeownership as a desirable goal is an idea deeply rooted in American tradition. For the low- and moderate-income citizen, particularly the minority group citizen, this has become increasingly the impossible dream. Statistics show that the percentage of existing one-family homes insured by FHA for families with incomes less than $4,000 fell from 42.8 percent of the total in 1950 to 1.3 percent in 1966. For new homes, the drop was from 56 percent to 1 percent in the same time period.

In order to reverse this trend, I introduced H.R. 8820, the National Home Ownership Foundation Act on April 20, 1967. One hundred thirteen other House Members, including eight members of the minority of the Banking and Currency Committee, joined in offering a similar bill at that time.

The proposal had as its basic goals the enlargement of housing opportunities and choice for our lower income families, both rural and urban. We proposed to tap private capital, private management and technical experience, and private, community-oriented initiative. The Government role was to be limited to one of stimulus and reinforcement, rather than execution and control.

FEATURES OF THE NHOF BILL

The National Home Ownership Foundation Act proposal, besides its basic change in policy advocating homeownership in contrast to traditional federally assisted renter-oriented projects, contained a number of innovative features. In summary they were as follows:

1. The establishment of the National Home Ownership Foundation, a congressionally authorized nonprofit corporation, with a board of directors drawn from the private sector. Besides making mortgage capital available, the Foundation was to conduct a technical assistance service to aid in the development and formation of low- and moderate-income homeownership programs, including interim planning loans, and the conduct of supporting programs in such fields as training, employment, credit counseling, and budget management to enable lower income families to assume the privileges and responsibilities of homeownership.

2. Authority to the Foundation to raise $2 billion in mortgage loan funds through the sale of its debentures, guaranteed by the Federal Government to supplement available moneys from existing mortgage lending institutions. The object was to bring together in one coordinated effort, and one pool of funds, sufficient capital to carry out a major lower income homeownership program. It was expected that the federally guaranteed bonds, carrying a market rate of return, would attract new capital, for the mortgage market, from such sources as union pension funds.

3. A market-interest rate mortgage, with a direct subsidy paid by the Treasury to the holder of the mortgage, thus lowering the interest rate and monthly payments for the home buyer. The purpose was to avoid the major budget impact that accompanies the use of the below-market-interest rate mortgage program involving Federal National Mortgage Association purchase of these mortgages utilizing special assistance funds. Thus, each Federal dollar would have a multiplier effect many times greater than the BMIR mortgage purchase dollar, a major accomplishment in a time of expenditure curtailment. The interest subsidy would be repaid into a revolving fund, if and as the buyer reached an adequate income level, prescribed as 70 percent of existing 221(d)(3) program income limits.

4. Maximum utilization of community-based or neighborhood nonprofit corporations, including technical assistance for their development and operation of lower income homeownership programs. This would also provide an opportunity for the prospective home buyers in the area to have a voice in the conduct of the program. It would also enlist the aid, expertise, and financial backing of local community leaders in Government, business, labor, civic organizations, the professions and the like, to build a partnership within the private sector at the national and local levels.

5. Authority to develop a program of mortgage equity payment insurance, to protect the home buyer from losses of income due to illness, death, unemployment, and other causes not within the home buyer's control. To the greatest extent possible, the Foundation was directed to work out the program with the private insurance industry, and report back to Congress.

6. Utilization of the urban renewal program as a means of obtaining land and buildings at reasonable prices to lower the cost of construction, rehabilitation, or the use of existing housing for the homeownership program.

7. Increase employment opportunities and the use of self-help for area low-income residents and prospective home buyers.

SIMILARITIES WITH THE PRESENT BILL

Although the Department of Housing and Urban Development greeted the NHOF proposal last year with skepticism both for its technical provisions and its goal of lower income homeownership, sufficient support from a variety of groups and individuals within the American public appear to have changed the administration's mind. The cumulative result can be seen in H.R. 17989. In summary, the similarities between the committee bill and the proposal outlined above are as follows:

1. The committee bill establishes, in title I, section 107, a National Home Ownership Foundation. Its purposes follow those suggested for the technical assistance service under the minority's NHOF bill of last year. The Foundation is directed to encourage and assist public and private bodies at the national, community, and neighborhood levels in initiating, developing, and conducting programs to expand low-income homeownership and housing opportunities. This includes arrangements for technical and managerial assistance and training, aid in finding mortgage financing, insurance, and the like, encouraging research and innovation, collecting and distributing information, and assistance in expanding job opportunities.

The Foundation may make loans or grants to cover organizational or administrative expenses for homeownership programs, necessary preconstruction costs including land options, architectural fees, and similar items, and the costs of providing counseling to lower income families in budget management, home maintenance, and home management. The bill authorizes $10 million in appropriations.

2. The committee bill, in title VII, authorizes the new Government National Mortgage Association to guarantee securities issued by FNMA or other private issuers, backed by a pool of FHA and VA loans or mortgages. The purpose is the same as that of the NHOF-guaranteed debentures suggested by the minority; namely, to increase the supply of mortgage funds and tap new sources such as pension funds. It is permissive only, limited in scope, and the funds raised would not be limited to use for lower income homeownership. The Department, in the hearings, admitted to not knowing what amount of additional funds this approach might attract.

As a result, it is unlikely that the massive attraction of new funds for lower income homeownership envisioned by the sponsors of the National Home Ownership Foundation Act last year will occur under this bill. The FHA insurance provisions in title I also depend upon existing lenders and mortgage money supply. This makes all the more important the direction in section 107(f)(2) to the Foundation to report to the Congress whenever insufficient funding is available for lower income homeownership purposes. The Foundation is also directed to make recommendations for alternate means of securing adequate financing.

3. The committee bill, in title VIII, authorizes the establishment of a private corporation for profit which is designed to encourage a partnership approach among interests in the private sector at the national and local level, in order to encourage low-income housing. Part of the purpose of the National Home Ownership Foundation authorized by the bill is also to encourage private involvement, including the development of neighborhood organizations interested in homeownership programs, which would involve the citizens themselves from the area. Maximum utilization of area residents or the lower income families to be served by the program is not pronounced as a major goal in the committee bill, however, in contrast to the NHOF proposal of last year.

5. By amendment to title I (sec. 109) offered by Representative Garry Brown, of Michigan, the minority obtained inclusion in the bill of an authorization to the Secretary of HUD to develop, in cooperation with the private insurance industry, a plan of insurance to help homeowners meet mortgage payments in times of personal economic adversity.

The Secretary is directed to report back within 6 months on his actions. This provision was secured in the bill despite the objections of the Department of Housing and Urban Development, objections which, in turn, persisted, despite the evidence that such a plan was necessary and capable of being established, and despite a favorable report in the early 1960's, commissioned by the Housing and Home Finance Agency, forerunner of HUD.

6. The committee bill, in section 405, amends the urban renewal law to permit land to be sold to qualified low-income mortgagors and nonprofit sponsors of homeownership program and, by an amendment I offered, private homebuilders acquiring land for subsequent resale to low- and moderate-income home buyers.

7. By an amendment which I offered, section 3 was added to H.R. 17989 which requires, to the greatest extent feasible, the employment of lower income residents from the area served not only by homeownership activity but other federally assisted housing projects as well, in jobs created by these projects. The possibility of the home buyer contributing his own labor toward the cost of his housing has also been recognized in section 2 and in title I.

CAN HUD CARRY OUT THE PROGRAM?

One of the purposes behind establishing the National Home Ownership Foundation in the minds of its cosponsors last year, was to provide a quasi-public alternative to direct Federal bureaucratic control by the Department of Housing and Urban Development. The sponsors of the NHOF bill were not alone in questioning the capacity or will of the Department to carry out an expanded program of housing for low-income citizens. This presents a considerable challenge to the Department, in carrying out the proposals authorized in H.R. 17989.

While the Department's testimony before our committee has been reassuring, the continued opposition of HUD to my 1966 amendment requiring a substantial number of low- and moderate-income housing in each predominantly residential urban renewal project has had the opposite effect. As the committee report notes, the definition of substantial as only 20 percent of the project units is hardly in keeping with the dramatic need for more and better housing for our underprivileged citizens. The change contemplated by section 413 of this bill increases this percentage to 51 or better for the aggregate number of units in approved projects within a community; that is, projects which have had their plans approved by the Department, not those which are only in the planning stage. The new amendment, worked out in conjunction with Representative Henry Reuss, of Wisconsin, as a bipartisan statement of congressional intent, also contains a 20-percent minimum aggregate for low-income housing suggested by Representative William Brock, of Tennessee. It is perhaps the best example I know of in the bill of bipartisan, congressional initiative in the legislative field. Certainly, all of the other low-cost housing programs will come to naught if land or structures are not assembled and made available at low cost, which is the major benefit of urban renewal use.

Two other amendments which I offered and which have been accepted in title I deserve mention, if only because of the opposition by HUD to their inclusion. The first opens the homeownership sections up to utilization of existing housing, as well as housing involving new construction or substantial rehabilitation. A survey made by my office among District of Columbia real estate agencies indicated the availability of houses selling for under $18,000 and needing little repair, if any. It also uncovered the potential availability of many more renter-occupied houses, which would come on the market if these very same renters had access to mortgage funds. Negro real estate brokers were particularly conscious of this opportunity. The use of existing housing will also mean, as the U.S. Civil Rights Commission has pointed out, the immediate implementation of the new homeownership program. Certainly in this time of tension and trouble within our cities, any tool that can provide an immediate impact, and thus new hope to the less fortunate, should be welcomed. Will the Department of Housing and Urban Development heed this opportunity? Only time will tell.

Another amendment makes nonprofit groups eligible for inclusion in the program for homeownership financing that wish to use existing housing instead of taking on the task of rehabilitation in a multiunit project. It is my expectation that as these nonprofit groups, whether church or labor union, or civic association sponsors, gain in confidence and experience, they will move on to the more demanding but no less important task of increasing the supply of standard housing for homeownership purposes.

THE RENT CERTIFICATE PROGRAM

In 1964, I, with other members of the Republican minority introduced the rent certificate plan. It became legislation in 1965 and has since made a great record for something that was opposed by the administration and generally not promoted by them. To date, it has far outstripped its campanion legislation, rent supplements, in terms of people housed, having provided shelter for over 16,000 families while the rent supplement total is just over 2,500. This means that the rent certificate program is responsible for placing over 60,000 people in decent, safe, and sanitary housing that they did not have previously.

In the present bill there are three sections, 208, 209, and 210 which are perfecting amendments that I introduced to facilitate the operation of the program.

Where the Secretary had previously restricted the program in certain localities to rehabilitated housing, on the completely unjustified claim that it would cause rents to rise, section 208 makes clear that he can no longer impose such regulations unless it is specifically so provided in the act.

Where HUD had taken the position that it could not use the program unless in quantities of 10 or more units, section 209 makes clear that it can.

In section 210, we have acted to enable tenants to become purchasers of the homes they occupy through the medium of the local housing authority. This innovation was prompted by spontaneous offers from builders in all parts of the country, attracted by the economics of the operation, to build for leasing purposes.

Now where the housing authority deems it advisable, it may include in its lease an option to purchase to be exercised when desirable in behalf of the tenant.

This latter provision could be used even in multi-family structures where tenants, so desiring to act, occupy units having more than 80 percent of the total value of the structure.

WATER AND SEWER GRANTS

Section 505 ups the matching sewer and water grants from $200 million annually to $500 million annually. I do not particularly like to increase authorizations beyond departmental recommendations. In the case of this program, however, I am quite ready to make an exception. This is a vital program. Upon it have depended at times, the question of whether or not a city would have to import water for drinking purposes.

The administration has not only given this program a low priority. It has asked for only half the funds which Congress authorized when appearing before the Appropriations Committee. This in the face of applications from needy communities which numbered over $4 billion. There is to my knowledge not a single congressional district that does not have an application for water-and-sewer funds and many are most desperate. Under the circumstances, I think the increase I have suggested is most modest and I know it is badly needed.

NATIONAL FLOOD INSURANCE

It was with a deep sense of personal satisfaction to me that the Committee on Banking and Currency adopted my amendment, in the form of a proposed title XI, National Flood Insurance.

Members of the House will recall that the proposed national flood inssurance legislation passed the House—H.R. 11197—and the Senate in 1967 but because of far-reaching changes made by a House floor amendment in the financing mechanism in the House bill efforts to resolve the differences between the House and Senate versions in conference have been abandoned. In short, prior to inclusion of title XI in H.R. 17989, most observers conceded that flood insurance legislation had little if any chance of enactment in the 90th Congress.

As an original cosponsor of a national flood insurance program, the events leading up to the current legislative statement are indeed regrettable. Within the past month, the State of New Jersey experienced its worst natural disaster of the 20th century, sustaining more than $150 million in flood damage to private and public property. Having personally witnessed the human tragedy and widescale property damage in the wake of these devastating floods, my belief in the urgency of a national flood insurance program was further sustained.

When the House last November rejected the proposed financing through Treasury borrowing authority contained in the flood insurance bill, the circumstances surrounding that action were far different than those which prevail today. I refer to title X of the proposed housing bill where the Congress is being asked to approve Treasury borrowing authority in order to finance a national program of riot reinsurance. While I support title X, I think it would be uncharacteristically inconsistent for a majority of the House of Representatives to support Treasury borrowing authority for riot insurance, while rejecting this form of financing for a national flood insurance program of far more modest proportions.

In this regard, we should keep in mind that flood insurance proposals have been before the Congress for more than 10 years, long before any thought whatsoever was being given to the need for a Federal program of riot insurance.

Stated in its most candid terms, if the Congress of the United States can see its way clear to underwrite insurance protection again lawlessness in our cities, it can ill afford to turn a cold shoulder on the personal grief and tragedy of those of our law-abiding, taxpaying citizens who experience huge property losses caused by floods, or by what are said to be "acts of God."

INDIVIDUAL VIEWS OF REPRESENTATIVE FLORENCE P. DWYER

Having joined with and supported the ranking minority member—Mr. Widnall—in the many very constructive contributions he has made to the present bill and to previous housing legislation, I desire to associate myself with his individual views.

I am also in general agreement with most of the criticisms of existing programs and of specific provisions in H.R. 17989 expressed in the minority views, and I intend to support amendments to the bill offered on the House floor which would improve the legislation.

In the final analysis, however, Members must make a judgment whether the legislation as a whole deserves to be supported or opposed. It is my own judgment that, especially if the bill can be improved through the amending process, the good can outweigh the bad. If we are to move ahead and make visible progress in meeting the critical housing and urban needs of our people, most existing housing programs must be extended and most of the new programs proposed in the bill must be authorized. Within our financial capacity, we must do everything we can to help.

By the same token, however, neither Congress nor the Department of Housing and Urban Development can afford to close its eyes to the very substantial roadblocks to progress posed by existing failures in program management, including excessive "red tape," extensive delays in processing applications, and inordinately cumbersome and complicated procedural requirements. I was, therefore, especially pleased that the committee approved my motion to bring these inadequacies strongly to the attention of the Department. Much of our effort will continue to be frustrated, tax revenues will be wasted, and our promises to the people will remain unfulfilled unless these deficiencies are corrected.

90TH CONGRESS
2D SESSION

H. R. 17989

[Report No. 1585]

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

JUNE 19, 1968

Mr. PATMAN (for himself, Mr. BARRETT, Mrs. SULLIVAN, Mr. REUSS, Mr. ASHLEY, Mr. MOORHEAD, Mr. ST GERMAIN, Mr. GONZALEZ, Mr. MINISH, Mr. HANNA, Mr. ANNUNZIO, Mr. REES, Mr. WOLFF, Mr. HALPERN, Mr. FRIEDEL, and Mr. PEPPER) introduced the following bill; which was referred to the Committee on Banking and Currency

JUNE 25, 1968

Committed to the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union and ordered to be printed

---

A BILL

To assist in the provision of housing for low and moderate income families, and to extend and amend laws relating to housing and urban development.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That this Act may be cited as the "Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968".

DECLARATION OF POLICY

SEC. 2. The Congress affirms the national goal, as set forth in section 2 of the Housing Act of 1949, of "a decent home and a suitable living environment for every American family".

The Congress finds that this goal has not been fully realized for many of the Nation's lower income families; that this is a matter of grave national concern; and that there exist in the public and private sectors of the economy the resources and capabilities necessary to the full realization of this goal.

The Congress declares that in the administration of those housing programs authorized by this Act which are designed to assist families with incomes so low that they could not otherwise decently house themselves, and of other Government programs designed to assist in the provision of housing for such families, the highest priority and emphasis should be given to meeting the housing needs of those families for which the national goal has not become a reality; and in the carrying out of such programs there should be the fullest practicable utilization of the resources and capabilities of private enterprise and of individual self-help techniques.

JOBS IN HOUSING; EMPLOYMENT OPPORTUNITIES FOR LOWER INCOME PERSONS IN CONNECTION WITH ASSISTED PROJECTS

SEC. 3. In the administration of the programs authorized by sections 235 and 236 of the National Housing Act, the below-market interest rate program under section 221 (d) (3) of such Act, the low-rent public housing program under the United States Housing Act of 1937, and the rent supplement program under section 101 of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965, the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development shall require that, to the greatest extent feasible, opportunities for employment arising in connection with the construction or rehabilitation of projects assisted under such programs be given to lower income persons residing in the area of such projects.

IMPROVED ARCHITECTURAL DESIGN IN GOVERNMENT HOUSING PROGRAMS

SEC. 4. The Congress finds that Federal aids to housing have not contributed fully to improvement in architectural standards. This objective has been contemplated in Federal housing legislation since the establishment of mortgage insurance through the Federal Housing Administration.

The Congress commends the Department of Housing and Urban Development for its recent efforts to improve architectural standards through competitive design awards and in other ways but at the same time recognizes that this important objective requires high priority if Federal aid is to make its full communitywide contribution toward improving our urban environment.

The Congress further finds that even within the necessary budget limitations on housing for low and moderate income families architectural design could be improved not only to make the housing more attractive but to make it better suited to the needs of occupants.

The Congress declares that in the administration of housing programs which assist in the provision of housing for low and moderate income families, emphasis should be given to encouraging good design as an essential component of such housing and to developing housing which will be of such quality as to reflect its important relationship to the architectural standards of the neighborhood and community in which it is situated, consistent with prudent budgeting.

TITLE I—LOW AND MODERATE INCOME HOUSING

HOMEOWNERSHIP FOR LOW AND MODERATE INCOME FAMILIES

SEC. 101. (a) Title II of the National Housing Act is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new section:

"HOMEOWNERSHIP FOR LOW AND MODERATE INCOME FAMILIES

"SEC. 235. (a) For the purpose of assisting low and moderate income families in acquiring homeownership or in acquiring membership in a cooperative association operating a housing project, the Secretary is authorized to make, and to contract to make, periodic assistance payments on behalf of such homeowners and cooperative members. The assistance shall be accomplished through payments to mortgagees holding mortgages meeting the special requirements specified in this section.

"(b) To qualify for assistance payments, the homeowner or the cooperative member shall be of low or moderate income and satisfy eligibility requirements prescribed by the Secretary, and—

"(1) the homeowner shall be a mortgagor under a mortgage which meets the requirements of and is insured under subsection (i) or (j) (4) of this section: Provided, That a mortgage meeting the requirements of subsection (i) (3) (A) of this section but insured under section 237 may qualify for assistance payments if such mortgage was executed by a mortgagor who is determined not to be an acceptable credit risk for mortgage insurance purposes (but otherwise eligible) under subsection (j) (4) of this section or under section 221 (d) (2) or 234 (c) and accepted as a reasonably satisfactory credit risk under section 237; or

"(2) the cooperative association of which the family is a member shall operate a housing project the construction or substantial rehabilitation of which has been financed with a mortgage insured under section 213 and which has been completed within two years prior to the filing of the application for assistance payments and the dwelling unit has had no previous occupant other than the family: Provided, That assistance payments may be made with respect to a dwelling unit in an existing cooperative project which meets such standards as the Secretary may prescribe: Provided further, That a preference shall be given in contracting to make periodic assistance payments under this section to a family which qualifies as a displaced family as defined in section 221 (f), or a family which includes five or more minor persons, or a family occupying low-rent public housing: Provided further, That the amount of the mortgage attributable to the dwelling unit shall involve a principal obligation not in excess of $15,000 ($17,500 in any geographical area where the Secretary authorizes an increase on the basis of a finding that cost levels so require), except that with respect to any family with five or more persons the foregoing limits shall be $17,500 and $20,000, respectively.

"(c) The assistance payments to a mortgagee by the Secretary on behalf of a mortgagor shall be made during such time as the mortgagor shall continue to occupy the property which secures the mortgage: Provided, That assistance payments may be made on behalf of a homeowner who assumes a mortgage insured under subsection (j) (4) with respect to which assistance payments have been made on behalf of the previous owner, if the homeowner is approved by the Secretary as eligible for receiving such assistance. The payment shall be in an amount not exceeding the lesser of—

"(1) the balance of the monthly payment for principal, interest, taxes, insurance, and mortgage insurance premium due under the mortgage remaining unpaid after applying 20 per centum of the mortgagor's income: Provided, That, in determining a mortgagor's income for the purposes of this paragraph, there shall be deducted an amount equal to $200 for each minor person who is a member of the immediate family of, and living with, the mortgagor, and the earnings of any such minor person shall not be included in the income of such mortgagor; or

"(2) the difference between the amount of the monthly payment for principal, interest, and mortgage insurance premium which the mortgagor is obligated to pay under the mortgage and the monthly payment for principal and interest which the mortgagor would be obligated to pay if the mortgage were to bear interest at the rate of 1 per centum per annum.

"(d) Assistance payments to a mortgagee by the Secretary on behalf of a family holding membership in a cooperative association operating a housing project shall be made only during such time as the family is an occupant of such project and shall be in amounts computed on the basis of the formula set forth in subsection (c) applying the cooperative member's proportionate share of the obligations under the project mortgage to the items specified in the formula.

"(e) The Secretary may include in the payment to the mortgagee such amount, in addition to the amount computed under subsection (c), (d), or (j) (7), as he deems appropriate to reimburse the mortgagee for its expenses in handling the mortgage.

"(f) Procedures shall be adopted by the Secretary for recertifications of the mortgagor's (or cooperative member's) income at intervals of two years (or at shorter intervals where the Secretary deems it desirable) for the purpose of adjusting the amount of such assistance payments within the limits of the formula described in subsection (c).

"(g) The Secretary shall prescribe such regulations as he deems necessary to assure that the sales price of, or other consideration paid in connection with, the purchase by a homeowner of the property with respect to which assistance payments are to be made is not increased above the appraised value on which the maximum mortgage which the Secretary will insure is computed.

"(h) There are authorized to be appropriated such sums as may be necessary to carry out the provisions of this section, including such sums as may be necessary to make the assistance payments under contracts entered into under this section. The aggregate amount of contracts to make such payments shall not exceed amounts approved in appropriation Acts, and payments pursuant to such contracts shall not exceed $75,000,000 per annum prior to July 1, 1969, which maximum dollar amount shall be increased by $100,000,000 on July 1, 1969, and by $125,000,000 on July 1, 1970.

"(i) (1) The Secretary is authorized, upon application by the mortgagee, to insure a mortgage executed by a mortgagor who meets the eligibility requirements for assistance payments prescribed by the Secretary under subsection (b). Commitments for the insurance of such mortgages may be issued by the Secretary prior to the date of their execution or disbursement thereon, upon such terms and conditions as the Secretary may prescribe.

"(2) To be eligible for insurance under this subsection, a mortgage shall meet the requirements of section 221 (d) (2) or 234 (c), except as such requirements are modified by this subsection.

"(3) A mortgage to be insured under this subsection shall—

"(A) involve a single-family dwelling which has been approved by the Secretary prior to the beginning of construction or substantial rehabilitation, or a two-family dwelling one of the units of which is to be occupied by the owner if the dwelling is purchased with the assistance of a nonprofit organization and is approved by the Secretary prior to the beginning of substantial rehabilitation, or a one-family unit in a condominium project (together with an undivided interest in the common areas and facilities serving the project) which is released from a multifamily project the construction or substantial rehabilitation of which has been completed within two years prior to the filing of the application for assistance payments with respect to such family unit and the unit has had no previous occupant other than the mortgagor: Provided, That the mortgage may involve an existing dwelling or a family unit in an existing condominium project if the dwelling or family unit meets such standards as the Secretary may prescribe, or if assistance payments have been made on behalf of the previous owner of the dwelling or family unit with respect to a mortgage insured under subsection (j) (4): Provided further, That a preference in extending mortgage insurance under this subsection shall be given to a mortgagor who qualifies as a displaced family as defined in section 221 (f), or a family which includes five or more minor persons, or a family occupying low-rent public housing: Provided further, That the mortgage may involve a dwelling unit in an existing project covered by a mortgage insured under section 236 or in an existing project receiving the benefits of financial assistance under section 101 of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965;

"(B) where it is to cover a one-family unit in a condominium project, have a principal obligation not exceeding $15,000 ($17,500 in any geographical area where the Secretary authorizes an increase on the basis of a finding that cost levels so require), except that with respect to any family with five or more persons the foregoing limits shall be $17,500 and $20,000, respectively; and

"(C) be executed by a mortgagor who shall have paid (i) in the case of a displaced family as defined in section 221(f), at least $200, or (ii), in the case of any other family, at least 3 per centum (or such larger amount as the Secretary may require) of the Secretary's estimate of the cost of acquisition, in cash or its equivalent, which amount in either instance may be applied for the payment of settlement costs and initial payments for taxes, hazard insurance, mortgage insurance premiums, and other prepaid expenses.

"(j) (1) In addition to mortgages insured under the provisions of subsection (i), the Secretary is authorized, upon application by the mortgagee, to insure a mortgage (including advances under such mortgage during rehabilitation) which is executed by a nonprofit organization to finance the purchase of housing, and the rehabilitation of such housing if it is deteriorating or substandard, for subsequent resale to low or moderate income home purchasers who meet the eligibility requirements for assistance payments prescribed by the Secretary under subsection (b). Commitments for the insurance of such mortgages may be issued by the Secretary prior to the date of their execution or disbursement thereon, upon such terms and conditions as the Secretary may prescribe.

"(2) To be eligible for insurance under paragraph (1) of this subsection, a mortgage shall—

"(A) be executed by a private nonprofit organization, approved by the Secretary, for the purpose of financing the purchase (with the intention of subsequent resale), and rehabilitation where the housing involved is deteriorating or substandard, of property comprising one or more tracts or parcels, whether or not contiguous, consisting of (i) four or more single-family dwellings of detached, semidetached, or row construction, or (ii) four or more one-family units in a structure or structures for which a plan of family unit ownership approved by the Secretary is established; except that in a case not involving the rehabilitation of deteriorating or substandard housing the property purchased may consist of one or more such dwellings or units;

"(B) be in a principal amount not exceeding the appraised value of the property at the time of its purchase under the mortgage plus the estimated cost of any rehabilitation;

"(C) bear interest (exclusive of premium charges for insurance and service charge, if any) at not to exceed such per centum per annum (not in excess of 6 per centum), on the amount of the principal obligation outstanding at any time, as the Secretary finds necessary to meet the mortgage market;

"(D) provide for complete amortization (subject to paragraph (4) (E)) by periodic payments within such term as the Secretary may prescribe; and

"(E) provide for the release of individual single-family dwellings from the lien of the mortgage upon their sale in accordance with paragraph (4).

"(3) No mortgage shall be insured under paragraph (1) unless the mortgagor shall have demonstrated to the satisfaction of the Secretary that (A) the property involved is located in a neighborhood which is sufficiently stable and contains sufficient public facilities and amenities to support long-term values, or (B) the purchase or rehabilitation of such property plus the mortgagor's related activities and the activities of other owners of housing in the neighborhood, together with actions to be taken by public authorities, will be of such scope and quality as to give reasonable promise that a stable environment will be created in the neighborhood.

"(4) (A) No mortgage shall be insured under paragraph (1) unless the mortgagor enters into an agreement, satisfactory to the Secretary, that it will offer to sell the dwellings involved, after purchase and upon completion of any rehabilitation, to low or moderate income individuals or families meeting the eligibility requirements established by the Secretary under subsection (b).

"(B) The Secretary is authorized to insure under this paragraph mortgages executed to finance the sale of individual dwellings to low or moderate income purchasers as provided in subparagraph (A). Any such mortgage shall—

"(i) be in a principal amount not in excess of that portion of the unpaid principal balance of the blanket mortgage covering the property which is allocable to the individual dwelling involved;

"(ii) bear interest at the same rate as the blanket mortgage; and

"(iii) provide for complete amortization by periodic payments within a term equal to the remaining term (determined without regard to subparagraph (E)) of such blanket mortgage.

"(C) The price for which any individual dwelling is sold under this paragraph shall be in an amount equal to that portion of the unpaid principal balance of the blanket mortgage covering the property which is allocable to the dwelling plus such additional amount, not less than $200 (which may be applied in whole or in part toward closing costs), as the Secretary may determine to be reasonable.

"(D) Upon the sale under this paragraph of any individual dwelling, such dwelling shall be released from the lien of the blanket mortgage. Until all of the individual dwellings in the property covered by the blanket mortgage have been sold, the mortgagor shall hold and operate the dwellings remaining unsold at any given time, in such manner and under such terms as the Secretary may prescribe, as though they constituted rental units.

"(E) Upon the sale under this paragraph of all the individual dwellings in the property covered by the blanket mortgage and the release of all individual dwellings from the lien of the blanket mortgage, the insurance of the blanket mortgage shall be terminated and no adjusted premium charge shall be charged by the Secretary upon such termination.

"(5) Where the Secretary has approved a plan of family unit ownership, the terms 'single-family dwelling', 'single-family dwellings', 'individual dwelling', and 'individual dwellings' shall mean a family unit or family units, together with the undivided interest (or interests) in the common areas and facilities.

"(6) For purposes of this subsection, the terms 'single-family dwelling' and 'single-family dwellings' (except for purposes of paragraph (5)) shall include a two-family dwelling which has been approved by the Secretary if one of the units is to be occupied by the owner.

"(7) In addition to the assistance payments authorized under subsection (b), the Secretary may make such payments to a mortgagee on behalf of a nonprofit organization which is a mortgagor under the provisions of paragraph (1) in an amount not exceeding the difference between the monthly payment for principal, interest, and mortgage insurance premium which the mortgagor is obligated to pay under the mortgage and the monthly payment for principal and interest such mortgagor would be obligated to pay if the mortgage were to bear interest at the rate of 1 per centum per annum.

"(k) The Secretary shall from time to time allocate and transfer to the Secretary of Agriculture, for use (in accordance with the terms and conditions of this section) in rural areas and small towns, a reasonable portion of the total authority to contract to make assistance payments as approved in appropriation Acts under subsection (h)."

(b) (1) Section 221 (d) (2) (A) of the National Housing Act is amended—

(A) by striking out "not to exceed (i) $12,500" and inserting in lieu thereof "not to exceed (i) $15,000 (or $17,500, if the mortgagor's family includes five or more persons)"; and

(B) by striking out "not to exceed $15,000" in the second proviso and inserting in lieu thereof "not to exceed $17,500 (or $20,000 if the mortgagor's family includes five or more persons)".

(2) Section 221 (d) (2) (B) of such Act is amended—

(A) by inserting ", in cash or its equivalent" before the semicolon after "acquisition cost" in the first proviso; and

(B) by inserting before the semicolon after "appraised value" at the end thereof the following: ": Provided further, That, if the mortgagor is the owner and an occupant of the property, such mortgagor shall to the maximum extent feasible be given the opportunity to contribute the value of his labor as equity in such dwelling".

(c) (1) Section 221 (h) (5) (B) (ii) of such Act is amended to read as follows:

"(ii) bear interest at the same rate as the principal mortgage or such lower rate, not less than 1 per centum, as the Secretary may prescribe if in his judgment the purchaser's income is sufficiently low to justify the lower rate, and provide for complete amortization within a term equal to the remaining term (determined without regard to subparagraph (E)) of such principal mortgage."

(2) Section 221 (h) (4) of such Act is amended by striking out "$20,000,000" and inserting in lieu thereof "$50,000,000".

(3) Section 221 (h) of such Act is further amended by adding at the end thereof the following new paragraph:

"(6) In addition to the mortgages that may be insured under paragraphs (1) and (5), the Secretary is authorized to insure under this subsection, upon such terms and conditions as he may prescribe, mortgages which are executed by individuals or families that meet the income criteria prescribed in paragraph (5) (A) and are executed for the purpose of financing the rehabilitation or improvement of single-family dwellings of detached, semidetached, or row construction that are owned and occupied in each instance by a mortgagor who has purchased the dwelling from a non-profit organization of the type described in this subsection. To be eligible for such insurance, a mortgage shall—

"(A) be in a principal amount not exceeding the lesser of $15,000 or the sum of the estimated cost of repair and rehabilitation and the Secretary's estimate of the value of the property before repair and rehabilitation, except that in no case involving refinancing shall such mortgage exceed such estimated cost of repair and rehabilitation and the amount (as determined by the Secretary) required to refinance existing indebtedness secured by the property;

"(B) bear interest (exclusive of premium charges for insurance and service charge, if any) at 3 per centum per annum or such lower rate, not less than 1 per centum, as the Secretary may prescribe if in his judgment the mortgagor's income is sufficiently low to justify the lower rate;

"(C) involve a mortgagor that shall have paid on account of the property at the time of the rehabilitation such amount (which shall not be less than $200 in cash or its equivalent, but which may be applied in whole or in part toward closing costs) as the Secretary may determine to be reasonable and appropriate under the circumstances; and

"(D) contain a provision that if the low-income mortgagor does not continue to occupy the property, the interest rate shall increase to the highest rate permissible under this section and the regulations of the Secretary effective at the time of commitment for insurance of the mortgage; except that the increase in interest rate shall not be applicable if the property is sold and the purchaser is (i) a nonprofit organization which has been engaged in purchasing and rehabilitating deteriorating and substandard housing with financing under a mortgage insured under paragraph (1) of this subsection, (ii) a public housing agency having jurisdiction under the United States Housing Act of 1937 over the area where the dwelling is located, or (iii) a low-income purchaser approved for the purposes of this paragraph by the Secretary."

(4) The purchase of any individual dwelling, sold by a nonprofit organization pursuant to the provisions of section 221(h)(5) of the National Housing Act after the date of enactment of this section, may be financed with a mortgage insured under the provisions of section 235(j)(4) of such Act, but such mortgage shall bear interest at the rate provided in section 235(j)(2)(C) of such Act.

(d) Section 212(a) of such Act is amended by inserting "or section 235(j)(1)" after "subsection (h)(1)" each place it appears.

(e) The Secretary of Housing and Urban Development is authorized to provide, or contract with public or private organizations to provide, such budget, debt management, and related counseling services to mortgagors whose mortgages are insured under section 235(i) or 235(j)(4) of the National Housing Act as he determines to be necessary to assist such mortgagors in meeting the responsibilities of homeownership. There are authorized to be appropriated such sums as may be necessary to carry out the provisions of this subsection.

CREDIT ASSISTANCE

SEC. 102. (a) Title II of the National Housing Act is amended by adding after section 236 (as added by section 201 of this Act) the following new section:

"SPECIAL MORTGAGE INSURANCE ASSISTANCE

"SEC. 237. (a) The purpose of this section is to help provide adequate housing for families of low and moderate income, including those who, for reasons of credit history, irregular income patterns caused by seasonal employment, or other factors, are unable to meet the credit requirements of the Secretary for the purchase of a single-family home financed by a mortgage insured under section 203, 220, 221, 234, or 235 (j) (4), but who, through the incentive of homeownership and counseling assistance, appear to be able to achieve homeownership.

"(b) The Secretary is authorized upon application by the mortgagee to insure under this section any mortgage meeting the requirements of this section.

"(c) To be eligible for insurance under this section, a mortgage shall—

"(2) involve a principal obligation (including such initial service charges, and such appraisal, inspection, and other fees, as the Secretary shall approve) in an amount not to exceed $15,000: Provided, That the Secretary may increase the amount to not exceed $17,500 in any geographical area where he finds that cost levels so require: Provided further, That no mortgage meeting the requirements of section 203 (h) or 203 (i) shall be eligible for insurance under this section if its principal obligation is in excess of the maximum limits prescribed in such section;

"(3) be executed by a mortgagor who the Secretary has determined, after a full and complete study of the case, would not be an acceptable credit risk for mortgage insurance purposes under section 203, 220, 221, 234, or 235 (j) (4), because of his credit standing, debt obligations, total annual income, or income characteristics, but who the Secretary is satisfied would be a reasonably satisfactory credit risk, consistent with the objectives stated in subsection (a), if he were to receive budget, debt management, and related counseling: Provided, That, in determining whether the mortgagor is a reasonably satisfactory credit risk, the Secretary shall review the credit history of the applicant giving special consideration to those delinquent accounts which were ultimately paid by the applicant and to extenuating factors which may have caused credit accounts of the applicant to become delinquent; and the Secretary shall also give special consideration to income characteristics of applicants whose total income over the two years prior to their applications has remained at levels of eligibility (as required under paragraph (4) of this subsection), but who, because of the character of their seasonal employment or for other reasons, have not maintained continuous employment under one employer during that time; and

"(4) require monthly payments which, in combination with local real estate taxes on the property involved, do not exceed 25 per centum of the applicant's income, based on his average monthly income during the year prior to his application or the average monthly income during the three years prior to his application, whichever is higher.

"(d) The Secretary shall give preference in approving mortgage insurance applications under this section to families living in public housing units, especially those families required to leave public housing because their incomes have risen beyond the maximum prescribed income limits, and families eligible for residence in public housing who have been displaced from federally assisted urban renewal areas.

"(e) The Secretary is authorized to provide, or contract with public or private organizations to provide, such budget, debt management, and related counseling services to mortgagors whose mortgages are insured under this section as he determines to be necessary to meet the objectives of this section. The Secretary may also provide such counseling to otherwise eligible families who lack sufficient funds to supply a downpayment to help them to save an amount necessary for that purpose.

"(f) The aggregate principal balance of all mortgages insured under this section and outstanding at one time shall not exceed $100,000,000.

"(g) There are authorized to be appropriated such sums as may be necessary to carry out the provisions of subsection (e) of this section."

(b) Section 226 of the National Housing Act is amended by inserting "235(i), 237," after "234,".

SEC. 103. (a) Section 223 of the National Housing Act is amended by adding at the end thereof a new subsection as follows:

"(e) Notwithstanding any of the provisions of this title except section 212, and without regard to limitations upon eligibility contained in any section of this title, the Secretary is authorized, upon application by the mortgagee, to insure under any section of this title a mortgage executed in connection with the repair, rehabilitation, construction, or purchase of property located in an older, declining urban area in which the conditions are such that one or more of the eligibility requirements applicable to the section of this title under which insurance is sought could not be met, if the Secretary finds that (1) the area is reasonably viable, giving consideration to the need for providing adequate housing for families of low and moderate income in such area, and (2) the property is an acceptable risk in view of such consideration. The insurance of a mortgage pursuant to this subsection shall be the obligation of the Special Risk Insurance Fund."

(b) Section 203 (l) of such Act is repealed.

SPECIAL RISK INSURANCE FUND

SEC. 104. (a) Title II of the National Housing Act is amended by adding after section 237 (as added by section 102 of this Act) the following new section:

"PAYMENT OF INSURANCE—SPECIAL RISK INSURANCE FUND

"SEC. 238. (a) (1) Any mortgagee under a mortgage insured under section 235 (i), 235 (j) (4), or 237 shall be entitled to receive the benefits of the insurance as provided in section 204 (a) with respect to mortgages insured under section 203. The provisions of subsections (b), (c), (d), (g), (j), and (k) of section 204 shall be applicable to mortgages insured under section 235 (i), 235 (j) (4), or 237, except that all references therein to the 'Mutual Mortgage Insurance Fund' shall be construed to refer to the 'Special Risk Insurance Fund', and all references therein to section 203 shall be construed to refer to section 235 (i), 235 (j) (4), or 237, as may be appropriate.

"(2) Any mortgagee under a mortgage insured under section 235 (j) (1) or 236 shall be entitled to receive the benefits of insurance as provided in section 207 (g) with respect to mortgages insured under section 207. The provisions of subsections (d), (e), (h), (i), (j), (k), (l), and (n) of section 207 shall be applicable to mortgages insured under section 235 (j) (1) or 236, except that all references therein to the 'General Insurance Fund' shall be construed to refer to the 'Special Risk Insurance Fund' and the premium charge provided in section 207 (d) shall be payable only in cash or debentures of the Special Risk Insurance Fund.

"(3) In lieu of the amount of insurance benefits computed pursuant to paragraph (1) or (2) of this subsection, the Secretary, in his discretion and in accordance with such regulations as he may prescribe, may (with respect to any mortgage loan acquired by him) compute and pay insurance benefits to the mortgagee in a total amount equal to the unpaid principal balance of the loan plus any accrued interest and any advances approved by the Secretary and made previously by the mortgagee under the provisions of the mortgage.

"(b) There is hereby created a Special Risk Insurance Fund (hereinafter referred to as the 'fund') which shall be used by the Secretary as a revolving fund for carrying out the mortgage insurance obligations of sections 223 (e), 233 (a) (2), 235, 236, and 237, and the Secretary is hereby authorized to advance to the fund the sum of $5,000,000 from the General Insurance Fund established pursuant to the provisions of section 519. Such advance shall be repayable at such times and at such rates of interest as the Secretary deems appropriate. Premium charges, adjusted premium charges, inspection and other fees, service charges, and any other income received by the Secretary under sections 223 (e), 235, 236, and 237, together with all earnings on the assets of the fund, shall be credited to the fund. All payments made pursuant to claims of mortgagees with respect to mortgages insured under sections 235, 236, and 237 or pursuant to section 223 (e) or 233 (a) (2), cash adjustments, the principal of and interest paid on debentures which are the obligation of the fund, expenses incurred in connection with or as a consequence of the acquisition and disposal of property acquired under such sections, and all administrative expenses in connection with the mortgage insurance operations under such sections shall be paid out of the fund. There is authorized to be appropriated such sums as may be needed from time to time to cover losses sustained by the fund in carrying out the mortgage insurance obligations of sections 223 (e), 233 (a) (2), 235, 236, and 237. Moneys in the fund not needed for current operations of the fund shall be deposited with the Treasurer of the United States to the credit of the fund or invested in bonds or other obligations of, or in bonds or other obligations guaranteed by, the United States. The Secretary, with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury, may purchase in the open market debentures which are the obligation of the fund. Such purchases shall be made at a price which will provide an investment yield of not less than the yield obtained from other investments authorized by this section. Debentures so purchased shall be canceled and not reissued."

(b) Section 224 of such Act is amended by striking out "or section 233" and inserting in lieu thereof "section 233, or section 238".

(c) Section 519 (e) of such Act is amended by inserting after "section 213 (k)" the following: ", or the provisions of sections 223 (e), 233 (a) (2), 235, 236, and 237".

CONDOMINIUM AND COOPERATIVE OWNERSHIP FOR LOW AND MODERATE INCOME FAMILIES

SEC. 105. (a) Section 221 of the National Housing Act is amended by adding at the end thereof two new subsections as follows:

"(i) (1) The Secretary is authorized, with respect to any project involving a mortgage insured under subsection (d) (3) which bears interest at the below-market interest rate prescribed in the proviso of subsection (d) (5), to permit a conversion of the ownership of such project to a plan of family unit ownership. Under such plan, each family unit shall be eligible for individual ownership and provision shall be included for the sale of the family units, together with an undivided interest in the common areas and facilities which serve the project, to low or moderate income purchasers. The Secretary shall obtain such agreements as he determines to be necessary to assure continued maintenance of the common areas and facilities. Upon such sale, the family unit and the undivided interest in the common areas shall be released from the lien of the project mortgage.

"(2) (A) The Secretary is authorized, upon application by the mortgagee, to insure under this subsection mortgages financing the purchase of individual family units under the plan prescribed in paragraph (1). Commitments may be issued by the Secretary for the insurance of such mortgages prior to the date of their execution or disbursement thereon, upon such terms and conditions as the Secretary may prescribe. To be eligible for such insurance, the mortgage shall—

"(i) be executed by a mortgagor having an income within the limits prescribed by the Secretary for occupants of projects financed with a mortgage insured under subsection (d) (3) which bears interest at the below-market rate prescribed in the proviso of subsection (d) (5);

"(ii) involve a principal obligation (including such initial service charges, and such appraisal, inspection, and other fees, as the Secretary shall approve) in an amount not to exceed the Secretary's estimate of the appraised value of the family unit, including the mort-gagor's interest in the common areas and facilities, as of the date the mortgage is accepted for insurance;

"(iii) bear interest at a rate determined by the Secretary (which may vary in accordance with the regulations of the Secretary promulgated pursuant to the last sentence of paragraph (4) of this subsection) but not less than the below-market rate in effect under the proviso of subsection (d) (5) at the date of the commitment for insurance; and

"(iv) provide for complete amortization by periodic payments within such term as the Secretary may prescribe, but not to exceed the lesser of forty years from the beginning of amortization of the mortgage or three-quarters of the Secretary's estimate of the remaining economic life of the building improvements.

"(B) The price for which the individual family unit is sold to the low or moderate income purchaser shall not exceed the appraised value of the property, as determined under subparagraph (A) (ii), except that the purchaser shall be required to pay on account of the property at the time of purchase at least such amount, in cash or its equivalent (which shall be not less than 3 per centum of such price, but which may be applied in whole or in part toward closing costs), as the Secretary may determine to be reasonable and appropriate.

"(3) Upon the sale of all of the family units covered by the project mortgage, and the release of all of the family units (including the undivided interest allocable to each unit in the common areas and facilities) from the lien of the project mortgage, the insurance of the project mortgage shall be terminated and no adjusted premium charge shall be collected by the Secretary upon such termination.

"(4) Any mortgage covering an individual family unit insured under this subsection shall contain a provision that, if the original mortgagor does not continue to occupy the property, the interest rate shall increase to the highest rate permissible under this section and the regulations of the Secretary effective at the time the commitment was issued for the insurance of the project mortgage; except that the requirement for an increase in interest rate shall not be applicable if the property is sold and the purchaser is (i) a nonprofit purchaser approved by the Secretary, or (ii) a low or moderate income purchaser who has an income within the limits prescribed by the Secretary for occupants of projects financed with a mortgage insured under subsection (d) (3) which bears interest at the below-market rate prescribed in the proviso of subsection (d) (5). The mortgage shall also contain a provision that, if the Secretary determines that the annual income of the original mortgagor (or a purchaser described in clause (ii) of the preceding sentence) has increased to an amount enabling payment of a greater rate of interest, the interest rate of the individual mortgage may be increased up to the highest rate permissible under the regulations of the Secretary for mortgages insured under this section effective at the time the commitment was issued for the insurance of the mortgage.

"(5) For the purpose of this subsection—

"(i) the term 'mortgage', when used in relation to a mortgage insured under paragraph (2) of this subsection, includes a first mortgage given to secure the unpaid purchase price of a fee interest in, or a long-term lease-hold interest in, a one-family unit in a multi-family project and an undivided interest in the common areas and facilities which serve the project; and

"(ii) the term 'common areas and facilities' includes the land and such commercial, community, and other facilities as are approved by the Secretary.

"(j) (1) The Secretary is authorized, with respect to any rental project involving a mortgage insured under subsection (d) (3) which bears interest at the below-market interest rate prescribed in the proviso of subsection (d) (5), to permit a conversion of the ownership of such project to a cooperative approved by the Secretary. Membership in such cooperative shall be made available only to those families having an income within the limits prescribed by the Secretary for occupants of projects financed with a mortgage insured under subsection (d) (3) which bears interest at such below-market rate: Provided, That families residing in the rental project at the time of its conversion to a cooperative who do not meet such income limits may be permitted to become members in the cooperative under such special terms and conditions as the Secretary may prescribe.

"(2) The Secretary is authorized, upon application by the mortgagee, to insure under this subsection cooperative mortgages financing the purchase of projects meeting the requirements of paragraph (1). Commitments may be issued by the Secretary for the insurance of such mortgages prior to the date of their execution or disbursement thereon, upon such terms and conditions as the Secretary may prescribe. To be eligible for such insurance, the mortgage shall—

"(i) involve a principal obligation (including such initial service charges and appraisal, inspection, and other fees as the Secretary shall approve) in an amount not exceeding the appraised value of the property for continued use as a cooperative, which value shall be based upon a mortgage amount on which the debt service can be met from the income of the property when operated on a nonprofit basis, after the payment of all operating expenses, taxes, and required reserves;

"(ii) bear interest at the below-market rate prescribed in the proviso of subsection (d) (5); and

"(iii) provide for complete amortization within such term as the Secretary may prescribe."

(b) Section 221 (g) (1) of such Act is amended by striking out "or paragraph (5) of subsection (h) of this section" and inserting in lieu thereof "paragraph (5) of subsection (h) of this section, or paragraph (2) of subsection (i) of this section".

(c) Section 221 (g) (2) of such Act is amended by striking out "or paragraph (1) of subsection (h)" and inserting in lieu thereof "paragraph (1) of subsection (h) of this section, or paragraph (2) of subsection (j),".

(d) Section 221 (f) of such Act is amended by inserting after "subsection (h)" in the third sentence of the second paragraph the following: ", (i), or (j)".

ASSISTANCE TO NONPROFIT SPONSORS OF LOW AND MODERATE INCOME HOUSING

SEC. 106. (a) The Secretary of Housing and Urban Development is authorized to provide, or contract with public or private organizations to provide, information, advice, and technical assistance with respect to the construction, rehabilitation, and operation by nonprofit organizations of housing for low or moderate income families. Assistance by the Secretary may include—

(1) the assembly, correlation, publication, and dissemination of information with respect to the construction, rehabilitation, and operation of low and moderate income housing, and

(2) the provision of advice and technical assistance with respect to the construction, rehabilitation, and operation of low and moderate income housing.

(b) (1) The Secretary is authorized to make loans to nonprofit organizations for the necessary expenses, prior to construction, in planning, and obtaining financing for, the rehabilitation or construction of housing for low or moderate income families under any federally assisted program. Such loans shall be made without interest and shall not exceed 80 per centum of the reasonable costs expected to be incurred in planning, and in obtaining financing for, such housing prior to the availability of financing, including, but not limited to, preliminary surveys and analyses of market needs, preliminary site engineering and architectural fees, site acquisition, application and mortgage commitment fees, and construction loan fees and discounts. The Secretary shall require repayment of loans made under this subsection, under such terms and conditions as he may require, upon completion of the project or sooner, and may cancel any part or all of a loan if he determines that it cannot be recovered from the proceeds of any permanent loan made to finance the rehabilitation or construction of the housing.

(2) The Secretary shall determine prior to the making of any loan that the nonprofit organization meets such requirements with respect to financial responsibility and stability as he may prescribe.

(3) There are authorized to be appropriated for the purposes of this subsection not to exceed $7,500,000 for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1969, and not to exceed $10,000,000 for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1970. Any amounts so appropriated shall remain available until expended, and any amounts authorized for any fiscal year under this paragraph but not appropriated may be appropriated for any succeeding fiscal year.

(4) All funds appropriated for the purposes of this subsection shall be deposited in a fund which shall be known as the Low and Moderate Income Sponsor Fund, and which shall be available without fiscal year limitation and be administered by the Secretary as a revolving fund for carrying out the purposes of this subsection. Sums received in repayment of loans made under this subsection shall be deposited in such fund.

NATIONAL HOMEOWNERSHIP FOUNDATION

SEC. 107. (a) (1) There is hereby created a body corporate to be known as the "National Homeownership Foundation" (hereinafter referred to as the "Foundation") to carry out a continuing program of encouraging private and public organizations at the national, community, and neighborhood levels to provide increased homeownership and housing opportunities in urban and rural areas for lower income families through such means as—

(A) encouraging the investment in, and sponsoring of, housing for lower income families;

(B) encouraging the establishment of programs of assistance and counseling to lower income families to enable them better to achieve and afford adequate housing;

(C) providing a broad range of technical assistance through publications and advisory services to public and private organizations which are carrying out, or are desirous of carrying out, programs to expand homeownership and housing opportunities for lower income families; and

(D) providing grants and loans to public and private organizations carrying out homeownership and housing opportunity programs for lower income families to help cover some of the expenses of such programs.

(2) The Foundation shall be deemed to be a corporation without members organized and established under the provisions of the District of Columbia Nonprofit Corporation Act, with all the rights, powers, and responsibilities thereof except as limited by this section and any amendments thereto. This section shall constitute the articles of incorporation and charter of the Foundation, which shall not be an agency or instrumentality of the United States Government. The Congress expressly reserves the exclusive right to alter or amend this charter. The Foundation shall have succession until dissolved by Act of Congress. The Foundation shall maintain its principal office in the District of Columbia.

(3) No part of the net earnings of the Foundation shall inure to the benefit of any private person, and no substantial part of its activities shall be devoted to attempting to influence legislation. The Foundation shall not participate or intervene in any political campaign on behalf of any candidate for public office. The Foundation shall be operated and administered at all times as a charitable and educational foundation.

(4) No employee or officer of the Foundation shall receive compensation in excess of that received by or hereafter prescribed by law for heads of executive departments.

(5) The Foundation shall make maximum use of existing public and private agencies and programs, and in carrying out its functions the Foundation is authorized to contract with individuals, private corporations, organizations, and associations, and with agencies of the Federal, State, and local governments.

(6) The Foundation is authorized to receive donations and grants from individuals and from public and private organizations, foundations, and agencies.

(7) The Foundation may use only donated funds, or funds derived from payment of interest on loans made by it, for the principal and interest payments on any borrowings.

(b) (1) The Foundation shall have a Board of Directors consisting of eighteen members, fifteen of whom shall be appointed by the President of the United States, with the advice and consent of the Senate. The other three members shall be, ex officio, the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development, the Secretary of Agriculture, and the Director of the Office of Economic Opportunity. The President shall appoint one of the fifteen appointed members to serve as Chairman of the Board during his term of office as a member.

(2) Within thirty days after the date of enactment of this Act, the President shall appoint the fifteen appointed members of the Board. Not more than five of such members shall, at the time of their appointment, be serving full time as officers or employees of the Federal Government, or as officers or employees of any State or local government. Each appointed member of the Board shall hold office for a term of three years, except that (A) any member appointed to fill a vacancy prior to the expiration of the term for which his predecessor was appointed shall be appointed for the remainder of such term, and (B) the terms of the members first taking office shall expire, as designated by the President at the time of appointment, five at the end of the first year, five at the end of the second year, and five at the end of the third year after the date of appointment. Members of the Board, however appointed, shall be eligible for reappointment, but at no time shall there be more than five members of the Board who at the time of their appointment or reappointment were full-time officers or employees of the Federal Government or of any State or local government.

(3) Appointed members of the Board who are not employees of the Federal Government, while attending meetings or conferences of the Board or otherwise serving on business of the Board, shall be entitled to receive compensation at rates fixed by the President, but not exceeding $100 per day, including travel time, and while so serving away from their homes or regular places of business they may be allowed travel expenses, including per diem in lieu of subsistence, as authorized by section 5703 of title 5,

United States Code, for persons in the Government service employed intermittently.

(4) The Board shall appoint an Executive Director of the Foundation. The Executive Director shall be the chief executive officer of the Foundation and shall serve at the pleasure of the Board, and all other executive officers and employees of the Board shall be responsible to him. The Board shall also cause to be appointed a secretary, a treasurer, and such other officers as may be necessary to conduct properly the business of the Foundation, and shall provide for filling vacancies in such offices.

(5) The Board shall adopt bylaws for the Foundation which shall be made available for public inspection upon request.

(c) (1) The Foundation shall assist public and private organizations, at their request, in initiating, developing, and conducting programs to expand homeownership and housing opportunities for lower income families. To provide such assistance and to carry out the purposes of this section, the Foundation is authorized to—

(A) carry out a continuing program of encouraging private and public organizations at the national, community, and neighborhood levels in the establishment of such programs;

(B) assist in the formation of organizations the purpose of which is the development and carrying out of such programs, including the establishment of local development funds for financing housing for lower income families through the pooling of moneys from private sources;

(C) identify and arrange for the technical and managerial assistance and personnel needed for the successful operation of such programs by public and private organizations;

(D) assist public and private organizations in obtaining the mortgage financing, insurance, and other requirements or aids necessary for conducting programs of housing construction, rehabilitation, or improvement for lower income families;

(E) arrange for, or provide on a limited basis, training for persons in the skills needed in administering programs of homeownership and housing opportunity for lower income families;

(F) encourage research and innovation, and collect and make available such information as may be desirable to further the purposes of this section, including but not limited to such activities as the sponsoring of seminars, conferences, and meetings, and the establishment of a continuing information program to acquaint lower income families with the means they can use to improve the quality of their housing and the homeownership and housing opportunities available to them;

(G) assist private and public organizations in establishing, in connection with their homeownership and housing opportunity programs for lower income families, counseling and similar activities designed to advise lower income families of the means available to better themselves economically through job training and manpower development programs; and

(H) perform other similar services in order to further the purposes of this section.

(2) The Foundation may, if it deems it appropriate, charge a reasonable fee for any assistance or services provided under this subsection.

(d) (1) In order to assist public and private organizations which are carrying out homeownership and housing opportunity programs for lower income families to fill unmet needs, initiate exceptional programs, and experiment with new approaches and programs, the Foundation is authorized, subject to such terms and conditions as it may prescribe, to make grants and loans to such organizations to help defray the following expenses:

(A) organizational and administrative expenses incurred in commencing the operation of a program, or in expanding an existing program, to the extent that the activities are related to providing homeownership and housing opportunities for lower income families;

(B) necessary preconstruction costs incurred for architectural assistance, land options, application fees, and similar items; and

(C) the cost of carrying out programs providing counseling or similar services to lower income families for whom housing is being provided, in order to enable those families better to achieve and afford adequate housing, in such matters as home management, budget management, and home maintenance.

(2) In order to be eligible for a grant or loan under this subsection, the organization seeking such assistance shall demonstrate to the satisfaction of the Foundation that the funds requested are not otherwise available from Federal sources: Provided, That a grant or loan under this subsection may be provided to help cover that portion of the cost of an eligible activity not covered by Federal funds.

(3) The Foundation shall encourage cooperation between public and private organizations carrying out programs of homeownership and housing opportunity for lower income families and the neighborhoods and communities affected by such programs. To help assure such cooperation and in order to coordinate, to the maximum extent feasible, any construction or rehabilitation activities with the development goals of the neighborhood or community affected, no application for a loan or grant under this subsection shall be considered unless such application has been submitted to the governing body of the community affected, or to such other entity of local government as may be designated by the governing body, for such recommendations as the local governing body or its designee may desire to make. Any recommendations so made shall be given careful consideration by the Foundation before taking final action on any such application. If, upon the expiration of thirty days after any such application has been submitted to such governing body or its designee, such body or designee fails to provide such recommendations, the application may be considered without the benefit of such recommendations.

(e) The Foundation shall coordinate its activities and consult with the Department of Housing and Urban Development and other Federal departments and agencies engaged in providing homeownership and housing opportunities for lower income families.

(f) (1) Not later than one hundred and twenty days after the close of each fiscal year, the Foundation shall prepare and submit to the President and to the Congress a full report of its activities during such year. Such report shall include an account of the Foundation's experiences with the efforts of private and public organizations to expand homeownership and housing opportunities for lower income families, together with such recommendations as it deems appropriate.

(2) Whenever in its judgment the general unavailability of mortgage funds is sufficiently serious to deter the Foundation from carrying out its objective of expanding homeownership and housing opportunities for lower income families, the Foundation shall, in its annual report or in a separate report to the President and the Congress, state its findings and make such recommendations for alternate means of financing housing for such families as it deems appropriate.

(g) (1) The financial transactions of the Foundation shall be audited by the General Accounting Office in accordance with the principles and procedures applicable to commercial corporate transactions and under such rules and regulations as may be prescribed by the Comptroller General of the United States. The representatives of the General Accounting Office shall have access to all books, accounts, financial records, reports, files, and all other papers, things, or property belonging to or in use by the Foundation and necessary to facilitate the audit, and they shall be afforded full facilities for verifying transactions with the balances or securities held by depositories, fiscal agents, and custodians. The audit shall cover the fiscal year corresponding to that of the United States Government.

(2) A report of each such audit shall be made by the Comptroller General to the Congress not later than January 15 following the close of the fiscal year for which the audit was made. The report shall set forth the scope of the audit and shall include a statement of assets and liabilities, capital, and surplus or deficit; a statement of sources and application of funds; and such comments and information as may be deemed necessary to keep the Congress informed of the operations and financial condition of the Foundation, together with such recommendations with respect thereto as the Comptroller General may deem advisable. The report shall also show specifically any program, expenditure, or other financial transaction or undertaking, observed in the course of the audit, which, in the opinion of the Comptroller General, has been carried on or made without authority of law. A copy of each report shall be furnished to the President and to the Foundation at the time submitted to the Congress.

(h) Funds of the Foundation shall be deposited, to the extent practicable, in accounts with financial institutions which are actively engaged in making loans or are otherwise carrying on activities in furtherance of homeownership and housing opportunities for lower income families.

(i) There is authorized to be appropriated to the Foundation not to exceed $10,000,000 to carry out the purposes of this section. Appropriations made hereunder shall remain available until expended.

NEW TECHNOLOGIES IN THE DEVELOPMENT OF HOUSING FOR LOWER INCOME FAMILIES

SEC. 108. (a) In order to encourage the use of new housing technologies in providing decent, safe, and sanitary housing for lower income families; to encourage large-scale experimentation in the use of such technologies; to provide a basis for comparison of such technologies with existing housing technologies in providing such housing; and to evaluate the effect of local housing codes and zoning regulations on the large-scale use of new housing technologies in the provision of such housing, the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development (hereinafter referred to as the "Secretary") shall institute a program under which qualified organizations, public and private, will submit plans for the development of housing for lower income families, using new and advanced technologies, on Federal land which has been made available by the Secretary for the purposes of this section, or on other land where (1) local building regulations permit the construction of experimental housing, or (2) State or local law permits variances from building regulations in the construction of experimental housing for the purpose of testing and developing new building technologies.

(b) The Secretary shall approve not more than five plans utilizing new housing technologies which are submitted to him pursuant to the program referred to in subsection (a) and which he determines are most promising in furtherance of the purposes of this section. In making such determination the Secretary shall consider—

(1) the potential of the technology employed for producing housing for lower income families on a large scale at a moderate cost;

(2) the extent to which the plan envisages environmental quality;

(3) the possibility of mass production of the technology; and

(4) the financial soundness of the organization submitting the plan, and the ability of such organization, alone or in combination with other organizations, to produce at least one thousand dwelling units a year utilizing the technology proposed.

(c) In approving projects for mortgage insurance under section 233 (a) (2) of the National Housing Act (as added by subsection (f) of this section), the Secretary shall seek to achieve the construction of at least one thousand dwelling units a year over a five-year period for each of the various types of technologies proposed in approved plans under subsection (b). The Secretary shall evaluate each project with respect to which assistance is extended pursuant to this section with a view to determining (1) the detailed cost breakdown per dwelling unit, (2) the environmental quality achieved in each such unit, and (3) the effect which local housing codes and zoning regulations have, or would have if applicable, on the cost per dwelling unit.

(d) Notwithstanding the provisions of the Federal Property and Administrative Services Act of 1949, any land which is excess property within the meaning of such Act and which is determined by the Secretary to be suitable in furtherance of the purposes of this section may be transferred to the Secretary upon his request.

(e) The Secretary shall, at the earliest practicable date, report his findings with respect to projects assisted pursuant to this section (including evaluations of each such project in accordance with subsection (c)), together with such recommendations for additional legislation as he determines to be necessary or desirable to expand the available supply of decent, safe, and sanitary housing for lower income families through the use of technologies the efficacy of which has been demonstrated under this section.

(f) (1) Section 233 (a) of the National Housing Act is amended—

(A) by inserting "(1)" after "(a)",

(B) by redesignating clauses (1), (2), and (3) as clauses (A), (B), and (C), respectively, and

(C) by adding at the end thereof the following new paragraph:

"(2) The Secretary is further authorized to insure and to make commitments to insure, under this section, mortgages (including advances on mortgages during construction) secured by properties in projects to be carried out in accordance with plans approved by the Secretary under section 108 of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968.".

(2) Section 233 (c) of such Act is amended by inserting at the end thereof the following new sentence: "Any authority which the Secretary may exercise in connection with a mortgage, or property covered by a mortgage, insured under any other section of this title (including payments to reduce rentals for, or to facilitate homeownership by, lower income families) may be exercised in connection with a mortgage, or property covered by a mortgage, meeting the requirements of such other section (except as specified in subsection (b)), which is insured under this section to the same extent and in the same manner as if the mortgage insured under this section was insured under such other section."

INSURANCE PROTECTION FOR HOMEOWNERS

SEC. 109. (a) The Secretary of Housing and Urban Development is authorized, in cooperation with the private insurance industry, to develop a plan for the establishment at the earliest practicable date of an insurance program to help homeowners in meeting mortgage payments in times of personal economic adversity. Such insurance program shall be designed to protect mortgagors against foreclosure due to curtailment of income resulting from factors beyond their effective control, including such factors as death, disability, illness, and unemployment. Such insurance program shall also be designed to be actuarially sound through the use of premiums, fees, extended or increased payment schedules, or other similar methods, in conjunction with such Federal participation as may be necessary.

(b) Within six months following the date of enactment of this Act, the Secretary shall report to the Congress on his actions under this section, and shall recommend to the Congress such legislation as he deems appropriate to authorize him to enter into agreements with any insurance company, or any corporation or joint enterprise formed to provide home mortgage insurance protection, for the purpose of reinsuring insurance reserve funds, subsidizing premium payments on behalf of lower income mortgagors, or otherwise making possible the insurance protection of homeowners in accordance with subsection (a). In preparing such recommendations the Secretary shall consult with other agencies or instrumentalities of the United States which insure or guarantee home mortgages in order that such legislation as may be recommended affords equal benefits to mortgagors participating in their programs.

TITLE II—RENTAL HOUSING FOR LOW AND MODERATE INCOME FAMILIES

PART A—PRIVATE HOUSING

RENTAL AND COOPERATIVE HOUSING FOR LOW AND MODERATE INCOME FAMILIES

SEC. 201. (a) Title II of the National Housing Act is amended by adding after section 235 (as added by section 101 of this Act) the following new section:

"RENTAL AND COOPERATIVE HOUSING FOR LOW AND MODERATE INCOME FAMILIES

"SEC. 236. (a) For the purpose of reducing rentals for low and moderate income families, the Secretary is authorized to make, and to contract to make, periodic interest reduction payments on behalf of the owner of a rental housing project designed for occupancy by low and moderate income families, which shall be accomplished through payments to mortgagees holding mortgages meeting the special requirements specified in this section.

"(b) Interest reduction payments with respect to a project shall only be made during such time as the project is operated as a rental housing project and is subject to a mortgage which meets the requirements of, and is insured under, subsection (j) of this section: Provided, That interest reduction payments may be made with respect to a rental or cooperative housing project owned by a private nonprofit corporation or other private nonprofit entity, a limited dividend corporation or other limited dividend entity, or a cooperative housing corporation, which is financed under a State or local program providing assistance through loans, loan insurance, or tax abatements, and which, prior to completion of construction or rehabilitation, is approved for receiving the benefits of this section.

"(c) The interest reduction payments to a mortgagee by the Secretary on behalf of a project owner shall be in an amount not exceeding the difference between the monthly payment for principal, interest, and mortgage insurance premium which the project owner as a mortgagor is obligated to pay under the mortgage and the monthly payment for principal and interest such project owner would be obligated to pay if the mortgage were to bear interest at the rate of 1 per centum per annum.

"(d) The Secretary may include in the payment to the mortgagee such amount, in addition to the amount computed under subsection (c), as he deems appropriate to reimburse the mortgagee for its expenses in handling the mortgage.

"(e) As a condition for receiving the benefits of interest reduction payments, the project owner shall operate the project in accordance with such requirements with respect to tenant elegibility and rents as the Secretary may prescribe. Procedures shall be adopted by the Secretary for review of tenant incomes at intervals of two years (or at shorter intervals where the Secretary deems it desirable).

"(f) For each dwelling unit there shall be established with the approval of the Secretary (1) a basic rental charge determined on the basis of operating the project with payments of principal and interest due under a mortgage bearing interest at the rate of 1 per centum per annum; and (2) a fair market rental charge determined on the basis of operating the project with payments of principal, interest, and mortgage insurance premium which the mortgagor is obligated to pay under the mortgage covering the project. The rental for each dwelling unit shall be at the basic rental charge or such greater amount, not exceeding the fair market rental charge, as represents 20 per centum of the tenant's income.

"(g) The project owner shall, as required by the Secretary, accumulate, safeguard, and periodically pay to the Secretary all rental charges collected in excess of the basic rental charges. Such excess charges shall be deposited by the Secretary in a fund which may be used by him as a revolving fund for the purpose of making interest reduction payments with respect to any rental housing project covered by a mortgage insured under this section, subject to limits approved in appropriation Acts pursuant to subsection (i). Moneys in such fund not needed for current operations may be invested in bonds or other obligations of the United States or in bonds or other obligations guaranteed as to principal and interest by the United States.

"(h) In addition to establishing the requirements specified in subsection (e), the Secretary is authorized to make such rules and regulations, to enter into such agreements, and to adopt such procedures as he may deem necessary or desirable to carry out the provisions of this section.

"(i) There are authorized to be appropriated such sums as may be necessary to carry out the provisions of this section, including such sums as may be necessary to make interest reduction payments under contracts entered into under this section. The aggregate amount of contracts to make such payments shall not exceed amounts approved in appropriation Acts, and payments pursuant to such contracts shall not exceed $75,000,000 per annum prior to July 1, 1969, which maximum dollar amount shall be increased by $100,000,000 on July 1, 1969, and by $125,000,000 on July 1, 1970.

"(j) (1) The Secretary is authorized, upon application by the mortgagee, to insure a mortgage (including advances on such mortgage during construction) which meets the requirements of this subsection. Commitments for the insurance of such mortgages may be issued by the Secretary prior to the date of their execution or disbursement thereon, upon such terms and conditions as he may prescribe.

"(2) As used in this subsection—

"(A) the terms 'family' and 'families' shall have the same meaning as in section 221;

"(B) the term 'elderly or handicapped families' shall have the same meaning as in section 202 of the Housing Act of 1959; and

"(C) the terms 'mortgage', 'mortgagee', and 'mortgagor' shall have the same meaning as in section 201.

"(3) To be eligible for insurance under this subsection, a mortgage shall meet the requirements specified in subsections (d) (1) and (d) (3) of section 221, except as such requirements are modified by this subsection. In the case of a project financed with a mortgage insured under this subsection which involves a mortgagor other than a cooperative or a private nonprofit corporation or association and which is sold to a cooperative or a nonprofit corporation or association, the Secretary is further authorized to insure under this subsection a mortgage given by such purchaser in an amount not exceeding the appraised value of the property at the time of purchase, which value shall be based upon a mortgage amount on which the debt service can be met from the income of the property when operated on a nonprofit basis, after payment of all operating expenses, taxes, and required reserves.

"(4) A mortgage to be insured under this subsection shall—

"(A) be executed by a private mortgagor eligible under subsection (d) (3) or (e) of section 221;

"(B) bear interest (exclusive of premium charges for insurance and service charges, if any) at not to exceed such per centum per annum (not in excess of 6 per centum), on the amount of the principal obligation outstanding at any time, as the Secretary finds necessary to meet the mortgage market; and

"(C) provide for complete amortization by periodic payments within such term as the Secretary may prescribe.

"(5) The property or project shall—

"(A) comply with such standards and conditions as the Secretary may prescribe to establish the acceptability of the property for mortgage insurance and may include such nondwelling facilities as the Secretary deems adequate and appropriate to serve the occupants and the surrounding neighborhood: Provided, That the project shall be predominantly residential and any nondwelling facility included in the mortgage shall be found by the Secretary to contribute to the economic feasibility of the project, and the Secretary shall give due consideration to the possible effect of the project on other business enterprises in the community: Provided further, That, in the case of a project designed primarily for occupancy by elderly or handicapped families, the project may include related facilities for use by elderly or handicapped families, including cafeterias or dining halls, community rooms, workshops, infirmaries or other inpatient or outpatient health facilities, and other essential service facilities;

"(B) include five or more dwelling units; and

"(C) be designed primarily for use as a rental project to be occupied by low and moderate income families or by elderly or handicapped families: Provided, That low and moderate income persons who are less than sixty-two years of age shall be eligible for occupancy in such a project, but not more than 10 per centum of the dwelling units in any such project shall be available for occupancy by such persons.

"(6) With the approval of the Secretary, the mortgagor may sell the individual dwelling units to low and moderate income or elderly or handicapped purchasers. The Secretary may consent to the release of the mortgagor from his liability under the mortgage and the credit instrument secured thereby, or consent to the release of parts of the mortgaged property from the lien of the mortgage, upon such terms and conditions as he may prescribe, and the mortgage may provide for such release.

"(k) As used in this section the term 'tenant' includes a member of a cooperative; the term 'rental housing project' includes a cooperative housing project; and the terms 'rental' and 'rental charge' mean, with respect to members of a cooperative, the charges under the occupancy agreements between such members and the cooperative.

"(l) The Secretary shall from time to time allocate and transfer to the Secretary of Agriculture, for use (in accordance with the terms and conditions of this section) in rural areas and small towns, a reasonable portion of the total authority to contract to make periodic interest reduction payments as approved in appropriation Acts under subsection (i)."

(b) (1) Section 212(a) of such Act is amended by striking out "or 232" in the first sentence of the second paragraph and inserting in lieu thereof ", 232, or 236".

(2) Section 227 (a) of such Act is amended by striking out "or (viii) under section 234 (d)" and inserting in lieu thereof "(viii) under section 234 (d), or (ix) under section 236".

(3) Section 227 (c) of such Act is amended by striking out "or section 233 (b) (2)" each place it appears and inserting in lieu thereof "section 233, or section 236".

(c) The Secretary of Housing and Urban Development is authorized, upon such terms and conditions as he may prescribe, to transfer to section 236 (j) of the National Housing Act the insurance of a mortgage which has not been finally endorsed for insurance under section 221 (d) (3) of such Act and which has been approved for the below-market interest rate prescribed in the proviso of section 221 (d) (5) of such Act.

(d) The Secretary of Housing and Urban Development is authorized, upon such terms and conditions as he may prescribe, to insure under section 236 (j) of the National Housing Act a mortgage meeting the requirements of such section which is given to refinance a mortgage loan made under section 202 of the Housing Act of 1959: Provided, That the application for such insurance is filed with the Secretary on or before the date of project completion, or within such reasonable time thereafter as the Secretary may permit.

(e) (1) Section 101 (d) of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965 is amended by striking out "one-fourth" and inserting in lieu thereof "one-fifth".

(2) Section 101 (g) of such Act is amended by striking out "or 231 (c) (3)" and inserting in lieu thereof ", 231 (c) (3), or 236".

(3) Section 101 (j) (1) of such Act is amended—

(A) by striking out "and" at the end of subparagraph (B);

(B) by striking out the period at the end of subparagraph (C) and inserting in lieu thereof "; and"; and

(C) by inserting after subparagraph (C) a new subparagraph as follows:

"(D) a private nonprofit corporation or other private nonprofit legal entity, a limited dividend corporation or other limited divided legal entity, or a cooperative housing corporation, which is a mortgagor under a mortgage insured under section 236 (j) of the National Housing Act which has been approved for receiving the benefits of this section: Provided, That payments shall not be made with respect to more than 20 per centum of the dwelling units in any property so financed."

(f) Section 207 of the Appalachian Regional Development Act of 1965 is amended—

(1) by inserting in the heading "AND SECTION 236" immediately after "SECTION 221";

(2) by inserting "or section 236" after "section 221" each place it appears;

(3) by inserting "or 'section 236'" after "'section 221'" in subsection (a); and

(4) by inserting ", Government National Mortgage Association," immediately after "Federal Housing Administration" in subsection (c).

(g) The first sentence of section 305 (i) of the National Housing Act is amended—

(1) by striking out "or (3)" and inserting in lieu thereof "(3)", and

(2) by inserting after "221 (e)" the following: ", or (4) a mortgage insured under section 236".

RENT SUPPLEMENT PROGRAM

SEC. 202. (a) Section 101 (a) of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965 is amended by striking out everything after the word "exceed" the second time the word appears in the third sentence and inserting in lieu thereof the following: "$150,000,000 per annum prior to July 1, 1969, which maximum dollar amount shall be increased by $40,000,000 on July 1, 1969, and by $100,000,000 on July 1, 1970."

(b) Section 101 (b) of such Act is amended by inserting after the first sentence the following: "Such term also includes a private nonprofit corporation or other private nonprofit legal entity, a limited dividend corporation or other limited dividend legal entity, or a cooperative housing corporation, which is the owner of a rental or cooperative housing project financed under a State or local program providing assistance through loans, loan insurance, or tax abatement and which prior to completion of construction or rehabilitation is approved for receiving the benefits of this section."

PART B—LOW-RENT PUBLIC HOUSING

INCREASED LOW-RENT PUBLIC HOUSING AUTHORIZATION

SEC. 203. (a) Section 10 (e) of the United States Housing Act of 1937 is amended by striking out "$366,250,000 per annum, which limit shall be increased by $47,000,000 on the date of enactment of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965, and by further amounts of $47,000,000 on July 1 in each of the years 1966, 1967, and 1968, respectively," in the first sentence and inserting in lieu thereof the following: "$554,250,000 per annum, which limit shall be increased by $100,000,000 on the date of enactment of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968 and by further amounts of $150,000,000 on July 1 in each of the years 1969 and 1970,".

(b) Section 20 of such Act is amended—

(1) by striking out "not to exceed $1,500,000,000" in the first sentence and inserting in lieu thereof "which shall not, unless authorized by the President, exceed $1,500,000,000"; and

(2) by inserting after the first sentence the following: "For the purpose of determining obligations incurred to make loans pursuant to this Act against any limitation otherwise applicable with respect to such loans, the Secretary shall estimate the maximum amount to be loaned at any one time pursuant to loan agreements then outstanding with public housing agencies."

UPGRADING MANAGEMENT AND SERVICES IN PUBLIC HOUSING PROJECTS

SEC. 204. Section 15 of the United States Housing Act of 1937 is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new paragraph:

"(10) The Secretary is authorized to enter into contracts to make grants to public housing agencies to assist, where necessary, in financing tenant services for families living in low-rent housing projects. In making such contracts and grants, the Secretary shall give preference to programs providing for the maximum feasible participation of the tenants in the development and operation of such tenant services. For purposes of this paragraph the term 'tenant services' includes (without being limited to) the following services and activities for families living in low-rent housing projects: counseling on household management, housekeeping, budgeting, money management, child care, and similar matters; advice as to resources for job training and placement, education, welfare, health, and other community services; services which are directly related to meeting tenant needs and providing a wholesome living environment, including intertenant activities; and referral to appropriate agencies when necessary for the provision of such services. To the maximum extent available and appropriate, existing public and private agencies in the community shall be used for the provision of such services. There are authorized to be appropriated for the purposes of this paragraph not to exceed $20,000,000 for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1969, and not to exceed $40,000,000 for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1970."

PURCHASE OF UNITS BY TENANTS

SEC. 205. Section 15 (9) of the United States Housing Act of 1937 is amended by striking out "which is suitable by reason of its detached or semidetached construction" and inserting in lieu thereof ", if the property to be acquired is sufficiently separable from other property retained by the public housing agency to make it suitable".

PUBLIC HOUSING IN INDIAN AREAS

SEC. 206. (a) Section 1 of the United States Housing Act of 1937 is amended by striking out "urban and rural nonfarm" in the first sentence and inserting in lieu thereof "urban, rural nonfarm, and Indian".

(b) Section 10 (a) of such Act is amended by inserting "or Indian" after "nonfarm" in the fourth proviso.

LIMITATION ON HIGH-RISE STRUCTURES IN LOW-RENT PUBLIC HOUSING PROJECTS

SEC. 207. Section 15 of the United States Housing Act of 1937 is amended by adding at the end thereof (after the new paragraph added by section 204 of this Act) the following new paragraph:

"(11) Except in the case of housing predominantly for the elderly, upon enactment of this paragraph, the Secretary shall not approve high-rise elevator projects for families with children unless he makes a determination that there is no practical alternative."

PROHIBITION AGAINST CERTAIN LIMITATIONS ON TYPES OR CATEGORIES OF LOW-RENT HOUSING IN PRIVATE ACCOMMODATIONS

SEC. 208. The first sentence of section 23 (d) of the United States Housing Act of 1937 is amended by inserting before the period at the end thereof the following: "(and no limitation not specifically provided for in this section shall be imposed by regulations of the Authority on the types or categories of structures or dwelling units, qualifying under subsection (a) (3) and approved under subsection (c), which may be so used in any community)".

LIMITATION ON NUMBER OF UNITS OF LOW-RENT HOUSING IN PRIVATE ACCOMMODATIONS PER STRUCTURE

SEC. 209. The first sentence of section 23 (c) of the United States Housing Act of 1937 is amended by striking out "not exceeding 10 per centum of the units in any single structure except" and inserting in lieu thereof the following: "not exceeding, in the case of any single structure, the lesser of (i) ten units or 10 per centum of the units in the structure, whichever is greater, or (ii) 50 per centum of the units in the structure, with such lesser number being increased (if it is not a whole number) to the next higher whole number; except".

SALE TO TENANTS OF LOW-RENT HOUSING IN PRIVATE ACCOMMODATIONS

SEC. 210. (a) Section 23 (f) of the United States Housing Act of 1937 is amended by inserting "(1)" after "shall not apply to", and by inserting before the period at the end thereof the following: ", or (2) housing purchased (or in the process of purchase) by the public housing agency for resale to tenants as provided in subsection (g)".

(b) Section 23 of such Act is further amended by adding at the end thereof the following new subsection:

"(g) To the extent authorized in contracts entered into by the Authority with a public housing agency, such agency may purchase any structure containing one or more dwelling units leased to provide low-rent housing in private accommodations under this section for the purpose of reselling the structure to the tenant or tenants of the structure or to a group of such tenants occupying units aggregating in value at least 80 per centum of the structure's total value. Any such resale shall be made subject to such terms and conditions (including provision for deferment of the required downpayment and for elimination of or adjustments in the required interest payments during a temporary period) as may be necessary to enable the tenants involved to make the purchase without undue financial hardship."

ADDITIONAL SUBSIDY FOR LARGE FAMILIES AND FAMILIES OF UNUSUALLY LOW INCOME

SEC. 211. (a) Section 2(2) of the United States Housing Act of 1937 is amended by inserting at the end thereof the following new sentences: "The term 'large families' means families which include four or more minors. The term 'families of unusually low income' means families with incomes below the income level established by the public housing agency, as approved by the Authority, who could not be housed without the additional subsidy authorized under section 10(a)."

(b) The first proviso in section 10(a) of such Act is amended—

(1) by inserting after "an elderly family," the following: "or a large family, or a family of unusually low income,";

(2) by striking out "to lease the dwelling unit to an elderly or displaced family at a rental it could afford and"; and

(3) by striking out ", and, in the case of displaced families, if and to the extent that the average or estimated average rental for units so occupied by such families was less than the rental which the Authority determines, on the basis of the average or estimated average project rentals, would have been established in leasing the units to families which were neither elderly nor similarly displaced".

TITLE III—FEDERAL HOUSING ADMINISTRATION INSURANCE OPERATIONS

MORTGAGE INSURANCE PREMIUMS FOR SERVICEMEN AND THEIR WIDOWS

SEC. 301. Section 222 of the National Housing Act is amended—

(1) by striking out "Secretary of the Treasury" each place it appears and inserting in lieu thereof "Secretary of Transportation"; and

(2) by adding at the end thereof two new subsections as follows:

"(f) The Secretary is authorized to transfer to this section the insurance on any mortgage covering a single-family dwelling or a one-family unit in a condominium project insured under this Act, if the mortgage indebtedness thereof has been assumed by a serviceman who at the time of assumption is the owner of the property and either occupies the property or certifies that his failure to do so is the result of his military assignment, or, in the case of the United States Coast Guard, other assignment.

"(g) Where a serviceman dies while on active duty in the Armed Forces of the United States or in the United States Coast Guard, leaving a surviving widow as owner of the property, the period of ownership by the serviceman (within the meaning of subsection (c) of this section) shall extend for two years beyond the date of the serviceman's death or until the date the widow disposes of the property, whichever date occurs first. The Secretary of Defense or the Secretary of Transportation, as the case may be, shall notify such widow promptly following the serviceman's death of the additional costs to be borne by the mortgagor following termination of the two-year period."

MODIFICATIONS IN TERMS OF INSURED MORTGAGES COVERING MULTIFAMILY PROJECTS

SEC. 302. Title II of the National Housing Act is amended by adding after section 238 (as added by section 104 of this Act) the following new section:

"MODIFICATIONS IN TERMS OF INSURED MORTGAGES COVERING MULTIFAMILY PROJECTS

"SEC. 239. (a) The Secretary shall not consent to any request for an extension of the time for curing a default under any mortgage covering multifamily housing, as defined in the regulations of the Secretary, or for a modification of the terms of such mortgage, except in conformity with regulations prescribed by the Secretary in accordance with the provisions of this section. Such regulations shall require, as a condition to the granting of any such request, that, during the period of such extension or modification, any part of the rents or other funds derived by the mortgagor from the property covered by the mortgage which is not required to meet actual and necessary expenses arising in connection with the operation of such property, including amortization charges under the mortgage, be held in trust by the mortgagor and distributed only with the consent of the Secretary; except that the Secretary may provide for the granting of consent to any request for an extension of the time for curing a default under any mortgage covering multifamily housing, or for a modification of the terms of such mortgage, without regard to the foregoing requirement, in any case or class of cases in which an exemption from such requirement does not (as determined by the Secretary) jeopardize the interests of the United States.

"(b) Whoever, as an owner of a property which is security for a mortgage described in subsection (a), or as a stockholder of a corporation owning such property, or as a beneficial owner under any business organization or trust owning such property, or as an officer, director, or agent of any such owner, (1) willfully uses or authorizes the use of any part of the rents or other funds derived from property covered by such mortgage in violation of a regulation prescribed by the Secretary under subsection (a), or (2) if such mortgage is determined, as provided in subsection (a), to be exempt from the requirement of any such regulation or is not otherwise covered by such regulation, willfully and knowingly uses or authorizes the use, while such mortgage is in default, of any part of the rents or other funds derived from the property covered by such mortgage for any purpose other than to meet actual and necessary expenses arising in connection with such property (including amortization charges under the mortgage), shall be fined not more than $5,000 or imprisoned not more than three years, or both."

CONDOMINIUMS

SEC. 303. (a) Section 234(c) of the National Housing Act is amended by striking out "rental housing, and (3)" in the first sentence and inserting in lieu thereof the following: "rental housing: Provided, That a one-family unit in a multifamily project involving eleven or less units shall be eligible for insurance without having been covered by a project mortgage, and (3)".

(b) Section 234(c) of such Act is further amended by striking out "(iii) 75 per centum" in the third sentence and inserting in lieu thereof "(iii) 80 per centum".

(c) Section 234(f) of such Act is amended by striking "five" and inserting in lieu thereof "four".

INSURANCE OF LOANS FOR PURCHASE OF FEE SIMPLE TITLE FROM LESSORS

SEC. 304. (a) Title II of the National Housing Act is amended by adding after section 239 (as added by section 302 of this Act) the following new section:

"PURCHASE OF FEE SIMPLE TITLE FROM LESSORS

"SEC. 240. (a) The Secretary is authorized, upon such terms and conditions as he may prescribe, to make commitments to insure and to insure loans made by financial institutions for the purpose of financing purchases by homeowners of the fee simple title to property on which their homes are located.

"(b) As used in this section—

"(1) the term 'financial institution' means a lender approved by the Secretary as eligible for insurance under section 2 or a mortgagee approved under section 203 (b) (1); and

"(2) the term 'homeowner' means a lessee under a long-term ground lease.

"(c) To be eligible for insurance under this section, a loan shall—

"(1) relate to property on which there is located a dwelling designed principally for a one-, two-, three-, or four-family residence;

"(2) not exceed the cost of purchasing the fee simple title, or $10,000 per family unit, whichever is the lesser;

"(3) be limited to an amount which when added to any outstanding indebtedness related to the property (as determined by the Secretary) creates a total outstanding indebtedness which does not exceed the applicable mortgage limit prescribed in section 203 (b) ;

"(4) bear interest at not to exceed such per centum per annum (not to exceed 6 per centum), on the amount of the principal obligation outstanding at any time, as the Secretary finds necessary to meet market conditions, and such other charges (including service charges and appraisal, inspection, and other fees) as may be approved by the Secretary;

"(5) have a maturity satisfactory to the Secretary, but not to exceed twenty years from the beginning of amortization of the loan or three-quarters of the remaining economic life of the home, whichever is the lesser; and

"(6) comply with such other terms, conditions, and restrictions as the Secretary may prescribe.

"(d) The provisions of paragraphs (3), (5), (6), (7), (8), and (10) of section 220 (h) shall be applicable to loans insured under this section and, as applied to loans insured under this section, references in those paragraphs to 'home improvement loans' and 'this subsection' shall be construed to refer to loans under this section."

(b) Section 5(c) of the Home Owners' Loan Act of 1933 (12 U.S.C. 1464(c)) is amended by adding immediately before the last paragraph the following new paragraph:

"Notwithstanding any other provision of this subsection, an association may invest in loans or obligations, or interests therein, as to which the association has the benefit of insurance under section 240 of the National Housing Act, or of a commitment or agreement therefor, and such investments shall not be included in any percentage of assets or other percentage referred to in this subsection."

EXTENSION OF SECTION 221(d)(2) SALES HOUSING PROGRAM FOR TWO-, THREE-, AND FOUR-FAMILY RESIDENCES TO ALL LOW AND MODERATE INCOME FAMILIES

SEC. 305. Section 221(d)(2) of the National Housing Act is amended by striking out "a displaced family" at the end of the first proviso and inserting in lieu thereof "the mortgagor".

REMOVAL OF DIVIDEND RESTRICTION FOR NONDWELLING FACILITIES IN SECTION 221 PROJECTS

SEC. 306. Section 221(f) of the National Housing Act is amended by striking out in the first sentence all that follows the word "mortgage" in the proviso and inserting in lieu thereof ": Provided further, That, in the case of a mortgage which bears interest at the below-market interest rate prescribed in the proviso of subsection (d) (5), the provisions of section 220 (d) (3) (B) (iv) shall only apply if the mortgagor waives the right to receive dividends on its equity investment in the portion thereof devoted to commercial facilities."

SUPPLEMENTAL LOAN PROGRAM FOR PROJECTS FINANCED WITH FEDERAL HOUSING ADMINISTRATION INSURED MORTGAGES

SEC. 307. Title II of the National Housing Act is amended by adding after section 240 (as added by section 304 of this Act) the following new section:

"SUPPLEMENTAL LOANS FOR MULTIFAMILY PROJECTS

"SEC. 241. (a) With respect to a multifamily project or group practice facility covered by a mortgage insured under any section or title of this Act, the Secretary is authorized, upon such terms and conditions as he may prescribe, to make commitments to insure, and to insure, supplemental loans (including advances during construction or improvement) made by financial institutions approved by the Secretary. As used in this section, 'supplemental loan' means a loan, advance of credit, or purchase of an obligation representing a loan or advance of credit made for the purpose of financing improvements or additions to such project or facility: Provided, That a loan involving a nursing home covered by a mortgage insured under section 232 or a loan involving a group practice facility covered by a mortgage insured under title XI may also be made for the purpose of financing equipment to be used in the operation of such nursing home or facility.

"(b) To be eligible for insurance under this section, a supplemental loan shall—

"(1) be limited to 90 per centum of the amount which the Secretary estimates will be the value of such improvements, additions, and equipment, except that such amount, when added to the outstanding balance of the mortgage covering the project or facility, shall not exceed the maximum mortgage amount insurable under the section or title pursuant to which the mortgage covering such project or facility is insured;

"(2) have a maturity satisfactory to the Secretary but not to exceed the remaining term of the mortgage;

"(3) bear interest (exclusive of premium charges for insurance and service charges, if any) at not to exceed such per centum per annum (not in excess of 6 per centum), on the amount of the principal obligation outstanding at any time, as the Secretary finds necessary to meet market conditions;

"(4) be secured in such manner as the Secretary may require;

"(5) be governed by the labor standards provisions of section 212 that are applicable to the section or title pursuant to which the mortgage covering the project or facility is insured; and

"(6) contain such other terms, conditions, and restrictions as the Secretary may prescribe.

"(c) The provisions of subsections (d), (e), (g), (h), (i), (j), (k), (l), and (n) of section 207 shall be applicable to loans insured under this section, except that (1) all references to the term 'mortgage' shall be construed to refer to the term 'loan' as used in this section, (2) loans involving projects covered by a mortgage insured under section 213 that is the obligation of the Cooperative Management Housing Insurance Fund shall be insured under and shall be the obligation of such fund, and (3) loans involving projects covered by a mortgage insured under section 236 shall be insured under and shall be the obligation of the Special Risk Insurance Fund."

REHABILITATED MULTIFAMILY PROJECTS IN URBAN RENEWAL AREAS

SEC. 311. (a) Section 220 (d) (3) (B) (ii) of the National Housing Act is amended by inserting immediately before the semicolon at the end thereof ": Provided further, That the mortgage may involve the financing of the purchase of property which has been rehabilitated by a local public agency with Federal assistance pursuant to section 110(c)(8) of the Housing Act of 1949, and, in such case, the foregoing limitations upon the amount of the mortgage shall be based upon the appraised value of the property as of the date the mortgage is accepted for insurance".

(b) Section 221(d)(3)(iii) of such Act is amended by inserting immediately before the colon at the end of the first proviso ": Provided further, That the mortgage may involve the financing of the purchase of property which has been rehabilitated by a local public agency with Federal assistance pursuant to section 110(c)(8) of the Housing Act of 1949, and, in such case, the amount of the mortgage shall not exceed the appraised value of the property as of the date the mortgage is accepted for insurance".

MISCELLANEOUS HOUSING INSURANCE

SEC. 312. (a) Section 223 of the National Housing Act is amended—

(1) by striking out so much of subsection (a) as precedes paragraph (1) and inserting in lieu thereof the following:

"(a) Notwithstanding any of the provisions of this Act and without regard to limitations upon eligibility contained in any section or title of this Act, the Secretary is authorized, upon application by the mortgagee, to insure or make commitments to insure under any section or title of this Act any mortgage—";

(2) by striking out "applicable to loans insured under section 203, 207, 213, 220, 221, 222, 231, 232, or 233, as the case may be" in the first and second provisos of subsection (a) (7) and inserting in lieu thereof "prescribed under the applicable section or title of this Act";

(3) by striking out "this title" each time it appears in subsection (c) and inserting in lieu thereof "this Act";

(4) by striking out "title I, title II, title VI, title VII, title VIII, or title IX" in subsection (c) and inserting in lieu thereof "any section or title of this Act"; and

(5) by striking out "(except that in any case the payment of insurance shall be in debentures)" at the end of subsection (c).

(b) Section 223 (d) of such Act is amended by striking out all that follows "as he may prescribe," and inserting in lieu thereof the following: "insure under the same section as the original mortgage a loan by the mortgagee in an amount not exceeding the excess of the foregoing expenses over the project income. Such loan shall (1) bear interest (exclusive of premium charges for insurance) at not to exceed the per centum per annum currently permitted for mortgages insured under the section under which it is to be insured, (2) be secured in such manner as the Secretary shall require, and (3) be limited to a term not exceeding the unexpired term of the original mortgage. The Secretary is authorized to collect a premium charge for insurance of loans pursuant to this subsection in an amount computed at the same premium rate as is applicable to the original mortgage. This premium shall be payable in cash or in debentures of the insurance fund under which the loan is insured at par plus accrued interest. In the event of a failure of the borrower to make any payment due under such loan or under the original mortgage, both the loan and original mortgage shall be considered in default, and if such default continues for a period of thirty days, the lender shall be entitled to insurance benefits, computed in the same manner as for the original mortgage, except that in determining the interest rate under section 224 for the debentures representing the portion of the claim applicable to the loan, the date of the commitment to insure the loan and the insurance date of the loan shall be taken into consideration rather than the commitment or insurance date for the original mortgage."

SEC. 313. Section 213 (j) of the National Housing Act is amended—

(1) by inserting after the first sentence of paragraph (1) the following sentence: "The Secretary is further authorized to make commitments to insure and to insure supplementary cooperative loans (including advances during construction or improvement) with respect to any property purchased from the Federal Government by a nonprofit corporation or trust of the character described in paragraph (1) of subsection (a), if the property is covered by an uninsured mortgage representing a part of the purchase price."; and

(2) by adding before the semicolon at the end of paragraph (2) (B) the following: "; except that, in the case of repairs or improvements to a property covered by an uninsured mortgage dated more than twenty years prior to the date of the commitment to insure, of such magnitude that the Secretary deems them to be a major rehabilitation or modernization of such property, the loan may have a maturity date up to ten years in excess of the remaining term of the uninsured mortgage".

EQUIPMENT IN NURSING HOMES

(1) by striking out subsection (b) (2) and inserting in lieu thereof the following:

"(2) the term 'mortgage' means a first mortgage on real estate in fee simple, or on the interest of either the lessor or lessee thereof (A) under a lease for not less than ninety-nine years which is renewable, or (B) under a lease having a period of not less than fifty years to run from the date the mortgage was executed. The term 'first mortgage' means such classes of first liens as are commonly given to secure advances (including but not limited to advances during construction) on, or the unpaid purchase price of, real estate under the laws of the State in which the real estate is located, together with the credit instrument or instruments, if any, secured thereby, and any mortgage may be in the form of one or more trust mortgages or mortgage indentures or deeds of trust, securing notes, bonds, or other credit instruments, and, by the same instrument or by a separate instrument, may create a security interest in initial equipment, whether or not attached to the realty. The term 'mortgagor' shall have the meaning set forth in section 207 (a) of this Act.";

(2) by striking out so much of subsection (d) as precedes paragraph (1) and inserting in lieu thereof the following:

"(d) In order to carry out the purposes of this section, the Secretary is authorized to insure any mortgage which covers a new or rehabilitated nursing home, including equipment to be used in its operation, subject to the following conditions:"; and

(3) by striking out "when the proposed improvements are completed" before the period at the end of subsection (d) (2) and inserting in lieu thereof the following: ", including equipment to be used in the operation of the nursing home, when the proposed improvements are completed and the equipment is installed".

FLEXIBLE INTEREST RATES FOR CERTAIN FHA INSURANCE PROGRAMS

SEC. 315. Section 3 (a) of the Act entitled "An Act to amend chapter 37 of title 38 of the United States Code with respect to the veterans' home loan program, to amend the National Housing Act with respect to interest rates on insured mortgages, and for other purposes", approved May 7, 1968, is amended by inserting "235 (j) (2) (C), 236 (j) (4) (B), 240 (c) (4), 241 (b) (3), 242 (d) (3) (B)," after "234 (f),".

"(A) be executed by a private nonprofit corporation or association, approved by the Secretary, for financing the purchase and rehabilitation (with the intention of subsequent resale) of property comprising one or more tracts or parcels, whether or not contiguous, upon which there is located deteriorating or substandard housing consisting of (i) four or more single-family dwellings of detached, semidetached, or row construction, or (ii) four or more one-family units in a structure or structures for which a plan of family unit ownership approved by the Secretary is established;".

(b) Section 221 (h) of such Act is amended by adding at the end thereof (after the new paragraph added by section 101 (c) (3) of this Act) two new paragraphs as follows:

"(7) Where the Secretary has approved a plan of family unit ownership, the terms 'single-family dwelling', 'single-family dwellings', 'individual dwelling', and 'individual dwellings' shall mean a family unit or family units, together with the undivided interest (or interests) in the common areas and facilities.

"(8) For purposes of this subsection, the terms 'single-family dwelling' and 'single-family dwellings' (except for purposes of paragraph (7)) shall include a two-family dwelling which has been approved by the Secretary if one of the units is to be occupied by the owner."

HOUSING IN OUTLYING AREAS

SEC. 317. Section 203 (i) of the National Housing Act is amended by striking out "not in excess of $12,500" and inserting in lieu thereof "not in excess of $15,000".

TITLE IV—URBAN RENEWAL

NEIGHBORHOOD DEVELOPMENT PROGRAMS

SEC. 401. (a) Title I of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended by adding after the title heading the following new subheading:

"PART A—URBAN RENEWAL PROJECTS, DEMOLITION PROGRAMS, AND CODE ENFORCEMENT PROGRAMS"

(b) Title I of such Act is further amended by adding at the end thereof the following new part:

"PART B—NEIGHBORHOOD DEVELOPMENT PROGRAMS

"PURPOSE AND AUTHORITY

"SEC. 131. (a) To facilitate more rapid renewal and development of urban areas on an effective scale, and to encourage more efficient and flexible utilization of public and private development opportunities by local communities in such areas, the Secretary is authorized to make financial assistance available under this title to local public agencies for undertakings and activities which are carried out under a neighborhood development program approved by him pursuant to this part.

"(b) A neighborhood development program shall consist of urban renewal project undertakings and activities in one or more urban renewal areas which are planned and carried out on the basis of annual increments in accordance with the provisions of this title for planning and carrying out urban renewal projects, except as modified by the provisions of this part.

"(c) No application for financial assistance in planning and carrying out a neighborhood development program shall be approved by the Secretary unless—

"(1) the governing body of the locality has, by resolution or ordinance, approved the proposed program and the annual increment covered by the application and authorized the filing of the application for financial assistance; and

"(2) the Secretary has concluded that there is the necessary capacity to carry out the undertakings and activities included under the program.

"FINANCIAL PROVISIONS

"SEC. 132. (a) Upon the approval of a neighborhood development program by the Secretary, the cost of any undertakings and activities authorized as part of the program shall be financed in accordance with the loan, capital grant, and project cost provisions of part A, except that—

"(1) net project cost may be calculated on the basis of costs incurred and proceeds derived for the account of the program during a specified twelve-month period, and may be recalculated for succeeding periods of twelve months to reflect additional costs and additional proceeds since the date of the last computation or recomputation; and

"(2) if property has been acquired but not disposed of prior to the computation or recomputation of net project cost, temporary loans made or secured under this title to finance undertakings or activities included in the program may remain outstanding until the property has been disposed of and the proceeds thereof, together with additional funds becoming available to the program, are sufficient to permit repayment of the loans.

"(b) In the event that gross project cost as computed for a specified twelve-month period is exceeded, with respect to that period, by the sum of (1) the sales price of land or other property sold, and (2) the imputed capital value of land or other property leased or retained by the local public agency in accordance with the provisions of the urban renewal plan, the local public agency shall pay to the Secretary two-thirds of the excess (or three-fourths in the case of a program on a three-fourths grant basis), which amount shall be available to the Secretary for grant payments under section 103.

"LOCAL GRANTS-IN-AID

"SEC. 133. (a) For the purpose of determining the eligibility of local grants-in-aid in connection with undertakings and activities carried out under a neighborhood development program, the three-year period referred to in the second paragraph of section 110 (d) shall be deemed to be a period of three years prior to the authorization by the Secretary of the first contract for financial assistance under the program which includes the urban renewal area which is benefited by the public improvement or facility for which credit is claimed; and the seven-year period referred to in clause (1) of section 112 (b) shall be deemed to be a period of seven years prior to the date of authorization by the Secretary of the first contract for financial assistance under the program which includes the urban renewal area which is benefited by the expenditures for which credit is claimed.

"(b) No portion of the cost of a public improvement or public facility (to the extent otherwise eligible) may be included as a local grant-in-aid in computing the gross project cost of an approved program for any twelve-month period—

"(1) prior to commencement of construction of the improvement or facility, or

"(2) in excess of the amount actually expended or obligated by contract.

"(c) The provisions of section 104 with respect to the pooling of local grants-in-aid among the various projects undertaken by a local public agency shall not be applicable with respect to any excess local grants-in-aid resulting from the urban renewal projects contained in a neighborhood development program.

"GENERAL PROVISIONS

"SEC. 134. (a) For purposes of this part—

"(1) the workable program requirement in section 101(c) shall apply to the authorization, rather than the execution, of any contract for loans or capital grants;

"(2) capital grants on a three-fourths basis may only be made under section 103(a)(2)(B);

"(3) the relocation requirements specified in section 105(c) shall apply to each annual increment of an approved program;

"(4) section 106(g) (relating to transient housing) shall apply to activities undertaken under approved programs, except that the determination as to need for transient housing shall be made with respect to any sale or lease of land for construction of such housing prior to such sale or lease; and

"(5) the requirement concerning demolition and removal of buildings and improvements stated in clause (A) of the sentence following paragraph (10) of section 110(c) shall apply to each annual increment of an approved program.

"(b) The approval by the Secretary of financial assistance for one or more annual increments of a neighborhood development program shall not be considered as obligating him to provide financial assistance for any subsequent annual increments.

"(c) The urban renewal plan referred to in section 110 (b) may cover one or more of the urban renewal areas covered by a neighborhood development program and such plan may be modified from time to time to cover additional urban renewal areas added to the program. The Secretary may establish such requirements as he deems appropriate prescribing the scope and content of such plan, taking into consideration, among other matters, the degree of detail needed in the plan to properly and expeditiously carry out the activities and undertakings proposed in any annual increment of a neighborhood development program."

(c) Notwithstanding any requirement or condition to the contrary in section 6 or 20(i) of the District of Columbia Redevelopment Act of 1945 or in any other provision of law, the District of Columbia Redevelopment Land Agency may plan and undertake neighborhood development programs under part B of title I of the Housing Act of 1949 (as added by this section), subject to all of the provisions of such Act of 1945 to the extent not inconsistent with such part B, and any such program shall be regarded as complying with the requirements of such sections 6 and 20 (i) and of such other provision of law if it meets the applicable requirements established under such part B.

INCREASED AUTHORIZATION

SEC. 402. (a) Section 103 (b) of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended by striking out everything in the first sentence after "exceed" and inserting in lieu thereof "$7,600,000,000, which amount shall be increased by $1,400,000,000 on July 1, 1969".

(b) Section 103 (b) of such Act is further amended by striking out "$250,000,000" in the second sentence and inserting in lieu thereof "$600,000,000".

REHABILITATION GRANTS

SEC. 403. (a) The second sentence of section 115 (a) of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended by striking out the words "a structure" and "such structure" and inserting in lieu thereof "real property" and "such real property", respectively.

(b) Section 115 (b) of such Act is amended by striking out "$1,500" and inserting in lieu thereof "$3,000".

(c) Section 115 (a) of such Act is amended by inserting "(1)" after "(a)", and by adding at the end thereof a new paragraph as follows:

"(2) In addition to the authority conferred by paragraph (1), and notwithstanding any other provision of this title, the Secretary is authorized, through the utilization of local public agencies where feasible, to make grants (payable from any grant funds provided under section 103 (b)) to an individual or family, as described in subsection (c), to cover the cost of repairs and improvements necessary to make real property owned and occupied by such individual or family conform to public standards for decent, safe, and sanitary housing as required by applicable codes. No grants shall be made under this paragraph in the case of any property unless such property is in an area within a locality (other than an urban renewal area or an area in which a program of concentrated code enforcement is being carried out pursuant to section 117) which the governing body of the locality has determined, and so certifies to the Secretary, contains a substantial number of structures in need of rehabilitation.

(d) Section 115 of such Act is further amended—

(1) by redesignating subsection (b) as subsection (c) and inserting after subsection (a) a new subsection (b) as follows:

"(b) The Secretary is authorized to make grants (payable from any grant funds provided under section 103 (b)), through the utilization of local public and private agencies where feasible, to an individual or family, as described in subsection (c), who owns and occupies real property which has been determined to be uninsurable because of physical hazards after an inspection pursuant to a statewide property insurance plan approved by the Secretary under title XII of the National Housing Act. Such grants may only be made to rehabilitate such property to the extent which the Secretary determines to be necessary to make it meet reasonable underwriting standards imposed by such plan and only where the property is located in an area which the Secretary determines (1) is sufficiently stable and contains sufficient public facilities and amenities to support long-term values, or (2) is one in which public or private actions are being carried out, or are proposed to be carried out, of such scope and quality as to give reasonable promise that a stable environment will be created."; and

(2) by striking out "subsection (b)" in subsection (a) and inserting in lieu thereof "subsection (c)".

REHABILITATION IN URBAN RENEWAL AREAS

SEC. 404. Section 110(c)(8) of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended by striking out (1) "guidance purposes, and", and (2) the proviso at the end thereof.

DISPOSITION OF PROPERTY FOR LOW AND MODERATE INCOME HOUSING

SEC. 405. Section 107 (a) of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended—

(1) by inserting "or other approved purchaser or lessee," after "public body or agency,";

(2) by inserting ", section 221 (h) (1), section 235 (j) (1), or section 236" after "or (d) (4)";

(3) by inserting "or lessee" after "a purchaser" and after "such purchaser", and "or lease" after "purchase";

(4) by striking out "rental or cooperative"; and

(5) by striking out "moderate" and inserting in lieu thereof "low or moderate".

CAPITAL GRANTS FOR LOW AND MODERATE INCOME HOUSING IN OPEN LAND PROJECTS

SEC. 406. Section 103 (a) (1) of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended by inserting before the period at the end thereof the following: ", except that he may contract for such a grant in an amount not to exceed two-thirds of the difference between the proceeds from any land disposed of pursuant to section 107 and the fair value of the land without regard to such section".

URBAN RENEWAL LOAN CONTRACTS

SEC. 407. (a) Section 102(c) of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended—

(1) by striking out "at interest rates lower than provided in the loan contract" in the first sentence; and

(2) by inserting before the period at the end of the first sentence the following: ": Provided, That, if at any time during the undertaking of the project, the interest rate on such a loan from a source other than the Federal Government is greater than the rate at which funds could be made available under the Federal loan contract, the Secretary may make a supplemental grant to the local public agency in the amount of the difference between the interest cost from such sources and the interest cost at the contract rate, and no part of the amount of any such grant shall be required to be contributed as a part of the local grant-in-aid".

(b) Loan contracts outstanding on the date of enactment of this section may be amended to incorporate the provisions authorized by the amendment contained in subsection (a) without regard to the proviso in section 110(g) of the Housing Act of 1949.

PROJECT COMPLETION PRIOR TO DISPOSITION OF CERTAIN PROPERTY

SEC. 408. (a) Section 106 of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new subsection:

"(i) Upon a determination by the Secretary that (1) not more than 5 per centum of the total area of land acquired as part of an urban renewal project remains to be disposed of, (2) the local public agency does not expect to be able, due to circumstances beyond its control, to dispose of such land in the near future, (3) all other project activities are completed, and (4) the local public agency has agreed to dispose of or retain such land for uses in accordance with the urban renewal plan, the urban renewal project may be deemed completed, and the net project cost may be computed and the capital grant paid."

(b) Section 110(f) of such Act is amended by inserting before the period at the end thereof the following: "or for subsequent disposition or retention as provided under section 106(i)".

REHABILITATION LOANS

SEC. 409. (a) The first sentence of section 312(d) of the Housing Act of 1964 is amended to read as follows: "There is authorized to be appropriated for each fiscal year such amounts as may be necessary which shall constitute a revolving fund to be used by the Secretary in carrying out this section."

(b) Section 312 (h) of such Act is amended by striking out "October 1, 1969" and inserting in lieu thereof "June 30, 1973".

(c) Section 312 (a) of such Act is amended to read as follows:

"(a) The Secretary is authorized, through the utilization of local public and private agencies where feasible, to make loans as herein provided to the owners and tenants of property to finance the rehabilitation of such property. No loan shall be made under this section unless—

"(1) (A) the property is situated in an urban renewal area or an area in which a program of concentrated code enforcement activity is being carried out pursuant to section 117 of the Housing Act of 1949, and the rehabilitation is required to make the property conform to applicable code requirements or to carry out the objectives of the urban renewal plan for the area and, in addition, to generally improve the condition of the property; or

"(B) (i) the property is in an area (other than an area described in subparagraph (A)) which the governing body of the locality has determined, and so certifies to the Secretary, contains a substantial number of structures in need of rehabilitation and (ii) the property is residential, owner-occupied, and in need of substantial rehabilitation;

"(2) the applicant is unable to secure the necessary funds from other sources upon comparable terms and conditions; and

"(3) the loan is an acceptable risk taking into consideration the need for the rehabilitation, the security available for the loan, and the ability of the applicant to repay the loan."

(d) Section 312 of such Act is further amended—

(1) by inserting "or" after the semicolon at the end of paragraph (1) (B) in subsection (a) (as amended by subsection (c) of this section), and by inserting after such paragraph (1) (B) the following new subparagraph:

"(C) (i) the property has been determined to be uninsurable because of physical hazards after an inspection pursuant to a statewide property insurance plan approved by the Secretary under title XII of the National Housing Act, (ii) the loan is made to the owner or tenant of the property to finance rehabilitation which the Secretary determines to be necessary to make the property meet reasonable underwriting standards, and (iii) the property is located in an area which the Secretary determines is sufficiently stable and contains sufficient public facilities and amenities to support long-term values, or is one in which public or private actions are being carried out, or are proposed to be carried out, of such scope and quality as to give reasonable promise that a stable environment will be created;"; and

(2) by striking out "or" after "applicable codes" in subsection (b) (1) and inserting in lieu thereof a comma, and by inserting after "urban renewal plan" in such subsection ", or a Statewide property insurance plan".

DEMOLITION GRANTS

SEC. 410. (a) The first sentence of section 116 (a) of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended by inserting after "unsound" the following: ", a harborage or potential harborage of rats,".

(b) Section 116 (b) of such Act is amended by inserting after the comma at the end of clause (2) the following: "or will be consistent with a systematic rodent control program being undertaken in the neighborhood,".

AIR RIGHTS SITES IN URBAN RENEWAL AREAS

SEC. 411. (a) Section 110 (c) (1) (iv) of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended by striking out "for use for industrial development" and inserting in lieu thereof "for use for the development of industrial or educational facilities".

(b) Section 110(c)(7) of such Act is amended by striking out "for industrial development" and inserting in lieu thereof "for the development of industrial or educational facilities".

INTERIM ASSISTANCE FOR BLIGHTED AREAS

SEC. 412. Title I of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended by adding after section 117 a new section as follows:

"INTERIM ASSISTANCE FOR BLIGHTED AREAS

"SEC. 118. Notwithstanding any other provision of this title, the Secretary is authorized to enter into contracts (in an aggregate amount not to exceed $40,000,000 in any fiscal year) to make, and to make, grants as provided in this section (payable from any grant funds provided under section 103(b)) to cities, other municipalities, and counties for the purpose of assisting such localities in carrying out programs to alleviate harmful conditions in slum and blighted areas which are planned for substantial clearance, rehabilitation, or federally assisted code enforcement in the near future but in which some immediate public action is needed until clearance, rehabilitation, or code enforcement activities can be undertaken. Such grants shall not exceed two-thirds (or three-fourths in the case of any city, other municipality, or county having a population of fifty thousand or less according to the most recent decennial census) of the cost of planning and carrying out programs which may include (1) the repair of streets, sidewalks, parks, playgrounds, publicly owned utilities, and public buildings to meet needs consistent with the short-term continued use of the area prior to the undertaking of the contemplated clearance or upgrading activities, (2) the improvement of private properties to the extent needed to eliminate the most immediate dangers to public health and safety, (3) the demolition of structures determined to be structurally unsound or unfit for human habitation and which constitute a public nuisance and serious hazard to the public health and safety, (4) the establishment of temporary public playgrounds on vacant land within the area, and (5) the improvement of garbage and trash collection, street cleaning, and similar activities. The Secretary shall encourage, wherever feasible, the employment of otherwise unemployed or underemployed residents of the area in carrying out the activities and undertakings assisted under this section. The provisions of sections 101 (c), 106, and 114 shall be applicable to activities and undertakings assisted under this section to the same extent as if such activities and undertakings were being carried out in an urban renewal area as part of an urban renewal project."

LOW AND MODERATE INCOME HOUSING IN RESIDENTIAL URBAN RENEWAL AREAS

SEC. 413. Section 105 (f) of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended to read as follows:

"(f) A majority of the housing units provided in each community's total of such approved urban renewal projects as will be redeveloped for predominantly residential uses and which receive Federal recognition after the date of enactment of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968 shall be standard housing units for low and moderate income families or individuals: Provided, That the units in each community's total of such approved urban renewal projects which are for low income families or individuals shall constitute at least 20 per centum of the units in such projects."

WORKABLE PROGRAM REQUIREMENT IN CASE OF INDIAN TRIBES

SEC. 414. Section 101 (c) of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended by inserting after "1964" in the second proviso the following: "or, in the case of an Indian tribe, band, or nation, commencing January 1, 1969".

TITLE V—URBAN PLANNING AND FACILITIES

COMPREHENSIVE PLANNING

SEC. 501. Section 701 of the Housing Act of 1954 is amended to read as follows:

"COMPREHENSIVE PLANNING

"SEC. 701. (a) In order to assist State and local governments in solving planning problems, including those resulting from the increasing concentration of population in metropolitan and other urban areas and the out-migration from and lack of coordinated development of resources and services in rural areas; to facilitate comprehensive planning for urban and rural development, including coordinated transportation systems, on a continuing basis by such governments; and to encourage such governments to establish and improve planning staffs and techniques on an areawide basis, and to engage private consultants where their professional services are deemed appropriate by the assisted governments, the Secretary is authorized to make planning grants to—

"(1) State planning agencies for the provision of planning assistance to (A) cities and other municipalities having a population of less than 50,000 according to the latest decennial census, and counties without regard to population: Provided, That grants shall be made under this paragraph for planning assistance to counties having a population of 50,000 or more,

according to the latest decennial census, which are within metropolitan areas, only if (i) the Secretary finds that planning and plans for such county will be coordinated with the program of comprehensive planning, if any, which is being carried out for the metropolitan area of which the county is a part, and (ii) the aggregate amount of the grants made subject to this proviso does not exceed 15 per centum of the aggregate amount appropriated, after September 2, 1964, for the purposes of this section, (B) any group of adjacent communities, either incorporated or unincorporated, having a total population of less than 50,000 according to the latest decennial census and having common or related urban planning problems, (C) cities, other municipalities, and counties referred to in paragraph (3) of this subsection, and areas referred to in paragraph (4) of this subsection, and (D) Indian reservations;

"(2) State, metropolitan, and regional planning agencies for metropolitan or regional planning, and to cities within metropolitan areas for planning which is part of comprehensive metropolitan planning and which shall supplement and be coordinated with State, metropolitan, and regional planning;

"(3) cities, other municipalities, and counties which

(A) are situated in redevelopment areas or economic development districts designated by the Secretary of Commerce under title IV of the Public Works and Economic Development Act of 1965, or (B) have suffered substantial damage as a result of a catastrophe which the President, pursuant to section 2(a) of the Act entitled 'An Act to authorize Federal assistance to States and local governments in major disasters, and for other purposes', approved September 30, 1950, as amended (42 U.S.C. 1855a), has determined to be a major disaster;

"(4) official governmental planning agencies for areas where rapid urbanization has resulted or is expected to result from the establishment or rapid and substantial expansion of a Federal installation, or for areas where rapid urbanization is expected to result on land developed or to be developed as a new community approved under section 1004 of the National Housing Act;

"(5) States for State and interstate comprehensive planning and for research and coordination activity related thereto, including technical and other assistance for the establishment and operation of intrastate and interstate planning agencies;

"(6) State planning agencies for assistance to district planning, or planning for areas within districts, carried on by or for district planning agencies;

"(7) metropolitan and regional planning agencies, with the approval of the State planning agency or (in States where no such planning agency exists) of the Governor of the State, for the provision of planning assistance within the metropolitan area or region to cities, other municipalities, counties, groups of adjacent communities, or Indian reservations described in clauses (A), (B), (C), and (D) of paragraph (1) of this subsection;

"(8) official governmental planning agencies for any area where there has occurred a substantial reduction in employment opportunities as the result of (A) the closing (in whole or in part) of a Federal installation, or (B) a decline in the volume of Government orders for the procurement of articles or materials produced or manufactured in such area;

"(9) tribal planning councils or other tribal bodies designated by the Secretary of the Interior for planning for an Indian reservation;

"(10) the Appalachian Regional Commission, established by the Appalachian Regional Development Act of 1965, for comprehensive planning for the Appalachian region as defined by section 403 of such Act

(or State agencies or instrumentalities participating in such planning) ; and

"(11) local development districts, certified under section 301 of the Appalachian Regional Development Act of 1965, for comprehensive planning for their entire areas, or for metropolitan planning, urban planning, county planning, or small municipality planning within such areas in the Appalachian region, and for planning for Appalachian regional programs.

Planning assisted under this section shall, to the maximum extent feasible, cover entire areas having common or related development problems. The Secretary shall encourage cooperation in preparing and carrying out plans among all interested municipalities, political subdivisions, public agencies, and other parties in order to achieve coordinated development of entire areas. To the maximum extent feasible, pertinent plans and studies already made for areas shall be utilized so as to avoid unnecessary repetition of effort and expense. Planning which may be assisted under this section includes the preparation of comprehensive transportation surveys, studies, and plans to aid in solving problems of traffic congestion, facilitating the circulation of people and goods in metropolitan and other areas and reducing transportation needs. Planning carried out with assistance under this section shall also include a housing element as part of the preparation of comprehensive land use plans, and this consideration of the housing needs and land use requirements for housing in each comprehensive plan shall take into account all available evidence of the assumptions and statistical basis upon which the projection of zoning, community facilities, and population growth is based, so that the housing needs of both the region and the local communities studied in the planning will be adequately covered in terms of existing and prospective in-migrant population growth. Funds available under this section shall be in addition to and may be used jointly with funds available for planning surveys and investigations under other federally aided programs, and nothing contained in this section shall be construed as affecting the authority of the Secretary of Transportation under section 307 of title 23, United States Code.

"(b) A planning grant made under subsection (a) shall not exceed two-thirds of the estimated cost of the work for which the grant is made: Provided, That such a grant may be made for up to 75 per centum of such estimated cost when made for planning primarily for (1) redevelopment areas, local development districts, or economic development districts, or portions thereof, described in paragraphs (3) (A) and (11) of subsection (a), (2) areas described in subsection (a) (8), and (3) the Appalachian region, as described in subsection (a) (10). All grants made under this section shall be subject to terms and conditions prescribed by the Secretary. No portion of any grant made under this section shall be used for the preparation of plans for specific public works. The Secretary is authorized, notwithstanding the provisions of section 3648 of the Revised Statutes, as amended, to make advance or progress payments on account of any grant made under this section. There are authorized to be appropriated for the purposes of this section not to exceed $265,000,000 prior to July 1, 1969, and not to exceed $390,000,000 prior to July 1, 1970. Of the amount available prior to July 1, 1969, $20,000,000 may be used only for district planning grants under subsection (a) (6), which amount shall be increased by $10,000,000 on July 1, 1969. Any amounts appropriated under this section shall remain available until expended: Provided, That of any funds appropriated under this section, not to exceed an aggregate of $10,000,000 plus 5 per centum of the funds so appropriated may be used by the Secretary for studies, research, and demonstration projects, undertaken independently or by contract, for the development and improvement of techniques and methods for comprehensive planning and for the advancement of the purposes of this section, and for grants to assist in the conduct of studies and research relating to needed revisions in State statutes which create, govern, or control local governments and local governmental operations.

"(c) The Secretary is authorized, in areas embracing several municipalities or other political subdivisions, to encourage planning on a unified regional, district, or metropolitan basis and to provide technical assistance for such planning and the solution of problems relating thereto.

"(d) It is the further intent of this section to encourage comprehensive planning, including transportation planning, for States, cities, counties, metropolitan areas, districts, regions, and Indian reservations and the establishment and development of the organizational units needed therefor. In extending financial assistance under this section, the Secretary may require such assurances as he deems adequate that the appropriate State and local agencies are making reasonable progress in the development of the elements of comprehensive planning. The Secretary is authorized to provide technical assistance to State and local governments and their agencies and instrumentalities, and to Indian tribal bodies, undertaking such planning and, by contract or otherwise, to make studies and publish information on related problems.

"(e) In the exercise of his responsibilities under this section, the Secretary shall consult with those officials of the Federal Government responsible for the administration of programs of Federal assistance to the States and municipalities for various categories of public facilities and other comprehensively planned activities. He shall, particularly, consult with the Secretary of Agriculture prior to his approval of any district planning grants under subsections (a) (6) and (g). The Secretary of Agriculture may provide technical assistance, with or without reimbursement, in connection with the establishment of such districts and the carrying out of such planning.

"(f) The consent of the Congress is hereby given to any two or more States to enter into agreements or compacts, not in conflict with any law of the United States, for cooperative efforts and mutual assistance in the comprehensive planning for the growth and development of interstate, metropolitan, or other urban areas, and to establish such agencies, joint or otherwise, as they may deem desirable for making effective such agreements and compacts.

"(g) In addition to the planning grants authorized by subsection (a), the Secretary is further authorized to make grants to organizations composed of public officials representative of the political jurisdictions within the metropolitan area, region, or district for the purpose of assisting such organizations to undertake studies, collect data, develop metropolitan, regional, and district plans and programs, and engage in such other activities as the Secretary finds necessary or desirable for the solution of the metropolitan, regional, or district problems in such areas, regions, or districts. To the maximum extent feasible, all grants under this subsection shall be for activities relating to all the developmental aspects of the total metropolitan area, region, or district including, but not limited to, land use, transportation, housing, economic development, natural resources development, community facilities, and the general improvement of living environments. A grant under this subsection shall not exceed two-thirds of the estimated cost of the work for which the grant is made.

"(h) In addition to the other grants authorized by this section, the Secretary is authorized to make grants to assist any city, other municipality, or county in making a survey of the structures and sites in such locality which are determined by its appropriate authorities to be of historic or architectural value. Any such survey shall be designed to identify the historic structures and sites in the locality, determine the cost of their rehabilitation or restoration, and provide such other information as may be necessary or appropriate to serve as a foundation for a balanced and effective program of historic preservation in such locality. The aspects of any such survey which relate to the identification of historic and architectural values shall be conducted in accordance with criteria found by the Secretary to be comparable to those used in establishing the national register maintained by the Secretary of the Interior under other provisions of law; and the results of each such survey shall be made available to the Secretary of the Interior. A grant under this subsection shall not exceed two-thirds of the cost of the survey for which it is made, and shall be made to the appropriate agency or entity specified in paragraphs (1) through (11) of subsection (a) or, if there is no such agency or entity which is qualified and willing to receive the grant and provide for its utilization in accordance with this subsection, directly to the city, other municipality, or county involved.

"(i) As used in this section—

"(1) The term 'metropolitan area' means a standard metropolitan statistical area, as established by the Bureau of the Budget, subject, however, to such modifications or extensions as the Secretary deems to be appropriate for the purposes of this section.

"(2) The term 'region' includes (A) all or part of the area of jurisdiction of one or more units of general local government, and (B) one or more metropolitan areas.

"(3) The term 'district' includes all or part of the area of jurisdiction of (A) one or more counties, and (B) one or more other units of general local government, but does not include any portion of a metropolitan area.

"(4) The term 'comprehensive planning' includes the following:

"(A) preparation, as a guide for governmental policies and action, of general plans with respect to (i) the pattern and intensity of land use, (ii) the provision of public facilities (including transportation facilities) and other government services, and (iii) the effective development and utilization of human and natural resources;

"(B) long-range physical and fiscal plans for such action;

"(C) programing of capital improvements and other major expenditures, based on a determination of relative urgency, together with definitive financing plans for such expenditures in the earlier years of the program;

"(D) coordination of all related plans and activities of the State and local governments and agencies concerned; and

"(E) preparation of regulatory and administrative measures in support of the foregoing.

Comprehensive planning for the purpose of districts shall not include planning for or assistance to establishments in relocating from one area to another or assist subcontractors whose purpose is to divest, or whose economic success is dependent upon divesting, other contractors or subcontractors of contracts theretofore customarily performed by them: Provided, That this limitation shall not be construed to prohibit assistance for the expansion of an existing business entity through the establishment of a new branch, affiliate, or subsidiary of such entity, if the Secretary finds that the establishment of such branch, affiliate, or subsidiary will not result in an increase in unemployment in the area of original location or in any other area where such entity conducts business operations, unless the Secretary has reason to believe that such branch, affiliate, or subsidiary is being established with the intention of closing down the operations of the existing business entity in the area of its original location or in any other area where it conducts such operations.

"(5) The term 'State planning agencies' includes official State planning agencies and (in States where no such planning agency exists) agencies or instrumentalities of State government designated by the Governor of the State and acceptable to the Secretary.

"(6) The terms 'metropolitan planning agencies', 'regional planning agencies', and 'district planning agencies' mean official metropolitan, regional, and district planning agencies, or other agencies and instrumentalities designated by the Governor (or Governors in the case of interstate planning), and acceptable to the Secretary, empowered under State or local law or interstate compact to perform metropolitan, regional, or district planning, respectively: Provided, That such agencies and instrumentalities shall, to the greatest practicable extent, be composed of or responsible to the elected officials of the unit or units of general local government for whose jurisdictions they are empowered to engage in planning."

PLANNED AREAWIDE DEVELOPMENT

SEC. 502. (a) The heading of title II of the Demonstration Cities and Metropolitan Development Act of 1966 is amended to read as follows: "TITLE II—PLANNED AREAWIDE DEVELOPMENT".

(b) Section 201 of such Act is amended to read as follows:

"FINDINGS AND DECLARATION OF PURPOSE

"SEC. 201. (a) The Congress hereby finds that the welfare of the Nation and of its people is directly dependent upon the sound and orderly development and the effective organization and functioning of our State and local governments.

"It further finds that it is essential that our State and local governments prepare, keep current, and carry out comprehensive plans and programs for their orderly physical development with a view to meeting efficiently all their economic and social needs.

"It further finds that our State and local governments are especially handicapped in this task by the complexity and scope of governmental services required, the multiplicity of political jurisdictions and agencies involved, and the inadequacy of the operational and administrative arrangements available for cooperation among them.

"It further finds that present requirements for areawide planning and programing in connection with various Federal programs have materially assisted in the solution of areawide problems, but that greater coordination of Federal programs and additional participation and cooperation are needed from the States and localities in perfecting and carrying out such efforts.

"(b) It is the purpose of this title to provide through greater coordination of Federal programs, and through supplementary grants for certain federally assisted development projects, additional encouragement and assistance to States and localities for making comprehensive areawide planning and programing effective."

(c) Section 202 of such Act is amended by striking out "metropolitan" each place it appears and inserting in lieu thereof "areawide".

(d) (1) Section 205 of such Act is amended by striking out "metropolitan development" each place it appears and inserting in lieu thereof "areawide development".

(2) Such section is further amended by striking out "metropolitan areas" and "metropolitan area" and inserting in lieu thereof "areas" and "area", respectively.

(3) Such section is further amended by striking out "metropolitanwide" each place it appears, and inserting in lieu thereof "areawide".

(4) Such section is further amended by striking out "metropolitan planning" each place it appears and inserting in lieu thereof "areawide planning".

(5) Such section is further amended by inserting "where appropriate," after "(B)" in subsection (c)(1).

(6) Such section is further amended by striking out "within the metropolitanwide area" in subsection (f).

(e)(1) Paragraphs (1) and (2) of section 208 of such Act are amended by striking out "Metropolitan" and inserting in lieu thereof "Areawide".

(2) Paragraph (7) of such section is amended—

(A) by striking out "or metropolitan or regional" and inserting in lieu thereof ", metropolitan, regional, or district"; and

(B) by striking out "metropolitan" in the parenthetical phrase.

(f) Section 206(b) of such Act is amended by striking out the second sentence and inserting in lieu thereof the following: "Any amounts appropriated under this section shall remain available until expended, and any amounts authorized for any fiscal year under this section but not appropriated may be appropriated for any succeeding fiscal year commencing prior to July 1, 1970."

ADVANCE ACQUISITION OF LAND

SEC. 503. (a) Section 701 of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965 is amended by striking out "in connection with the future construction of public works and facilities" in clause (3) and inserting in lieu thereof "in the future for public purposes".

(b) Section 704 of such Act is amended to read as follows:

"ADVANCE ACQUISITION OF LAND

"SEC. 704. (a) In order to encourage and assist the timely acquisition of land planned to be utilized in the future for public purposes, the Secretary is authorized to make grants to States and local public bodies and agencies to assist in financing the acquisition of a fee simple estate or other interest in such land.

"(b) The amount of any grant made under this section shall not exceed the aggregate amount of reasonable interest charges on the loans or other financial obligations incurred to finance the acquisition of such land for a period not in excess of the lesser of (1) five years from the date of acquisition of such land or (2) the period of time between the date on which the land was acquired and the date its use began for the purpose for which it was acquired: Provided, That where all or any portion of the cost of such land is not financed through borrowings, the amount of the grant shall be computed on the basis of the aggregate amount of reasonable interest charges that the Secretary determines would have been required.

"(c) No grant shall be made under this section unless the Secretary determines that the land will be utilized for a public purpose within a reasonable period of time and that such utilization will contribute to economy, efficiency, and the comprehensively planned development of the area. The Secretary shall in all cases require that land acquired with the assistance of a grant under this section be utilized for a public purpose within five years after the date on which a contract to make such grant is entered into, unless the Secretary (1) determines that due to unusual circumstances a longer period of time is necessary and in the public interest, and (2) reports such determination promptly to the Committees on Banking and Currency of the Senate and House of Representatives.

"(d) No land acquired with assistance under this section shall, without approval of the Secretary, be diverted from the purpose originally approved. The Secretary shall approve no such diversion unless he finds that the diversion is in accord with the then applicable comprehensive plan for the area. In cases of a diversion of land to other than a public purpose, the Secretary may require repayment of the grant, or substitution of land of approximately equal fair market value, whichever he deems appropriate. An interim use of the land for a public or private purpose in accordance with standards prescribed by the Secretary, or approved by him, shall not constitute a diversion within the meaning of this subsection.

"(e) Notwithstanding any other provision of law, no project for which land is acquired with assistance under this section shall, solely as a result of such advance acquisition, be considered ineligible for the purpose of any other Federal loan or grant program, and the amount of the purchase price paid for the land by the recipient of a grant under this section may be considered an eligible cost for the purpose of such other Federal loan or grant program."

(4) by adding at the end thereof the following new paragraph:

"(2) The corporation, including its franchise, capital, reserves, surplus, mortgages or other security holdings, and income, shall be exempt from all taxation now or hereafter imposed by any State, territory, possession, Commonwealth, or dependency of the United States, or by the District of Columbia, or by any county, municipality, or local taxing authority, except that any real property of the corporation shall be subject to State, territorial, county, municipal, or local taxation to the same extent as other real property is taxed."

(bb) Section 309(d) of such Act is amended—

(1) by inserting "(1)" immediately following "(d)";

(2) by striking out "Chairman of the Board" and inserting in lieu thereof "Secretary of Housing and Urban Development";

(3) by striking out "agents," and inserting in lieu thereof "agents of the Association,"; and

(4) by adding at the end thereof the following new paragraph:

"(2) The board of directors of the corporation shall have the power to select and appoint or employ such officers, attorneys, employees, and agents, to vest them with such powers and duties, and to fix and to cause the corporation to pay such compensation to them for their services, as it may determine; and any such action shall be without regard to the Federal civil service and classification laws. Appointments, promotions, and separations so made shall be based on merit and efficiency, and no political test or qualification shall be permitted or given consideration. Each officer and employee of the corporation who is employed by the corporation prior to the termination of the transitional period referred to in section 710(b) of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968 and who on the day previous to the beginning of such employment will have been subject to the civil service retirement law (subch. III of ch. 83 of title 5, United States Code) shall, so long as his employment by the corporation continues without a break in continuity of service, continue to be subject to such law; and for the purpose of such law his employment by the corporation without a break in continuity of service shall be deemed to be employment by the Government of the United States. The corporation shall contribute to the Civil Service Retirement and Disability Fund a sum as provided by section 8334 (a) of title 5, United States Code, except that such sum shall be determined by applying to the total basic pay (as defined in 5 U.S.C. 8331 (3) and except as hereinafter provided) paid to the employees of the corporation who are covered by the civil service retirement law, the per centum rate determined annually by the United States Civil Service Commission to be the excess of the total normal cost per centum rate of the civil service retirement system over the employee deduction rate specified in section 8334 (a) of title 5, United States Code. The corporation shall also pay into the Civil Service Retirement and Disability Fund such portion of the cost of administration of the fund as is determined by the United States Civil Service Commission to be attributable to its employees. Notwithstanding the foregoing provisions, there shall not be considered for the purposes of the civil service retirement law that portion of the basic pay in any one year of any officer or employee of the corporation which exceeds the basic pay provided for in section 5312 of title 5, United States Code, on the last day of such year. Except as provided in this subsection, the corporation shall not be subject to the provisions of title 5, United States Code."

(1) by striking out "body corporate created by section 302" and inserting in lieu thereof "bodies corporate named in section 302 (a) (2)";

(2) by inserting ", 'Government National Mortgage Association'," immediately following "'Federal National Mortgage Association'"; and

(3) by striking out the second sentence and inserting in lieu thereof the following: "Violations of the foregoing sentence may be enjoined by any court of general jurisdiction at the suit of the proper body corporate. In any such suit, the plaintiff may recover any actual damages flowing from such violation, and, in addition, shall be entitled to punitive damages (regardless of the existence or nonexistence of actual damages) of not exceeding $100 for each day during which such violation is committed or repeated."

(dd) Section 309 (g) of such Act is amended to read as follows:

"(g) The Federal Reserve banks are authorized and directed to act as depositaries, custodians, and fiscal agents for each of the bodies corporate named in section 302 (a) (2), for its own account or as fiduciary, and such banks shall be reimbursed for such services in such manner as may be agreed upon; and each of such bodies corporate may itself act in such capacities, for its own account or as fiduciary, and for the account of others."

(ee) Section 309 of such Act is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new subsection:

"(h) The Secretary of Housing and Urban Development shall have general regulatory power over the Federal National Mortgage Association and shall make such rules and regulations as shall be necessary and proper to insure that the purposes of this title are accomplished. No stock, obligation, security, or other instrument shall be issued by the corporation without the prior approval of the Secretary. The Secretary may require that a reasonable portion of the corporation's mortgage purchases be related to the national goal of providing adequate housing for low and moderate income families, but with reasonable economic return to the corporation. The Secretary may examine and audit the books and financial transactions of the corporation, and he may require the corporation to make such reports on its activities as he deems advisable."

(ff) Section 311 of such Act is amended—

(1) by striking out "the Association" and inserting in lieu thereof "either of the bodies corporate named in section 302 (a) (2)"; and

(2) by adding at the end thereof the following: "All stock, obligations, securities, participations, or other instruments issued pursuant to this title shall, to the same extent as securities which are direct obligations of or obligations guaranteed as to principal or interest by the United States, be deemed to be exempt securities within the meaning of laws administered by the Securities and Exchange Commission; but all such issuances shall be made only with the approval of the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development."

PARTICIPATIONS

SEC. 703. Section 302 (c) (5) of the National Housing Act is amended by inserting at the end thereof the following: "In the event that the insufficiency required by the trustee is on account of principal maturities of outstanding beneficial interests or participations authorized to be issued pursuant to paragraph (4) of this subsection, or pursuant hereto, the trustee is authorized to elect to issue additional beneficial interests or participations for refinancing purposes in lieu of requiring any trustor or trustors to make payments to the trustee from appropriated funds or other sources. Each such issue of beneficial interests or participations shall be in an amount determined by the trustee but not in excess of the aggregate amount which the trustee would otherwise require the trustor or trustors to pay from appropriated funds or other sources, and may be issued without regard to the provisions of paragraph (4) of this subsection. All refinancing issues of beneficial interests or participations shall be deemed to have been issued pursuant to the authority contained in the appropriation Act or Acts under which the beneficial interests or participations were originally issued."

MORTGAGE-BACKED SECURITIES

SEC. 704. (a) Section 304 of the National Housing Act is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new subsection:

"(d) To provide a greater degree of liquidity to the mortgage investment market and an additional means of financing its operations under this section, the corporation is authorized to set aside any mortgages held by it under this section, and, upon approval of the Secretary of the Treasury, to issue and sell securities based upon the mortgages so set aside. Securities issued under this subsection may be in the form of debt obligations or trust certificates of beneficial interest, or both. Securities issued under this subsection shall have such maturities and bear such rate or rates of interest as may be determined by the corporation with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury. Securities issued by the corporation under this subsection shall, to the same extent as securities which are direct obligations of or obligations guaranteed as to principal and interest by the United States, be deemed to be exempt securities within the meaning of laws administered by the Securities and Exchange Commission. Mortgages set aside pursuant to this subsection shall at all times be adequate to enable the corporation to make timely principal and interest payments on the securities issued and sold pursuant to this subsection."

(b) Section 306 of such Act is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new subsection:

"(g) The Association is authorized, upon such terms and conditions as it may deem appropriate, to guarantee the timely payment of principal of and interest on such trust certificates or other securities as shall (1) be issued by the corporation under section 304 (d), or by any other issuer approved for the purposes of this subsection by the Association, and (2) be based on and backed by a trust or pool composed of mortgages which are insured under the National Housing Act or title V

of the Housing Act of 1949, or which are insured or guaranteed under the Servicemen's Readjustment Act of 1944 or chapter 37 of title 38, United States Code. The Association shall collect from the issuer a reasonable fee for any guaranty under this subsection and shall make such charges as it may determine to be reasonable for the analysis of any trust or other security arrangement proposed by the issuer. In the event the issuer is unable to make any payment of principal of or interest on any security guaranteed under this subsection, the Association shall make such payment as and when due in cash, and thereupon shall be subrogated fully to the rights satisfied by such payment. Any Federal, State, or other law to the contrary notwithstanding, the Association is hereby empowered, in connection with any guaranty under this subsection, whether before or after any default, to provide by contract with the issuer for the extinguishment, upon default by the issuer, of any redemption, equitable, legal, or other right, title, or interest of the issuer in any mortgage or mortgages constituting the trust or pool against which the guaranteed securities are issued; and with respect to any issue of guaranteed securities, in the event of default and pursuant otherwise to the terms of the contract, the mortgages that constitute such trust or pool shall become the absolute property of the Association subject only to the unsatisfied rights of the holders of the securities based on and backed by such trust or pool. The full faith and credit of the United States is pledged to the payment of all amounts which may be required to be paid under any guaranty under this subsection. There shall be excluded from the total amounts set forth in subsection (c) the amounts of any mortgages acquired by the Association as a result of its operations under this subsection."

SUBORDINATED AND CONVERTIBLE OBLIGATIONS

SEC. 705. Section 304 of the National Housing Act is amended by adding thereto (after subsection (d) as added by section 704 of this Act) the following new subsection:

"(e) For the purposes of this section, the corporation is authorized to issue, upon the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury, obligations which are subordinated to any or all other obligations of the corporation, including subsequent obligations. The obligations issued under this subsection shall have such maturities and bear such rate or rates of interest as may be determined by the corporation with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury and may be made redeemable at the option of the corporation before maturity in such manner as may be stipulated in such obligations. Any of such obligations may be made convertible into shares of common stock in such manner, at such price or prices, and at such time or times as may be stipulated therein. The total principal amount of such subordinated obligations which may be outstanding at any one time shall not exceed two times the sum of (1) the capital of the corporation represented by its outstanding common stock and (2) its surplus and undistributed earnings at such time. The outstanding total principal amount of such obligations which are entirely subordinated to the obligations of the corporation issued or to be issued under subsection (b) shall be deemed to be capital of the corporation for the purpose of determining the aggregate amount of obligations issued under subsection (b) which may be outstanding at any one time. Obligations issued by the corporation under this subsection shall, to the same extent as securities which are direct obligations of or obligations guaranteed as to principal or interest by the United States, be deemed to be exempt securities within the meaning of laws administered by the Securities and Exchange Commission. The corporation shall insert appropriate language in all of its obligations issued under this subsection clearly indicating that such obligations, together with the interest thereon, are not guaranteed by the United States and do not constitute a debt or obligation of the United States or of any agency or instrumentality thereof other than the corporation. The corporation is authorized to purchase in the open market any of its obligations outstanding under this subsection at any time and at any price."

(n) Section 8 (8) (E) of the Federal Credit Union Act is amended by inserting "or the Government National Mortgage Association" immediately following "Federal National Mortgage Association".

EFFECTIVE DATE

SEC. 708. The amendments made by this title shall be effective from and after a date, no more than one hundred and twenty days following the date of enactment of this Act, as established by the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development. Notice of the establishment of such effective date shall be published in the Federal Register at least thirty days prior thereto.

SAVINGS PROVISIONS

SEC. 709. (a) No cause of action by or against the Federal National Mortgage Association existing prior to the effective date established pursuant to section 708 shall abate by reason of the enactment of this title. Any such cause of action may thereafter be asserted by or against the appropriate corporate body named in section 302 (a) (2) of the National Housing Act.

(b) No suit, action, or other proceeding commenced by or against the Federal National Mortgage Association, or any officer thereof in his official capacity, prior to the effective date established pursuant to section 708 shall abate by reason of the enactment of this title. A court may at any time thereafter during the pendency of any such litigation, on its own motion or that of any party, order that the litigation may be maintained by or against the appropriate corporate body named in section 302 (a) (2) of the National Housing Act or the appropriate corresponding officer thereof.

TRANSITIONAL PROVISIONS

SEC. 710. (a) On the effective date established pursuant to section 708 of this Act, each share of outstanding non-voting common stock, with a par value of $100 per share, of the Federal National Mortgage Association shall be changed into and shall become one share of voting common stock, without par value, of such corporation.

(b) (1) The provisions of section 308(b) of the National Housing Act (is added by section 702(y)(7) of this Act) shall be applicable only to the extent that its provisions do not conflict with this subsection.

(2) For a transitional period after the effective date established pursuant to section 708 of this Act, the board of directors of the Federal National Mortgage Association shall consist of nine persons. For a term expiring on the date of the first annual meeting of the corporation's stockholders, all members of the board shall be appointed by the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development. For a term beginning on such date, seven members of the board shall be appointed by the Secretary, and two members shall be elected by the common stockholders. For subsequent terms beginning prior to the termination of the transitional period, five members shall be appointed by the Secretary, and four members shall be elected by the common stockholders. For each term beginning prior to the termination of the transitional period, the Secretary shall appoint as a member of the board the president of the corporation. During the transitional period, the president of the corporation shall be appointed by the President, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, and may be removed from office by the President for good cause.

(3) The transitional period referred to in paragraph (2) shall come to an end at such time as the board of directors shall find, with the approval of the Secretary, that not less than one-third of the corporation's common stock is owned by persons or institutions in the mortgage lending, homebuilding, real estate, or related businesses; but in no event shall it end sooner than May 1, 1970, or later than May 1, 1973.

(c) From the effective date established pursuant to section 708 and until the retirement of the last of the outstanding shares of its preferred stock, the Federal National Mortgage Association shall be deemed to be a wholly owned corporation for the purposes of the Government Corporation Control Act. Notwithstanding the foregoing provisions of this paragraph, the financial transactions of the Federal National Mortgage Association shall continue to be subject to audit by the General Accounting Office for such period as there may be outstanding obligations of the Federal National Mortgage Association which are guaranteed as to principal or interest by the Government National Mortgage Association.

(d) Those persons who are the officers and employees of the Federal National Mortgage Association immediately prior to the effective date established pursuant to section 708 shall become the officers and employees of the Government National Mortgage Association on such date. The Federal National Mortgage Association and the Government National Mortgage Association shall provide by contract for the conditions and methods under which and by which the Federal National Mortgage Association during the transitional period may employ those individuals who are employees of the Government National Mortgage Association on such effective date; and may provide by contract for the operation by either of such corporations of any of the functions of the other. The Secretary of Housing and Urban Development shall make every reasonable effort to place in other comparable Federal positions any individuals who are career or career-conditional employees of the Government National Mortgage Association on such effective date and who are subsequently during the transitional period neither employed by the Federal National Mortgage Association nor retained by the Government National Mortgage Association.

TITLE VIII—NATIONAL HOUSING PARTNERSHIPS

STATEMENT OF PURPOSE

SEC. 801. The Congress finds that the volume of housing being produced for families and individuals of low or moderate income must be increased to meet the national goal of a decent home and a suitable living environment for every American family, and declares that it is the policy of the United States to encourage the widest possible participation by private enterprise in the provision of housing for low or moderate income families. The Congress has therefore determined that one or more private organizations should be created to encourage maximum participation by private investors in programs and projects to provide low and moderate income housing.

CREATION OF CORPORATIONS

SEC. 802. (a) There is hereby authorized to be created a private corporation for profit (hereinafter in this title referred to as the "corporation"). The corporation will not be an agency or establishment of the United States Government. The corporation shall be subject to the provisions of this title and, to the extent consistent with this title, to the District of Columbia Business Corporation Act (D.C. Code, sec. 29–901 et seq.).

(b) Whenever the President finds it in the national interest to do so, he may cause the creation of an additional corporation or additional corporations to carry out the purposes of this title. All the provisions of this title shall thereupon become applicable to each such corporation, and to the limited partnership formed by it pursuant to section 807.

(c) Nothing in this title shall be construed to preclude private persons from creating other corporations and organizing other partnerships, joint ventures, or associations for the purposes set forth in this title as the purposes of the corporation and the partnership described in section 807.

PROCESS OF ORGANIZATION

SEC. 803. (a) The President of the United States shall appoint, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, incorporators of the corporation, one of whom shall be designated by the President to serve as chairman. The incorporators shall serve as the initial board of directors until the first annual meeting of stockholders or until their successors are elected and have qualified.

(b) The incorporators shall take whatever actions are necessary or appropriate to establish the corporation, including the filing of articles of incorporation as approved by the President.

(c) The incorporators shall also arrange for an initial offering of shares of stock in the corporation and of interests in the partnership described in section 807 of this title. If the incorporators deem it advisable in order to carry out the purposes of this title, the initial offering may be made upon terms which require the purchase of other securities of the corporation or of interests in such partnership.

DIRECTORS

SEC. 804. The corporation shall have a board of directors (hereinafter in this section referred to as the "board"), consisting of fifteen members. Three members of the board shall be appointed by the President of the United States, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, effective on the date on which the other members are elected, and for terms of three years or until their successors have been appointed and have qualified, except that the first three members of the board so appointed shall continue in office for terms of one, two, and three years, respectively, and any member so appointed to fill a vacancy shall be appointed only for the unexpired term of the director whom he succeeds. Twelve members of the board shall be elected by the stockholders.

FINANCING THE CORPORATION

SEC. 805. The corporation shall have the power to create and issue the number of shares stated in its articles of incorporation. Such shares may be divided into one or more classes, any or all of which classes may consist of shares with par value or shares without par value, with such designations, preferences, voting powers, and special or relative rights and such limitations, restrictions, or qualifications thereof as shall be stated in the articles of incorporation. The articles of incorporation may limit or deny the voting power of the shares of any class.

PURPOSES AND POWERS OF THE CORPORATION

SEC. 806. (a) In order to achieve the objectives and carry out the purposes of this title, the corporation is authorized to—

(1) plan, initiate, and carry out, pursuant to Federal programs or otherwise, the building or rehabilitation of housing and related facilities primarily for the benefit of families and individuals of low or moderate income;

(2) buy, own, manage, lease, or otherwise acquire or dispose of property in connection with the developments, projects, or undertakings referred to in paragraph (1); and

(3) provide such funds as may be necessary to accomplish the developments, projects, or undertakings referred to in paragraph (1).

(b) Included in the activities authorized to the corporation for the accomplishment of the purposes indicated in subsection (a) of this section are, among others not specifically named—

(1) to enter into partnerships, limited partnerships, joint ventures, and other associations with individuals, corporations, and private and governmental agencies, organizations, and institutions;

(2) to act as manager or general partner of any such partnership, venture, or association;

(3) to conduct or contract for research and studies related to the development, demonstration, and evaluation of improved techniques and methods of constructing, rehabilitating, and maintaining housing;

(4) to provide technical assistance to nonprofit corporations, limited dividend corporations, and others with respect to the planning, financing, construction, rehabilitation, maintenance, and management of housing for low and moderate income families and individuals;

(5) to make loans or grants, including grants of interests in housing and related facilities, to nonprofit corporations, limited dividend corporations, and others, in carrying out its activities under subsection (a) of this section; and

(6) to hire or accept the voluntary services of consultants, experts, advisory boards, and panels to aid the corporation in carrying out the purposes of this title.

(c) To carry out the foregoing purposes and engage in the foregoing activities, the corporation shall have the usual powers conferred upon a stock corporation by the District of Columbia Business Corporation Act.

(d) Nothing in this title shall have the effect of waiving or otherwise affecting the applicability of the provisions of the Davis-Bacon Act (40 U.S.C. 267a—276a–5), or any other law requiring compliance with labor standards, in the case of any construction to which such provisions would otherwise apply.

NATIONAL HOUSING PARTNERSHIP

SEC. 807. (a) The corporation is authorized to arrange for the formation, as a separate organization, of a limited partnership (hereinafter in this title referred to as the "partnership") under the District of Columbia Uniform Limited Partnership Act (D.C. Code, sec. 41–401 et seq.) for the purpose of engaging in any of the activities authorized for the corporation under section 906 of this title, and to enter into a partnership agreement governing the affairs of such limited partnership.

(b) The partnership shall be subject to the provisions, to the extent consistent with this title, of (1) the District of Columbia Uniform Limited Partnership Act and (2) those provisions of the District of Columbia Uniform Partnership Act (D.C. Code, sec. 41–301 et seq.) made applicable by section 6 (2) of that Act (D.C. Code, sec. 41–305 (2)). Notwithstanding any inconsistency between the provisions of such Acts, or of any other law, and the provisions of this section, the partnership organized pursuant to this section shall be deemed to have the legal status of a limited partnership.

(c) The partnership is authorized to enter into partnerships, limited partnerships, or joint ventures organized under applicable State or local law for the purpose of engaging in low and moderate income housing developments, projects, or undertakings in particular localities.

(d) The corporation shall be the general partner in the partnership. The capital of the partnership and the contributions of the partners shall be in such amounts and at such times as are set forth in or pursuant to the partnership agreement.

(e) The partnership agreement shall include provisions designed to assure that (1) the partnership shall participate in low and moderate income housing developments, projects, or undertakings in a manner designed to encourage the participation therein of local interests, and (2) in any such development, project, or undertaking the partnership shall not subscribe to more than 25 per centum (including equity investments made in services or property) of the aggregate initial equity investment unless, in the judgment of the corporation as general partner, the balance of the required equity investment is not readily obtainable from other responsible investors residing or doing business in the local community.

(f) The partnership agreement may without limitation (1) permit each of the stockholders of the corporation to become a member of the partnership as a limited partner, (2) authorize the inclusion of other limited partners in addition to the stockholders of the corporation, (3) provide that the assignee of the partnership interest of a limited partner of the partnership who is also a stockholder of the corporation may not become a substituted limited partner unless he also acquires the assignor's stock of the corporation, and (4) include provisions requiring that the corporation as a general partner approve the substitution or addition of a member of the partnership.

(g) A corporation which is a limited partner in the partnership shall not become liable as a general partner by reason of the fact that (1) such corporation is a holder of shares of voting stock of the corporation constituting not more than 5 per centum of the total number of outstanding shares of such stock and exercises any of the rights (including voting rights) of a holder of such shares, and/or (2) a person who is an officer or director of such corporation (or of another corporation which controls or is subject to the control of, or is under common control with, such corporation) is a director of the corporation and performs the duties of that office. The interest of a limited partner in the partnership shall not be treated as a stock interest in the corporation, notwithstanding that such interest of a limited partner may be proportionate to his stock interest in the corporation.

(h) The certificate of the partnership and any amendment thereof required by the District of Columbia Uniform Limited Partnership Act shall be executed and acknowledged by the corporation as member and by each other member of the partnership or his attorney-in-fact duly authorized by power of attorney in writing. The corporation may execute and acknowledge the certificate and any amendment thereof as attorney-in-fact for any member, member to be substituted or added, or assigning member, by whom the certificate or amendment is required to be executed and acknowledged and who has appointed the corporation as such attorney.

REPORT TO CONGRESS AND RECORDS

SEC. 808. (a) The corporation shall submit an annual report to the President for transmittal to the Congress within six months after the end of its fiscal year. The report shall include a comprehensive and detailed report of the operations, activities, and financial condition of the corporation and the partnership under this title.

(b) The accounts of the corporation and of the partnership shall be audited annually in accordance with generally accepted auditing standards by independent certified public accountants or independent licensed public accountants certified or licensed by a regulatory authority of a State or other political subdivision of the United States.

ANTITRUST LAWS

SEC. 809. Nothing contained herein shall affect the applicability of the Federal antitrust laws to the activities of the corporation and the partnership created under this title and of the persons participating therein or in partnerships, limited partnerships, or joint ventures with either of them.

RIGHT TO REPEAL, ALTER, OR AMEND

SEC. 810. The right to repeal, alter, or amend this title at any time is expressly reserved.

AMENDMENT TO BANKING LAWS

SEC. 811. Paragraph "Seventh" of section 5136 of the Revised Statutes (12 U.S.C. 24) is amended by adding at the end thereof the following: "Notwithstanding any other provision in this paragraph, the association may purchase for its own account shares of stock issued by a corporation authorized to be created pursuant to title VIII of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968, and may make investments in a partnership, limited partnership, or joint venture formed pursuant to section 807(a) or 807(c) of that Act."

TITLE IX—RURAL HOUSING

HOUSING FOR LOW AND MODERATE INCOME PERSONS AND FAMILIES

SEC. 901. Title V of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new section:

"LOANS TO PROVIDE OCCUPANT-OWNED, RENTAL, AND CO-OPERATIVE HOUSING FOR LOW AND MODERATE INCOME PERSONS AND FAMILIES

"SEC. 521. (a) Notwithstanding the provisions of sections 502, 517(a), and 515, loans to persons of low or moderate income under section 502 or 517(a)(1), and loans under section 515 to provide rental or cooperative housing and related facilities for persons and families of low or moderate income or elderly persons and elderly families, shall bear interest at a rate prescribed by the Secretary at not less than a rate determined by the Secretary of the Treasury taking into consideration the current average market yield on outstanding marketable obligations of the United States with remaining periods to maturity comparable to the average maturities of such loans, adjusted to the nearest one-eighth of 1 per centum, less not to exceed the difference between the adjusted rate determined by the Secretary of the Treasury and 1 per centum per annum:

Provided, That such a loan may be made only when the Secretary determines that the needs of the applicant for necessary housing cannot be met with financial assistance from other sources including assistance under section 235 or 236 of the National Housing Act: Provided further, That interest on loans under section 502 or 517 (a) to victims of natural disasters shall not exceed the rate which would be applicable to such loans under section 502 without regard to this section.

"(b) Housing and related facilities provided with loans described in subsection (a) shall be located in rural areas; and applicants eligible for such loans under section 502 or 517 (a) (1), or for occupancy of housing provided with such loans under section 515, shall include otherwise qualified nonrural residents who will become rural residents.

"(c) There shall be reimbursed to the Rural Housing Insurance Fund by annual appropriations the amounts by which nonprincipal payments made from the fund during each fiscal year to the holders of insured loans described in subsection (a) exceed interest due from the borrowers during each year; and the Secretary from time to time may issue notes to the Secretary of the Treasury under section 517 (h) to obtain amounts equal to such unreimbursed excess payments, pending the annual reimbursement by appropriation."

HOUSING FOR RURAL TRAINEES

SEC. 902. Title V of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended by adding after section 521 (as added by section 901 of this Act) the following new section:

"HOUSING FOR RURAL TRAINEES

"SEC. 522. (a) Upon the application of any State or political subdivision thereof, or any public or private nonprofit organization, the Secretary is authorized, after consultation with the Secretary of Labor, the Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare, the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development, and the Director of the Office of Economic Opportunity, and after the Secretary determines that the housing and related facilities cannot reasonably be provided in any other way, to provide financial and technical assistance for the establishment, in rural areas, of housing and related facilities for trainees and their families who are residents of a rural area and have a rural background, while such trainees are enrolled and participating in training courses designed to improve their employment capability. The selection of training sites and location of housing shall be made with due regard to the economic viability of the area, and only after consideration of a labor area survey and full coordination among all Government agencies having primary responsibility for administering related programs.

"(b) Housing and related facilities assisted under this section shall be safe and sanitary, constructed in the most economical manner, and of modest design, giving due consideration to the purposes to be served and the needs of the occupants, and may, in the discretion of the Secretary, include mobile family quarters. Design and location shall be such as to facilitate, as feasible, the use of such housing and related facilities for other purposes when no longer needed for the primary purpose.

"(c) The applicant shall contribute the necessary land, or funds to acquire such land, from its own resources, including land acquired by donation or from funds repayable under subsection (e) or borrowed from other sources.

"(d) No financial assistance shall be made available under this section unless, to the extent and for the periods required by the Secretary, the applicant agrees that—

"(1) such housing will be maintained at all times in a safe and sanitary condition in accordance with standards prescribed by State or local law, or, in the absence of such standards, with requirements prescribed by the Secretary;

"(2) priority shall be given at all times, in granting occupancy of such housing and facilities, to the trainees and their families described in subsection (a); and

"(3) rentals charged them shall not exceed amounts approved by the Secretary after considering the portion of the actual total family income which the family can afford to pay for rent while meeting its other immediate needs during occupancy.

"(e) The Secretary may make advances pursuant to any contract for financial assistance under this section at such times and in such manner as may be specified in the contract. Such advances for the purchase of land shall be repayable with interest and within a period not to exceed thirty-three years and may be made upon such security, if any, as the Secretary requires. Advances for other purposes may be made repayable with or without interest or nonrepayable, as determined by the Secretary on the basis of the anticipated income and cost of operation of the housing and related facilities and the ability of each applicant to finance such facilities. Any advances shall be limited to cover the capital costs of constructing such facilities, plus interest on borrowings to cover such costs.

"(f) Should housing and related facilities assisted pursuant to a contract under this section be sold to an ineligible transferee or diverted to a use other than its primary purpose within a period specified in the contract, all advances made under such contract shall be repaid to the Secretary, up to the amount of the sales price or the fair value of the property as determined by the Secretary, whichever is higher, with interest from the date of the sale or diversion. If no suitable alternate use of the property is available, as determined by the Secretary, after the purpose of this section can no longer be served, the property shall be returned to its original condition by the recipient of the assistance.

"(g) Interest charged on advances made under this section shall be at a rate, prescribed by the Secretary, which shall be not less than a rate determined by the Secretary of the Treasury taking into consideration the current average market yield on outstanding marketable obligations of the United States with remaining periods to maturity comparable to the average maturities of such loans, adjusted to the nearest one-eighth of 1 per centum, less not to exceed the difference between the adjusted rate determined by the Secretary of the Treasury and 1 per centum per annum, as determined by the Secretary.

"(h) The Secretary shall prescribe regulations to insure that Federal funds expended under this section are not wasted or dissipated.

"(i) As used in this section (1) the term 'related facilities' shall include any necessary community rooms or buildings, infirmaries, utilities, access roads, water and sewer services, and the minimum fixed or movable equipment determined by the Secretary to be necessary to make the housing reasonably habitable by trainees and their families; and (2) the term 'trainee' means any person receiving training under any federally assisted training program.

"(j) All laborers and mechanics employed in connection with the provision of housing and related facilities assisted under this section, where such housing includes 8 or more dwelling units, shall be paid wages at rates not less than those prevailing on similar construction in the locality as determined by the Secretary of Labor in accordance with the Davis-Bacon Act, as amended (40 U.S.C. 276a—276a–5) ; and no assistance shall be extended under this section with respect to such housing and the related facilities without first obtaining adequate assurance that these labor standards will be maintained upon the construction work involved. The Secretary of Labor shall have, with respect to the labor standards specified in this subsection, the authority and functions set forth in Reorganization Plan Numbered 14 of 1950 (64 Stat. 1267) and section 2 of the Act of June 13, 1934 (40 U.S.C. 276c).

"(k) There are authorized to be appropriated such sums as may be necessary to carry out this section."

APPROPRIATIONS

SEC. 903. Section 513 of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended—

(1) by striking out "and (e)" and inserting in lieu thereof "(e)"; and

(2) by inserting before the period at the end thereof the following: "; and (f) such sums as may be required by the Secretary to administer the provisions of sections 235 and 236 of the National Housing Act".

PURCHASE OF LAND FOR BUILDING SITES

SEC. 904. Section 514 (f) (2) of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended—

(1) by striking out "and" before "(B)", and

(2) by inserting before the semicolon at the end thereof the following: "and (C) land necessary for an adequate site".

MUTUAL AND SELF-HELP HOUSING

SEC. 905. Title V of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended by adding after section 522 (as added by section 902 of this Act) the following new section:

"MUTUAL AND SELF-HELP HOUSING

"SEC. 523. (a) The purposes of this section are (1) to make financial assistance available on reasonable terms and conditions in rural areas and small towns to needy low-income individuals and their families who, with the benefit of technical assistance and overall guidance and supervision, participate in approved programs of mutual or self-help housing by acquiring and developing necessary land, acquiring building materials, providing their own labor, and working cooperatively with others for the provision of decent, safe, and sanitary dwellings for themselves, their families, and others in the area or town involved, and (2) to facilitate the efforts of both public and private nonprofit organizations providing assistance to such individuals to contribute their technical and supervisory skills toward more effective and comprehensive programs of mutual or self-help housing in rural areas and small towns wherever necessary.

"(b) In order to carry out the purposes of this section, the Secretary of Agriculture (in this section referred to as the "Secretary") is authorized—

"(1) to make grants to, or contract with, public or private nonprofit corporations, agencies, institutions, organizations, and other associations approved by him, to pay part or all of the costs of developing, conducting, administering, or coordinating effective and comprehensive programs of technical and supervisory assistance which will aid needy low-income individuals and their families in carrying out mutual or self-help housing efforts;

"(2) to make loans, on such terms and conditions and in such amounts as he deems necessary, to needy low-income individuals participating in programs of mutual or self-help housing approved by him, for the acquisition and development of land and for the purchase of such other building materials as may be necessary in order to enable them, by providing substantially all of their own labor, and by cooperating with others participating in such programs, to carry out to completion the construction of decent, safe, and sanitary dwellings for such individuals and their families, subject to the following limitations:

"(A) there is reasonable assurance of repayment of the loan;

"(B) the amount of the loan, together with other funds which may be available, is adequate to achieve the purpose for which the loan is made;

"(C) the credit assistance is not otherwise available on like terms or conditions from private sources or through other Federal, State, or local programs;

"(D) the loan bears interest at a rate not to exceed 3 per centum per annum on the unpaid balance of principal, plus such additional charge, if any, toward covering other costs of the loan program as the Secretary may determine to be consistent with its purposes; and

"(E) the loan is repayable within not more than thirty-three years.

"(c) In determining whether to extend financial assistance under paragraph (1) or (2) of subsection (b), the Secretary shall take into consideration, among other factors, the suitability of the area within which construction will be carried out to the type of dwelling which can be provided under mutual or self-help housing programs, the extent to which the assistance will facilitate the provision of more decent, safe, and sanitary housing conditions than presently exist in the area, the extent to which the assistance will be utilized efficiently and expeditiously, the extent to which the assistance will effect an increase in the standard of living of low-income individuals participating in the mutual or self-help housing program, and whether the assistance will fulfill a need in the area which is not otherwise being met through other programs, including those carried out by other Federal, State, or local agencies.

"(d) As used in this section, the term 'construction' includes the erection of new dwellings, and the rehabilitation, alteration, conversion, or improvement of existing structures.

"(e) The Secretary is authorized to establish appropriate criteria and procedures in order to determine the eligibility of applicants for the financial assistance provided under this section, including criteria and procedures with respect to the periodic review of any construction carried out with such financial assistance.

"(f) There are hereby authorized to be appropriated for each fiscal year commencing after June 30, 1968, and ending prior to July 1, 1973, such sums, not in excess of $5,000,000 for any such fiscal year, as may be necessary to carry out the provisions of this section. No grant or loan may be made or contract entered into under the authority of this section after June 30, 1973, except pursuant to a commitment or other obligation entered into pursuant to this section before that date."

TITLE X—URBAN PROPERTY PROTECTION AND REINSURANCE

SHORT TITLE

SEC. 1001. This title may be cited as the "Urban Property Protection and Reinsurance Act of 1968."

FINDINGS AND DECLARATION OF PURPOSE

SEC. 1002. (a) The Congress finds that (1) the vitality of many American cities is being threatened by the deterioration of their inner city areas; responsible owners of well-maintained residential, business, and other properties in many of these areas are unable to obtain adequate property insurance coverage against fire, crime, and other perils; the lack of such insurance coverage accelerates the deterioration of these areas by discouraging private investment and restricting the availability of credit to repair and improve property therein; and this deterioration poses a serious threat to the national economy; (2) recent riots and other civil commotion in many American cities have brought about abnormally high losses to the private property insurance industry for which adequate reinsurance cannot be obtained at reasonable cost, and the risk of such losses will make most lines of property insurance even more difficult to obtain; (3) the capacity of the private property insurance industry to provide adequate insurance is threatened, and the continuity of such property insurance protection is essential to the extension of credit in these areas; and (4) the national interest demands urgent action by the Congress to assure that essential lines of property insurance, including lines providing protection against riot and civil commotion damage will be available to property owners at reasonable cost.

(b) The purposes of this title are, therefore, to (1) encourage and assist the various State insurance authorities and the property insurance industry to develop and carry out statewide programs which will make necessary property insurance coverage against the fire, crime, and other perils more readily available for residential, business, and other properties meeting reasonable underwriting standards; and (2) provide a Federal program of reinsurance against abnormally high property insurance losses resulting from riots and other civil commotion, placing appropriate financial responsibility upon the States to share in such losses.

AMENDMENT OF THE NATIONAL HOUSING ACT

SEC. 1003. The National Housing Act is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new title:

"TITLE XII—NATIONAL INSURANCE DEVELOPMENT PROGRAM

"PROGRAM AUTHORITY

"SEC. 1201. (a) The Secretary is authorized to establish and carry out the programs provided for in parts A, B, and C of this title.

"(b) (1) The powers of the Secretary under this title shall terminate on April 30, 1973, except to the extent necessary—

"(A) to continue reinsurance in accordance with the provisions of section 1223 (b) until April 30, 1976;

"(B) to process, verify, and pay claims for reinsured losses and perform other necessary functions in connection therewith; and

"(C) to complete the liquidation and termination of the reinsurance program.

"(2) On April 30, 1976, or as soon thereafter as possible, the Secretary shall submit to the Congress, for its approval, a plan for the liquidation and termination of the reinsurance program.

"ADVISORY BOARD; MEETINGS, DUTIES, COMPENSATION, AND EXPENSES

"SEC. 1202. (a) (1) There is established an Advisory Board (hereinafter called the 'Board') consisting of nineteen members appointed by the Secretary. Members of the Board shall be selected from among representatives of the general public, the insurance industry, State and local governments including State insurance authorities, and the Federal Government. Of these members of the Board, not more than six shall be regular full-time employees of the Federal Government, and not less than four shall be representatives of the private insurance industry and not less than four shall be representatives of State insurance authorities.

"(2) The Secretary shall designate a Chairman and a Vice Chairman of the Board.

"(3) Each member shall serve for a term of two years or until his successor has been appointed, except that no person who is appointed while a full-time employee of a State or the Federal Government shall serve in such position after he ceases to be so employed, unless he is reappointed.

"(4) Any member appointed to fill a vacancy occurring prior to the expiration of the term for which his predecessor was appointed shall be appointed for the remainder of that term.

"(b) The Chairman shall preside at all meetings, and the Vice Chairman shall preside in the absence or disability of the Chairman. In the absence of both the Chairman and Vice Chairman, the Secretary may appoint any member to act as Chairman pro tempore. The Board shall meet at such times and places as it or the Secretary may fix and determine, but shall hold at least four regularly scheduled meetings a year. Special meetings may be held at the call of the Chairman or any three members of the Board, or at the call of the Secretary.

"(c) The Board shall review general policies and shall advise the Secretary with respect thereto, and perform such other functions as are specified in this title.

"(d) The members of the Board shall not, by reason of such membership, be deemed to be employees of the United States, and such members, except those who are regular full-time employees of the Government, shall receive for their services, as members, the per diem equivalent to the rate for grade GS–18 of the General Schedule under section 5332 of title 5, United States Code, when engaged in the performance of their duties, and each member of the Board shall be allowed travel expenses, including per diem in lieu of subsistence, as authorized by section 5703 of such title for persons in the Government service employed intermittently.

"DEFINITIONS

"SEC. 1203. (a) When used in this title, unless the context otherwise requires, the term—

"(1) 'environmental hazard' means any hazardous condition that might give rise to loss under an insurance contract, but which is beyond the control of the property owner;

"(2) 'essential property insurance' means insurance against direct loss to property as defined and limited in standard fire policies and extended coverage endorsement thereon, as approved by the State insurance authority and the Secretary, and insurance for such types, classes, and locations of property against the perils of vandalism, malicious mischief, burglary, or theft, as the Secretary by rule shall designate. Such insurance shall not include automobile insurance and shall not include insurance on such types of manufacturing risks as may be excluded by the State insurance authority;

"(3) 'inspection facility', with respect to any State, means any rating bureau or other person designated by the State insurance authority to perform inspections under fair access to insurance requirements plans under part A;

"(4) 'insurer' includes any insurance company or group of companies under common ownership which is authorized to engage in the insurance business under the laws of any State;

"(5) 'pool' means any pool or association of insurance companies in any State which is formed, associated, or otherwise created for the purpose of making property insurance more readily available;

"(6) 'losses resulting from riots or civil disorders' means losses resulting from riots or civil disorders under policies for standard lines of property insurance for which reinsurance is offered under section 1221, as determined under regulations of the Secretary;

"(7) 'property owner', with respect to any real, personal, or mixed real and personal property, means any person having an insurable interest in such property;

"(8) 'person' includes any individual or group of individuals, corporation, partnership, or association, or any other organized group of persons;

"(9) 'reinsured losses' means losses on reinsurance claims and all direct expenses incurred in connection therewith including, but not limited to, expenses for processing, verifying, and paying such losses;

"(10) 'standard line of property insurance' includes—

"(A) fire and extended coverage;

"(B) vandalism and malicious mischief;

"(C) other allied lines of fire insurance;

"(D) burglary and theft;

"(E) those portions of multiple peril policies covering perils similar to those provided for in subparagraphs (A), (B), (C), and (D);

"(F) inland marine;

"(G) glass;

"(H) boiler and machinery;

"(I) ocean marine;

"(J) aircraft physical damage; and

"(K) such other lines generally offered to the public which include protection against damage from riot or civil commotion as the Secretary by regulation may designate;

"(11) 'State' means the several States, the District of Columbia, the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, Guam, American Samoa, and the Trust Territory of the Pacific;

"(12) 'urban area' includes any municipality or other political subdivision of a State, subject to population or other limitations defined in rules and regulations of the Secretary and such additional areas as may be designated by the State insurance authority; and

"(13) 'year' means a calendar year, fiscal year of a company, or such other period of twelve months as may be designated by the Secretary.

"(b) The Secretary is authorized to define, by rules and regulations, any technical or trade term, insofar as such definition is not inconsistent with the provisions of this title.

"PART A—STATEWIDE PLANS TO ASSURE FAIR ACCESS TO INSURANCE REQUIREMENTS

"FAIR PLANS

"SEC. 1211. (a) Each insurer reinsured under this title shall cooperate with the State insurance authority in each State in which it is to acquire such reinsurance in establishing and carrying out statewide plans to assure fair access to insurance requirements (FAIR plans).

"(b) Such plans must be approved by the State insurance authority, or be authorized or required by State law, and shall be designed to make essential property insurance more readily available in, but not necessarily limited to, urban areas. Such plans may vary in detail from State to State because of local conditions, but all plans shall contain provision that—

"(1) no risk shall be written at surcharged rates or be denied insurance coverage for essential property insurance unless there has first been an inspection of the risk, without cost to the owner, by an inspection facility and a determination by the insurer, based on information in the inspection report and other sources, that the risk does not meet reasonable underwriting standards at the applicable premium rate;

"(2) inspections under the plan may be requested by the property owner or his representative, the insurer, or the insurance agent, broker or other producer, and such requests need not be made in writing;

"(3) the absence of a building owner or his representative during an inspection shall not preclude a tenant seeking insurance from obtaining an inspection under the plan;

"(4) following the inspection, a copy of the inspection report shall be promptly sent by the inspection facility to the insurer or insurers, or to an all-industry placement facility referred to under section 1212, as may be designated by the person requesting the inspection;

"(5) after the inspection report is received by an insurer, it shall promptly determine if the risk meets reasonable underwriting standards at the applicable premium rate, and shall promptly return to the inspection facility the inspection report and provide an action report setting forth—

"(A) (i) the amount of coverage it agrees to write; and if the insurer agrees to write the coverage with a surcharge (if such a surcharge is authorized by the State insurance authority), the improvements necessary before it will provide coverage at an unsurcharged premium rate; and

"(ii) the amount of coverage it agrees to write if certain improvements specified in the action report are made; or

"(B) the specific reasons it declines to write coverage;

"(6) if the insurer declines the risk, or agrees to write the coverage sought on condition that the property will be improved, it shall also promptly send a copy of both the inspection and action reports to the property owner and the State insurance authority, and at the time the insurer sends such reports to the property owner, it shall also explain his right, under applicable State laws, to appeal the decision of the insurer to the State insurance authority, setting forth the procedures to be followed for such appeal;

"(7) all policies written pursuant to the plan shall be promptly written after inspection or reinspection and shall be separately coded so that appropriate records may be compiled for purposes of performing loss prevention and other studies of the operation of the plan;

"(8) the inspection facility shall submit to the State insurance authority and to the Secretary periodic reports setting forth information, by individual insurers, including the number of risks inspected under the plan, the number of risks accepted, the number of risks conditionally accepted and reinspections made, the number of risks declined, and such other information as the State insurance authority may request;

"(9) notice will be given to any policyholder a reasonable time prior to the cancellation or nonrenewal of any risk eligible under the plan (except in case of nonpayment of premium or evidence of incendiarism), to allow ample time for an application for new coverage to be made and a new policy to be written under the plan, and the insurer shall, in writing, explain to the policyholder the procedures for obtaining an inspection under the plan in the notice of cancellation or nonrenewal; and

"(10) a continuing public education program will be undertaken by the participating insurers, agents, and brokers to assure that the plan receives adequate public attention.

"ALL-INDUSTRY PLACEMENT FACILITY

"SEC. 1212. Any plan under this part shall include an all-industry placement facility doing business with every insurer participating in the plan in the State, and shall provide that this facility shall perform certain functions including, but not limited to, the following:

"(1) seeking, upon request by or on behalf of any property owner requesting an inspection under the plan, to distribute the risks involved equitably among the insurers with which it is doing business; and

"(2) seeking to place insurance up to the full insurable value of the risk to be insured with one or more insurers with which it is doing business, except to the extent that deductibles, percentage participation clauses, and other underwriting devices are employed to meet special problems of insurability.

"INDUSTRY COOPERATION

"SEC. 1213. (a) Every insurer seeking reinsurance under this title shall file a statement with the State insurance authority in each State in which it is participating in a plan under this part, pledging its full participation and cooperation in carrying out the plan, and shall file a copy of such statement with the Secretary.

"(b) No insurer acquiring reinsurance under this title shall direct any agent or broker or other producer not to solicit business through such a plan, nor shall any agent, broker, or other producer be penalized by such insurer in any way for submitting applications for insurance to an insurer under the plan.

"PLAN EVALUATION

"SEC. 1214. (a) In accordance with such rules and regulations as the Secretary may prescribe, each State insurance authority shall—

"(1) transmit to the Secretary any proposed or adopted plan, or amendments thereto; and

"(2) advise the Secretary, from time to time, concerning the operation of the plan, its effectiveness in providing essential property insurance, and the need to form a pool of insurers or adopt other programs to make essential property insurance more readily available in urban areas of the State.

"(b) The Secretary may, after full consultation with the Board, by rules and regulations, modify the plan criteria set forth under this part, if it finds, on the basis of experience, that such action is necessary or desirable to carry out the purposes of this title. The Secretary may also, with respect to any State, waive compliance with one or more of the plan criteria, upon certification by the State insurance authority that compliance is unnecessary or inadvisable under local conditions or State law.

"PART B—REINSURANCE COVERAGE

"REINSURANCE OF LOSSES FROM RIOTS OR CIVIL DISORDERS

"SEC. 1221. (a) (1) The Secretary is authorized to offer to any insurer or pool, subject to the conditions set forth in section 1223, reinsurance against property losses resulting from riots or civil disorders in any one or more States.

"(2) Reinsurance shall be offered to any such insurer or pool only on all standard lines of property insurance enumerated under subparagraphs (A) through (E) of section 1203 (a) (10) together, and any insurer or pool purchasing such reinsurance shall also be eligible to purchase reinsurance on any one or more standard lines of property insurance enumerated under subparagraphs (F) through (J) of section 1203 (a) (10) or which may be designated by regulation pursuant to subparagraph (K) of that section.

"(b) Reinsurance coverage under this section may be provided immediately following the enactment of this title to any insurer or pool in any State on a temporary basis, and on such terms and conditions as may be agreed upon, and coverage under such terms and conditions may be bound with respect to any such insurer or pool by means of a written binder which shall remain in force not more than ninety days and shall expire at the earlier of either—

"(1) the termination of such ninety-day period, or

"(2) the effective date of any governing contract, agreement, treaty, or other arrangement entered into between the insurer or pool and the Secretary under section 1222 for the purpose of providing reinsurance coverage against losses resulting from riots or civil disorders.

"(c) No reinsurance shall be offered to any insurer or pool in a State after the expiration of the written binder entered into under subsection (b), unless there is in effect in such State a plan as set forth under part A and the insurer or pool is participating in such plan, and unless, in the case of an insurer in a State where a pool has been established pursuant to State law, the insurer is participating in such a pool.

"REINSURANCE AGREEMENTS AND PREMIUMS

"SEC. 1222. (a) During the first year following the date of the enactment of this title, the Secretary is authorized to enter into any contract, agreement, treaty, or other arrangement with any insurer or pool for reinsurance coverage, in consideration of payment of such premiums, fees, or other charges by insurers or pools which the Secretary, after full consultation with the Board, deems to be adequate to obtain aggregate reinsurance premiums for deposit in the National Insurance Development Fund established under section 1233 in excess of the estimated amount of insured riot losses during the calendar year 1967, on the assumption that a substantial proportion of the property insurance written will be reinsured under this title, and thereafter the Secretary may increase or decrease such premiums for reinsurance if it is found after full consultation with the Board and the National Association of Insurance Commissioners that such action is necessary or appropriate to carry out the purposes of this title.

"(b) Reinsurance offered under this title shall reimburse an insurer or pool for its total proved and approved claims for covered losses resulting from riots or civil disorders during the term of the reinsurance contract, agreement, treaty, or other arrangement, over and above the amount of the insurer's or pool's retention of such losses as provided in such reinsurance contract, agreement, treaty, or other arrangement entered into under this section.

"(c) Such contracts, agreements, treaties, or other arrangements may be made without regard to section 3679 (a) of the Revised Statutes of the United States (31 U.S.C. 665 (a)), and shall include any terms and conditions which the Secretary deems necessary to carry out the purposes of this title. The premium rates, terms, and conditions of such contracts with insurers or pools, throughout the country, in any one year shall be uniform.

"(d) Any contract, agreement, treaty, or other arrangement for reinsurance under this section shall be for a term expiring on April 30, 1969, and on April 30 each year thereafter, and shall be entered into within ninety days after the date of the enactment of this title or within ninety days prior to April 30 each year thereafter, or within ninety days after an insurer is authorized to write insurance eligible for reinsurance in a State which it was not authorized to write in the preceding year.

"CONDITIONS OF REINSURANCE

"SEC. 1223. (a) Subject to the provisions of subsection (b), reinsurance shall not be offered by the Secretary in a State or be applicable to insurance policies written in that State by an insurer—

"(1) after one year following the date of the enactment of this title, or, if the appropriate State legislative body has not met in regular session during that year, by the close of its next regular session, in any State which has not adopted appropriate legislation, retroactive to the date of the enactment of this title, under which the State, its political subdivisions, or a governmental corporation or fund established pursuant to State law, will reimburse the Secretary, in an amount up to 5 per centum of the aggregate property insurance premiums earned in that State during the preceding calendar year on those lines of insurance reinsured by the Secretary in that State during the current year, such that the Secretary may be reimbursed for amounts paid by him in respect to reinsured losses that occurred in that State during a calendar year in excess of (A) reinsurance premiums received in that State during the same calendar year plus (B) the excess of (i) the total premiums received by the Secretary for reinsurance in that State during a preceding period measured from the end of the most recent calendar year with respect to which the Secretary was reimbursed for losses under this title over (ii) any amounts paid by the Secretary for reinsured losses that occurred during this same period;

"(2) after thirty days following notification to the insurer that the Secretary finds that there has not been adopted by the State, or the property insurance industry in that State, a suitable program or programs, in addition to plans under part A, to make essential property insurance available without regard to environmental hazards, and that such action is necessary to carry out the purposes of this title; except that this paragraph shall not become effective until two years after the date of the enactment of this title, or at such earlier date as the Secretary, after consultation with the State insurance authority, may determine;

"(3) after thirty days following notification to the insurer that the Secretary, or the State insurance authority, finds that such insurer is not fully participating—

"(A) in the plan in the State;

"(B) where it exists, in a pool; and

"(C) where it exists, in any other program found by the Secretary to aid in making essential property insurance more readily available in the State;

"(4) following a merger, acquisition, consolidation or reorganization involving one or more insurers having lines of property insurance in the State reinsured under this title and one or more insurers with or without such reinsurance, unless the surviving company—

"(A) meets the criteria of eligibility for reinsurance, other than as provided under section 1222 (d) ; and

"(B) within ten days pays any reinsurance premiums due; or

"(5) upon receipt of notice from the insurer or pool that it desires to cancel its reinsurance agreement with the Secretary in the State.

"(b) Notwithstanding the foregoing provisions of this section, reinsurance may be continued for the term of the policies written prior to the date of termination or non-renewal of reinsurance under this section, for as long as the insurer pays reinsurance premiums annually in such amounts as are determined under section 1222, based on the annual premiums earned on such reinsured policies, and for the purpose of this subsection, the renewal, extension, modification, or other change in a policy, for which any additional premium is charged, shall be deemed to be a policy written on the date such change was made.

"RECOVERY OF PREMIUMS; STATUTE OF LIMITATIONS

"SEC. 1224. (a) The Secretary, in a suit brought in the appropriate United States district court, shall be entitled to recover from any insurer the amount of any unpaid premiums lawfully payable by such insurer to the Secretary.

"(b) No action or proceeding shall be brought for the recovery of any premium due to the Secretary for reinsurance, or for the recovery of any premium paid to the Secretary in excess of the amount due to him, unless such action or proceeding shall have been brought within five years after the right accrued for which the claim is made, except that, where the insurer has made or filed with the Secretary a false or fraudulent annual statement, or other document with the intent to evade, in whole or in part, the payment of premiums, the claim shall not be deemed to have accrued until its discovery by the Secretary.

"PART C—PROVISIONS OF GENERAL APPLICABILITY

"CLAIMS AND JUDICIAL REVIEW

"SEC. 1231. (a) All reinsurance claims for losses under this title shall be submitted by insurers in accordance with such terms and conditions as may be established by the Secretary.

"(b) (1) Upon disallowance of any claim under color of reinsurance made available under this title, or upon refusal of the claimant to accept the amount allowed upon any such claim, the claimant may institute an action against the Secretary on such claim in the United States district court for the district in which a major portion (in terms of value) of the claim arose.

"(2) Any such action must be begun within one year after the date upon which the claimant received written notice of disallowance or partial disallowance of the claim, and exclusive jurisdiction is hereby conferred upon United States district courts to hear and determine such actions without regard to the amount in controversy.

"FISCAL INTERMEDIARIES AND SERVICING AGENTS

"SEC. 1232. (a) In order to provide for maximum efficiency in the administration of the reinsurance program under this title, and in order to facilitate the expeditious payment of any funds under such program, the Secretary may enter into contracts with any insurer, pool, or other person, for the purpose of providing for the performance of any or all of the following functions:

"(1) estimating or determining any amounts of payments for reinsurance claims;

"(2) receiving and disbursing and accounting for funds in making payments for reinsurance claims;

"(3) auditing the records of any insurer, pool, or other person to the extent necessary to assure that proper payments are made;

"(4) establishing the basis of liability for reinsurance payments, including the total amount of proved and approved claims which may be payable to any insurer, and the total amount of premiums earned by any insurer in the respective States for reinsured lines of property insurance; and

"(5) otherwise assisting in any manner provided in the contract to further the purposes of this title.

"(b) (1) Any such contract may require the insurer, pool, or other person, or any of its officers or employees certifying payments or disbursing funds pursuant to the contract, or otherwise participating in carrying out the contract, to give surety bond to the United States in such amounts as the Secretary may deem appropriate.

"(2) In the absence of gross negligence or intent to defraud the United States—

"(A) no individual designated pursuant to a contract under this section to certify payments shall be liable with respect to any payment certified by him under this section; and

"(B) no officer of the United States disbursing funds shall be liable with respect to any otherwise proper payment by him if it was based on a voucher signed by an individual designated pursuant to a contract under this section to certify payments.

"NATIONAL INSURANCE DEVELOPMENT FUND

"SEC. 1233. (a) To carry out the programs authorized under this title, the Secretary is authorized to establish a National Insurance Development Fund (hereinafter called the 'fund') which shall be available, without fiscal year limitations—

"(1) to make such payments as may, from time to time, be required under reinsurance contracts under this title;

"(2) to pay such administrative expenses as may be necessary or appropriate to carry out the purposes of this title; and

"(3) to repay to the Secretary of the Treasury such sums, including interest thereon, as may be borrowed from him for purposes of such programs under section 520(b).

"(b) The fund shall be credited with—

"(1) reinsurance premiums, fees, and other charges which may be paid or collected in connection with reinsurance provided under part B;

"(2) interest which may be earned on investments of the fund;

"(3) such amounts as may be advanced to the fund from appropriations in order to maintain the fund in an operative condition adequate to meet its liabilities;

"(4) receipts from any other source which may, from time to time, be credited to the fund; and

"(5) funds borrowed by the Secretary under section 520(b) and deposited in the fund.

"(c) If, after any amounts which may have been advanced to the fund from appropriations have been credited to the appropriation from which advanced (including interest thereon at the rate prescribed under section 520(b)), the Secretary determines that the moneys of the fund are in excess of current needs, he may request the investment of such amounts as he deems advisable by the Secretary of the Treasury in obligations issued or guaranteed by the United States.

"RECORDS, ANNUAL STATEMENT, AND AUDITS

"SEC. 1234. (a) Any insurer or pool acquiring reinsurance under this title shall furnish the Secretary with such summaries and analyses of information in its records as may be necessary to carry out the purposes of this title, in such form as the Secretary, in cooperation with the State insurance authority, shall, by rules and regulations, prescribe. The Secretary shall make use of State insurance authority examination reports and facilities to the maximum extent feasible.

"(b) Any insurer or pool acquiring reinsurance under this title shall file with the Secretary a true and correct copy of any annual statement, or amendment thereof, filed with the State insurance authority of its domiciliary State, at the time it files such statement or amendment with such State insurance authority.

"(c) Any insurer or other person executing any contract, agreement, or other appropriate arrangement with the Secretary under section 1222 or section 1232 shall keep reasonable records which fully disclose the total costs of the programs undertaken or the services being rendered, and such other records as will facilitate an effective audit of liability for reinsurance payments by the Secretary.

"(d) The Secretary and the Comptroller General of the United States, or any of their duly authorized representatives, shall have access for the purpose of investigation, audit, and examination to any books, documents, papers, and records of any insurer or other person that are pertinent to the costs of any program undertaken for, or services rendered to, the Secretary. Such audits shall be conducted to the maximum extent feasible in cooperation with the State insurance authorities and through the use of their examining facilities.

"STUDY OF REINSURANCE AND OTHER PROGRAMS

"SEC. 1235. (a) The Secretary is authorized and directed to conduct a study of reinsurance and other means to help assure—

"(1) an adequate market for burglary and theft and other property insurance in urban areas; and

"(2) adequate availability of surety bonds for construction contractors in urban areas.

"(b) The Secretary shall submit the results of this study, together with appropriate recommendations, to the President and Congress no later than one year following the date of the enactment of this title.

"OTHER STUDIES

"SEC. 1236. (a) The Secretary is authorized to undertake such studies as may be necessary to carry out the purposes of this title including, but not limited to, inquiries concerning—

"(1) the operation of plans under part A;

"(2) the extent to which essential property insurance is unavailable in urban areas;

"(3) the market for private reinsurance; and

"(4) loss prevention methods and procedures, insurance marketing methods, and underwriting techniques.

"(b) To such extent and under such circumstances as he deems appropriate, the Secretary may conduct any study authorized under this section in cooperation with State insurance authorities and the private insurance industry.

"GENERAL POWERS

"SEC. 1237. In the performance of, and with respect to, the functions, powers, and duties vested in him by this title, the Secretary shall (in addition to any authority otherwise vested in him) have the functions, powers, and duties (including the authority to issue rules and regulations) set forth in section 402, except subsections (c) (2), (d), and (f), of the Housing Act of 1950.

"SERVICES AND FACILITIES OF OTHER AGENCIES—UTILIZATION OF PERSONNEL, SERVICES, FACILITIES, AND INFORMATION

"SEC. 1238. The Secretary may, with the consent of the agency concerned, accept and utilize, on a reimbursable basis, the officers, employees, services, facilities, and information of any agency of the Federal Government, except that any such agency having custody of any data relating to any of the matters within the jurisdiction of the Secretary shall, to the extent permitted by law, upon request of the Secretary, make such data available to the Secretary.

"ADVANCE PAYMENTS

"SEC. 1239. Any payments which are made under the authority of this title may be made, after necessary adjustments on account of previously made underpayments or overpayments in advance or by way of reimbursement. Payments may be made in such installments and on such conditions as the Secretary may determine.

"TAXATION

"SEC. 1240. (a) The National Insurance Development Fund, including its reserves, surplus, and income, shall be exempt from all taxation now or hereafter imposed by the United States, or by any State, or any subdivision thereof, except that any real property acquired by the Secretary as a result of reinsurance shall be subject to taxation by any State or political subdivision thereof, to the same extent, according to its value, as other real property is taxed.

"(b) Any measures undertaken by any State to meet or to fund its obligations under section 1223 (a) (1) shall not be the subject of any retaliatory or fiscal imposition by any other State.

"APPROPRIATIONS

"SEC. 1241. There are hereby authorized to be appropriated such sums as may be necessary to carry out this title."

FINANCING

SEC. 1004. Section 520(b) of the National Housing Act is amended by inserting "(1)" after "necessary" in the first sentence, and by striking out the period at the end of such sentence and inserting in lieu thereof ", and (2) to make payments for reinsured losses under title XII of this Act: Provided, however, That borrowings to make payments for reinsured losses under title XII shall be limited to $150,000,000 or such further sum as the Congress, by joint resolution, may from time to time determine."

TITLE XI—NATIONAL FLOOD INSURANCE

SHORT TITLE

SEC. 1101. This title may be cited as the "National Flood Insurance Act of 1968".

FINDINGS AND DECLARATION OF PURPOSE

SEC. 1102. (a) The Congress finds that (1) from time to time flood disasters have created personal hardships and economic distress which have required unforeseen disaster relief measures and have placed an increasing burden on the Nation's resources; (2) despite the installation of preventive and protective works and the adoption of other public programs designed to reduce losses caused by flood damage, these methods have not been sufficient to protect adequately against growing exposure to future flood losses; (3) as a matter of national policy, a reasonable method of sharing the risk of flood losses is through a program of flood insurance which can complement and encourage preventive and protective measures; and (4) if such a program is initiated and carried out gradually, it can be expanded as knowledge is gained and experience is appraised, thus eventually making flood insurance coverage available on reasonable terms and conditions to persons who have need for such protection.

(b) The Congress also finds that (1) many factors have made it uneconomic for the private insurance industry alone to make flood insurance available to those in need of such protection on reasonable terms and conditions; but (2) a program of flood insurance with large-scale participation of the Federal Government and carried out to the maximum extent practicable by the private insurance industry is feasible and can be initiated.

(c) The Congress further finds that (1) a program of flood insurance can promote the public interest by providing appropriate protection against the perils of flood losses and encouraging sound land use by minimizing exposure of property to flood losses; and (2) the objectives of a flood insurance program should be integrally related to a unified national program for flood plain management and, to this end, it is the sense of Congress that within two years following the date of the enactment of this Act the President should transmit to the Congress for its consideration any further proposals necessary for such a unified program, including proposals for the allocation of costs among beneficiaries of flood protection.

(d) It is therefore the purpose of this title to (1) authorize a flood insurance program by means of which flood insurance, over a period of time, can be made available on a nationwide basis through the cooperative efforts of the Federal Government and the private insurance industry, and (2) provide flexibility in the program so that such flood insurance may be based on workable methods of pooling risks, minimizing costs, and distributing burdens equitably among those who will be protected by flood insurance and the general public.

(e) It is the further purpose of this title to (1) encourage State and local governments to make appropriate land use adjustments to constrict the development of land which is exposed to flood damage and minimize damage caused by flood losses, (2) guide the development of proposed future construction, where practicable, away from locations which are threatened by flood hazards, (3) encourage lending and credit institutions, as a matter of national policy, to assist in furthering the objectives of the flood insurance program, (4) assure that any Federal assistance provided under the program will be related closely to all flood-related programs and activities of the Federal Government, and (5) authorize continuing studies of flood hazards in order to provide for a constant reappraisal of the flood insurance program and its effect on land use requirements.

AMENDMENTS TO THE FEDERAL FLOOD INSURANCE ACT OF 1956

SEC. 1103. (a) The second sentence of section 15 (e) of the Federal Flood Insurance Act of 1956 (79 Stat. 1078) is amended—

(1) by striking out "rate" the second time it appears in such sentence, and inserting in lieu thereof "market yield", and

(2) by striking out "as of the last day of", and inserting in lieu thereof "during".

(b) Section 15 (e) of such Act is further amended by striking out the last sentence thereof.

(c) Sections 2 through 14, subsections (a) through (d), and (f) and (g) of section 15, and sections 16 through 23 of such Act are hereby repealed.

CHAPTER I—THE NATIONAL FLOOD INSURANCE PROGRAM

BASIC AUTHORITY

SEC. 1105. (a) To carry out the purposes of this title, the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development is authorized to establish and carry out a national flood insurance program which will enable interested persons to purchase insurance against loss resulting from physical damage to or loss of real property or personal property related thereto arising from any flood occurring in the United States.

(b) In carrying out the flood insurance program the Secretary shall, to the maximum extent practicable, encourage and arrange for—

(1) appropriate financial participation and risk sharing in the program by insurance companies and other insurers, and

(2) other appropriate participation, on other than a risk-sharing basis, by insurance companies and other insurers, insurance agents and brokers, and insurance adjustment organizations, in accordance with the provisions of chapter II.

SCOPE OF PROGRAM AND PRIORITIES

SEC. 1106. (a) In carrying out the flood insurance program the Secretary shall afford a priority to making flood insurance available to cover residential properties which are designed for the occupancy of from one to four families and business properties which are owned or leased and operated by small business concerns.

(b) If on the basis of—

(1) studies and investigations undertaken and carried out and information received or exchanged under section 1108, and

(2) such other information as may be necessary, the Secretary determines that it would be feasible to extend the flood insurance program to cover any types or classes of—

(A) other residential properties,

(B) other business properties,

(C) agricultural properties,

(D) properties occupied by private nonprofit organizations, or

(E) properties owned by State and local governments and agencies thereof, he shall transmit such determination to the Congress together with his recommendations with respect to any such extension of the program.

(c) The Secretary shall make flood insurance available in only those States or areas (or subdivisions thereof) which he has determined have—

(1) evidenced a positive interest in securing flood insurance coverage under the flood insurance program, and

(2) given satisfactory assurance that by June 30, 1970, permanent land use and control measures will have been adopted for the State or area (or subdivision) which are consistent with the comprehensive criteria for land management and use developed under section 1161, and that the application and enforcement of such measures will commence as soon as technical information on floodways and on controlling flood elevations is available.

NATURE AND LIMITATION OF INSURANCE COVERAGE

SEC. 1107. (a) The Secretary shall from time to time, after consultation with the advisory committee authorized under section 1119, appropriate representatives of the pool formed or otherwise created under section 1131, and appropriate representatives of the insurance authorities of the respective States, provide by regulation for general terms and conditions of insurability which shall be applicable to properties eligible for flood insurance coverage under section 1106, including—

(1) the types, classes, and locations of any such properties which shall be eligible for flood insurance;

(2) the nature and limits of loss or damage in any areas (or subdivisions thereof) which may be covered by such insurance;

(3) the classification, limitation, and rejection of any risks which may be advisable;

(4) appropriate minimum premiums;

(5) appropriate loss-deductibles; and

(6) any other terms and conditions relating to insurance coverage or exclusion which may be necessary to carry out the purposes of this title.

(b) In addition to any other terms and conditions under subsection (a), such regulations shall provide that—

(1) any flood insurance coverage based on chargeable premium rates under section 1109 which are less than the estimated premium rates under section 1108

(a) (1) shall not exceed—

(A) in the case of residential properties which are designed for the occupancy of from one to four families—

(i) $17,500 aggregate liability for any dwelling unit, and $30,000 for any single dwelling structure containing more than one dwelling unit, and

(ii) $5,000 aggregate liability per dwelling unit for any contents related to such unit;

(B) in the case of business properties which are owned or leased and operated by small business concerns, an aggregate liability with respect to any single structure, including any contents thereof related to premises of small business occupants (as that term is defined by the Secretary), which shall be equal to (i) $30,000 plus (ii) $5,000 multiplied by the number of such occupants and shall be allocated among such occupants (or among the occupant or occupants and the owner) under regulations prescribed by the Secretary; except that the aggregate liability for the structure itself may in no case exceed $30,000; and

(C) in the case of any other properties which may became eligible for flood insurance coverage under section 1106—

(i) $30,000 aggregate liability for any single structure, and

(ii) $5,000 aggregate liability per dwelling unit for any contents related to such unit in the case of residential properties, or per occupant (as that term is defined by the Secretary) for any contents related to the premises occupied in the case of any other properties; and

(2) any flood insurance coverage which may be made available in excess of any of the limits specified in subparagraph (A), (B), or (C) of paragraph (1) (or allocated to any person under subparagraph (B) of such paragraph) shall be based only on chargeable premium rates under section 1109 which are not less than the estimated premium rates under section 1108 (a) (1), and the amount of such excess coverage shall not in any case exceed an amount which is equal to the applicable limit so specified (or allocated).

ESTIMATES OF PREMIUM RATES

SEC. 1108. (a) The Secretary is authorized to undertake and carry out such studies and investigations and receive or exchange such information as may be necessary to estimate, and shall from time to time estimate, on an area, subdivision, or other appropriate basis—

(1) the risk premium rates for flood insurance which—

(A) based on consideration of the risk involved and accepted actuarial principles, and

(B) including—

(i) the applicable operating costs and allowances set forth in the schedules prescribed under section 1112 and reflected in such rates, and

(ii) any administrative expenses (or portion of such expenses) of carrying out the flood insurance program which, in his discretion, should properly be reflected in such rates, would be required in order to make such insurance available on an actuarial basis for any types and classes of properties for which insurance coverage is available under section 1106(a) (or is recommended to the Congress under section 1106(b));

(2) the rates, if less than the rates estimated under paragraph (1), which would be reasonable, would encourage prospective insureds to purchase flood insurance, and would be consistent with the purposes of this title; and

(3) the extent, if any, to which federally assisted or other flood protection measures initiated after the date of the enactment of this title affect such rates.

(b) In carrying out subsection (a), the Secretary shall, to the maximum extent feasible and on a reimbursement basis, utilize the services of the Department of the Army, the Department of the Interior, the Department of Agriculture, the Department of Commerce, and the Tennessee Valley Authority, and, as appropriate, other Federal departments or agencies, and for such purposes may enter into agreements or other appropriate arrangements with any persons.

(c) The Secretary shall give priority to conducting studies and investigations and making estimates under this section in those States or areas (or subdivisions thereof) which he has determined have evidenced a positive interest in securing flood insurance coverage under the flood insurance program.

ESTABLISHMENT OF CHARGEABLE PREMIUM RATES

SEC. 1109. (a) On the basis of estimates made under section 1108 and such other information as may be necessary, the Secretary shall from time to time, after consultation with the advisory committee authorized under section 1119, appropriate representatives of the pool formed or otherwise created under section 1131, and appropriate representatives of the insurance authorities of the respective States, prescribe by regulation—

(1) chargeable premium rates for any types and classes of properties for which insurance coverage shall be available under section 1106 (at less than the estimated risk premium rates under section 1108(a)(1), where necessary), and

(2) the terms and conditions under which, and the areas (including subdivisions thereof) within which, such rates shall apply.

(b) Such rates shall, insofar as practicable, be—

(1) based on a consideration of the respective risks involved, including differences in risks due to land use measures, floodproofing, flood forecasting, and similar measures,

(2) adequate, on the basis of accepted actuarial principles, to provide reserves for anticipated losses, or, if less than such amount, consistent with the objective of making flood insurance available where necessary at reasonable rates so as to encourage prospective insureds to purchase such insurance and with the purposes of this title, and

(3) stated so as to reflect the basis for such rates, including the differences (if any) between the estimated risk premium rates under section 1108(a)(1) and the estimated rates under section 1108(a)(2).

(c) Notwithstanding any other provision of this title, the chargeable rate with respect to any property, the construction or substantial improvement of which the Secretary determines has been started after the identification of the area in which such property is located has been published under paragraph (1) of section 1160, shall not be less than the applicable estimated risk premium rate for such area (or subdivision thereof) under section 1108(a)(1).

(d) In the event any chargeable premium rate prescribed under this section—

(1) is a rate which is not less than the applicable estimated risk premium rate under section 1108(a)(1), and

(2) includes any amount for administrative expenses of carrying out the flood insurance program which have been estimated under clause (ii) of section 1108(a)(1)(B), a sum equal to such amount shall be paid to the Secretary, and he shall deposit such sum in the National Flood Insurance Fund established under section 1111.

FINANCING

SEC. 1110. (a) All authority which was vested in the Housing and Home Finance Administrator by virtue of section 15(e) of the Federal Flood Insurance Act of 1956 (70 Stat. 1084) (pertaining to the issue of notes or other obligations to the Secretary of the Treasury), as amended by subsections (a) and (b) of section 1103 of this Act, shall be available to the Secretary for the purpose of carrying out the flood insurance program under this title; except that the total amount of notes and obligations which may be issued by the Secretary pursuant to such authority shall not exceed $150,000,000.

(b) Any funds borrowed by the Secretary under this authority shall, from time to time, be deposited in the National Flood Insurance Fund established under section 1111.

NATIONAL FLOOD INSURANCE FUND

SEC. 1111. (a) To carry out the flood insurance program authorized by this title, the Secretary is authorized to establish in the Treasury of the United States a National Flood Insurance Fund (hereinafter referred to as the "fund") which shall be available, without fiscal year limitation—

(1) for making such payments as may, from time to time, be required under section 1134;

(2) to pay reinsurance claims under the excess loss reinsurance coverage provided under section 1135;

(3) to repay to the Secretary of the Treasury such sums as may be borrowed from him (together with interest) in accordance with the authority provided in section 1110; and

(4) for the purposes specified in subsection (d) under the conditions provided therein.

(b) The fund shall be credited with—

(1) such funds borrowed in accordance with the authority provided in section 1110 as may from time to time be deposited in the fund;

(2) premiums, fees, or other charges which may be paid or collected in connection with the excess loss reinsurance coverage provided under section 1135;

(3) such amounts as may be advanced to the fund from appropriations in order to maintain the fund in an operative condition adequate to meet its liabilities;

(4) interest which may be earned on investments of the fund pursuant to subsection (c);

(5) such sums as are required to be paid to the Secretary under section 1109 (d) ; and

(6) receipts from any other operations under this title (including premiums under the conditions specified in subsection (d) , and salvage proceeds, if any, resulting from reinsurance coverage) .

(c) If, after—

(1) all outstanding obligations of the fund have been liquidated, and

(2) any outstanding amounts which may have been advanced to the fund from appropriations authorized under section 1176 (a) (2) (B) have been credited to the appropriation from which advanced, with interest accrued at the rate prescribed under section 15 (e) of the Federal Flood Insurance Act of 1956, as in effect immediately prior to the enactment of this title, the Secretary determines that the moneys of the fund are in excess of current needs, he may request the investment of such amounts as he deems advisable by the Secretary of the Treasury in obligations issued or guaranteed by the United States.

(d) In the event the Secretary makes a finding in accordance with the provisions of section 1140 that operation of the flood insurance program, in whole or in part, should be carried out through the facilities of the Federal Government, the fund shall be available for all purposes incident thereto, including—

(1) costs incurred in the adjustment and payment of any claims for losses, and

(2) payment of applicable operating costs set forth in the schedules prescribed under section 1112, for so long as the program is so carried out, and in such event any premiums paid shall be deposited by the Secretary to the credit of the fund.

OPERATING COSTS AND ALLOWANCES

SEC. 1112. (a) The Secretary shall from time to time negotiate with appropriate representatives of the insurance industry for the purpose of establishing—

(1) a current schedule of operating costs applicable both to risk-sharing insurance companies and other insurers and to insurance companies and other insurers, insurance agents and brokers, and insurance adjustment organizations participating on other than a risk-sharing basis, and

(2) a current schedule of operating allowances applicable to risk-sharing insurance companies and other insurers, which may be payable in accordance with the provisions of chapter II, and such schedules shall from time to time be prescribed in regulations.

(b) For purposes of subsection (a)—

(1) The term "operating costs" shall (without limiting such term) include—

(A) expense reimbursements covering the direct, actual, and necessary expenses incurred in connection with selling and servicing flood insurance coverage;

(B) reasonable compensation payable for selling and servicing flood insurance coverage, or commissions or service fees paid to producers;

(C) loss adjustment expenses; and

(D) other direct, actual, and necessary expenses which the Secretary finds are incurred in connection with selling or servicing flood insurance coverage; and

(2) the term "operating allowances" shall (without limiting such term) include amounts for profit and contingencies which the Secretary finds reasonable and necessary to carry out the purposes of this title.

PAYMENT OF CLAIMS

SEC. 1113. The Secretary is authorized to prescribe regulations establishing the general method or methods by which proved and approved claims for losses may be adjusted and paid for any damage to or loss of property which is covered by flood insurance made available under the provisions of this title.

DISSEMINATION OF FLOOD INSURANCE INFORMATION

SEC. 1114. The Secretary shall from time to time take such action as may be necessary in order to make information and data available to the public, and to any State or local agency or official, with regard to—

(1) the flood insurance program, its coverage and objectives, and

(2) estimated and chargeable flood insurance premium rates, including the basis for and differences between such rates in accordance with the provisions of section 1109.

PROHIBITION AGAINST CERTAIN DUPLICATIONS OF BENEFITS

SEC. 1115. (a) Notwithstanding the provisions of any other law, no Federal disaster assistance shall be made available to any person—

(1) for the physical loss, destruction, or damage of real or personal property, to the extent that such loss, destruction, or damage is covered by a valid claim which may be adjusted and paid under flood insurance made available under the authority of this title, or

(2) except in the situation provided for under subsection (b), for the physical loss, destruction, or damage of real or personal property, to the extent that such loss, destruction, or damage could have been covered by a valid claim under flood insurance which had been made available under the authority of this title, if—

(A) such loss, destruction, or damage occurred subsequent to one year following the date flood insurance was made available in the area (or subdivision thereof) in which such property or the major part thereof was located, and

(B) such property was eligible for flood insurance under this title at that date;

and in such circumstances the extent that such loss, destruction, or damage could have been covered shall be presumed (for purposes of this subsection) to be an amount not less than the maximum limit of insurable loss or damage applicable to such property in such area (or subdivision thereof), pursuant to regulations under section 1107, at the time insurance was made available in such area (or subdivision thereof).

(b) In order to assure that the provisions of subsection (a) (2) will not create undue hardship for low-income persons who might otherwise benefit from the provision of Federal disaster assistance, the Secretary shall provide by regulation for the circumstances in which the provisions of subsection (a) (2) shall not be applicable to any such persons.

(c) For purposes of this section, "Federal disaster assistance" shall include any Federal financial assistance which may be made available to any person as a result of—

(1) a major disaster (within the meaning of that term as determined by the President pursuant to the Act entitled "An Act to authorize Federal assistance to State and local governments in major disasters, and for other purposes", as amended (42 U.S.C. 1855–1855g)),

(2) a natural disaster, as determined by the Secretary of Agriculture pursuant to section 321 of the Consolidated Farmers Home Administration Act of 1961 (7 U.S.C. 1961), or

(3) a disaster with respect to which loans may be made under section 7 (b) of the Small Business Act (15 U.S.C. 636 (b)).

(d) For purposes of section 10 of the Disaster Relief Act of 1966 (80 Stat. 1320), the term "financial assistance" shall be deemed to include any flood insurance which is made available under this title.

STATE AND LOCAL LAND USE CONTROLS

SEC. 1116. After June 30, 1970, no new flood insurance coverage shall be provided under this title in any area (or subdivision thereof) unless an appropriate public body shall have adopted permanent land use and control measures (with effective enforcement provisions) which the Secretary finds are consistent with the comprehensive criteria for land management and use under section 1161.

PROPERTIES IN VIOLATION OF STATE AND LOCAL LAW

SEC. 1117. No new flood insurance coverage shall be provided under this title for any property which the Secretary finds has been declared by a duly constituted State or local zoning authority, or other authorized public body, to be in violation of State or local laws, regulations, or ordinances which are intended to discourage or otherwise restrict land development or occupancy in flood-prone areas.

COORDINATION WITH OTHER PROGRAMS

SEC. 1118. In carrying out this title, the Secretary shall consult with other departments and agencies of the Federal Government, and with interstate, State, and local agencies having responsibilities for flood control, flood forecasting, or flood damage prevention, in order to assure to the maximum extent practicable that the programs of such agencies and the flood insurance program authorized under this title are mutually consistent.

ADVISORY COMMITTEE

SEC. 1119. (a) The Secretary shall appoint a flood insurance advisory committee, without regard to the provisions of title 5, United States Code, governing appointments in the competitive service, and such committee shall advise the Secretary in the preparation of any regulations prescribed in accordance with this title and with respect to policy matters arising in the administration of this title, and shall perform such other responsibilities as the Secretary may, from time to time, assign to such committee.

(b) Such committee shall consist of not more than fifteen persons and such persons shall be selected from among representatives of—

(1) the insurance industry,

(2) State and local governments,

(3) lending institutions,

(4) the homebuilding industry, and

(5) the general public.

(c) Members of the committee shall, while attending conferences or meetings thereof, be entitled to receive compensation at a rate fixed by the Secretary but not exceeding $100 per day, including traveltime, and while so serving away from their homes or regular places of business they may be allowed travel expenses, including per diem in lieu of subsistence, as is authorized under section 5703 of title 5, United States Code, for persons in the Government service employed intermittently.

INITIAL PROGRAM LIMITATION

SEC. 1120. The face amount of flood insurance coverage outstanding and in force at any one time under this title shall not exceed the sum of $2,500,000,000.

REPORT TO THE PRESIDENT

SEC. 1121. The Secretary shall include a report of operations under this title in the annual report to the President for submission to the Congress required by section 8 of the Department of Housing and Urban Development Act.

CHAPTER II—ORGANIZATION AND ADMINISTRATION OF THE FLOOD INSURANCE PROGRAM

ORGANIZATION AND ADMINISTRATION

SEC. 1130. Following such consultation with representatives of the insurance industry as may be necessary, the Secretary shall implement the flood insurance program authorized under chapter I in accordance with the provisions of part A of this chapter and, if a determination is made by him under section 1140, under part B of this chapter.

PART A—INDUSTRY PROGRAM WITH FEDERAL FINANCIAL ASSISTANCE

INDUSTRY FLOOD INSURANCE POOL

SEC. 1131. (a) The Secretary is authorized to encourage and otherwise assist any insurance companies and other insurers which meet the requirements prescribed under subsection (b) to form, associate, or otherwise join together in a pool—

(1) in order to provide the flood insurance coverage authorized under chapter I; and

(2) for the purpose of assuming, on such terms and conditions as may be agreed upon, such financial responsibility as will enable such companies and other insurers, with the Federal financial and other assistance available under this title, to assume a reasonable proportion of responsibility for the adjustment and payment of claims for losses under the flood insurance program.

(b) In order to promote the effective administration of the flood insurance program under this part, and to assure that the objectives of this title are furthered, the Secretary is authorized to prescribe appropriate requirements for insurance companies and other insurers participating in such pool including, but not limited to, minimum requirements for capital or surplus or assets.

AGREEMENTS WITH FLOOD INSURANCE POOL

SEC. 1132. (a) The Secretary is authorized to enter into such agreements with the pool formed or otherwise created under this part as he deems necessary to carry out the purposes of this title.

(b) Such agreements shall specify—

(1) the terms and conditions under which risk capital will be available for the adjustment and payment of claims,

(2) the terms and conditions under which the pool (and the companies and other insurers participating therein) shall participate in premiums received and profits or losses realized or sustained,

(3) the maximum amount of profit, established by the Secretary and set forth in the schedules prescribed under section 1112, which may be realized by such pool (and the companies and other insurers participating therein),

(4) the terms and conditions under which operating costs and allowances set forth in the schedules prescribed under section 1112 may be paid, and

(5) the terms and conditions under which premium equalization payments under section 1134 will be made and reinsurance claims under section 1135 will be paid.

(c) In addition, such agreements shall contain such provisions as the Secretary finds necessary to assure that—

(1) no insurance company or other insurer which meets the requirements prescribed under section 1131 (b), and which has indicated an intention to participate in the flood insurance program on a risk-sharing basis, will be excluded from participating in the pool,

(2) the insurance companies and other insurers participating in the pool will take whatever action may be necessary to provide continuity of flood insurance coverage by the pool, and

(3) any insurance companies and other insurers, insurance agents and brokers, and insurance adjustment organizations will be permitted to cooperate with the pool as fiscal agents or otherwise, on other than a risk-sharing basis, to the maximum extent practicable.

ADJUSTMENT AND PAYMENT OF CLAIMS AND JUDICIAL REVIEW

SEC. 1133. The insurance companies and other insurers which form, associate, or otherwise join together in the pool under this part may adjust and pay all claims for proved and approved losses covered by flood insurance in accordance with the provisions of this title and, upon the disallowance by any such company or other insurer of any such claim, or upon the refusal of the claimant to accept the amount allowed upon any such claim, the claimant, within one year after the date of mailing of notice of disallowance or partial disallowance of the claim, may institute an action on such claim against such company or other insurer in the United States district court for the district in which the insured property or the major part thereof shall have been situated, and jurisdiction is hereby conferred upon such court to hear and determine such action without regard to the amount in controversy.

PREMIUM EQUALIZATION PAYMENTS

SEC. 1134. (a) The Secretary, on such terms and conditions as he may from time to time prescribe, shall make periodic payments to the pool formed or otherwise created under section 1131, in recognition of such reductions in chargeable premium rates under section 1109 below estimated premium rates under section 1108(a)(1) as are required in order to make flood insurance available on reasonable terms and conditions.

(b) Such payments shall be based only on the aggregate amount of flood insurance retained by the pool after ceding reinsurance in accordance with the provisions of section 1135, and shall not exceed an aggregate amount in any payment period equal to the sum of the following:

(1) an amount for losses which bears the same ratio to the amount of all proved and approved claims for losses under this title during any designated period as the amount equal to the difference between—

(A) the sum of all premium payments for flood insurance coverage in force under this title during such designated period which would have been payable during such period if all such coverage were based on estimated risk premium rates under section 1108(a)(1) (excluding any administrative expenses which may be reflected in such rates, as specified in clause (ii) of section 1108(a)(1)(B)), and

(B) the sum of the premium payments actually paid or payable for such insurance under this title during such period, bears to the amount specified in clause (A); and

(2) subject to the terms and conditions specified in the agreements entered into with the pool under section 1132, a proportionate amount for appropriate operating costs and allowances (as set forth in the schedules prescribed under section 1112) during any designated period which bears the same ratio to the total amount of such operating costs and allowances during such period as the ratio specified in paragraph (1).

(c) Designated periods under this section and the methods for determining the sum of premiums paid or payable during such periods shall be established by the Secretary.

REINSURANCE COVERAGE

SEC. 1135. (a) The Secretary is authorized to take such action as may be necessary in order to make available, to the pool formed or otherwise created under section 1131, reinsurance for losses (due to claims for proved and approved losses covered by flood insurance) which are in excess of losses assumed by such pool in accordance with the excess loss agreement entered into under subsection (c).

(b) Such reinsurance shall be made available pursuant to contract, agreement, or any other arrangement, in consideration of such payment of a premium, fee, or other charge as the Secretary finds necessary to cover anticipated losses and other costs of providing such reinsurance.

(c) The Secretary is authorized to negotiate an excess loss agreement, from time to time, under which the amount of flood insurance retained by the pool, after ceding reinsurance, shall be adequate to further the purposes of this title, consistent with the objective of maintaining appropriate financial participation and risk sharing to the maximum extent practicable on the part of participating insurance companies and other insurers.

(d) All reinsurance claims for losses in excess of losses assumed by the pool shall be submitted on a portfolio basis by such pool in accordance with terms and conditions established by the Secretary.

PART B—GOVERNMENT PROGRAM WITH INDUSTRY ASSISTANCE

FEDERAL OPERATION OF THE PROGRAM

SEC. 1140. (a) If at any time, after consultation with representatives of the insurance industry, the Secretary determines that operation of the flood insurance program as provided under part A cannot be carried out, or that such operation, in itself, would be assisted materially by the Federal Government's assumption, in whole or in part, of the operational responsibility for flood insurance under this title (on a temporary or other basis), he shall promptly undertake any necessary arrangements to carry out the program of flood insurance authorized under chapter I through the facilities of the Federal Government, utilizing, as may be practicable for purposes of providing flood insurance coverage, insurance companies and other insurers, insurance agents and brokers, and insurance adjustment organizations, as fiscal agents of the United States.

(b) Upon making the determination referred to in subsection (a), and at least thirty days prior to implementing the program of flood insurance authorized under chapter I through the facilities of the Federal Government, the Secretary shall make a report to the Congress and such report shall—

(1) state the reasons for such determination,

(2) be supported by pertinent findings,

(3) indicate the extent to which it is anticipated that the insurance industry will be utilized in providing flood insurance coverage under the program, and

(4) contain such recommendations as the Secretary deems advisable.

ADJUSTMENT AND PAYMENT OF CLAIMS AND JUDICIAL REVIEW

SEC. 1141. In the event the program is carried out as provided in section 1140, the Secretary shall be authorized to adjust and make payment of any claims for proved and approved losses covered by flood insurance, and upon the disallowance by the Secretary of any such claim, or upon the refusal of the claimant to accept the amount allowed upon any such claim, the claimant, within one year after the date of mailing of notice of disallowance or partial disallowance by the Secretary, may institute an action against the Secretary on such claim in the United States district court for the district in which the insured property or the major part thereof shall have been situated, and jurisdiction is hereby conferred upon such court to hear and determine such action without regard to the amount in controversy.

PART C—PROVISIONS OF GENERAL APPLICABILITY

SERVICES BY INSURANCE INDUSTRY

SEC. 1145. (a) In administering the flood insurance program under this chapter, the Secretary is authorized to enter into any contracts, agreements, or other appropriate arrangements which may, from time to time, be necessary for the purpose of utilizing, on such terms and conditions as may be agreed upon, the facilities and services of any insurance companies or other insurers, insurance agents and brokers, or insurance adjustment organizations; and such contracts, agreements, or arrangements may include provision for payment of applicable operating costs and allowances for such facilities and services as set forth in the schedules prescribed under section 1112.

(b) Any such contracts, agreements, or other arrangements may be entered into without regard to the provisions of section 3709 of the Revised Statutes (41 U.S.C. 5) or any other provision of law requiring competitive bidding.

USE OF INSURANCE POOL, COMPANIES, OR OTHER PRIVATE ORGANIZATIONS FOR CERTAIN PAYMENTS

SEC. 1146. (a) In order to provide for maximum efficiency in the administration of the flood insurance program and in order to facilitate the expeditious payment of any

Federal funds under such program, the Secretary may enter into contracts with pool formed or otherwise created under section 1131, or any insurance company or other private organization, for the purpose of securing performance by such pool, company, or organization of any or all of the following responsibilities:

(1) estimating and later determining any amounts of payments to be made;

(2) receiving from the Secretary, disbursing, and accounting for funds in making such payments;

(3) making such audits of the records of any insurance company or other insurer, insurance agent or broker, or insurance adjustment organization as may be necessary to assure that proper payments are made; and

(4) otherwise assisting in such manner as the contract may provide to further the purposes of this title.

(b) Any contract with the pool or an insurance company or other private organization under this section may contain such terms and conditions as the Secretary finds necessary or appropriate for carrying out responsibilities under subsection (a), and may provide for payment of any costs which the Secretary determines are incidental to carrying out such responsibilities which are covered by the contract.

(c) Any contract entered into under subsection (a) may be entered into without regard to section 3709 of the Revised Statutes (41 U.S.C. 5) or any other provision of law requiring competitive bidding.

(d) No contract may be entered into under this section unless the Secretary finds that the pool, company, or organization will perform its obligations under the contract efficiently and effectively, and will meet such requirements as to financial responsibility, legal authority, and other matters as he finds pertinent.

(e) (1) Any such contract may require the pool, company, or organization or any of its officers or employees certifying payments or disbursing funds pursuant to the contract, or otherwise participating in carrying out the contract, to give surety bond to the United States in such amount as the Secretary may deem appropriate.

(2) No individual designated pursuant to a contract under this section to certify payments shall, in the absence of gross negligence or intent to defraud the United States, be liable with respect to any payment certified by him under this section.

(3) No officer disbursing funds shall, in the absence of gross negligence or intent to defraud the United States, be liable with respect to any payment by him under this section if it was based upon a voucher signed by an individual designated to certify payments as provided in paragraph (2) of this subsection.

(f) Any contract entered into under this section shall be for a term of one year, and may be made automatically renewable from term to term in the absence of notice by either party of an intention to terminate at the end of the current term; except that the Secretary may terminate any such contract at any time (after reasonable notice to the pool, company, or organization involved) if he finds that the pool, company, or organization has failed substantially to carry out the contract, or is carrying out the contract in a manner inconsistent with the efficient and effective administration of the flood insurance program authorized under this title.

SETTLEMENT AND ARBITRATION

SEC. 1147. (a) The Secretary is authorized to make final settlement of any claims or demands which may arise as a result of any financial transactions which he is authorized to carry out under this chapter, and may, to assist him in making any such settlement, refer any disputes relating to such claims or demands to arbitration, with the consent of the parties concerned.

(b) Such arbitration shall be advisory in nature, and any award, decision, or recommendation which may be made shall become final only upon the approval of the Secretary.

RECORDS AND AUDITS

SEC. 1148. (a) The flood insurance pool formed or otherwise created under part A of this chapter, and any insurance company or other private organization executing any contract, agreement, or other appropriate arrangement with the Secretary under part B of this chapter or this part, shall keep such records as the Secretary shall prescribe, including records which fully disclose the total costs of the program undertaken or the services being rendered, and such other records as will facilitate an effective audit.

(b) The Secretary and the Comptroller General of the United States, or any of their duly authorized representatives, shall have access for the purpose of audit and examination to any books, documents, papers, and records of the pool and any such insurance company or other private organization that are pertinent to the costs of the program undertaken or the services being rendered.

CHAPTER III—COORDINATION OF FLOOD INSURANCE WITH LAND-MANAGEMENT PROGRAMS IN FLOOD-PRONE AREAS

IDENTIFICATION OF FLOOD-PRONE AREAS

SEC. 1160. The Secretary is authorized to consult with, receive information from, and enter into any agreements or other arrangements with the Secretaries of the Army, the Interior, Agriculture, and Commerce, the Tennessee Valley Authority, and the heads of other Federal departments or agencies, on a reimbursement basis, or with the head of any State or local agency, in order that he may—

(1) identify and publish information with respect to all flood plain areas, including coastal areas located in the United States, which have special flood hazards, within five years following the date of the enactment of this Act, and

(2) establish flood-risk zones in all such areas, and make estimates with respect to the rates of probable flood-caused loss for the various flood-risk zones for each of these areas, within fifteen years following such date.

CRITERIA FOR LAND MANAGEMENT AND USE

SEC. 1161. (a) The Secretary is authorized to carry out studies and investigations, utilizing to the maximum extent practicable the existing facilities and services of other Federal departments or agencies, and State and local governmental agencies, and any other organizations, with respect to the adequacy of State and local measures in flood-prone areas as to land management and use, flood control, flood zoning, and flood damage prevention, and may enter into any contracts, agreements, or other appropriate arrangements to carry out such authority.

(b) Such studies and investigations shall include, but not be limited to, laws, regulations, or ordinances relating to encroachments and obstructions on stream channels and floodways, the orderly development and use of flood plains of rivers or streams, floodway encroachment lines, and flood plain zoning, building codes, building permits, and subdivision or other building restrictions.

(c) On the basis of such studies and investigations, and such other information as he deems necessary, the Secretary shall from time to time develop comprehensive criteria designed to encourage, where necessary, the adoption of permanent State and local measures which, to the maximum extent feasible, will—

(1) constrict the development of land which is exposed to flood damage where appropriate,

(2) guide the development of proposed construction away from locations which are threatened by flood hazards,

(3) assist in reducing damage caused by floods, and

(4) otherwise improve the long-range land management and use of flood-prone areas, and he shall work closely with and provide any necessary technical assistance to State, interstate, and local governmental agencies, to encourage the application of such criteria and the adoption and enforcement of such measures.

PURCHASE OF CERTAIN INSURED PROPERTIES

SEC. 1162. The Secretary may, when he determines that the public interest would be served thereby, enter into negotiations with any owner of real property or interest therein which—

(1) was located in any flood-risk area, as determined by the Secretary,

(2) was covered by flood insurance under the flood insurance program authorized under this title, and

(3) was damaged substantially beyond repair by flood while so covered, and may purchase such property or interests therein, for subsequent transfer, by sale, lease, donation, or otherwise, to any State or local agency which enters into an agreement with the Secretary that such property shall, for a period not less than forty years following transfer, be used for only such purposes as the Secretary may, by regulation, determine to be consistent with sound land management and use in such area.

CHAPTER IV—APPROPRIATIONS AND MISCELLANEOUS PROVISIONS

DEFINITIONS

SEC. 1170. As used in this title—

(1) the term "flood" shall have such meaning as may be prescribed in regulations of the Secretary, and may include inundation from rising waters or from the overflow of streams, rivers, or other bodies of water, or from tidal surges, abnormally high tidal water, tidal waves, tsunamis, hurricanes, or other severe storms or deluge;

(2) the terms "United States" (when used in a geographic sense) and "State" includes the several States, the District of Columbia, the territories and possessions, the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, and the Trust Territory of the Pacific Islands;

(3) the terms "insurance company", "other insurer", and "insurance agent or broker" include any organizations and persons authorized to engage in the insurance business under the laws of any State;

(4) the term "insurance adjustment organization" includes any organizations and persons engaged in the business of adjusting loss claims arising under insurance policies issued by any insurance company or other insurer;

(5) the term "person" includes any individual or group of individuals, corporation, partnership, association, or any other organized group of persons, including State and local governments and agencies thereof; and

(6) the term "Secretary" means the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development.

STUDIES OF OTHER NATURAL DISASTERS

SEC. 1171. (a) The Secretary is authorized to undertake such studies as may be necessary for the purpose of determining the extent to which insurance protection against earthquakes or any other natural disaster perils, other than flood, is not available from public or private sources, and the feasibility of such insurance protection being made available.

(b) Studies under this section shall be carried out, to the maximum extent practicable, with the cooperation of other Federal departments and agencies and State and local agencies, and the Secretary is authorized to consult with, receive information from, and enter into any necessary agreements or other arrangements with such other Federal departments and agencies (on a reimbursement basis) and such State and local agencies.

PAYMENTS

SEC. 1172. Any payments under this title may be made (after necessary adjustment on account of previously made underpayments or overpayments) in advance or by way of reimbursement, and in such installments and on such conditions, as the Secretary may determine.

GOVERNMENT CORPORATION CONTROL ACT

SEC. 1173. The provisions of the Government Corporation Control Act shall apply to the program authorized under this title to the same extent as they apply to wholly owned Government corporations.

FINALITY OF CERTAIN FINANCIAL TRANSACTIONS

SEC. 1174. Notwithstanding the provisions of any other law—

(1) any financial transaction authorized to be carried out under this title, and

(2) any payment authorized to be made or to be received in connection with any such financial transaction, shall be final and conclusive upon all officers of the Government.

ADMINISTRATIVE EXPENSES

SEC. 1175. Any administrative expenses which may be sustained by the Federal Government in carrying out the flood insurance program authorized under this title may be paid out of appropriated funds.

APPROPRIATIONS

SEC. 1176. (a) There are hereby authorized to be appropriated such sums as may from time to time be necessary to carry out this title, including sums—

(1) to cover administrative expenses authorized under section 1175;

(2) to reimburse the National Flood Insurance Fund established under section 1111 for—

(A) premium equalization payments under section 1134 which have been made from such fund; and

(B) reinsurance claims paid under the excess loss reinsurance coverage provided under section 1135; and

(3) to make such other payments as may be necessary to carry out the purposes of this title.

(b) All such funds shall be available without fiscal year limitation.

TITLE XII—MORTGAGE INSURANCE FOR NONPROFIT HOSPITALS

AMENDMENT TO NATIONAL HOUSING ACT

SEC. 1201. Title II of the National Housing Act is amended by adding at the end thereof (after the new section added by section 307 of this Act) the following new section:

"MORTGAGE INSURANCE FOR NONPROFIT HOSPITALS

"SEC. 242. (a) The purpose of this section is to assist the provision of urgently needed hospitals for the care and treatment of persons who are acutely ill or who otherwise require medical care and related services of the kind customarily furnished only (or most effectively) by hospitals.

"(b) For the purposes of this section—

"(1) the term 'hospital' means a facility—

"(A) which provides community service for inpatient medical care of the sick or injured (including obstetrical care);

"(B) not more than 50 per centum of the total patient days of which during any year are customarily assignable to the categories of chronic convalescent and rest, drug and alcoholic, epileptic, mentally deficient, mental, nervous and mental, and tuberculosis; and

"(C) which is owned and operated by one or more nonprofit corporations or associations no part of the net earnings of which inures, or may lawfully inure, to the benefit of any private shareholder or individual; and

"(2) the terms 'mortgage' and 'mortgagor' shall have the meanings respectively set forth in section 207 (a) of this Act, except that the mortgage, by the same instrument or by a separate instrument, may create a security interest in initial equipment, whether or not attached to the realty.

"(c) The Secretary is authorized to insure any mortgage (including advances on such mortgage during construction) in accordance with the provisions of this section upon such terms and conditions as he may prescribe and to make commitments for insurance of such mortgage prior to the date of its execution or disbursement thereon.

"(d) In order to carry out the purpose of this section, the Secretary is authorized to insure any mortgage which covers a new or rehabilitated hospital, including equipment to be used in its operation, subject to the following conditions:

"(1) The mortgage shall be executed by a mortgagor approved by the Secretary. The Secretary may in his discretion require any such mortgagor to be regulated or restricted as to charges and methods of financing, and, in addition thereto, if the mortgagor is a corporate entity, as to capital structure and rate of return. As an aid to the regulation or restriction of any mortgagor with respect to any of the foregoing matters, the Secretary may make such contracts with and acquire for not to exceed $100 such stock or interest in such mortgagor as he may deem necessary. Any stock or interest so purchased shall be paid for out of the General Insurance Fund, and shall be redeemed by the mortgagor at par upon the termination of all obligations of the Secretary under the insurance.

"(2) The mortgage shall involve a principal obligation in an amount not to exceed $25,000,000, and not to exceed 90 per centum of the estimated replacement cost of the property or project, including equipment to be used in the operation of the hospital, when the proposed improvements are completed and the equipment is installed.

"(3) The mortgage shall—

"(A) provide for complete amortization by periodic payments within such term as the Secretary shall prescribe, and

"(B) bear interest (exclusive of premium charges for insurance and service charges, if any) at not to exceed such per centum per annum (not in excess of 6 per centum), on the amount of the principal obligation outstanding at any time, as the Secretary finds necessary to meet the mortgage market.

"(4) The Secretary shall not insure any mortgage under this section unless he has received, from the State agency designated in accordance with section 604(a)(1) of the Public Health Service Act for the State in which is located the hospital covered by the mortgage, a certification that (1) there is a need for such hospital, and (2) there are in force in such State or the political subdivision of the State in which the proposed hospital would be located reasonable minimum standards of licensure and methods of operation for hospitals. No such mortgage shall be insured under this section unless the Secretary has received such assurance as he may deem satisfactory from the State agency that such standards will be applied and enforced with respect to any hospital located in the State for which mortgage insurance is provided under this section.

"(e) The Secretary may consent to the release of a part or parts of the mortgaged property or project from the lien of any mortgage insured under this section upon such terms and conditions as he may prescribe.

"(f) The activities and functions provided for in this section shall be carried out by the agencies involved so as to encourage programs that undertake responsibility to provide comprehensive health care, including outpatient and preventive care, as well as hospitalization, to a defined population.

"(g) The provisions of subsections (d), (e), (g), (h), (i), (j), (k), (l), and (n) of section 207 shall apply to mortgages insured under this section and all references therein to section 207 shall be deemed to refer to this section."

LABOR STANDARDS

SEC. 1202. Section 212(a) of the National Housing Act is amended by inserting after the fifth sentence the following new sentence: "The provisions of this section shall also apply to the insurance of any mortgage under section 242, except that compliance with such provisions may be waived by the Secretary in cases or classes of cases where laborers or mechanics, not otherwise employed at any time on the project, voluntarily donate their services without compensation for the purpose of lowering the costs of construction and the Secretary determines that any amounts thereby saved are fully credited to the nonprofit corporation or association undertaking the construction; and each laborer or mechanic employed on any facility covered by a mortgage insured under section 242 shall receive compensation at a rate not less than one and one-half times his basic rate of pay for all hours worked in any workweek in excess of eight hours in any workday or forty hours in the workweek, as the case may be."

TITLE XIII—HOUSING GOALS AND ANNUAL HOUSING REPORT

REAFFIRMATION OF GOAL

SEC. 1301. The Congress finds that the supply of the Nation's housing is not increasing rapidly enough to meet the national housing goal, established in the Housing Act of 1949, of the "realization as soon as feasible of the goal of a decent home and a suitable living environment for every American family". The Congress reaffirms this national housing goal and determines that it should be met within the next decade by the construction or rehabilitation of twenty-six million housing units, six million of these for low and moderate income families

ANNUAL HOUSING REPORT

SEC. 1302. The Secretary of Housing and Urban Development shall annually submit to the President and to the Council of Economic Advisers in time to provide basic material for the Economic Report of the President a report of (1) his estimate of the number of standard housing units produced through new construction and rehabilitation, private and public, in the preceding year, (2) his estimate of the number of such units produced for low and moderate income families, (3) his assessment of whether the ten-year housing goal set forth above is being met, (4) his recommendation of the current annual goal to meet the ten-year goal, and (5) his recommendations of the legislative and administrative actions necessary to achieve the ten-year goal.

TITLE XIV—MISCELLANEOUS

MODEL CITIES

SEC. 1401. (a) Section 111 (a) of the Demonstration Cities and Metropolitan Development Act of 1966 is amended—

(1) by striking out "and" the second time it appears; and

(2) by inserting before the period at the end thereof ", and not to exceed $12,000,000 for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1969".

(b) Section 111 (b) of such Act is amended—

(1) by striking out "and" the third time it appears; and

(2) by inserting before the period at the end thereof

", and not to exceed $1,000,000,000 for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1970".

(c) Section 111 (c) of such Act is amended to read as follows:

"(c) Any amounts appropriated under this section shall remain available until expended, and any amounts authorized for any fiscal year under this section but not appropriated may be appropriated for any succeeding fiscal year commencing prior to July 1, 1970."

URBAN RENEWAL DEMONSTRATION GRANT PROGRAM

SEC. 1402. (a) Section 314 (a) of the Housing Act of 1954 is amended—

(1) by striking out in the first sentence "to public bodies, including cities and other political subdivisions," and inserting in lieu thereof "to public bodies (including cities and other political subdivisions) and nonprofit organizations,";

(2) by inserting after the first sentence the following: "In the case of any such grant to a nonprofit organization, the Secretary shall require that the assisted activities and undertakings are not inconsistent with the program of the local public agency."; and

(3) by striking out in the second sentence "No such grant shall exceed two-thirds of the cost, as determined or estimated by said Secretary, of such activities or undertakings," and inserting in lieu thereof the following: "No such grant shall exceed 90 per centum of the cost, as determined or estimated by the Secretary, of the assisted activities or undertakings,".

(b) Section 314 (c) of such Act is amended by striking out "$10,000,000" and inserting in lieu thereof "$20,000,000".

AUTHORIZATION FOR URBAN INFORMATION AND TECHNICAL ASSISTANCE SERVICES PROGRAM

SEC. 1403. (a) The first sentence of section 906 of the Demonstration Cities and Metropolitan Development Act of 1966 is amended by striking out "and not to exceed $5,000,000 for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1968" and inserting in lieu thereof "not to exceed $5,000,000 for each of the fiscal years 1968 and 1969, and not to exceed $15,000,000 for fiscal year 1970".

(b) The second sentence of section 906 of such Act is amended to read as follows: "Any amounts appropriated under this section shall remain available until expended, and any amounts authorized for any fiscal year under this section but not appropriated may be appropriated for any succeeding fiscal year commencing prior to July 1, 1970."

ADVANCES IN TECHNOLOGY IN HOUSING AND URBAN DEVELOPMENT

SEC. 1404. (a) Section 1010(d) of the Demonstration Cities and Metropolitan Development Act of 1966 is amended by inserting before the period at the end of the first sentence the following: ", which amounts shall be increased in subsequent fiscal years by such sums as may be necessary".

(b) Section 1010(c) of such Act is amended by striking out "two years" in the second sentence and inserting in lieu thereof "three years".

COLLEGE HOUSING

SEC. 1405. (a) The heading of section 401 of the Housing Act of 1950 is amended by striking out "LOANS" and inserting in lieu thereof "ASSISTANCE IN THE FORM OF LOANS OR ANNUAL GRANTS".

(b) Section 401(a) of such Act is amended to read as follows:

"(a) To assist educational institutions in providing housing and other educational facilities for students and faculties, the Secretary may make loans of funds to such institutions for the construction or purchase of such facilities or may, as an alternative to all or part of the loan (in the case of any such institution), make annual grants to the institution to reduce the cost of its borrowing from other sources for such construction or purchase: Provided, That no such assistance shall be provided unless (1) the educational institution involved is unable to secure the necessary funds for the construction or purchase from other sources upon terms and conditions equally as favorable as the terms and conditions applicable to loans under this title, and (2) the Secretary finds that any such construction will be undertaken in an economical manner, and that any such facilities are not or will not be of elaborate or extravagant design or materials."

(c) Section 401 (c) of such Act is amended—

(1) by inserting "(1)" after "(c)";

(2) by striking out "of (1)" and "or (2)" and inserting in lieu thereof "of (A)" and "or (B)", respectively; and

(3) by adding at the end thereof the following new paragraph:

"(2) Annual grants to an educational institution with respect to any housing or other educational facilities shall be made over a fixed period not exceeding 40 years, and provision for such grants shall be embodied in a contract guaranteeing their payment over such period. Each such grant shall be in an amount equal to the difference between (A) the average annual debt service which would be required to be paid, during the life of the loan, on the amount borrowed from other sources for the construction of such facilities, and (B) the average annual debt service which the institution would have been required to pay, during the life of the loan, with respect to such amounts if the applicable interest rate were the rate specified in paragraph (1): Provided, That the amount on which such grant is based shall be approved by the Secretary but in no event shall exceed the total development cost of the facilities."

(d) Section 401 (d) of such Act is amended by inserting "(1)" after "(d)", and by adding at the end thereof the following new paragraph:

"(2) There are hereby authorized to be appropriated to the Secretary such sums as may be necessary, together with loan principal and interest payments made by educational institutions assisted with loans made hereunder, for payments on notes or other obligations issued by the Secretary under this section."

(e) Section 401 (f) of such Act is amended to read as follows:

"(f) (1) There are hereby authorized to be appropriated to the Secretary such sums as may be necessary for the payment of annual grants to educational institutions in accordance with this section.

"(2) Contracts for annual grants under this section shall not be entered into in an aggregate amount greater than is authorized in appropriation Acts; and in any event the total amount of annual grants which may be paid to educational institutions in any year pursuant to contracts entered into under this section shall not exceed $10,000,000, which amount shall be increased by $10,000,000 on July 1, 1969."

(f) Section 403 of such Act is amended by striking out "the funds provided for in this title in the form of loans" and inserting in lieu thereof "the amount of the funds provided for in this title in the form of loans, and not more than 12½ per centum of the funds provided for in this title for grants,".

(g) (1) Section 401 (g) of such Act is amended to read as follows:

"(g) Except as otherwise provided in the second paragraph of section 404 (b), in the case of any loan which is made under this section to a nonprofit student housing cooperative corporation referred to in clause (5) of section 404 (b), or which is obtained from other sources by such a corporation and is the subject of a contract for annual grants entered into under this section, the Secretary shall require that the note securing such loan be cosigned by the educational institution (referred to in clause (1) of such section) at which such corporation is located, and that, in the event of the dissolution of such corporation, title to the housing constructed with such loan will vest in such educational institution."

(2) Clause (3) (B) of section 404 (b) of such Act is amended by striking out "of any loan secured under this title" and inserting in lieu thereof the following: "of any loan which is made under section 401, or is the subject of a contract for annual grants entered into under section 401,".

(3) Clause (4) of section 404 (b) of such Act is amended by striking out "to obtain loans" and inserting in lieu thereof "to obtain loans or grants".

(4) The second paragraph of section 404 (b) of such Act is amended by inserting after "clause (5) of this subsection," the following: "and in the case of any loan which is obtained from other sources by such a corporation and is the subject of a contract for annual grants entered into under section 401,".

(h) Section 404 (c) of such Act is amended by inserting before the period at the end thereof the following: "; except that in the case of the purchase of facilities such term means the cost as approved by the Secretary".

HOUSING FOR THE ELDERLY

(b) Paragraph (87) of section 5315 of title 5, United States Code, is amended by striking out "(4)" and inserting in lieu thereof "(6)".

INTERNATIONAL HOUSING

SEC. 1409. Section 604 of the Housing Act of 1957 is amended to read as follows:

"SEC. 604. (a) The Secretary of Housing and Urban Development may exchange data relating to housing and urban planning and development with other nations and assemble such data from other nations, through participation in international conferences and other means, where such exchange or assembly is deemed by him to be beneficial in carrying out his responsibilities under the Department of Housing and Urban Development Act or other legislation. In carrying out his responsibilities under this subsection the Secretary may—

"(1) pay the expenses of participation in activities conducted under authority of this section including, but not limited to, the compensation, travel expenses, and per diem in lieu of subsistence of persons serving in an advisory capacity while away from their homes or regular places of business in connection with attendance at international meetings and conferences, or other travel for the purpose of exchange or assembly of data relating to housing and urban planning and development; but such travel expenses shall not exceed those authorized for regular officers and employees traveling in connection with said activities; and

"(2) accept from international organizations, foreign countries, and private nonprofit foundations, funds, services, facilities, materials, and other donations to be utilized jointly in carrying out activities under this section.

"(b) International programs and activities carried out by the Secretary under the authority provided in subsection (a) shall be subject to the approval of the Secretary of State for the purpose of assuring that such authority shall be exercised in a manner consistent with the foreign policy of the United States."

LOW-RENT PUBLIC HOUSING—CORPORATE STATUS

SEC. 1410. (a) The first sentence of section 3 of the United States Housing Act of 1937 is amended by striking out "a body corporate of perpetual duration to be known as".

(b) Section 17 of such Act is repealed. The capital stock referred to in such section shall be retired, and the sum of $1,000,000 represented by such stock shall be returned to the Treasury of the United States.

(c) Such Act is amended by inserting after section 16 a new section 17 as follows:

"SEC. 17. In the performance of, and with respect to, his functions, powers, and duties under this Act, the Secretary shall have (in addition to any authority otherwise vested in him) the functions, powers, and duties set forth in subsections (a), (b), and (e) of section 402 of the Housing Act of 1950."

(d) Section 101 of the Government Corporation Control Act is amended by striking out "United States Housing Authority and including public housing projects financed through appropriated funds and operations thereof;".

ELIGIBILITY FOR RENT SUPPLEMENT PAYMENTS

SEC. 1411. Notwithstanding any other provision of law respecting the date after which a mortgage must have been approved for mortgage insurance under section 221 (d) (3) of the National Housing Act, the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development is authorized to make, and contract to make, rent supplement payments under the provisions of section 101 of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965 to the owners of the housing projects known as the 114th Street rehabilitation project and the 114th Street rehabilitation project numbered 2, in New York City, New York (project numbers 012–33501 and 012–33512).

CONSOLIDATION OF LOW-RENT PUBLIC HOUSING PROJECTS IN THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA

SEC. 1412. All projects now operated and maintained by the National Capital Housing Authority pursuant to title I of the District of Columbia Alley Dwelling Act are deemed to be low-rent housing projects and may be consolidated, pursuant to section 15 (6) of the United States Housing Act of 1937, into any contract for annual contributions covering projects maintained and operated pursuant to title II of the District of Columbia Alley Dwelling Act.

URBAN RENEWAL PROJECT IN GARDEN CITY, MICHIGAN

SEC. 1413. Notwithstanding the date of commencement of construction of the Florence Primary School in Garden City, Michigan, local expenditures made in connection with such school shall, to the extent otherwise eligible, be counted as a local grant-in-aid toward the Cherry Hill urban renewal project (Mich. R–46) for purposes of title I of the Housing Act of 1949.

URBAN RENEWAL PROJECT IN SACRAMENTO, CALIFORNIA

SEC. 1414. Notwithstanding the date of commencement of construction of the storm drainage system in the Capitol Mall Riverfront urban renewal project (Calif. R–67) in Sacramento, California, local expenditures made in connection with such storm drainage system located in that project shall, to the extent otherwise eligible, be counted as a local grant-in-aid toward that project for purposes of title I of the Housing Act of 1949.

SELF-HELP STUDIES

SEC. 1415. (a) Section 207 of the Housing Act of 1961 is amended by inserting after the words "improved means" the following: ", including the study of self-help in the construction, rehabilitation, and maintenance of housing for low-income persons and families and the methods of selecting, involving, and directing such persons and families in self-help activities,".

(b) The Secretary of Housing and Urban Development shall make a report to the Congress, within one year after the date of enactment of this Act, setting forth the results of the self-help studies and demonstrations carried out under section 207 of the Housing Act of 1961, together with such recommendations as he deems appropriate.

EARTHQUAKE STUDY

SEC. 1416. Section 5 of the Southeast Hurricane Disaster Relief Act of 1965 is amended by striking out "three years after the appropriation of funds for this study" and inserting in lieu thereof "June 30, 1969".

HOME OWNERS' LOAN ACT OF 1933

SEC. 1417. (a) Section 5(b) of the Home Owners' Loan Act of 1933 is amended to read as follows:

"(b) (1) An association may raise capital in the form of such savings deposits, shares, or other accounts, for fixed, minimum, or indefinite periods of time (all of which are referred to in this section as savings accounts and all of which shall have the same priority upon liquidation) as are authorized by its charter or by regulations of the Board, and may issue such passbooks, time certificates of deposit, or other evidence of savings accounts as are so authorized. Holders of savings accounts and obligors of an association shall, to such extent as may be provided by its charter or by regulations of the Board, be members of the association, and shall have such voting rights and such other rights as are thereby provided. Except as may be otherwise authorized by the association's charter or regulation of the Board in the case of savings accounts for fixed or minimum terms of not less than thirty days, the payment of any savings account shall be subject to the right of the association to require such advance notice, not less than thirty days, as shall be provided for by the charter of the association or the regulations of the Board. The payment of withdrawals from savings accounts in the event an association does not pay all withdrawals in full (subject to the right of the association to require notice) shall be subject to such rules and procedures as may be prescribed by the association's charter or by regulation of the Board, but any association which, except as authorized in writing by the Board, fails to make full payment of any withdrawal when due shall be deemed to be in an unsafe or unsound condition to transact business within the meaning of subsection (d) of this section. Savings accounts shall not be subject to check or to withdrawal or transfer on negotiable or transferable order or authorization to the association, but the Board may by regulation provide for withdrawal or transfer of savings accounts upon nontransferable order or authorization.

"(2) To such extent as the Board may authorize by regulation or advice in writing, an association may borrow, may give security, and may issue such notes, bonds, debentures, or other obligations, or other securities (except capital stock) as the Board may so authorize."

(b) Section 5(c) of the Home Owners' Loan Act of 1933 is amended—

(1) by striking out "shares" in the first sentence and inserting in lieu thereof "savings accounts or securities"; and

(2) by inserting after the first semicolon in the second proviso the following words: "or in time deposits, certificates, or accounts of any bank the deposits of which are insured by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation;".

(c) Section 5(c) of such Act is amended by adding immediately after the second paragraph thereof the following new paragraph:

"Without regard to any other provision of this subsection, any such association may make and invest in any loan not exceeding $5,000—

"(A) for the repair, equipping, alteration, or improvement of any real property, including the construction of new structures related to residential use of the property, or

"(B) for the purpose of mobile home financing, subject to such prohibitions, limitations, and conditions as the Board may by regulation prescribe."

(d) Section 5(c) of such Act is amended by adding at the end thereof a new paragraph as follows:

"Any such association may invest in loans, or interests in loans secured by loans, obligations, or investments in which it has any statutory authority to invest directly."

FEDERAL HOME LOAN BANK ACT

SEC. 1418. Section 12 of the Federal Home Loan Bank Act, as amended (12 U.S.C. 1432), is amended by inserting "(a)" after "SEC. 12.", and by adding at the end thereof a new subsection as follows:

"(b) Subject to such regulations as may be prescribed by the Board, one or more Federal home loans banks may acquire, hold, or dispose of, in whole or in part, or facilitate such acquisition, holding, or disposition by members of any such bank of, housing project loans, or interests therein, having the benefit of any guaranty under section 221 of the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961, as now or hereafter in effect, or loans, or interests therein, having the benefit of any guaranty under section 224 of such Act, or any commitment or agreement with respect to such loans, or interests therein, made pursuant to either of such sections."

TECHNICAL AMENDMENTS

SEC. 1419. (a) Section 110(c) of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended by striking out "paragraphs (7), (8), and (9)" in the second unnumbered paragraph following the numbered paragraphs and inserting in lieu thereof "paragraphs (7), (8), (9), and (10)".

(b) Section 110(d) of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended by striking out "clauses (2), (3)" and inserting in lieu thereof "clauses (2), (3), (7)".

(c) Section 110(e) of the Housing Act of 1949 is amended by striking out "and (9)" in clause (i) and inserting in lieu thereof "(9), and (10)".

(d) Section 1101(c)(3) of the National Housing Act is amended by inserting "from the beginning of amortization of the mortgage" immediately after "twenty-five years".

(e) Section 213(o) of the National Housing Act is amended by adding at the end thereof four new sentences as follows: "Moneys in the Cooperative Management Housing Insurance Fund not needed for current operations of the fund shall be deposited with the Treasurer of the United States to the credit of the Cooperative Management Housing Insurance Fund or invested in bonds or other obligations of, or in bonds or other obligations guaranteed as to principal and interest by, the United States. The Secretary may, with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury, purchase in the open market debentures which are the obligations of the Cooperative Management Housing Insurance Fund. Such purchases shall be made at a price which will provide an investment yield of not less than the yield obtainable from other investments authorized by this subsection. Debentures so purchased shall be canceled and not reissued."

(f) Section 810(e) of the National Housing Act is amended—

(1) by striking out "private corporation, association, cooperative society, or trust" in the first sentence and inserting in lieu thereof "mortgagor approved by the Secretary", and

(2) by striking out "corporation, association, cooperative society, or trust" in the third and fourth sentences and inserting in lieu thereof "mortgagor".

(g) Section 220(d)(2)(B) of the National Housing Act is amended by striking out "corporations restricted by" and inserting in lieu thereof "corporations or other legal entities restricted by or under".

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

JUNE 28, 1968

Mr. MADDEN, from the Committee on Rules, reported the following resolution; which was referred to the House Calendar and ordered to be printed

---

RESOLUTION

Resolved, That upon the adoption of this resolution it shall be in order to move that the House resolve itself into the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union for the consideration of the bill (H.R. 17989) to assist in the provision of housing for low and moderate income families, and to extend and amend laws relating to housing and urban development, and all points of order against said bill are hereby waived. After general debate, which shall be confined to the bill and shall continue not to exceed four hours, to be equally divided and controlled by the chairman and ranking minority member of the Committee on Banking and Currency, the bill shall be read for amendment under the five-minute rule by titles instead of by sections. At the conclusion of the consideration of the bill for amendment, the Committee shall rise and report the bill to the House with such amendments as may have been adopted, and the previous question shall be considered as ordered on the bill and amendments thereto to final passage without intervening motion except one motion to recommit. After the passage of H.R. 17989, the Committee on Banking and Currency shall be discharged from the further consideration of the bill S. 3497, and it shall then be in order in the House to move to strike out all after the enacting clause of S. 3497 and insert in lieu thereof the provisions contained in H.R. 17989 as passed by the House.

RESOLUTION

Providing for consideration of H.R. 17989 to assist in the provision of housing for low and moderate income families, and to extend and amend laws relating to housing and urban development.

By Mr. MADDEN

JUNE 28, 1968

Referred to the House Calendar and ordered to be printed the consideration of the Natural Gas Pipeline Safety Act, to be followed by a return to and hopefully the finishing of the Federal-Aid Highway Act of 1968. That in turn is to be followed by the Department of Transportation Appropriation Act and the District of Columbia Revenue Act. Beyond that there are no changes in the program for the week as of this time.

Mr. GERALD R. FORD. The latter two bills probably would come up on Wednesday.

Mr. ALBERT. Probably.

Mr. GERALD R. FORD. Is there a conference report?

Mr. ALBERT. There is a conference report on an appropriation act tomorrow. I appreciate the gentleman reminding me of that.

HOUR OF MEETING TOMORROW

Mr. ALBERT. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that when the House adjourns today it adjourn to meet at 11 o'clock tomorrow.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Oklahoma.

There was no objection.

CORRECTION OF THE RECORD

Mr. O'KONSKI. Mr. Speaker, on rollcall No. 219, I am recorded as not voting. I was present and voted "yea." I ask unanimous consent that the permanent RECORD be corrected accordingly.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Wisconsin?

There was no objection.

PRESIDENT JOHNSON URGES NEW INITIATIVES TO EXPLORE NUCLEAR MISSILE DISARMAMENT

Mr. ALBERT. Mr. Speaker, President Johnson is firmly on record in pursuing new accords with the Soviet Union to bring the arms race under control. He has, on numerous occasions, urged discussions on limiting nuclear missile offensive and defensive systems. In recent days, the Soviet Union has indicated that it is interested in pursuing such discussions. And today, in ceremonies at the White House which marked the signing of the Nuclear Nonproliferation Treaty, President Johnson announced that we would soon be meeting with the Soviets on this urgent matter.

I think we would all agree that the President's persistence and determination to end the nuclear arms race could conceivably result in a dramatic breakthrough if talks between the United States and the Soviet Union on reducing missile systems result in an agreement.

As the President said today, there is a long and difficult road ahead. But the fact that the two superpowers are ready and willing to talk about ways to end the senseless race toward more and more destructive weapons is a most significant development. With proper guarantees and safeguards, a new agreement with the Soviets to reduce these costly and dangerous missile systems will be a boon to both nations and offer new encouragement to others in the world who also want to disarm.

FROM WHERE I STAND

(Mr. BRINKLEY asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. BRINKLEY. Mr. Speaker, from where I stand I can see the four words inscribed above the point at which you preside over this House of Representatives. Formed by golden metallic letters fastened upon marble; supported by four 12-foot-tall pillars; capping the flag of the United States of America draped between the inner pillars; they read, "In God We Trust."

Long ago, at the Constitutional Convention in 1787, Delegate Benjamin Franklin set the example for this country when he said:

> I have lived a long time, and the longer I live the more convincing proofs I see of this truth—that God governs in the affairs of man. And if a sparrow cannot fall to the ground without His notice, is it probable that an empire can rise without His aid?

Is it likely that a Nation can continue without His guidance?

President Lincoln must have asked this question and sought that guidance. So was his leadership shaped:

> Let reverence for the laws be breathed by the American mother to the lisping babe that prattles on her lap; let it be taught in school, seminaries, and in colleges; let it be written in primers, spelling books, and in almanacs; let it be preached from the pulpit, proclaimed in legislative halls, and enforced in courts of justice. And, in short, let it become the political religion of the nation; and let the old and the young, the rich and the poor, the grave and the gay of all sexes and tongues and colors and conditions, sacrifice unceasingly upon its altars.

Yet on June 27, 1968, the Washington Post printed a letter in which the writer accused the Post Office Department of serious error in issuing a postage stamp with a slogan "Law and Order" and a picture of a policeman. The writer stated that the phrase had become a bigot's code word.

Justice Holmes once said that words are skins of living thoughts, changeable from time to time and from person to person. But basic values never change.

The basic value expressed by those metallic letters, Mr. Speaker.

The basic value expressed by that postage stamp.

It has been well said that dissent is loud and gratitude is quiet. May I quietly express my gratitude to the people of this great country for the privilege of serving them. The people—with lives and attitudes reflecting those basic values—still the anchor of these United States on this Fourth of July.

Mr. Speaker, may the inscription above you be a light unto our country's path.

FEDERAL REGISTRATION OF FIREARMS?

(Mr. DORN asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. DORN. Mr. Speaker, this Congress should not be stampeded through hysteria and emotionalism into passing strong Federal control of firearms.

I oppose any law passed here in Washington forcing the citizens of our country to register with the Federal Government their firearms for defense of their homes and their hunting guns. I am against the Federal Government passing any legislation requiring a citizen to obtain a permit from Washington before a gun can be purchased for the defense of his home or for outdoor sports.

Communist and Fascist dictatorships require the registration of firearms. The old kings and crown princes of Europe did not permit the people to own firearms or to hunt on the "king's land." The Founding Fathers of our country in creating a free nation wrote into the Constitution the right to bear arms. We must preserve this right of free people.

I do believe State laws requiring some gun regulation are necessary and desirable. When purchasing a firearm in Virginia where I live, a person is required by Virginia law to wait 3 days before going back to the store to pick up his gun. This is a good State law because it prevents someone who might be mad, temporarily insane, under the influence, or with a criminal record, from immediately buying a gun. This type of legislation should be considered at the local and State level. Federal registration of guns and Federal permits to own firearms will only harass and burden the good citizens. The criminal and the assassin will get a gun through the bootleg route. A Federal law will encourage illegal bootleg traffic in guns, which could make the situation worse.

The principal responsibility for law enforcement and law and order should be in the hands of local and State law-enforcement authorities. The Federal Government could assist these local and State authorities with equipment, technology, training, and with the very efficient FBI.

Our law-enforcement officials should have better salaries, equipment, and training to cope with the present crime wave. Mr. Speaker, we should never, however, through hysteria and emotionalism, create a Federal police state. This is the road of no return.

I do favor Federal laws which would prevent guns from being shipped across State lines to minors, the mentally ill, or those with criminal records. I do favor a Federal law outlawing the shipment of bazookas, antitank guns, machineguns, grenades, and high explosives across State lines to unauthorized persons.

SECRETARY UDALL MESSAGE TO UNIVERSITY OF DENVER GRADUATES

(Mr. ROGERS of Colorado asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to include extraneous matter.)

Mr. ROGERS of Colorado. Mr. Speaker, Secretary of Interior Stewart Udall was recently scheduled to speak at the June commencement of my alma mater, the University of Denver. Senator Kennedy's tragic death prevented Mr. Udall from going to Denver. He sent, by wire, the following eloquent remarks, which Chancellor Maurice B. Mitchell read to the graduates.

I include these inspiring words in the RECORD, as I think they have value for us all during these difficult times:

MESSAGE FROM STEWART UDALL

(Read by Chancellor Maurice B. Mitchell of University of Denver at Commencement on June 7, 1968)

If ever there was a time I would like to be with young people, it is now. If ever there was a moment when youth—in a world it did not make—requires an encouragement of its energies and talents and capacities to remake the world, it is now. If ever there was a time when tragedy must yield to hope and reason, instead of despair and frustration, it is now.

I can not be with you because Robert F. Kennedy was a man I loved and whose professional and personal life I shared. I had to be with his family.

One searches for words on an occasion when rhetoric itself is totally inadequate. The opening words of Dickens' A Tale of Two Cities have more appropriateness and poignancy than any I could frame: "It was the best of times, it was the worst of time, it was the age of wisdom, it was the age of foolishness, it was the epoch of belief, it was the epoch of incredulity, it was the season of Light, it was the season of Darkness, it was the spring of Hope, it was the winter of Despair; we had everything before us, we had nothing before us, we were all going direct to Heaven, we were all going direct the other way."

But these words—as any words—can only frame a question. The answer which must be the ultimate victory of reason over madness is for you—and all youth—to provide. This is increasingly your world—both by the strength of your numbers and the power of your concern and commtiment.

There is an end to a man's life; there need to be no end to the things he stood for and aspired for all men, everywhere. Those things—to which John F. Kennedy and Martin Luther King and Robert F. Kennedy dedicated their careers, and for which they gave their lives, are in your hands. The power to create is greater than the power to destroy. Indeed, that power is in your hands—and hearts.

FARM SUBSIDY RAID ON U.S. TAXPAYER

(Mr. MADDEN asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute, to revise and extend his remarks, and to include extraneous matter.)

Mr. MADDEN. Mr. Speaker, the Agriculture Committee of the House of Representatives presented H.R. 17126, a bill to extend the Food and Agriculture Act of 1965 for 1 year.

Although the pending bill has a year and a half before it expires on December 31, 1969, the recipients of annual subsidies to thousands of farmers and farm corporations all over the Nation are pressuring the Congress for another year continuance of this "boondoggle," so that it can carry through the year 1970.

Evidently these recipients of a "guaranteed annual income" from the American taxpayers are afraid the next Congress will toss this $3.5 billion subsidy bill in the "legislative wastebasket."

A month ago, the Rules Committee failed to report the legislation to the floor of the House, but on June 18 it was reported for consideration on the floor of the House. Evidently the sponsors are planning on passing this bill in the closing days of the session when, by reason of absentees and confusion in the final hours they might succeed in passing the same and extending the farm subsidy through 1970. Every Member should be on the alert against this contingency.

I am herewith enclosing with my remarks a letter received from Mr. Charles B. Shuman, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation. The same speaks for itself.

AMERICAN FARMER BUREAU FEDERATION,
Washington, D.C., June 25, 1968.

Hon. RAY J. MADDEN,
U.S. House of Representatives,
Washington, D.C.

DEAR CONGRESSMAN MADDEN: The House of Representatives will soon consider H.R. 17126, a bill to extend the Food and Agriculture Act of 1965 for one year—to December 31, 1970.

Passage of this bill would be unnecessary and unwise.

It is unnecessary to act in 1968. The present legislation does not expire until December 31, 1969. Rejection of this bill would permit Congress to develop an alternative program next year.

It is unwise to act because the Act of 1965 is a failure. It has failed:

To stabilize the food costs of consumers.

To expand farmers' export and domestic markets.

To improve—or even maintain—the incomes of farm families.

The farm parity ratio stood at 81 when the Act of 1965 became effective. Now when we are less than half-way through the third year of the program, it stands at 73. Farmers want something better than to be locked into the present low-price situation. And, while farmers have suffered a drop in their prices, the federal government's costs for wheat, feed grain, and cotton programs have steadily increased and now total over $3 billion annually.

With Congress having passed a 10-percent tax increase and a requirement that the President reduce budgeted expenditures $6 billion in the next fiscal year, it is incredible that Congress would even consider extending legislation which has proved to be so costly and ineffective.

We respectfully urge you to vote against H.R. 17126.

Sincerely yours,

CHARLES B. SHUMAN,
President.

THE OMNIBUS HOUSING BILL CONTAINS MANY PROPOSALS SPONSORED BY THE MINORITY

(Mr. WIDNALL asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute, to revise and extend his remarks, and to include extraneous matter.)

Mr. WIDNALL. Mr. Speaker, the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968 has been voted out of the House Banking and Currency Committee and granted a rule for floor action in the near future. As I stated in my supplemental views to the committee report, I am not unaware that reasonable men may differ over certain provisions, or that new or old programs deserve careful scrutiny and constructive criticism.

I do believe, however, that the bill contains a great deal that is good and useful, and that it has benefited greatly from the ideas of the minority. There is a new emphasis on homeownership for lower-income families, improvement in the rent certificate or leased public housing program, a tightening of provisions requiring residential urban renewal to serve the housing needs of low- and moderate-income Americans, increased authorizations for the water and sewer program which is of benefit to every congressional district in the country, and renewed efforts at establishing an effective flood insurance program. All of these provisions reflect original efforts on the party of the minority, as does the recognition by the committee of the need to cut through the redtape and bureaucratic delays that so often accompany attempts to utilize existing programs.

To describe some of these efforts, I would like to include at this point my supplemental views to the committee report. I would also urge every Member of this body to carefully study the majority and minority views in House Report No. 1585. The bill, H.R. 17989, as well as the report, is of considerable size. It represents a major undertaking and, despite its length and complexity, should have the fullest consideration that can be achieved in an informed debate.

My supplemental views follow:

SUPPLEMENTAL VIEWS OF REPRESENTATIVE WILLIAM B. WIDNALL TO BANKING AND CURRENCY COMMITTEE REPORT ON HOUSING ACT OF 1968

In supporting H.R. 17989, I am not unmindful of the fact that reasonable men may differ over certain provisions, or that new programs authorized or old ones extended by the measure are open to constructive criticism relating to conception and execution. On balance, however, I believe the bill is both necessary and worthwhile. It has benefited from ideas and proposals offered by the minority, and I think it is appropriate to call particular attention to this fact.

Foremost among these minority suggestions has been the concept of fostering on a major scale homeownership among low- and moderate-income citizens. Homeownership as a desirable goal is an idea deeply rooted in American tradition. For the low- and moderate-income citizen, particularly the minority group citizen, this has become increasingly the impossible dream. Statistics show that the percentage of existing one-family homes insured by FHA for families with incomes less than $4,000 fell from 42.8 percent of the total in 1950 to 1.3 percent in 1966. For new homes, the drop was from 56 percent to 1 percent in the same period.

In order to reverse this trend, I introduced H.R. 8820, the National Home Ownership Foundation Act on April 20, 1967. One hundred thirteen other House Members, including eight members of the minority of the Banking and Currency Committee, joined in offering a similar bill at that time.

The proposal had as its basic goals the enlargement of housing opportunities and choice for our lower income families, both rural and urban. We proposed to tap private caiptal, private management and technical experience, and private, community-oriented initiative. The Government role was to be limited to one of stimulus and reinforcement, rather than execution and control.

FEATURES OF THE NHOF BILL

The National Home Ownership Foundation Act proposal, besides its basic change in policy advocating homeownership in contrast to traditional federally assisted renter-oriented projects, contained a number of innovative features. In summary they were as follows:

1. The establishment of the National Home Ownership Foundation, a congressionally authorized nonprofit corporation, with a board of directors drawn from the private sector. Besides making mortgage capital available, the Foundation was to conduct a technical assistance service to aid in the development and formation of low- and moderate-income homeownership program, including interim planning loans, and the conduct of supporting programs in such fields as training, employment, credit counseling, and budget management to enable lower income families to assume the privileges and responsibilities of homeownership.

2. Authority to the Foundation to raise $2 billion in mortgage loan funds through the sale of its debentures, guaranteed by the Federal Government to supplement available moneys from existing mortgage lending institutions. The object was to bring together in one coordinated effort, and one pool of funds, sufficient capital to carry out a major lower income homeownership program. It was expected that the federally guaranteed bonds, carrying a market rate of return, would attract new capital, for the mortgage market, from such sources as union pension funds.

3. A market-interest rate mortgage, with a direct subsidy paid by the Treasury to the holder of the mortgage, thus lowering the interest rate and monthly payments for the home buyer. The purpose was to avoid the major budget impact that accompanies the use of the below-market-interest rate mortgage program involving Federal National Mortgage Association purchase of these mortgages utilizing special assistance funds. Thus, each Federal dollar would have a multiplier effect many times greater than the BMIR mortgage purchase dollar, a major accomplishment in a time of expenditure curtailment. The interest subsidy would be repaid into a revolving fund, if and as the buyer reached an adequate income level, prescribed as 70 percent of existing 221 (d) (3) program income limits.

4. Maximum utilization of community-based or neighborhood non profit corporations, including technical assistance for their development and operation of lower income homeownership programs. This would also provide an opportunity for the prospective home buyers in the area to have a voice in the conduct of the program. It would also enlist the aid, expertise, and financial backing of local community leaders in Government, business, labor, civic organizations, the professions and the like, to build a partnership within the private sector at the national and local levels.

5. Authority to develop a program of mortgage equity payment insurance, to protect the home buyer from losses of income due to illness, death, unemployment, and other causes not within the home buyer's control. To the greatest extend possible, the Foundation was directed to work out the program with the private insurance industry, and report back to Congress.

6. Utilization of the urban renewal program as a means of obtaining land and buildings at reasonable prices to lower the cost of construction, rehabilitation, or the use of existing housing for the homeownership program.

7. Increase employment opportunities and the use of self-help for area low-income residents and prospective home buyers.

SIMILARITIES WITH THE PRESENT BILL

Although the Department of Housing and Urban Development greeted the NHOF proposal last year with skepticism both for its technical provisions and its goal of lower income homeownership, sufficient support from a variety of groups and individuals within the American public appear to have changed the administration's mind. The cumulative result can be seen in H.R. 17989. In summary, the similarities between the committee bill and the proposal outlined above are as follows:

1. The committee bill establishes, in title I, section 107, a National Home Ownership Foundation. Its purposes follow those suggested for the technical assistance service under the minority's NHOF bill of last year. The Foundation is directed to encourage and assist public and private bodies at the national, community, and neighborhood levels in initiating, developing, and conducting programs to expand low-income homeownership and housing opportunities. This includes arrangements for technical and managerial assistance and training, aid in finding mortgage financing, insurance, and the like, encouraging research and innovation, collecting and distributing information, and assistance in expanding job opportunities.

The Foundation may make loans or grants to cover organizational or administrative expenses for homeownership programs, necessary preconstruction costs including land options, architectural fees, and similar items, and the costs of providing counseling to lower income families in budget management, home maintenance, and home management. The bill authorizes $10 million in appropriations.

2. The committee bill, in title VII, authorizes the new Government National Mortgage Association to guarantee securities issued by FNMA or other private issuers, backed by a pool of FHA and VA loans or mortgages. The purpose is the same as that of the NHOF-guaranteed debentures suggested by the minority; namely, to increase the supply of mortgage funds and tap new sources such as pension funds. It is permissive only, limited in scope, the funds raised would not be limited to use for lower income homeownership. The Department, in the hearings, admitted to not knowing what amount of additional funds this approach might attract.

As a result, it is unlikely that the massive attraction of new funds for lower income homeownership envisioned by the sponsors of the National Home Ownership Foundation Act last year will occur under this bill. The FHA insurance provisions in title I also depend upon existing lenders and mortgage money supply. This makes all the more important the direction in section 107(f)(2) to the Foundation to report to the Congress whenever insufficient funding is available for lower income homeownership purposes. The Foundation is also directed to make recommendations for alternate means of securing adequate financing.

3. The committee bill, in title VIII, authorizes the establishment of a private corporation for profit which is designed to encourage a partnership approach among interests in the private sector at the national and local level, in order to encourage low-income housing. Part of the purpose of the National Home Ownership Foundation authorized by the bill is also to encourage private involvement, including the development of neighborhood organizations interested in homeownership programs, which would involve the citizens themselves from the area. Maximum utilization of area residents or the lower income families to be served by the program is not pronounced as a major goal in the committee bill, however, in contrast to the NHOF proposal last year.

5. By amendment to title I (sec. 109) offered by Representative Garry Brown, of Michigan, the minority obtained inclusion in the bill of an authorization to the Secretary of HUD to develop, in cooperation with the private insurance industry, a plan of insurance to help homeowners meet mortgage payments in times of personal economic adversity.

The Secretary is directed to report back within 6 months on his actions. This provision was secured in the bill despite the objections of the Department of Housing and Urban Development, objections which, in turn, persisted, despite the evidence that such a plan was necessary and capable of being established, and despite a favorable report in the early 1960's, commissioned by the Housing and Home Finance Agency, forerunner of HUD.

6. The committee bill, in section 405, amends the urban renewal law to permit land to be sold to qualified low-income mortgagors and nonprofit sponsors of homeownership program and, by an amendment I offered, private homebuilders acquiring land for subsequent resale to low- and moderate-income home buyers.

7. By an amendment which I offered, section 3 was added to H.R. 17989 which requires, to the greatest extent feasible, the employment of lower income residents from the area served not only by homeownership activity but other federally assisted housing projects as well, in jobs created by these projects. The possibility of the home buyer contributing his own labor toward the cost of his housing has also been recognized in section 2 and in title I.

CAN HUD CARRY OUT THE PROGRAM?

One of the purposes behind establishing the National Home Ownership Foundation in the minds of its cosponsors last year, was to provide a quasi-public alternative to direct Federal bureaucratic control by the Department of Housing and Urban Development. The sponsors of the NHOF bill were not alone in questioning the capacity or will of the Department to carry out an expanded program of housing for low-income citizens. This presents a considerable challenge to the Department, in carrying out the proposals authorized in H.R. 17989.

While the Department's testimony before our committee has been reassuring, the continued opposition of HUD to my 1966 amendment requiring a substantial number of low- and moderate-income housing in each predominently residential urban renewal project has had the opposite effect. As the committee report notes, the definition of substantial as only 20 percent of the project units is hardly in keeping with the dramatic need for more and better housing for our underprivileged citizens. The change contemplated by section 413 of this bill increases this percentage to 51 or better for the aggregate number of units in approved projects within a community; that is, projects which have had their plans approved by the Department, not those which are only in the planning stage. The new amendment, worked out in conjunction with Representative Henry Reuss, of Wisconsin, as a bipartisan statement of congressional intent, also contains a 20-percent minimum aggregate for low-income housing suggested by Representative William Brock, of Tennessee. It is perhaps the best example I know of in the bill of bipartisan, congressional initiative in the legislative field. Certainly, all of the other low-cost housing programs will come to naught if land or structures are not assembled and made available at low cost, which is is the major benefit of urban renewal use.

Two other amendments which I offered and which have been accepted in title I deserve mention, if only because of the opposition by HUD to their inclusion. The first opens the homeownership sections up to utilization of existing housing, as well as housing involving new construction or substantial rehabilitation. A survey made by my office among District of Columbia real estate agencies indicated the availability of houses selling for under $18,000 and needing little repair, if any. It also uncovered the potential availability of many more renter-occupied houses, which would come on the market if these very same renters had access to mortgage funds. Negro real estate brokers were particularly conscious of this opportunity. The use of existing housing will also mean, as the U.S. Civil Rights Commission has pointed out, the immediate implementation of the new homeownership program. Certainly in this time of tension and trouble within our cities, any tool that can provide an immediate impact, and thus new hope to the less fortunate, should be welcomed. Will the Department of Housing and Urban Development heed this opportunity? Only time will tell.

Another amendment makes nonprofit groups eligible for inclusion in the program for homeownership financing that wish to use existing housing instead of taking on the task of rehabilitation in a multiunit project. It is my expectation that as these nonprofit groups, whether church or labor union, or civic association sponsors, gain in confidence and experience, they will move on to the more demanding but no less important task of increasing the supply of standard housing for homeownership purposes.

THE RENT CERTIFICATE PROGRAM

In 1964, I, with other members of the Republican minority introduced the rent certificate plan. It became legislation in 1965, and has since made a great record for something that was opposed by the administration and generally not promoted by them. To date, it has far outstripped its companion legislation, rent supplements, in terms of people housed, having provided shelter for over 16,000 families while the rent supplement total is just over 2,500. This means that the rent certificate program is responsible for placing over 60,000 people in decent, safe, and sanitary housing that they did not have previously.

In the present bill there are three sections, 208, 209, and 210 which are perfecting amendments that I introduced to facilitate the operation of the program.

Where the Secretary had previously restricted the program in certain localities to rehabilitated housing, on the completely unjustified claim that it would cause rents to rise, section 208 makes clear that he can no longer impose such regulations unless it is specifically so provided in the act.

Where HUD had taken the position that it could not use the program unless in quantities of 10 or more units, section 209 makes clear that it can.

In section 210, we have acted to enable tenants to become purchasers of the homes they occupy through the medium of the local housing authority. This innovation was prompted by spontaneous offers from builders in all parts of the country, attracted by the economics of the operation, to build for leasing purposes.

Now where the housing authority deems it advisable, it may include in its lease an option to purchase to be exercised when desirable in behalf of the tenant.

This latter provision could be used even in multi-family structures where tenants, so desiring to act, occupy units having more than 80 percent of the total value of the structure.

WATER AND SEWER GRANTS

Section 505 ups the matching sewer and water grants from $200 million annually to $500 million annually. I do not particularly like to increase authorizations beyond departmental recommendations. In the case of this program, however, I am quite ready to make an exception. This is a vital program. Upon it have depended at times, the question of whether or not a city would have to import water for drinking purposes.

The administration has not only given this program a low priority. It has asked for only half the funds which Congress authorized when appearing before the Appropriations Committee. This in the face of applications from needy communities which numbered over $4 billion. There is to my knowledge not a single congressional district that does not have an application for water-and-sewer funds and many are most desperate. Under the circumstances, I think the increase I have suggested is most modest and I know it is badly needed.

NATIONAL FLOOD INSURANCE

It was with a deep sense of personal satisfaction to me that the Committee on Banking and Currency adopted my amendment, in the form of a proposed title XI, National Flood Insurance.

Members of the House will recall that the proposed national flood insurance legislation passed the House—H.R. 11197—and the Senate in 1967 but because of far-reaching changes made by a House floor amendment in the financing mechanism in the House bill efforts to resolve the differences between the House and Senate versions in conference have been abandoned. In short, prior to inclusion of title XI in H.R. 17989, most observers conceded that flood insurance legislation had little if any chance of enactment in the 90th Congress.

As an original cosponsor of a national flood insurance program, the events leading up to the current legislative statement are indeed regrettable. Within the past month, the State of New Jersey experienced its worst natural disaster of the 20th century, sustaining more than $150 million in flood damage to private and public property. Having personally witnessed the human tragedy and widescale property damage in the wake of these devastating floods, my belief in the urgency of a national flood insurance program was further sustained.

When the House last November rejected the proposed financing through Treasury borrowing authority contained in the flood insurance bill, the circumstances surrounding that action were far different than those which prevail today. I refer to title X of the proposed housing bill where the Congress is being asked to approve Treasury borrowing authority in order to finance a national program of riot reinsurance. While I support title X, I think it would be uncharacteristically inconsistent for a majority of the House of Representatives to support Treasury borrowing authority for riot insurance, while rejecting this form of financing for a national flood insurance program of far more modest proportions.

In this regard, we should keep in mind that flood insurance proposals have been before the Congress for more than 10 years, long before any thought whatsoever was being given to the need for a Federal program of riot insurance.

Stated in its most candid terms, if the Congress of the United States can see its way clear to underwrite insurance protection against lawlessness in our cities, it can ill afford to turn a cold shoulder on the personal grief and tragedy of those of our law-abiding, taxpaying citizens who experience huge property losses caused by floods, or by what are said to be "acts of God."

TREATY FOR NONPROLIFERATION OF NUCLEAR WEAPONS

(Mr. MORGAN asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks and include extraneous matter.)

Mr. MORGAN. Mr. Speaker, this administration may well congratulate itself upon the tremendous achievement represented by the Treaty for the Nonproliferation of Nuclear Weapons. It is indeed the most significant development since the advent of nuclear power itself.

The promise it holds for the future of human association is due in no small measure to President Johnson, whose faith in such an agreement never faltered and whose encouragement and support provided a constant stimulus and inspiration over 4 long years of arduous negotiations.

The importance of the treaty lies not only in the hopeful pause it offers in the reckless race toward nuclear armament. It lies equally in its significance as an example of the ability of humankind to agree on major issues affecting its welfare. It is a tribute to reason which so often founders when the passions and the ambitions of men are stirred.

The world looks brighter today, despite the turmoil and the turbulence that besets it. The Treaty for the Nonproliferation of Nuclear Weapons has already opened the way to further progress in the stated willingness of the United States and the U.S.S.R. to examine the possibility of limitations on strategic nuclear delivery vehicles.

There is indeed reason to rejoice.

My congratulations go out to this administration and to the men whose abundant good will, skill, and patience produced this splendid new hope for the future of mankind.

THE TAX-EXEMPT FOUNDATION: A NEW MAJOR THREAT TO CLEAN POLITICS

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. PATTEN). Under previous order of the House the gentleman from New York [Mr. ROONEY] is recognized for 60 minutes.

Mr. ROONEY of New York. Mr. Speaker, I want to address you briefly on what I consider to be a grave and largely unnoticed peril to the election process in this country. It has to do with one of the most delicately sensitive areas; namely, the financing of elections.

Although some Members of the Congress have an income from business or some other profession, most of us think of ourselves primarily as politicians. All of us are proud to be so designated. Like medicine and law, politics is a profession with a sacred trust.

I think virtually all Members of the Congress want fervently to keep their profession clean, to keep it ethical, to keep it closely responsive to the people, and to keep it operating within certain statutory boundaries.

And that is why I think it important to call to your attention what I have had to overcome in winning the Democratic renomination in my district. The fact that I did win does not lessen my duty to tell you about a device that was used by one of my opponents. For, if the same device is used extensievly over the country, I think it will truly endanger the democratic process by destroying the rules that now govern the financing of elections.

To put it bluntly—and I address myself personally to every Member of this Congress—unless you are a wealthy person or unless you have wealthy supporters who can help you fight back, you may find yourself in some future election being overwhelmed by a deluge of offer our heartiest congratulations and our warm wishes on this important occasion.

NATAL GREETINGS TO THE CONGO

Mr. Speaker, the people of the Democratic Republic of the Congo celebrated the eighth anniversary of their independence on June 30. This anniversary is particularly significant, because the outlook for continuing stability and economic growth are better than they have been at any time in recent years.

Although foreign mercenary elements in the military forces attempted last summer and fall to take control of the country, the Congolese Government succeeded in forcing these mercenaries out of the country and putting down the mutiny with a minimal loss of life.

Despite this senseless threat, the Government did not waiver from its intention to go forward with the economic stabilization program, strengthen the currency, liberalize imports, and lay the groundwork for real increases in agricultural and industrial production. These increases have already shown themselves and have been reflected in an increase in exports.

With its immense resources, human and material, the Congo will surely continue to increase its importance within the family of nations and the people of the Congo will enjoy the fruits of their self-imposed austerity.

To President Mobutu and to the Government ad people of the Democratic Republic of the Congo we send our best wishes for future progress and happiness.

BIRTHDAY SALUTE TO RWANDA

Mr. Speaker, July 1 marks the sixth anniversary of the independence of the Republic of Rwanda.

The 6 years since independence was proclaimed in that nation's capital, Kigala, have been marked by continually warm relations between our two countries.

To President Kayibanda, and to the people of Rwanda, we extend our warm congratulations and very best wishes on this historic occasion.

(Mr. BOLAND asked and was given permission to extend his remarks in the body of the RECORD and to include extraneous material.)

[Mr. BOLAND'S remarks will appear hereafter in the Extensions of Remarks.]

PRESIDENT JOHNSON SIGNS UNIFORM MONDAY HOLIDAY LEGISLATION CREATING COLUMBUS DAY AS A NATIONAL HOLIDAY

(Mr. RODINO asked and was given permission to extend his remarks at this point in the RECORD and to include extraneous matter.)

Mr. RODINO. Mr. Speaker, last Friday, June 28, it was my great honor and privilege to be present when President Johnson signed into law H.R. 15951, the uniform Monday holiday bill. Present also were Senator SMATHERS, author of the bill in the Senate; Congressman MCCLORY who introduced the final version of the bill in the House and guided it through the Judiciary Committee; Congressman STRATTON, who initiated the original legislation; and Mr. Joseph A. Califano, Jr., special assistant to the President.

It was a particularly significant occasion for me, since the measure, in addition to scheduling Washington's Birthday, Memorial Day, and Veterans' Day on specified Mondays, includes a provision establishing Columbus Day as a new Federal holiday—to be celebrated on the second Monday in October.

I have sought for many years this tribute to the valiant admiral of the ocean seas, for to me he is the "father of immigration" and in observing Columbus Day as a national holiday we will be, each year, reaffirming our faith in the future and the unfailing strength and courage of the American people to face with confidence and determination the imponderables of unknown tomorrows. I was most pleased, therefore, that the President singled out for special mention the creation of this new national holiday, and I include full text of his remarks on this historic occasion be printed in the RECORD at this point:

TEXT OF REMARKS BY THE PRESIDENT ON SIGNING OF THE UNIFORM HOLIDAY BILL

The Bill that we sign today will help Americans to enjoy more fully the country that is their magnificent heritage. It will also aid the work of Government and bring new efficiency to our economy.

This Bill provides that three of our national holidays will be celebrated on Monday: Washington's Birthday on the third Monday in February; Memorial Day on the last Monday in May; and Veterans' Day on the fourth Monday in October.

The Bill take effect on January 1, 1971. State legislatures will thus have time to act for observances in local government offices and in private employment.

This will mean a great deal to our families and our children—

It will enable families who live some distance apart to spend more time together.

Americans will be able to travel farther and see more of this beautiful land of ours.

They will be able to participate in a wider range of recreational and cultural activities.

The Bill also establishes Columbus Day as a Federal holiday—to be celebrated on the second Monday in October. Thirty-four of our states have already established a day honoring Christopher Columbus. It is fitting now that we give national expression to our faith in the spirit of discovery embodied by this great adventurer. This new holiday will henceforth honor one of our finest and most cherished national characteristics—our ability to live and work together, men and women of all national origins, as one united and progressive nation.

The provisions of this Bill insure a minimum of five regularly recurring three-day weekends each year for Federal employees. The costs will be offset to an important degree by avoiding disruptions of Government business through Monday observance of holidays.

The private employer will enjoy similar gains in efficiency. The Monday holiday will stimulate greater industral and commercial production, sparing business and labor the penalty of mid-week shutdowns.

THE HOUSING BILL

(Mr. ST GERMAIN asked and was given permission to extend his remarks at this point in the RECORD and to include extraneous matter.)

Mr. ST GERMAIN. Mr. Speaker, the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968 stands as a milestone in our Nation's long struggle to provide decent housing for every American, and I, for one, am pleased to have been privileged to be intimately engaged in the drafting of this most significant legislative measure.

The authorization of funds for the construction or rehabilitation of 1.2 million lower income housing units is one of the many outstanding provisions of this legislation. It is one of the many positive steps that can and must be taken if our Nation is to overcome social injustice and the root causes of civil disorder.

I was pleased to note that the Providence Journal has endorsed the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968 as passed by the Senate. A similar bill will soon come before this House for consideration. Its programs are essential if we are to cope with the problems that plague our cities and abolish the shameful substandard housing that confines 20 million Americans.

I commend the Journal's editorial to all of my colleagues and include it at this point in the RECORD:

THE HOUSING BILL

The U.S. Senate has demonstrated a highly commendable awareness of the country's needs in passing, by a vote of 67 to 4, the most comprehensive housing bill of the last two decades. It has opened the way toward impressive gains in the struggle to bring decent housing within reach of every American. If the House follows an equally wise course, as it did in the case of open occupancy, the process of elimination of one major grievance of the poor will have begun.

Praise for the bill does not imply perfection. The measure by no means achieves that lofty status. No legislation could. There always will be gaps, elements of the problem emphasized or de-emphasized out of proportion to the need, pitfalls overlooked and opportunities missed. But overall, the legislation is a credit to the administration and to the Congress.

It would authorize five billion dollars over the next three years for the construction or rehabilitation of 1.2 million housing units for lower-income families. It would enable for the first time families at the lower earning levels to think in terms of owning their own homes, and large private investors profitably to ally with government in the creation of "new cities."

It would further the aims of the Model Cities, urban renewal, and mass transit programs, set up a new program to subsidize the building or renovation of rental or cooperative housing units, and establish the machinery to provide reinsurance for private companies to extend coverage of slum properties and curb losses from riots or civil disorders.

Of special note, though minor in terms of fundings, is provision for urban renewal grants to speed up small-scale neighborhood redevelopment projects.

Weaknesses of the bill include a preposterous section that would authorize the Federal Housing Administration to guarantee mortgages on vacation houses costing up to $20,000. This absurd concession to the comfortable middle class is intolerable at a time when valid programs for the poor are being bypassed under the name of "fiscal responsibility."

The most grievous inadequacy of the bill, in fact, is the lack of imaginative aid for those at the very bottom of the economic ladder. Four hundred million dollars is authorized to continue existing public housing programs. The much maligned and sadly undernourished rent supplements program is in line for 140 million. But beyond these and the new experimental subsidy for rental property, America's slum dwellers, urban and rural, who are in greatest need get the least attention.

In sum, however, the bill goes far toward launching a broad frontal attack on the national disgrace of substandard housing. The Senate has done its work well. The House, by preserving what is strong and discarding what is weak, can go one better—and will, if it knows what's good for the nation.

POZNAN WORKER REVOLT—JUNE 28, 1956

(Mr. ROONEY of New York asked and was given permission to extend his remarks at this point in the RECORD.)

Mr. ROONEY of New York. Mr. Speaker, 12 years ago on Friday last, the freedom-loving workers of Poznan reached the limit of their endurance of the subjugation enforced upon them by their Polish masters—the puppets of the Soviet Union installed to rule over them. Their constant enslavement and the increasing indignities heaped upon them caused them to stage a dramatic and forceful revolt against the hated Russian Communist rule.

All of us in the free world applauded the brave acts of the Polish workers in defying their ruthless Government officials. All of us were saddened to observe the rapidity with which the troops summoned to suppress the revolt were able to end the uprising. But the courageous acts of the downtrodden workers were not wholly in vain. A more independent government was formed with many of the repressions and indignities put to an end. the revolt achieved anothtr important result in that it once again convinced the free world that the fighting spirit of the Polish people had not been subdued and that the love of freedom and self-determination could not be obliterated by their Communist oppressors.

Although we have been gratified in recent months to see the lot of the Polish citizen improved, we remain aware of the continued restrictions which are imposed upon the people of this great nation—a people proud of the help given them by America and proud of the strong bonds of friendship which exist between our citizens.

Mr. Speaker, the anniversary of the Poznan revolt is meaningful to all of us, but it is particularly important to our fine American citizens of Polish birth or parentage. We share in their pride of their kinsmen's demonstrated determination to resist the Soviet Communist oppressors and to reject vigorously the programs and political objectives which these Russian puppets seek to impose upon all the people of Poland.

I trust that all of us—not just the Members of Congress but the American people as a whole—will recall the gallant action of the Poznan workers to regain a measure of the freedom which was denied them.

We could well reflect upon the freedom which we enjoy and be grateful for the great heritage of liberty and justice for all which our forebears sought to endow us forever. As we count our blessings we should rededicate ourselves to completing the unfinished task of bringing a full measure of these blessings to our longtime friends in Poland.

I am proud to join with my many loyal Polish-American friends in observing this anniversary of a most important historic event. I again pledge to them and to the many fine Polish-American organizations which represent them my sincerest efforts to restore full freedom to their friends and relatives in Poland.

LEAVE OF ABSENCE

By unanimous consent, leave of absence was granted to:

HIGHLIGHTS: Senate committee reported dairy indemnity bill. Senate committee reported wilderness bills. House debated housing bill. Rep. Gurney introduced and discussed bill to create committee on hunger.

HOUSE

1. HOUSING. Began debate on H. R. 17989, to assist in the provision of housing for low- and moderate-income families, and to extend and amend laws relating to housing and urban development. pp. H6054-92, H6112-13

2. EDUCATION. The Education and Labor Committee reported H. R. 18366, to amend the Vocational Education Act of 1963 (H. Rept. 1647); and H. R. 15067, to amend the Higher Education Act of 1965, with amendment (H. Rept. 1649). p. H6116

3. LANDS. A subcommittee of the Interior and Insular Affairs Committee approved for full committee action H. R. 13797, amended, to authorize the sale of certain public lands; and H. R. 4530, amended, relating to the issuance of patents for lands held under the color of title, to liberalize the requirements for the conveyance of the mineral estate. p. D643

4. TRADE POLICIES. Rep. St Germain expressed concern that "imports rose 4 percent during the month of May" and "our exports declined 6 percent" and suggested "proper adjustment in our trade policies." He inserted an article, "Textile-Apparel Industry to World: 'Open the Door'". pp. H6096-7

Rep. Dent warned of "the increasing dangers of our free trade policy" and inserted an article, "Things Look Up for Mexico as U.S. Firms Cross the Border." pp. H6110-11

5. WATERSHEDS. Both Houses received from this Department plans for works of improvement on several watershed projects; to H. Agriculture and S. Agriculture and Forestry Committees (pp. H6115, S8204). The House received from this Department plans for works of improvement under the provisions of the Watershed Protection and Flood Prevention Act involving structures of more than 4,000 acre-feet of total capacity; to Public Works Committee (p. H6115).

SENATE

6. DAIRY. The Agriculture and Forestry Committee reported without amendment S. 3638, to extend for three years the authority of the Secretary of Agriculture to make indemnity payments to dairy farmers for milk required to be withheld from commercial markets because it contains residues of chemicals registered and approved for use by the Federal Government (S. Rept. 1363). p. S8205

7. LANDS. The Agriculture and Forestry Committee reported without amendment H. R. 15562, extending the act which authorizes loans by the Secretary of Agriculture on lease-hold interests in Hawaii (S. Rept. 1365). p. S8205

8. WILDERNESS. The Interior and Insular Affairs Committee reported without amendment H. R. 4739, to authorize the Secretary of the Interior to grant long-term leases with respect to lands in the El Portal administrative site adjacent to Yosemite National Park, Calif. (S. Rept. 1364); with amendment S. 3343, to designate certain lands in the Pelican Island National Wildlife Refuge, Indian River County, Fla., as wilderness (S. Rept. 1366); S. 3379, to designate certain lands in the Great Swamp National Wildlife Refuge, Morris County, N. J., as wilderness (S. Rept. 1367); S. 3425, to designate certain lands in the Monomoy National Wildlife Refuge, Barnstable County, Mass., as wilderness (S. Rept. 1368); and S. 3502, to designate certain lands in the Seney, Huron Islands, and Michigan Islands National Wildlife Refuges in Mich., the Gravel Island and Green Bay National Wildlife Refuges in Wisc., and the Moosehorn National Wildlife Refuge in Maine, as wilderness (S. Rept. 1369). p. S8205

9. POLLUTION. The Public Works Committee reported with amendment S. 3206, to amend the Federal Water Pollution Control Act, as amended, relating to the construction of waste treatment works, and to the conduct of water pollution control research (S. Rept. 1370); and with amendments S. 2525, to amend the Federal

Mr. GROSS. Mr. Speaker, reserving the right to object, is this the bill that came out of a subcommittee of the District of Columbia Committee at about 10:15 this morning and then went to the full committee?

Mr. DOWDY. No; it came out of the full committee at that time. It came out of the full committee between 11:15 and 11:30 this morning.

Mr. GROSS. Mr. Speaker, when did the subcommittee consider this bill?

Mr. DOWDY. It considered the bill the week before last.

Mr. GROSS. Did the subcommittee vote it out at that time, or vote it out this morning?

Mr. DOWDY. The subcommittee voted it out at that time.

Mr. GROSS. And the full committee voted it out somewhere between 11:15 and 11:30 this morning, and it is on the House floor with a makeshift report to accompany it. Is that correct?

Mr. DOWDY. That is about correct.

Mr. GROSS. Mr. Speaker, a parliamentary inquiry. Under the rules of the House may this bill be considered at this time without it having to lay over?

The SPEAKER. The Chair will state that in view of the fact that the committee filed its report, it is in order to call it up today.

Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Texas?

Mr. GROSS. Mr. Speaker, a further parliamentary inquiry. The request is to consider the bill in the House as in the Committee of the Whole?

The SPEAKER. That is correct.

Mr. GROSS. Mr. Speaker, I withdraw my reservation of objection.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Texas?

There was no objection.

The Clerk read the bill, as follows:

H.R. 18248

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That section 2 of the Act entitled "An Act to provide for the regulation of fares for the transportation of schoolchildren in the District of Columbia", approved August 9, 1955 (D.C. Code, sec. 44–214a), is amended to read as follows:

"SEC. 2. In the case of any common carrier required to furnish transportation to schoolchildren at a reduced fare under this Act, the Washington Metropolitan Area Transit Commission shall, as soon as practicable after the end of the fiscal year ending June 30, 1968, and after the end of each fiscal year thereafter, certify to the Commissioner of the District of Columbia, with respect to that fiscal year, an amount which is the difference between the total of all reduced fares paid during that fiscal year to each such carrier by schoolchildren in accordance with this Act and the amount which would have been paid during that fiscal year to each such carrier if such fares had been paid at the lowest adult fare established by the Commission for regular route transportation in that fiscal year. In the case of the amount certified under this section for each such carrier for each of the fiscal years ending June 30, 1968, June 30, 1969, and June 30, 1970, the Commissioner of the District of Columbia shall, upon certification of that amount, pay to each such carrier the amount so certified for that fiscal year."

SEC. 2. (a) The last sentence of section 7 of title I of the Act entitled "An Act to grant a francise to D.C. Transit System, Inc., and for other purposes", approved July 24, 1956 (70 Stat. 598; Public Law 84–757), is amended by striking out the period at the end thereof and inserting in lieu thereof the following: "until January 1, 1968, and thereafter the entire cost of removal, regarding, and paving shall be the obligation of the government of the District of Columbia."

(b) Section 710 of the Act entitled "An Act to establish a code of law for the District of Columbia", approved March 3, 1901 (D.C. Code, sec. 44–211), is repealed.

With the following committee amendment:

On page 2, strike out line 16 and all follows down through and including line 5 on page 3.

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Texas [Mr. DOWDY] for 5 minutes.

Mr. DOWDY. Mr. Speaker, this bill, as was introduced, contains two provisions. The amendment concerns one of them, and it has to do with track removal, which was involved in the franchise granted to the D.C. Transit System in 1956. This amendment merely strikes that portion of the bill.

Mr. Speaker, I urge its adoption.

(Mr. GROSS asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. GROSS. Mr. Speaker, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

Mr. Speaker, I take this time to find out something about the pending bill. As I said before, I have before me a proofsheet report, well doctored with pencil marks. This was made available to me about 10 or 15 minutes ago. I would like to hear someone explain the purpose of this bill, and why it must be considered today under these circumstances.

Mr. BROYHILL of Virginia. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. GROSS. I am glad to yield to the gentleman from Virginia.

Mr. BROYHILL of Virginia. The purpose of the bill is to eliminate the necessity for passing on to the riders of the public transportation system the cutrate fares or subsidies provided the schoolchildren in the District of Columbia. It has been the practice in the past for the schoolchildren to receive a fare not in excess of one-half of the lowest adult fare.

It might be all right to give the schoolchildren a cutrate bus fare, but it is not fair for the other riders of the transportation system to have to pay that subsidy.

The purpose of this bill is to place the responsibility of providing the cost of the subsidy on the school system itself.

The Congress has decided years ago to have a bus subsidy for schoolchildren. It is up to the Congress to determine whether it wants to abolish that or not. The purpose of this bill is to prevent the bus riders from having to pay the subsidy.

Mr. GERALD R. FORD. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. GROSS. I yield to the minority leader.

Mr. GERALD R. FORD. I should like to ask the gentleman from Virginia; is there a committee report before the House in this Chamber today on this bill?

Mr. BROYHILL of Virginia. There is a report.

Mr. GERALD R. FORD. Is it published? Is it available for general distribution?

Mr. BROYHILL of Virginia. So far as I know, it is available. I have a copy before me.

Mr. GERALD R. FORD. Could any Member go up to the desk and get a copy? I appreciate the fact that there are three or four copies available, but could any one of the 435 Members go up to the usual place and get a copy of the report, so that he could read it and seek to understand what is in the bill?

Mr. BROYHILL of Virginia. I could not answer that question.

Mr. GERALD R. FORD. Could the gentleman from Texas tell me "yes" or "no"?

Mr. DOWDY. I believe that any Member who wants a copy of the report can get one.

Mr. GERALD R. FORD. That is not an answer to the question. Is there a committee report printed which is available to all the Members?

Mr. DOWDY. No; but a report is available to any Member who wants it, and it is printed.

Mr. GROSS. Well, it is in a galley proof. It is not the usual report, and it is not to be found at the desk.

Mr. FRASER. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. GROSS. I am glad to yield to the gentleman from Minnesota.

Mr. FRASER. I will advise the gentleman that a few minutes ago I asked for a copy of the report, and there was none available.

The gentleman also is entitled to know that under this bill the D.C. Transit Co., as soon as the bill is passed, will get a million dollars, not prospectively, but a million dollars now paid into its treasury, and then prospectively it will give them a million dollars each year thereafter. It gives them a million dollars right out of the blue. I though the gentleman would like to know that.

Mr. GROSS. That is indeed interesting. It would give them a million dollars for what? The gentleman is a member of the District Committee; is he not?

Mr. FRASER. Yes, sir, I am.

Mr. GROSS. It would give them a million dollars for what?

Mr. FRASER. I do not know. It may be because they made such a good impression when they came before the committee, or it may be that they looked as though they were part of the poverty program and needed help.

Mr. GROSS. Does the gentleman mean O. Roy Chalk?

Mr. FRASER. He is one of the principal shareholders.

Mr. GROSS. Yes. Is that the reason why this bill is coming here with such speed today, because of O. Roy Chalk? Does the gentleman have any idea as to who is putting on the pressure to ram a bill like this down our throats on such short notice?

Mr. FRASER. I would not want to make any inference, as the gentleman would understand, but it is the case that our committee did not report out any bills for quite a period of time. Then this was the first bill taken up after this lapse of time, and it has been pushed very rapidly; that is the case; yes, sir.

Mr. GROSS. It is difficult for me to understand why we should tolerate being put in this kind of legislative position, with, as the gentleman says, a million-dollar windfall for somebody in the bill. I do not like it at all.

What does the bill have to do with the street car tracks that have not been removed by O. Roy Chalk, that create a traffic hazard in this city and should have been removed years ago?

Mr. FRASER. As the bill originally came out of the subcommittee we would have relieved the transit company of that obligation. In an effort apparently to win wider acceptance, that provision was agreed to be stricken. That amendment is pending. It is an indication as to how much that bill was going to do for the D.C. Transit Co.; that was in the bill initially.

Mr. GROSS. The committee provided a million-dollar windfall for O. Roy Chalk, when it should have been telling him to get busy and get those tracks out of the streets of the city of Washington.

The SPEAKER. The time of the gentleman from Iowa has expired.

(By unanimous consent, Mr. GROSS was allowed to proceed for 3 additional minutes.)

Mr. GROSS. Now let me ask someone on this side of the aisle. Is it true that this bill provides for $1 million a year into the future?

Mr. NELSEN. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. GROSS. Of course I yield to the gentleman.

Mr. NELSEN. There is a termination date that provides for 3 years of payment by the District of Columbia toward the bus fares of schoolchildren. The termination date of 3 years was my suggestion providing—providing that there was some language in the report that would require the transit people, O. Roy Chalk, to take care of the tracks and also to provide for the buses that his franchise provided for. It was not included in the report, as I requested, and I did not support that bill as a result of that.

Mr. GROSS. I thank the gentleman.

Mr. Speaker, this bill ought to be defeated out of hand here today.

Mr. DOWDY. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield to me?

Mr. GROSS. I am glad to yield to the gentleman from Texas if he wishes me to do so.

Mr. DOWDY. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that this bill be withdrawn, to be called up on the next District day.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Texas?

There was no objection.

HOUSING AND URBAN DEVELOPMENT ACT OF 1968

Mr. MADDEN. Mr. Speaker, by direction of the Committee on Rules, I call up House Resolution 1238 and ask for its immediate consideration.

The Clerk read the resolution, as follows:

H. RES. 1238

Resolved, That upon the adoption of this resolution it shall be in order to move that the House resolve itself into the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union for the consideration of the bill (H.R. 17989) to assist in the provision of housing for low and moderate income families, and to extend and amend laws relating to housing and urban development, and all points of order against said bill are hereby waived. After general debate, which shall be confined to the bill and shall continue not to exceed four hours, to be equally divided and controlled by the chairman and ranking minority member of the Committee on Banking and Currency, the bill shall be read for amendment under the five-minute rule by titles instead of by sections. At the conclusion of the consideration of the bill for amendment, the Committee shall rise and report the bill to the House with such amendments as may have been adopted, and the previous question shall be considered as ordered on the bill and amendments thereto to final passage without intervening motion except one motion to recommit. After the passage of H.R. 17989, the Committee on Banking and Currency shall be discharged from the further consideration of the bill S. 3497, and it shall then be in order in the House to move to strike out all after the enacting clause of S. 3497 and insert in lieu thereof the provisions contained in H.R. 17989 as passed by the House.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Indiana is recognized for 1 hour.

(Mr. MADDEN asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. MADDEN. Mr. Speaker, House Resolution 1238 provides an open rule with 4 hours of general debate for consideration of H.R. 17989 to assist in the provision of housing for low- and moderate-income families, and to extend and amend laws relating to housing and urban development.

Mr. Speaker, H.R. 17989, drawn from the proposals which President Johnson has said will mean a renewed charter of hope for the American city, is indeed a historic housing and urban development bill. Its provisions rank in importance with the pioneering housing legislation of the 1930's, and with the Housing Acts of 1949, 1954, 1961, and the more recent legislation authorizing programs of rent supplements and model cities.

One of the most important titles in the bill is title I which would establish a new program providing Federal assistance to help low- and moderate-income families achieve homeownership. Under the program, the Secretary of HUD could enter into contracts to make periodic payments to lenders who make FHA-insured home mortgage loans to low- and moderate-income families. The payments would be in the amount necessary to make up the difference between 20 percent of the family's monthly income and the required monthly payment under the market-rate mortgage. However, in no case could the amount of payment exceed the difference between the required monthly payment under the mortgage and the amount which would be required for principal and interest if the mortgage bore an interest rate of 1 percent. Provision is made for the recertification of an assisted family's income at least every 2 years with the amount of assistance payment being adjusted accordingly. This new homeownership program could also be used to help low- and moderate-income families obtain membership in a cooperative or a condominium.

There are also other provisions in this title aimed at encouraging home ownership for low- and moderate-income families. For example, a new FHA program of credit assistance for such families would be created; the mortgage insurance requirements for housing in declining urban areas where many of these families live would be relaxed; and a new special risk insurance fund would be established.

Title II is a companion title I dealing with rental housing for low- and moderate-income families rather than homeownership. Section 201 contains provisions similar to those found in the title I homeownership program. Periodic assistance payments would be made to a mortgagee in the amount necessary to reduce the mortgagor's interest costs on a market rate mortgage to that which would be required if the mortgage bore an interest rate of 1 percent. These interest reduction payments will allow the mortgagor to reduce his rentals to a basic charge—computed on the basis of his operating under a 1-percent mortgage—and the tenant or cooperative member would either pay the basic charge or such greater amount as represented 20 percent of his income.

In addition to this new rental program the authorization for the rent supplements and the low-rent public housing programs would be substantiably increased under this title.

Title III would perfect and liberalize a number of existing FHA mortgage insurance programs. Among the changes would be inclusion of the cost of major nursing home equipment in an insured nursing home mortgage and the raising of the loan limits in the title I home improvement loan insurance program.

Title IV of the bill would establish an alternative form of urban renewal under which the Secretary of HUD would be authorized to provide financial assistance to "neighborhood development programs." Under such a program a community would carry out urban renewal projects on the basis of annual budgeting over the period required rather than on the basis of a lump-sum commitment for the entire project.

This title also extends the areas eligible for rehabilitation loans and grants and increases the maximum rehabilitation grant to low-income families of $3,000. A new program of interim assistance for blighted areas scheduled for eventual urban renewal or concentrated code enforcement would also be established.

Title V of the bill extensively revises the section 701 urban planning assistance program. Among other changes, districts in rural and other metropolitan areas would now be eligible for comprehensive planning grants. Authorization for the basic water and sewer program would be substantially increased.

Title VI deals with urban mass transportation. Appropriations authorized for the program would be increased; the defintion of mass transportation would be broadened to take account of new concepts and technology; and other perfecting changes are provided.

Title VII deals with the Federal National Mortgage Association. It would placed FNMA's secondary market operation in a new privately owned corporation. FNMA's special assistance and management and liquidating functions would be retained in a new Government National Mortgage Association within the Department of HUD.

Title VIII would authorize the creation of one or more federally chartered, privately funded corporations to mobilize private investment and the application of business skills in the job of creating low- and moderate-income housing in large volume.

Title IX concerns rural housing. It authorizes the Farmers Home Administration to make direct and insured loans available to low-income families in rural areas and small towns with interest rates as low as 1 percent. This would establish comparability with the other new programs proposed for HUD. It also authorizes a new program of grants and loans to aid self-help housing.

Title X would authorize a new program of Federal reinsurance for private insurance companies to encourage them to write property insurance in areas threatened by riots and civil commotion.

Title XI relates to flood insurance and authorizes a new program of Federal assistance to private insurance companies to encourage them to provide property insurance coverage for flood hazards.

Title XII authorizes a new program of FHA mortgage insurance to finance the construction and equipping of nonprofit hospitals.

In title XIII the Congress would reaffirm the national housing goal of "a decent home and suitable living environment for every American family" first set forth in the Housing Act of 1949. A definite goal of 26 million housing units within the next decade, including 6 million units for low- and moderate-income families, would be established and the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development would submit annual reports giving his assessment on whether the 10-year goal is being met.

Finally, title XIV contains miscellaneous provisions. Among the most important are the supplementing of the existing program of 3 percent direct college housing loans by a new program of interest subsidies for privately financed college housing and the authorization of an additional $1 billion for fiscal 1970 for the model cities program.

As can be seen by a review of its various titles, this bill is one of the most comprehensive pieces of housing legislation ever to be considered by this body. It addresses itself to the major domestic problems now facing this country, the health of our cities. There is no work more important for us than the adoption of House Resolution 1238 and the consideration and enactment of this bill.

WAIVER OF POINTS OF ORDER

The provision in the rule waiving points of order is usual in a bill of this size and complexity. Every major housing bill that I recall has had this kind of rule. Actually I know of nothing in the bill on which a point of order could be raised. This was discussed in the Rules Committee and no one could point out any provision in the housing bill where this might be a problem. It has been pointed out to us that there is a minor defect in the Ramseyer section in the committee report. The language beginning on page 211 which purports to change the name of the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation should not be in there and there is nothing in the bill on this point. The subject this deals with had been stricken from the bill in the Committee on Banking and Currency and it was only through an oversight that this language was left in. Other than that, we have found nothing which might be the subject of a point of order. However, it is a necessary safeguard on a bill of this size. Certainly, it would be tragic if consideration of this vital legislation were blocked because of a technicality.

Mr. HALL. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. MADDEN. I yield to the gentleman from Missouri.

Mr. HALL. Mr. Speaker, I appreciate the gentleman yielding to me.

I want to ask the gentleman about line 7 of the resolution (H. Res. 1238), wherein "all points of order against said bill are hereby waived."

I understood it was the new policy of the Committee on Rules to announce when and why and for what reasons, and who requested points of order, and where they might be found in the bill.

I was listening carefully, and I do not believe the gentleman comments went to this new policy of the Committee on Rules, or the new formula for waiver of points of order; which, of course, I am sure the gentleman will agree with me takes away one of the prerogatives of the individually elected Members of this House.

Mr. MADDEN. In answer to the question of the gentleman from Missouri, the legislation before us is highly involved and complex consisting of some 279 pages and possibly a few minor technical points might be questionable on a point of order. In further answer to the question raised by the gentleman from Missouri, this matter was taken up in the Committee on Rules in executive session and it was decided that in all legislation involving a complex housing bill the Committee on Rules formerly waived points of order. This policy applied to every major housing bill that I can recall during my service on the Rules Committee.

I do not know whether I could designate exactly what the members of the Banking and Currency Committee pointed out as being necessary for waiving points of order, but as I say it was discussed and it was unanimously agreed to grant a waiver of points of order.

The language beginning on page 211 which purports to change the name of the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation should not be in there, and there is nothing in the bill on this point. This deals with what has been stricken from the bill, and was only through oversight that this language was left in, according to what was told the Committee on Rules by the chairman of the Committee on Banking and Currency.

Other than that I do not know of anything that I could point out specifically. But in order to safeguard a bill of this size, that is so involved and complex so that something unforeseen might be questioned, it was the decision of the Committee on Rules to waive points of order.

Mr. MARTIN. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. MADDEN. I yield to the gentleman from Nebraska.

Mr. MARTIN. Is it not true that in the discussion in our committee that the distinguished chairman of the Committee on Banking and Currency requested a waiver of points of order, and that the Committee on Rules now has a rule that if there is such a request to be made, that it has to be made in writing, setting forth reasons why points of order should be waived?

The chairman of the Committee on Banking and Currency did not have any reasons as to why points of order should be waived other than that it was a long bill of some 200 and some pages, and although he stated that he was quite certain that everything was in order, but because of the length of the bill he felt that perhaps we ought to waive points of order. And the Committee on Rules violated their own rules in doing so.

I would further state to the gentleman in the well that this was not done by a unanimous vote of all the Members. I would remind the distinguished gentleman in the well at the present time that several of us did not vote to report out this resolution waiving points of order because there were no adequate reasons given for waiving points of order on this legislation.

Mr. HALL. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield further?

Mr. MADDEN. I yield further to the gentleman from Missouri.

Mr. HALL. That is my real interest. I have no fault with the rule except that it does waive points of order, which I always presume takes away one of the elected Representatives' prerogatives and duties as a Representative after having been elected to the House.

But, it has been announced and officially confirmed that the Committee on Rules is going to have this requirement and list the causes for a waiver, when granted.

I appreciate the statement the gentleman from Indiana made although I think any error as to the title of one section in the bill might have been changed by a unanimous consent request, without waiving of all points of order against the bill.

What I really want to know from the gentleman is, have we already broken down the Committee on Rules decision to advise the House, when points of order are waived according to a request in writing and listing them in the report on the House resolution, or can we still look forward to that—or must we nitpick at each individual bill, some of which certainly should have points of order against them waived perhaps. I am glad to know the decision in this case was not unanimous.

I had thought and it has been stated repeatedly on the floor of the House in this session when we have been making books on requests for waivers of points of order so to speak from all sources, that the Rules Committee was trying to tighten up on those, and we know that we have waivers of points of order on ways and means and tax bills for obvious reasons. Now are we going to waive our own rules in the Committee on Rules and, second, are we going to grant waviers of points of order willy-nilly on bills, whether they are appropriation bills or authorization bills? This is my question.

Mr. MADDEN. No, in answer to the gentleman, I will say that it is not the general practice of the Committee on Rules to willy-nilly waive points of order.

But in answer to what the gentleman from Nebraska [Mr. MARTIN] stated I can say that the chairman of the Committee on Banking and Currency did set out to me the statement I just related regarding the reason why points of order were waived on this particular bill and, particularly the fact that it is a highly involved and complex bill of 279 pages and it is too important a piece of legislation for the Congress to spend hours and hours debating or amending and then have some unforeseen situation involving a point of order, arise. So in the judgment of the Committee on Rules, they did waive points of order.

Mr. HALL. I, for one, have read the bill and the report, and I agree with the gentleman that it is a complex bill and some things badly need to be straightened out.

But, it makes it more difficult for the House to work its will as far as the individual Members are concerned, if the Committee on Rules comes closer and closer to waiving points of order on every bill before it. It looks to me as though this is what is happening.

Mr. MADDEN. In answer to the gentleman, I do not think the Committee on Rules will follow that policy, generally.

Mr. GROSS. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. MADDEN. I yield to the gentleman from Iowa.

Mr. GROSS. Of course, there are many other bills that come before the House that are complex in nature on which points of order are not waived.

Even though there were a few lines in this bill subject to a point of order, the point of order would pertain only to those words and the section in which it was contained and no point of order would invalidate the whole bill unless it went to the title of the bill.

I just do not understand why the Committee on Rules rolls over and plays dead when the chairman of the legislative committee comes before the committee and, without justification, asks for a waiver of the rules.

I do not consider this nitpicking; I consider what I have said to be a defense of the Rules of the House of Representatives.

If we are going to waive points of orders on all bills, then let us abolish the rules of the House with respect to points of order.

Mr. MADDEN. I appreciate the gentleman's statement, but the committee did give every consideration to this bill in executive session and then decided to waive points of order.

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Tennessee [Mr. QUILLEN].

Mr. QUILLEN. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

(Mr. QUILLEN asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. QUILLEN. Mr. Speaker, I think that the gentleman from Indiana [Mr. MADDEN] has very eloquently summarized the many provisions contained in the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968. House Resolution 1238 provides for an open rule with 4 hours of general debate, waiving points of order.

WAIVER OF POINTS OF ORDER

The provision in the rule waiving points of order is usual in a bill of this size and complexity. Every major housing bill that I recall has had this kind of rule. Actually I know of nothing in the bill on which a point of order could be raised. This was discussed in the Rules Committee and no one could point out any provision in the housing bill where this might be a problem. It has been pointed out to us that there is a minor defect in the ramseyer section in the committee report. The language beginning on page 211 which purports to change the name of the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation should not be in there and there is nothing in the bill on this point. The subject this deals with had been stricken from the bill in the Committee on Banking and Currency and it was only through an oversight that this language was left in. Other than that, we have found nothing which might be the subject of a point of order. However, it is a necessary safeguard on a bill of this size. Certainly, it would be tragic if consideration of this vital legislation were blocked because of a technicality.

I want to make just a few brief comments.

The bill is undeniably big. It is both long and complicated. The text of the bill itself runs 280 pages and the report is 359 pages long.

The bill is also costly. I understand that the total cost of the bill over a 3-year period is approximately $5.3 billion.

The impact on the fiscal 1969 budget will be minimal but fiscal 1970 and fiscal 1971 are coming.

Some of the minority members of the committee have said that parts of the bill are bad. We will have during the 4 hours of general debate at least some opportunity to discuss these and other provisions and hopefully to eliminate some of these "bad" provisions.

Mr. Speaker, there are parts of the bill, however, that I think many of us can and will support. A very substantial number of those of us on this side of the aisle have heretofore introduced the National Home Ownership Foundation Act, and there are parts of this bill which carry out provisions of the proposed Foundation Act.

Through the efforts of the ranking minority member of the committee, the gentleman from New Jersey [Mr. WIDNALL], there have been much-needed changes to the urban renewal program—directing that program into the area of low- and moderate-income housing wherever residential reuses are called for. This change has been a long time in coming and is one of the more salutary features of this very large bill.

The minority members of the committee have also been instrumental in substantially increasing the authorization for the water and sewer program. This is an extremely popular program and I can only hope that the incoming administration in January of 1969 will see to it that this program is fully funded.

Permit me, Mr. Speaker, to run over some of the other provisions in the bill very briefly.

In addition to the homeownership provisions there is a section of the bill that would authorize technical and financial assistance to nonprofit housing sponsors. There is specifically set up a national homeownership foundation to provide grants and loans to the sponsors of housing projects. There is a new rental housing program that we will undoubtedly want to look at very carefully.

The bill contains a new provision relating to the financing of renewal projects.

There are provisions that would place FNMA's secondary market operations in a new private corporation while the special assistance program and the management and liquidation functions would be placed in a wholly owned government corporation.

There are provisions, Mr. Speaker, to provide housing in the rural areas and it is my understanding that these provisions would be administered by the Secretary of Agriculture, presumably through the Farmers Home Administration.

There are two insurance sections in the bill—one, a program of reinsurance to cover riot areas and a second program of insurance for flood-prone areas.

Finally, Mr. Speaker, there are increases in the authorizations for existing programs, urban renewal, so-called model cities, public housing, rent supplements, and many more.

And section 1417 grants additional loan authority to the Nation's savings and loan institutions. Such financial institutions will be permitted to issue certificates of deposit as well as bonds, debentures and notes to the extent that regulation permits. In addition, savings and loan institutions are granted authority to make loans of up to $5,000 for the repair, alteration or improvement of any real property or for loans to finance the purchase of mobile homes.

Mr. Speaker, I urge the adoption of the rule so that we can begin debate on this very large and complicated bill and I hope through the debate process and by amendments we can perfect this legislation which many Members in the Congress feel is both necessary and worthwhile.

Mr. Speaker, I have no further requests for time, but I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. MADDEN. Mr. Speaker, I have no further requests for time.

Mr. Speaker, I move the previous question on the resolution.

The previous question was ordered.

The resolution was agreed to.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

Mr. PATMAN. Mr. Speaker, I move that the House resolve itself into the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union for the consideration of the bill (H.R. 17989) to assist in the provision of housing or low- and moderate-income families, and to extend and amend laws relating to housing and urban development.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Texas.

The motion was agreed to.

IN THE COMMITTEE OF THE WHOLE

Accordingly the House resolved itself into the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union for the consideration of the bill H.R. 17989, with Mr. PRICE of Illinois in the chair.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

By unanimous consent, the first reading of the bill was dispensed with.

The CHAIRMAN. Under the rule, the gentleman from Texas [Mr. PATMAN] will be recognized for 2 hours, and the gentleman from New Jersey [Mr. WIDNALL] will be recognized for 2 hours.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Texas [Mr. PATMAN].

Mr. CONTE. Mr. Chairman, I make the point of order that a quorum is not present.

The CHAIRMAN. The Chair will count.

Seventy Members are present, not a quorum. The Clerk will call the roll.

The Clerk called the roll, and the following Members failed to answer to their names:

[Roll No. 230]

Abbitt	Edmondson	Kluczynski
Albert	Edwards, La.	Kornegay
Anderson, Ill.	Esch	Kupferman

Accordingly the Committee rose; and the Speaker having resumed the chair, Mr. PRICE of Illinois, Chairman of the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union, reported that that Committee, having had under consideration the bill H.R. 17989, and finding itself without a quorum, he had directed the roll to be called, when 319 Members responded to their names, a quorum, and he submitted herewith the names of the absentees to be spread upon the Journal.

The Committee resumed its sitting.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Texas [Mr. PATMAN] is recognized.

Mr. PATMAN. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may use.

(Mr. PATMAN asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. PATMAN. Mr. Chairman, today I urge my colleagues to join with the Banking and Currency Committee in support of H.R. 17989, the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968. This legislation is an unprecedented national commitment to urban affairs:

A commitment to the big city ghetto and the small town, to the suburbs and rural countryside;

A commitment to the less fortunate who for decades have been forced to live in substandard, dilapidated housing; and

A renewed commitment to our national goal of a decent home for every American family.

Over the past few years this country has become painfully aware of the problems besieging our cities. We have lived through a period of needless and destructive violence.

It is important we recognize that these problems are not new. They were not the creation of four summers. They are the inheritance of 100 years of growth and neglect.

Since 1937 we have been trying to do something about providing decent homes for our citizens through public housing and various mortgage assistance programs. But the pace of our building has not been able to keep up with the growth of new families and with the deterioration of older structures. Current estimates that there are about 6 million substandard housing units in the Nation give some indication of the job that has got to be done.

If upgrading or replacing these substandard units were the extent of our problem, our work would still be cut out for us. As it is the problem is far greater: not only do we have to deal with inadequate housing built in the past; we have also got to provide adequate housing for the new urban Americans who will live in our cities in the future.

And that is a mammoth undertaking.

Current projections indicate that over 100 million new Americans will be living in our cities by the end of this century. To provide shelter for them as well as the new Americans in rural areas and small towns, 26 million new housing units must be constructed in the next decade. Among other things this means that our housing industry—which in its best years has produced approximately 1.6 million units per year—must lift its average annual production to 2.6 million units, and sustain this rate of production for 10 years.

Obviously the pace of our construction efforts—unless accelerated—will not enable us to meet the demand.

To meet this challenge on February 22 President Johnson called for a speedup in our production of decent housing. He set a far-reaching goal for the Nation—"the construction of 26 million new homes and apartments over the next 10 years—6 million of these to finally replace the shameful substandard units of misery where more than 20 million Americans still live."

H.R. 17989 responds to the President's call. Title XIII reaffirms our national goal set forth in the Housing Act of 1949 of "a decent home and a suitable living environment for every American." And it determines that this goal be met over the next decade with the construction or rehabilitation of 26 million units, 6 million of these for low- and moderate-income families.

There is no single program or approach that can embrace solutions to meet this far-reaching goal. Nor can the Federal Government provide all the answers. Solutions lie in the wise use of a series of urban programs—from the historic public housing program of 1937 to the urban renewal program of 1949 to the model cities program of 1966 and to this Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968. We have shaped and reshaped many of our older programs. We have added new programs. This we must continue.

And solutions lie in the concerted action of all levels of government—Federal, State, and local—as well as private enterprise. Mr. Chairman, I believe this 1968 act will provide the necessary tools that we might begin the massive task ahead.

Let us turn our attention to the provisions of H.R. 17989, the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968.

HOMEOWNERSHIP

Title I is designed to help lower income Americans find decent housing through a program of homeownership. Families with incomes ranging in most cases from $3,000 to $7,500 would be eligible for Federal assistance that could reduce the cost of their mortgage to as low as 1 percent. A family would pay 20 percent of its income toward principal, interest, taxes, insurance, and mortgage insurance premiums on their home with a Federal payment made to the lender for the difference between that amount and the actual payment due.

Further, limits have been set on the amount of mortgage and as a general rule the mortgage cannot exceed $15,000. However, in high-cost areas and for large families the amount might be slightly greater. Now this does not allow a family to build an extravagant home. It simply means that a large family will require additional general living space, as well as additional bedrooms. And we must take into account the varying building costs from city to city.

The crucial need for additional housing units in the low- and moderate-income range is severe and although the Secretary may find existing houses eligible under this program, the committee assumes that the basic orientation of the homeownership program will be to provide new housing units. Certainly the program should not be used to inflate prices on existing housing within an already tight housing market.

Title I also makes changes in FHA requirements designed to encourage homeownership among lower income Americans. Formerly FHA turned down many low- and moderate-income families with poor credit histories or irregular income patterns. Under the provisions of this legislation, FHA is authorized to qualify those families who, with proper counseling, might be satisfactory credit risks and capable of bearing the responsibility of homeownership.

FHA would also be authorized to waive its requirements such as economic soundness to insure properties in older, declining neighborhoods of cities. This would alleviate charges frequently leveled at FHA of redlining or refusing insurance solely on the basis of location.

It is obvious that these two provisions coupled with the homeownership and rental program might expose the FHA to higher losses. Therefore, a special risk insurance fund would be established to pay these losses without endangering FHA mortgage insurance reserves.

Finally, to bring more new housing within the reach of low- and moderate-income families, title I provides assistance to nonprofit sponsors to help them in their efforts to build such housing through a program of technical assistance and 80-percent interest-free loans to cover the preconstructing costs of these sponsors in their federally assisted housing activities. A National Homeownership Foundation would also be established to provide technical and financial assistance to those private and public organizations wanting to organize for the purpose of providing rental and homeownership opportunities for lower income families.

Mr. Chairman, I believe the adoption of a homeownership program to be one of the most important issues to come before Congress. Pride of ownership is a subtle but powerful force. Past experience has shown us that families offered decent homes at prices they can afford have demonstrated a new dignity, a new attitude toward their jobs, and a sense of participation in their community. Incidents of vandalism in communities where residents were given the opportunity to purchase their own homes have declined markedly. It is only logical that people who own their homes will care more about what happens in a community than those that merely live there.

It is my conviction that by extending the opportunity for homeownership to low- and moderate-income families, we will give them a concrete incentive for striving to improve their own lives as well as the life of their community.

RENTAL HOUSING

Title II provides a new rental and cooperative housing program of Federal assistance for low- and moderate-income families. Assistance comes in the form of subsidies for privately sponsored rental and cooperative projects. This means that the private sector will make loans at market rates and the Government will make up the difference between the market rate of interest and 1 percent. This 1-percent mortgage would, in turn, allow reduction of rentals to a basic charge—with low- and moderate-income families paying the higher of 20 percent of their income or the rental necessary to operate the project at a mortgage interest of 1 percent.

Nonprofit organizations, cooperatives, limited dividend entities—as presently permitted under the 221(d)(3) program—and certain State-aided rental housing projects are eligible to participate in this program.

Also this program is replete with safeguards. Tenants' incomes would be reexamined at least every 2 years to adjust the rentals and any rents collected in excess of basic charges would be returned to a governmental revolving fund. And project owners must at all times meet the requirements set by the Secretary as to tenant eligibility and rents.

The advantages of subsidizing mortgage interest obligations rather than the present method of financing below-market interest rate mortgages are numerous:

First. Rentals can be reduced while increasing the participation of the private sector in financing these projects.

Second. With the same amount of Federal resources we can produce far more dramatic results in improving housing conditions.

Third. It permits a more equitable allocation of assistance with subsidies being reduced as tenants' needs diminish.

RENT SUPPLEMENTS

Mr. Chairman, the rent supplement program, just 2 years in operation, has admirably demonstrated its value. It has proven to be one of the most imaginative, flexible, and sound instruments for providing housing to poor people in the 30 years of legislation in this field. To mention but a few of the benefits:

Rent supplements filled a basic void in the tools America has for dealing with the desperate housing needs of low-income families.

Rent supplements eliminated the cost barrier which kept private enterprise from serving the low-income housing market directly.

Rent supplements provide incentive for poor families to improve their earning capacity by removing the specter of enforced dislocation back to slums when incomes exceed a fixed limit.

More importantly, it enables low-income families to obtain decent housing in a normal environment, and without identification or the implied label of a "project family."

The innovative feature embodied in the program is a supplement to make up the difference between the family's payment for housing, and the market rent for the unit needed.

The program is flexible. As family incomes go up, it pays a larger part of the rent and the supplement decreases. Eventually, the supplement ceases when the tenant is able to pay the full rental. Low-income families are able to continue to live in their apartments, and even purchase them.

The program is sound and gives the private sector its first effective vehicle for improving housing conditions of the very poor. This is in the best American tradition. The record so far clearly shows the willingness of private enterprise to respond to this challenge.

During 1966, Congress voted $32 million to get the rent supplement program underway. It was a modest amount, considering the need, but many felt it would form the basis for a test. The $32 million was exhausted in less than a year.

In 1967, Congress appropriated another $10 million for the program. This amount has been depleted.

Now title II provides for increased rent supplement contract authority of $40 million on July 1, 1969, and of $100 million on July 1, 1970. This amount is realistic. It will help us make substantial progress in meeting this well documented demand for decent housing.

PUBLIC HOUSING

Of special importance is the authorization of grants to finance a tenant services program for those families living in public housing. Under this program, $20 million in fiscal year 1969 and $40 million in fiscal 1970 would be made available to provide counseling and referral services to development residents so that they might take better advantage of job, health, and education opportunities. It would also help and encourage them to become involved, personally and responsibly in the day-to-day problems of the projects where their lives are spent. In this way, residents of public housing developments could begin to establish a sense of community spirit and pride in their neighborhood. They could shake off the shackles of isolation from their neighbors and the community that surrounds them. This proposal adds an important new dimension to our entire efforts to build better lives as well as better houses.

Also included in title II is a provision for increasing public housing authorization—by $100 million on enactment of this bill and by $150 million on July 1, 1969, and on July 1, 1970. Public housing has long been recognized as an essential tool for providing decent housing for low-income families at rents they can afford. This increase is crucial if we are to meet our long-range goal of six million federally assisted units in the next 10 years.

URBAN RENEWAL

Of tremendous significance in title IV is the provision for a neighborhood development program—a new financial approach for renewal projects. This would allow cities with large blighted residential neighborhoods that are to be renewed primarily for the benefit of existing residents to develop annual action programs. This is but a new way of carrying out urban renewal with basic difference being its emphasis on activities scheduled each year, rather than for the totality of the project.

This new program resulted from local complaints that the present urban renewal program—with its requirements for detailed planning before actual renewal activities can take place—does not lend itself to dealing with large residential areas where deterioration and blight are evenly distributed. With this new neighborhood development program a community can receive funds for activities in an urban renewal area on the basis of a broad plan specifying major land uses, density of development, and the public facilities proposed for the area. Detailed planning and scheduling of subsequent activities could proceed simuletaneously with actual development in the area.

As I see it this new renewal approach would—Enable local communities to take rapid, visible action to upgrade housing in urban renewal areas and provide psychological impetus to the project;

Provide good housing for low- and moderate-income families now living in substandard conditions in the least possible time; and Help prevent further deterioration or decline in the neghborhood during the planning stage.

Also included in this title are increased authorizations of $1.4 billion in urban renewal grants for fiscal year 1970 and of $350 million in grants for urban renewal projects in model cities areas to be effective on enactment.

These increases are crucial in our efforts to rebuild our blighted areas of our cities. Over the years urban renewal has meant the rebuilding and revitalization of many downtown areas in the Nation's cities. It has resulted in the restoration of industrial and commercial complexes. It has brought about the public and private construction of new housing, as well as the rehabilitation of usable housing.

Finally, it has rejuvenated many ailing neighborhoods and put them on the road to good health.

We have found that urban renewal has a contagious effect. When a blighted neighborhood is improved, the positive effects are felt by adjoining areas, and the spirit if improvement spreads.

And the increased grants for urban renewal projects in model cities areas holds special importance in this new program.

Other improvements in the urban renewal program are included in title IV:

Rehabilitation grants are authorized for low-income homeowners wanting to make repairs and improvements on their homes in deteriorating neighborhoods but whose homes are located outside urban renewal and code enforcement areas. The bill also increases the maximum grant from $1,500 to $3,000.

Interim assistance is made available for alleviating harmful conditions in blighted areas where renewal or code enforcement is planned but immediate action is needed.

Increased emphasis is placed on providing housing for low- and moderate-income families through a requirement in the bill that a majority of all units provided in a community's future residential reuse urban renewal projects must be for these income groups, including at least 20 percent for low-income families and individuals.

COMPREHENSIVE PLANNING AND PLANNED AREAWIDE DEVELOPMENT

Title V provides for comprehensive planning and planned areawide development programs to encourage more systematic and coordinated planning by communities.

The comprehensive planning program is revised to remedy the present lack of planning assistance for rural areas by providing grants to district planning agencies that serve rural and other nonmetropolitan areas. These grants will be channeled through State planning agencies to assure maximum coordination with State programs.

Also comprehensive planning grants could be made directly to cities within metropolitan areas, to regional and district councils of government and to tribal planning councils and other tribal bodies for planning on Indian reservations.

Supplemental grants to encourage planned areawide development would be made available for federally assisted projects in all multijurisdictional areas—contrasted with metropolitan areas as at the present—that show public facilities are being provided in a planned, coordinated fashion. Supplementary grants can cover up to 20 percent of the cost of those projects now assisted under certain Federal grant programs for public facilities, but not in excess of 80 percent when added to those regular Federal grants.

These proposed amendments will close gaps in our planning assistance programs and will offer a number of important benefits. Rural areas now suffering serious problems of outmigration and underutilization of present resources will have available new sources of planning assistance. And a broadened definition of comprehensive planning will allow for full evaluation of human, as well as physical resources and needs. Also, multijurisdictional areas, not just metropolitan areas, are faced with the problem of accelerated growth and the need for proper planning for growth. Making incentive grants available to communities in all these areas will encourage proper planning and coordination for public facilities.

Local planning, local initiative is a prime goal if we are to achieve the kind of healthy, orderly growth that is the basis of national progress. That is the promise of both these programs.

I am especially pleased that the committee bill provides for a substantial increase in the grant funds available for the water and sewer program so vitally needed for cities and towns of all sizes. The bill would increase a grant authorization from $200 million to $500 million for each of the fiscal years 1968 and 1969, and also extends the program through fiscal year 1970.

FEDERAL NATIONAL MORTGAGE ASSOCIATION

Title VII of the bill would take an important step toward the realization of the intent of Congress in rechartering the FNMA in 1954. That act contemplated that eventually FNMA's secondary market operation would become wholly private. This bill provides for an end to the present mixed ownership of FNMA under which all of the stock would become privately held as soon as possible. Because some Government assistance would still be available to this privately owned FNMA, certain controls are retained in the Department of Housing and Urban Development under the bill.

The present special assistance and management and liquidating functions would be retained entirely within the Department in the new constituent agency—the Government National Mortgage Association.

Section 704 of the bill provides for the issuance and sale of securities backed by FHA-insured and VA-guaranteed mortgage loans by the Federal National Mortgage Association and issuers approved by GNMA. The purpose of this provision is to enlarge sources of mortgage funds. It is essential, therefore, that the terms of these new mortgage-backed securities be carefully designed so as not to compete directly with savings accounts of mortgage-oriented thrift institutions which already channel the bulk of their funds into the housing market. Rather, terms and conditions of these securities must be tailored to maximize competition with other capital market instruments typically purchased by pension funds, trust accounts, and other large investors which have not heretofore been mortgage-oriented in their investment policies.

Thus, it is extremely important that FNMA, which will guarantee the new securities as to principal and interest and will establish their terms, issue the securities only in large denominations suitable for institutional and other large securities-oriented investors. In addition, maturities and other terms of these securities should be designed by FNMA to minimize competition with savings accounts.

NATIONAL HOUSING PARTNERSHIPS

An important innovation in H.R. 17989 is the provision in title VIII for the creation of national housing partnerships. These privately funded national housing partnerships could mobilize private investment to begin producing low- and moderate-income housing in substantial volume—operating with and without Federal assistance.

They could serve as a catalyst for the formation of local organizations all across the country to provide needed sources of equity capital for management skills and technical expertise where necessary. And by devoting themselves solely to producing low- and moderate-income housing, the partnerships could recruit a top-flight staff who would make careers in the low- and moderate-income housing field. Another important advantage is that with nationwide markets these partnerships can realize the economies of scale inherent in volume construction and purchasing.

Some questions have been raised that this program might create monopolistic enterprises, confer special privileges, and compete with existing organizations. Such criticism is unfounded.

This program provides for the creation of as many national housing partnerships as may be necessary. No special privileges are conferred on the partnerships—they will receive no benefits from the Federal Government that are not already available to limited profit corporations and associations. Also included are provisions for maximum participation by local interests in these undertakings with the intention that partnerships will supplement and support, rather than compete with, existing organizations.

URBAN PROPERTY PROTECTION AND REINSURANCE

The establishment of a national insurance development fund is authorized in title X to carry out the urban property protection and reinsurance programs.

The urban property protection program encourages State insurance authorities and private property insurance industries to make available adequate property insurance against fire, crime, and other perils more readily available for residential, business, and other properties meeting reasonable underwriting standards.

Also it provides for a Federal program of reinsurance against abnormally high property insurance losses resulting from riots and other civil commotions.

Mr. Chairman, other Members will speak in more detail on this important title of the bill.

NATIONAL FLOOD INSURANCE

Title XI provides for a national flood insurance program to enable persons to purchase insurance against damage and loss of property arising from a flood.

A national flood insurance fund would be created for making payments authorized by the bill, including premium equalization payments and reinsurance for losses in excess of losses assumed by insurance company pools formed to provide flood insurance.

Also, State and local governments would be encouraged to adopt measures that would constrict the development of land which is exposed to flood damage, that would guide the development of proposed construction away from locations threatened by flood hazards, that would assist in reducing damage caused by floods, and that would otherwise improve land management and use of flood-prone areas.

MORTGAGE INSURANCE FOR NONPROFIT HOSPITALS

The bill would also authorize a new program of FHA mortgage insurance to encourage the construction of hospitals by nonprofit groups. Insured loans can cover the cost of major equipment and can be insured for 90 percent of replacement cost.

There is a serious shortage of hospital facilities in the Nation and the committee felt that this new program would help relieve the situation. The committee also made it very clear in its report that we have no intention of in any way undermining the very successful Hill-Burton grant program which has done an outstanding job but it unfortunately has never been given adequate funds by the Congress to provide the hospital facilities which are desperately needed in many communities.

MODEL CITIES

Finally, I want to briefly discuss the supplemental grants for model cities that would be increased under the provisions of title XV. One billion dollars is authorized for fiscal 1970, with an additional $12 million authorized in fiscal 1969 for planning grants to model cities.

Initially authorized in 1966, the model cities program holds great promise for becoming the most effective and flexible tool we have yet been able to give the cities for meeting their problems. Experience taught us that the series of single programs for single problems produced fragmented results that failed to meet the real needs of the city and the people that live there. The model cities program has allowed cities to blend these programs to best advantage and also has encouraged them to go beyond existing programs to find new solutions tailored to their own needs.

Since this program began, a large number of cities and counties have gone through the rigorous process of studying their problems and suggesting approaches for solving them. Unfortunately not all cities could be successful in their applications for model cities planning grants, but some 75 cities are now planning to improve the lives of some 4 million people that live in their target areas. These cities and the others that will follow will be able to demonstrate new techniques, and lead the way for other cities in their fight against poor housing, inadequate schools, unemployment, and sickness.

No one answer, no panacea, exists. A small town will have different ideas than a major metropolis, and the model cities program is flexible enough to accommodate a wide range of approaches. The result will be a rich store of experience from which other cities, not just large cities, but medium-sized and small, can learn.

The innovative qualities of the first and second round model cities indicate that our cities are not only willing to meet the challenge of the model cities program, but have the capability to succeed. We owe it to these cities to see that their potential becomes reality by authorizing the $1 billion and the additional $12 million for planning grants.

Mr. Chairman, I have but briefly sketched some of the provisions included in this massive legislative package. H.R. 17989 is one of the most comprehensive housing bills ever to be reported from the Banking and Currency Committee. I commend the committee members and especially the Housing Subcommittee that devoted many long hours in developing this legislation.

And I urge my colleagues to join with me in supporting this legislation. It is a unique opportunity for the 90th Congress to act favorably on a bill of far-reaching consequences. It provides this Nation with a blueprint for action—

A program for attacking the cycle of deprivation;

A program for directing the surge of urban growth; and

A program for providing every American with a decent home and a suitable living environment.

As President Johnson so eloquently noted:

> If the promise of the American city is to be recaptured—if our cities are to be saved from the blight of obsolescence and despair—we must now firmly set the course that America will travel.
>
> There is no time to lose.

This is the opportunity and the challenge before us today. We will have responded adequately to this challenge by acting favorably on the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968.

Mr. Chairman, I reserve the remainder of my time.

Mr. WIDNALL. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may require.

Mr. Chairman, I have previously announced my own support for H.R. 17989. My reasons for so doing are outlined in the supplemental view that is appended to the report that comes in with this bill. As I stated in submitting those views, I believe on balance that the bill is both necessary and worthwhile. My reasons are the same as those contained in the report, but because of its scarcity, I think it wise to repeat them now.

Before starting on those views I would like to commend the chairman of the subcommittee, the gentleman from Pennsylvania, Congressman BARRETT, for the very energetic and dedicated work which he did in formulating this bill. He was a very fair chairman, and he gave every opportunity to the members of the minority as well as the majority to express their views and offer amendments and to have full discussion of the same.

In supporting H.R. 17989, I am not unmindful of the fact that reasonable men may differ over certain provisions, or that new programs authorized or old ones extended by the measure are open to constructive criticism relating to conception and execution. On balance, however, I believe the bill is both necessary and worthwhile. It has benefited from ideas and proposals offered by the minority, and I think it is appropriate to call particular attention to this fact.

Foremost among these minority suggestions has been the concept of fostering on a major scale homeownership among low- and moderate-income citizens. Homeownership as a desirable goal is an idea deeply rooted in American tradition. For the low- and moderate-income citizen, particularly the minority group citizen, this has become increasingly the impossible dream.

Statistics show that the percentage of existing one-family homes insured by FHA for families with incomes less than $4,000 fell from 42.8 percent of the total in 1950 to 1.3 percent in 1966. For new homes, the drop was from 56 percent to 1 percent in the same time period.

In order to reverse this trend, I introduced H.R. 8820, the National Home Ownership Foundation Act, on April 20, 1967. One hundred and thirteen other House Members, including eight members of the minority of the Banking and Currency Committee, joined in offering a similar bill at that time.

The proposal had as its basic goals the enlargement of housing opportunities and choice for our lower income families, both rural and urban. We propose to tap private capital, private management and technical experience, and private, community-oriented initiative. The Government role was to be limited to one of stimulus and reinforcement, rather than execution and control.

The National Home Ownership Foundation Act proposal, besides its basic change in policy advocating homeownership in contrast to traditional federally assisted renter-oriented projects, contained a number of innovative features. In summary they were as follows:

First. The establishment of the National Home Ownership Foundation, a congressionally authorized nonprofit corporation, with a board of directors drawn from the private sector. Besides making mortgage capital available, the Foundation was to conduct a technical assistance service to aid in the development and formation of low- and moderate-income homeownership programs, including interim planning loans, and the conduct of supporting programs in such fields as training, employment, credit counseling, and budget management to enable lower income families to assume the priviliges and responsibilities of homeownership.

Second. Authority to the Foundation to raise $2 billion in mortgage loan funds through the sale of its debentures, guaranteed by the Federal Government to supplement available moneys from existing mortgage lending institutions. The object was to bring together in one coordinated effort, and one pool of funds, sufficient capital to carry out a major lower income homeownership program. It was expected that the federally guaranteed bonds, carrying a market rate of return, would attract new capital, for the mortgage market, from such sources as union pension funds.

Third. A market-interest-rate mortgage, with a direct subsidy paid by the Treasury to the holder of the mortgage, thus lowering the interest rate and monthly payments for the home buyer. The purpose was to avoid the major budget impact that accompanies the use of the below-market-interest-rate mortgage program involving Federal National Mortgage Association purchase of these mortgages, utilizing special assistance funds. Thus, each Federal dollar would have a multiplier effect many times greater than the BMIR mortgage purchase dollar, a major accomplishment in a time of expenditure curtailment. The interest subsidy would be repaid into a revolving fund, if and as the buyer reached an adequate income level, prescribed as 70 percent of existing 221(d)(3) program income limits.

Fourth. Maximum utilization of community-based or neighborhood nonprofit corporations, including technical assistance for their development and operation of lower income homeownership programs.

This would also provide an opportunity for the prospective home buyers in the area to have a voice in the conduct of the program. It would also enlist the aid, expertise, and financial backing of local community leaders in Government, business, labor, civic organizations, the professions and the like, to build a partnership within the private sector at the national and local levels.

Fifth. Authority to develop a program of mortgage equity payment insurance, to protect the home buyer from losses of income due to illness, death, unemployment, and other causes not within the home buyer's control. To the greatest extent possible, the Foundation was directed to work out the program with the private insurance industry, and report back to Congress.

Sixth. Utilization of the urban renewal program as a means of obtaining land and buildings at reasonable prices to lower the cost of construction, rehabilitation, or the use of existing housing for the homeownership program.

Seventh. Increase employment opportunities and the use of self-help for area low-income residents and prospective home buyers.

Although the Department of Housing and Urban Development greeted the NHOF proposal last year with skepticism both for its technical provisions and its goal of lower income homeownership, sufficient support from a variety of groups and individuals within the American public appear to have changed the administration's mind. The cumulative result can be seen in H.R. 17989. In summary, the similarities between the committee bill and the proposal outlined above are as follows:

First. The committee bill establishes, in title I, section 107, a National Home Ownership Foundation. Its purposes follow those suggested for the technical assistance service under the minority's NHOF bill of last year. The Foundation is directed to encourage and assist public and private bodies at the national, community, and neighborhood levels in initiating, developing, and conducting programs to expand low-income homeownership and housing opportunities. This includes arrangements for technical and managerial assistance and training, aid in finding mortgage financing, insurance, and the like, encouraging research and innovation, collecting and distributing information, and assistance in expanding job opportunities.

The Foundation may make loans or grants to cover organizational or administrative expenses for homeownership programs, necessary preconstruction costs including land options, architectural fees, and similar items, and the costs of providing counseling to lower income families in budget management, home maintenance, and home management. The bill authorizes $10 million in appropriations.

Second. The committee bill in title VII, authorizes the new Government National Mortgage Association to guarantee securities issued by FNMA or other private issuers, backed by a pool of FHA and VA loans or mortgages. The purpose is the same as that of the NHOF-guaranteed debentures suggested by the minority; namely, to increase the supply of mortgage funds and tap new sources such as pension funds. It is permissive only, limited in scope, and the funds raised would not be limited to use for lower income homeownership. The Department, in the hearings, admitted to not knowing what amount of additional funds this approach might attract.

As a result, it is unlikely that the massive attraction of new funds for lower income homeownership envisioned by the sponsors of the National Home Ownership Foundation Act last year will occur under this bill. The FHA insurance provisions in title I also depend upon existing lenders and mortgage money supply. This makes all the more important the direction in section 107(f)(2) to the Foundation to report to the Congress whenever insufficient funding is available for lower income homeownership purposes. The Foundation is also directed to make recommendations for alternate means of securing adequate financing.

Third. The committee bill, in title VIII, authorizes the establishment of a private corporation for profits which is designed to encourage a partnership approach among interests in the private sector at the national and local level, in order to encourage low-income housing. Part of the purpose of the National Home Ownership Foundation authorized by the bill is also to encourage private involvement, including the development of neighborhood organizations interested in homeownership programs, which would involve the citizens themselves from the area. Maximum utilization of area residents or the lower income families to be served by the program is not pronounced as a major goal in the committee bill, however, in contrast to the NHOF proposal of last year.

Fifth. By amendment to title I of section 109 offered by the gentleman from Michigan, Representative GARRY BROWN, the minority obtained inclusion in the bill of an authorization to the Secretary of HUD to develop, in cooperation with the private insurance industry, a plan of insurance to help homeowners meet mortgage payments in times of personal economic adversity.

The Secretary is directed to report back within 6 months on his actions. This provision was secured in the bill despite the objections of the Department of Housing and Urban Development, objections which, in turn, persisted, despite the evidence that such a plan was necessary and capable of being etsablished, and despite a favorable report in the early 1960's, commissioned by the Housing and Home Finance Agency, forerunner of HUD.

Sixth. The committee bill, in section 405, amends the urban renewal law to permit land to be sold to qualified low-income mortgagors and nonprofit sponsors of homeownership program and, by an amendment I offered, private homebuilders acquiring land for subsequent resale to low- and moderate-income home buyers.

Seventh. By an amendment which I offered, section 3 was added to H.R. 17989 which requires, to the greatest extent feasible, the employment of lower income residents from the area served not only by homeownership activity but other federally assisted housing projects as well, in jobs created by these projects. The possibility of the home buyer contributing his own labor toward the cost of his housing has also been recognized in section 2 and in title I.

There is one question that I think should seriously be considered—Can HUD carry out the program?

One of the purposes behind establishing the National Home Ownership Foundation in the minds of its cosponsors last year, was to provide a quasi-public alternative to direct Federal bureaucratic control by the Department of Housing and Urban Development. The sponsors of the NHOF bill were not alone in questioning the capacity or will of the Department to carry out an expanded program of housing for low-income citizens. This presents a considerable challenge to the Department, in carrying out the proposals authorized in H.R. 17989.

While the Department's testimony before our committee has been reassuring, the continued opposition of HUD to my 1966 amendment requiring a substantial number of low- and moderate-income housing in each predominantly residential urban renewal project has had the opposite effect. As the committee report notes, the definition of substantial as only 20 percent of the project-units is hardly in keeping with the dramatic need for more and better housing for our underprivileged citizens. The change contemplated by section 413 of this bill increases this percentage to 51 or better for the aggregate number of units in approved projects within a community; that is, projects which have had their plans approved by the Department, not those which are only in the planning stage.

Mr. LENNON. Mr. Chairman, I make the point of order that a quorum is not present.

The CHAIRMAN. The Chair will count.

Thirty-seven Members are present, not a quorum. The Clerk will call the roll.

The Clerk called the roll, and the following Members failed to answer to their names:

Accordingly the Committee rose; and the Speaker having resumed the chair, Mr. PRICE of Illinois, Chairman of the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union, reported that that Committee, having had under consideration the bill H.R. 17989, and finding itself without a quorum, he had directed the roll to be called, when 338 Members responded to their names, a quorum, and he submitted herewith the names of the absentees to be spread upon the Journal.

The Committee resumed its sitting.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from New Jersey [Mr. WIDNALL] will continue.

Mr. WIDNALL. Mr. Chairman, the new amendment to section 413 of the bill was worked out in conjunction with the gentleman from Wisconsin, Representative HENRY REUSS, as a bipartisan statement of congressional intent, and it also contains a 20-percent minimum aggregate for low-income housing suggested by the gentleman from Tennessee, Representative WILLIAM BROCK. It is perhaps the best example I know of in the bill of bipartisan, congressional initiative in the legislative field. Certainly, all of the other low-cost housing programs will come to naught if land or structures are not assembled and made available at low cost, which is the major benefit of urban renewal use.

Two other amendments which I offered and which have been accepted in title I deserve mention, if only because of the opposition by HUD to their inclusion. The first opens the homeownership sections up to utilization of existing housing, as well as housing involving new construction or substantial rehabilitation. A survey made by my office among District of Columbia real estate agencies indicated the availability of houses selling for under $18,000 and needing little repair, if any. It also uncovered the potential availability of many more renter-occupied houses, which would come on the market if these very same renters had access to mortgage funds. Negro real estate brokers were particularly conscious of this opportunity. The use of existing housing will also mean, as the U.S. Civil Rights Commission has pointed out, the immediate implementation of the new homeownership program. Certainly in this time of tension and trouble within our cities, any tool that can provide an immediate impact, and thus new hope to the less fortunate, should be welcomed. Will the Department of Housing and Urban Development heed this opportunity? Only time will tell.

Another amendment makes nonprofit groups eligible for inclusion in the program for homeownership financing that wish to use existing housing instead of taking on the task of rehabilitation in a multiunit project. It is my expectation that as these nonprofit groups, whether church or labor union, or civic association sponsors, gain in confidence and experience, they will move on to the more demanding but no less important task of increasing the supply of standard housing for homeownership purposes.

THE RENT CERTIFICATE PROGRAM

In 1964, I, with other members of the Republican minority introduced the rent certificate plan. It became legislation in 1965 and has since made a great record for something that was opposed by the administration and generally not promoted by them. To date, it has far outstripped its companion legislation, rent supplements, in terms of people housed, having provided shelter for over 16,000 families while the rent supplement total is just over 2,500. This means that the rent certificate program is responsible for placing over 60,000 people in decent, safe, and sanitary housing that they did not have previously.

In the present bill there are three sections, 208, 209, and 210 which are perfecting amendments that I introduced to facilitate the operation of the program.

Where the Secretary had previously restricted the program in certain localities to rehabilitated housing, on the completely unjustified claim that it would cause rents to rise, section 208 makes clear that he can no longer impose such regulations unless it is specifically so provided in the act.

Where HUD had taken the position that it could not use the program unless in quantities of 10 or more units, section 209 makes clear that it can.

In section 210, we have acted to enable tenants to become purchasers of the homes they occupy through the medium of the local housing authority. This innovation was prompted by spontaneous offers from builders in all parts of the country, attracted by the economics of the operation, to build for leasing purposes.

Now where the housing authority deems it advisable, it may include in its lease an option to purchase to be exercised when desirable in behalf of the tenant.

This latter provision could be used even in multi-family structures where tenants, so desiring to act, occupy units having more than 80 percent of the total value of the structure.

WATER AND SEWER GRANTS

Section 505 ups the matching sewer and water grants from $200 million annually to $500 million annually. I do not particularly like to increase authorizations beyond the departmental recommendations. In the case of this program, however, I am quite ready to make an exception. This is a vital program. Upon it have depended at times, the question of whether or not a city would have to import water for drinking purposes.

The administration has not only given this program a low priority. It has asked for only half the funds which Congress authorized when appearing before the Appropriations Committee. This in the face of applications from needy communities which numbered over $4 billion. There is to my knowledge not a single congressional district that does not have an application for water-and-sewer funds and many are most desperate. Under the circumstances, I think the increase I have suggested is most modest and I know it is badly needed.

NATIONAL FLOOD INSURANCE

It was with a deep sense of personal satisfaction to me that the Committee on Banking and Currency adopted my amendment, in the form of a proposed title XI, national flood insurance.

Members of the House will recall that the proposed national flood insurance legislation passed the House—H.R. 11197—and the Senate in 1967 but because of far-reaching changes made by a House floor amendment in the financing mechanism in the House bill efforts to resolve the differences between the House and Senate versions in conference have been abandoned. In short, prior to inclusion of title XI in H.R. 17989, most observers conceded that flood insurance legislation had little if any chance of enactment in the 90th Congress.

As an original cosponsor of a national flood insurance program, the events leading up to the current legislative statement are indeed regrettable. Within the past month the State of New Jersey experienced its worst natural disaster of the 20th century sustaining more than $150 million in flood damage to private and public property. Having personally witnessed the human tragedy and wide-scale property damage in the wake of these devastating floods, my belief in the urgency of a national flood insurance program was further sustained.

When the House last November rejected the proposed financing through Treasury borrowing authority contained in the flood insurance bill, the circumstances surrounding that action were far different than those which prevail today. I refer to title X of the proposed housing bill where the Congress is being asked to approve Treasury borrowing authority in order to finance a national program of riot reinsurance. While I support title X, I think it would be uncharacteristically inconsistent for a majority of the House of Representatives to support Treasury borrowing authority for riot insurance, while rejecting this form of financing for a national flood insurance program of far more modest proportions.

In this regard, we should keep in mind that flood insurance proposals have been before the Congress for more than 10 years, long before any thought whatsoever was being given to the need for a Federal program of riot insurance.

Stated in its most candid terms, if the Congress of the United States can see its way clear to underwrite insurance protection again lawlessness in our cities, it can ill afford to turn a cold shoulder on the personal grief and tragedy of those of our law-abiding, taxpaying citizens who experience huge property losses caused by floods, or by what are said to be "acts of God."

I urge very serious consideration of this bill and any amendments that will be offered and I urge its passage.

Mr. STANTON. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. WIDNALL. I yield to the gentleman from Ohio.

Mr. STANTON. Mr. Chairman, I take this time to compliment the gentleman from New Jersey, the ranking minority member of the House Banking and Currency Committee, who is now in the well of the House. I am sure that most members of the committee realize that this distinguished gentleman is responsible, perhaps more than any other Member of the House, for many of the new titles that are in H.R. 17989. I refer specifically to the Home Ownership Act. The gentleman is also, as he stated, the author of title XI, the Flood Insurance Act. He was most responsible in our committee for the water and sewer increase in funds. The gentleman in the well was also originally responsible for the rent certificate program which, as he has stated, provides income housing for over 60,000 people in this country.

Mr. Chairman, I rise in support of H.R. 17989.

(Mr. STANTON asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. MESKILL. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. WIDNALL. I yield to the gentleman from Connecticut.

(Mr. MESKILL asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. MESKILL. Mr. Chairman, because this measure contains a provision of vital importance to the Nation's businessmen and to the insurance industry—namely, Federal riot reinsurance—I would like to take a few minutes of time to stress the necessity of approving title X of the bill, as reported by committee.

The purpose of the bill is to provide Federal backing to enable the insurance industry to underwrite riot insurance in areas of potentially calamitous damage.

Many smaller companies could easily be wiped out by large-scale civil disorders such as we have already had in many cities. Consequently, policies are being canceled, or not renewed, or renewed at premium rates up to five times previous rates.

The economic and social consequences are obvious: without insurance, there can be no financing of businesses in riot-prone areas. The conditions which contributed to the social unrest thus are allowed to continue and would be made worse if not corrected.

There is another angle which leads to the Government's moral responsibility. This is the fact that, on occasion, the Government has taken a soft line in the matter of preventing riots and protecting property. Where the Government refuses to maintain law and order, it has an obligation to take other steps to permit the conduct of business and the improvement of communities.

The riot reinsurance provision has been carefully drawn to meet this problem. Here is how it would work:

The insurance industry would pay premiums into the national insurance development fund created by the bill. The amount of premiums would be negotiated with the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development.

The bill provides, however, that the fund is to be maintained at a level at least equal to the amount of the insurance losses from the 1967 riots, a minimum of $75 million. It is anticipated that during the first year of operation the fund would be built to at least $100 million.

In the event of riot damage the insurance company would pay up to an amount equal to 3 percent of premiums earned on reinsured lines plus 10 percent of the total losses in the State in which the riot occurred. Insurance companies thus would be liable for an amount in excess of the $75 million sustained in the riots of 1967. Any additional losses would be paid by the State in an amount up to 5 percent of the premiums earned in the State during the previous year on those lines of property insurance for which riot reinsurance is offered.

Each State, of course, would have to authorize its own participation. No difficulty is anticipated on this point, it being greatly to the interest of the States to participate.

A State may deduct from its 5-percent share the amount of premiums paid by the insurance industry within the State to the fund in those consecutive prior years in which there were no property losses or in which premiums so paid exceeded property losses. Thus, it is conceivable that a State would pay nothing.

After the companies have paid their initial retention and the State has paid its share, the fund would be used. If losses exceeded the resources of the fund, the balance would be paid by the Treasury, which would loan up to $150 million to the Secretary of HUD. Such borrowing by HUD would be repaid from future premium income to the fund. Authority to borrow more than $150 million would have to be authorized specifically by Congress. This financing feature is probably the most controversial part of the bill. I am convinced, however that this method of financing is not subject to abuse because it would apply only to very specific circumstances. By departmental estimate, losses would have to reach beyond $200 million before such financing would be needed. There seems to be no other practical solution to the problem.

It would provide the strong underpinning which is absolutely necessary to enable the private insurance industry to offer coverage in this area. Indeed, this solution offers the Government a very strong incentive for providing property protection and maintaining civil order.

My conversations with leaders of the insurance, banking and building industries leave me in no doubt about the need for swift passage of this legislation.

Mr. DON H. CLAUSEN. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. WIDNALL. I yield to the gentleman from California.

(Mr. DON H. CLAUSEN asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. DON H. CLAUSEN. Mr. Chairman, I rise today in support of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968 (H.R. 17989) and want to take this opportunity to commend the House Banking and Currency Committee for reporting out this unique and far-reaching legislation that has been described as "a test to determine whether or not America intends to meet its pressing national obligations."

In my judgment, this act goes a long way in "helping people to help themselves." It deals directly with some of the major problems in America today and it embodies principles and procedures that I have advocated and supported for many years. Namely, among these, is a Government program that combines federally backed private investment.

Certainly, the requirement provisions for low- and middle-income citizens to own their own homes is long overdue. Quite frankly, I am pleased to note that the Congress is now thinking in terms of homes—not just housing. I am pleased that the equity factor has been included in this legislation and that home building and home buying in rural areas has also been considered.

In April of 1967, I enthusiastically cosponsored the National Home Ownership Foundation Act which, as with this legislation, was designed to enhance the opportunity for low-income families, both rural and urban, to buy their own homes through a privately financed and privately managed Government underwritten program. It is truly encouraging to note that many of the more salient features of our National Home Ownership Foundation Act have been included in the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968.

I have called this legislation unique and far-reaching. I do so because I believe it denotes America's determination to turn back the spread of slums and urban blight that, for too long, have prevented low-income citizens, impoverished minorities, senior citizens, and others of meager means from owning their own homes. Clearly, this legislation brings a decent home within the reach of every American family.

With nearly half of the substandard housing in this country and nearly half of the poor people in America living in rural areas, this dramatic new approach with its comprehensive planning and public participation, will open up vast, new opportunities for home ownership, and rental housing not now available to many rural areas and small towns.

Quite frankly, this legislation goes a long way in rejecting the myth underlying past housing programs that private industry cannot participate in providing decent homeownership for America's low and moderate income families. The bulwark of the American free enterprise system will rise to this challenge, as will organized labor. In particular, the AFL–CIO testimony in support of this legislation before both the House and Senate, makes indelibly clear the confidence and determination of America's workmen to meet the challenge of this new program.

There is also contained in this legislation, a positive program for college housing that I believe will greatly enhance educational institutions in keeping pace with present and future needs for available living space for students. This bill will supplement the present program of 3-percent direct loans for college housing with a new provision for interest subsidies for privately financed housing that will reduce the effective rate to the college to 3 percent.

Another much-needed provision in this Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968 is a new program of Federal assistance to private insurance companies which encourages them to write property insurance in areas threatened by high flood risks. This program has particular significance for my congressional district which has undergone some of the worst flash-flooding in America in recent years. As such, I have participated in the rebuilding effort that must follow every flood and I am acutely aware of the vital need for this insurance coverage that can now be made available and within the reach of those who are annually threatened by flooding.

This new flood insurance program is an outgrowth of the study done in the House Flood Control Subcommittee on which I serve as the ranking minority member and represents the culmination of more than 2 years of effort on our part to get a meaningful flood insurance bill through the Congress.

In closing, Mr. Chairman, I wish to briefly address myself to the only section of this legislation for which I have reservations. Title X of the Housing and Urban Development Act authorizes a program for Federal reinsurance in areas threatened by riots and civil commotion. While I fully appreciate the risks faced by the smaller insurance companies providing property coverage in urban riot areas, I would hope that this legislation does not, in the final analysis, have the effect of encouraging more rioting or more wanton destruction in any riots in the future.

In spite of this deep concern and my reservation regarding title X, Mr. Chairman, I am pleased to lend my support to this creative, innovative, and substantive legislation. It is my earnest hope that the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968 will set the stage for similar legislation in the future. A significant and meaningful step has been made in this act toward "turning the corner" in the direction of greater emphasis on private initiative and renewed faith in the ability and desire of each and every citizen to enjoy the fruits of a richer participation in the American way of life.

I am one of those who believe that we can do better than we have done in the past, and I am convinced that this legislation is an excellent place to begin.

Mr. PATMAN. Mr. Chairman, I yield 15 minutes to the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. BARRETT].

(Mr. BARRETT asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. BARRETT. Mr. Chairman, I rise to join my distinguished and able colleague from Texas, the chairman of the Committee on Banking and Currency, in urging enthusiastic support for this far-reaching and comprehensive bill which is now before the House.

This bill is the product of nearly 2 years' work on the part of the executive branch, the committees involved in both bodies of the Congress, and by countless experts in housing and urban affairs who helped shape the outlines of this great bill which is truly a "Magna Carta" for our cities, both large and small.

Mr. Chairman, I wish to take this opportunity to thank the gentleman from New Jersey [Mr. WIDNALL] for his very kind remarks on the chairman of the Housing Subcommittee. I certainly want to say that I agree almost in toto with the gentleman's remarks on the bill, and I wish to say in respect to the activities and the interest of the gentleman from New Jersey, at least since I have been a member of the Housing Subcommittee, that the gentleman has shown not only in relation to this bill but all housing bills, remarkable diligence and work. He is very fine in his splendid cooperation not only with the chairman of the Housing Subcommittee but in his response to and his cooperation with the gentleman from Texas [Mr. PATMAN], chairman of the full Committee on Banking and Currency.

There is a splendid relationship, Mr. Chairman, between the minority side and the majority side. One might say this indicates we never disagree. Certainly this is not true. We disagree quite often, but we disagree agreeably, and it is through the proper understanding and willingness to work together that we are able to bring to the floor of this House one of the finest housing bills ever to be reported by this Congress.

The bill extends and improves virtually every program we have in the field of housing and urban development. But, Mr. Chairman, it goes much further by proposing some new approaches which have almost limitless potential for providing housing for low- and moderate-income families and for meeting the staggering housing and urban development needs which face our Nation in the years ahead.

The bill addresses itself to one of the most urgent problems confronting us today—that of providing decent housing in wholesome neighborhoods for all of our citizens. Beyond that, the bill seeks to provide dignity and security to our underprivileged fellow citizens through homeownership, new job opportunities, and by doing a better job under our existing programs.

In 1949, the Congress stated our national housing goal as a "suitable home and a decent living environment for every American family." Since then, we have accomplished much through private enterprise and through Federal programs, but our problems have also grown. Today, the need for prompt, effective action is even more urgent than it was two decades ago. The ever-rising prosperity of most Americans has made the contrast of poverty and slums even more disturbing. This bill would attack these problems on many fronts.

Mr. Chairman, I would like to stress first what is perhaps the major new feature of the bill. It proposes a new program which for the first time will offer the hope of homeownership to millions of low- and moderate-income Americans whose present incomes bar the door of homeownership to them.

Under this new program, a low- or moderate-income home buyer would pay 20 percent of his income for the mortgage payment including principal, interest, real estates taxes, insurance, and mortgage insurance premiums. If this payment would not cover the full mortgage payment because his income is too low, the Government would make up the difference. However, there is a limit on the Government payment based on interest costs. The Federal subsidy could not exceed the difference between the monthly payment for principal, interest, and mortgage insurance premiums based on the market interest rate actually paid to the private lender and the payment that would be required for principal and interest if the mortgage bore an interest rate of 1 percent.

Let me give an example. Take a house with a mortgage of $12,000. The maximum subsidy which could be paid at current interest rates would be a little over $45 a month. If a family earning $3,000 a year wanted to purchase this house, they could receive the full subsidy and would pay a little over $50 a month out of their own pockets to make up the full payment. If this family's income rose to—say $4,200 a year—they would then be paying $70 a month and the subsidy would shrink to about $30. When the family's income got to around $6,000 a year, the subsidy would cease altogether and the payment would come entirely from the family.

Also, Mr. Chairman, a similar new program is proposed in the bill which will make decent rental and cooperative housing available to families in the general income range of $3,000 to $7,500. Under the new program, a nonprofit, limited dividend, or cooperative sponsor would receive a Federal subsidy that would lower the cost of the mortgage to as low as 1 percent, which of course would permit the sponsor to lower rents substantially to the occupants. As in the case of the homeownership program, the actual net subsidy would be flexible depending on the income of the occupant. He would pay one-fifth of his income toward the rent and to the extent needed, the interest subsidy could make up the difference. This would work by having the mortgagor pay back to the Government that portion of the rent collected in excess of the basic rental charge—established for each unit on the basis of operating the project with a 1-percent mortgage.

When fully operational, this new program would replace the present section 221(d)(3), below-market interest rate and section 202 direct loan programs and would serve more Americans with a lower budget cost.

Mr. Chairman, one aspect of the interest subsidies for rental and cooperative housing that cannot be overemphasized is its vital importance for senior citizens. Our present program of direct loans for the elderly has been one of the most successful ever undertaken and has always had powerful support in the Congress. This support should now be given to the new interest subsidy program, because of two important advantages it offers to the elderly. First, it can bring this housing within the reach of elderly families and individuals with incomes below those served by the present program. While the 3-percent interest rate on the direct loans provides a very significant benefit for this housing, the new section 236 can reduce the effective interest rate to as low as 1 percent if the occupants' income justifies it. In addition, it will make the Federal dollar go further by reducing the budget impact of this assistance.

We all recognize the heavy pressures on the Federal budget today and it is not practical to authorize as much direct loan money as our senior citizens need. By this new approach which stretches the impact on the budget out over the years, we can add substantially to the amount of housing produced.

Mr. Chairman, these two new housing programs are indeed a breakthrough in Federal assistance for low- and moderate-income families. Between them, they will provide funds over the next 3 years for almost 950,000 housing units, most of them newly constructed or substantially rehabilitated. This magnitude of production will be made possible by reliance on the private money market, with the Federal assistance being provided in a truly innovative manner—flexible interest subsidies based on the need of the assisted family.

Because of the newness of this approach, some question may come up about the treatment of this assistance with respect to the Federal income tax and Federal welfare programs. The fact that the assistance payments under the homeownership program are made on behalf of the homeowner would not, of course, render them includable in the homeowner's income for Federal tax purposes or for determining eligibility or the amount of benefits to be received under federally run or aided programs. Likewise, neither would interest reduction payments made pursuant to the new rental program or rent supplement payments be taxable to the tenants on whose behalf they are made or to the project owners. Similarly, these latter types of assistance would not be includable in income for the purpose of such welfare programs.

These two new programs will probably involve greater underwriting risks than mortgage insurance programs that are designed primarily for families in the medium and upper income brackets. Since they are designed to serve families of low and moderate income, such risks can be expected. In order to avoid jeopardizing FHA's existing insurance funds, a new special risk insurance fund will be established for these two programs as well as for three other new programs established in this bill which will entail higher than usual risks. This fund will not be expected to be actuarily sound and appropriations will be authorized to make up any losses, both anticipated and actual, that the fund may realize. Any insurance claims would be paid out of this fund and any property acquired by the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development as the result of such payments would become the assets of the fund. Naturally any such rental or cooperative property acquired by the Secretary through foreclosure or conveyance to him would continue to be operated by him at rental rates adjusted in accordance with tenants' incomes and consistent with the objectives of the program. Although not included in this new insurance fund, a similar policy is expected to be followed with respect to any rent supplement projects that might be acquired as the result of default.

Mr. Chairman, another innovation in the bill are the programs that seek to enlist the participation of private enterprise on a far larger scale than at present. It would establish a National Homeownership Foundation whose mission would be to encourage in every way possible the provision of low-cost housing by private enterprise groups. The bill also authorizes Housing and Urban Development to make interest-free advances to nonprofit housing sponsors which can cover up to four-fifths of preconstruction expenses. It would also, Mr. Chairman, authorize the creation of national housing partnerships to mobilize private investment and the application of business skills to the task of creating low- and moderate-income housing in large volume.

The bill would make important new changes to the Federal Housing Administration so that it can better serve low- and moderate-income families by making the credit tests less rigid and by authorizing FHA insurance in older neighborhoods which under present law the FHA has ruled out of bounds.

Mr. Chairman, the bill would point to new directions in public housing and urban renewal.

For the first time, Federal funds would be authorized to assist local housing authorities in providing desperately needed social services and counseling to tenants of low-rent public housing projects. It would recognize the problems of large families as well as those of unusually low income in public housing accommodations by authorizing an additional annual subsidy of $120 per unit.

These two provisions can make an extremely valuable contribution to the public housing program. To obtain the best advantage from the tremendous investment which this country has already made in public housing, it is essential that we make available this small additional assistance to meet the human needs of the occupants. Also, they should put an end once and for all to the problem that there are actually cases of people too poor to be admitted to public housing. This problem arises from the fact that, except in the case of the elderly, Federal assistance covers only the capital cost of the project and rental income must be sufficient to meet operating expenses. Because of this, some local authorities have had to turn some families in greatest need away because their rent paying ability was too low.

The urban renewal title of the bill would authorize a new approach to slum clearance through the neighborhood development program. This would not replace the present provisions in the law but would be an additional plan which a city could choose if it so desired. Under a neighborhood development program the commitment of Federal funds would be made annually as the project was carried out instead of requiring a large lump sum commitment at the outset which might not be needed for several years, as is the case in a regular urban renewal project. This approach will also have the advantage of retaining flexibility in the planning for later stages of the project.

Another important improvement in the urban renewal program, one which is designed to assure highest priority for urgently needed housing for low- and moderate-income groups, would require that a majority of the housing units provided in future residentially redeveloped projects in a community must be for low- and moderate-income families including at least 20 percent of the total for low-income families. This provision retains flexibility of local planning since it does not apply to each and every individual project but it does assure that the goal will be reached by applying it to a community's urban renewal program as a whole. In order for a city to meet this requirement, it is expected that projects emphasizing this housing generally will be undertaken first.

The mass transit title of the bill includes an urgently needed authorization of $190 million for these grants. It is necessary for us to act on this to carry out the budget request for this program for fiscal 1970. Because of the leadtime required for mass transit projects, the Committee on Appropriations has cooperated by providing funds a year in advance so that local authorities can make their plans. Therefore, these funds are needed now for fiscal 1970 to maintain the momentum that this important program has achieved. In addition, this title would extend for approximately 1 year the emergency authority for reduced grants—that is, 50-percent grants instead of two-thirds—in areas where planning is underway but not completed but the need is so urgent that they must receive some assistance right away.

Mr. Chairman, title VII of the bill would take a major step toward the long-sought goal of making FNMA's secondary market function a private operation. It would do this by retiring Treasury stock as soon as possible and transferring FNMA to private ownership. This will enable the new FNMA to carry out its responsibilities without present budgetary limitations. Naturally, the special assistance and management and liquidating functions will be retained in the Department as a newly established Government National Mortgage Association.

Another important provision in this title will enable us to tap new sources of funds for the mortgage market by authorizing the new FNMA and other lenders approved by the Association to issue securities against pools of mortgages. These securities will be guaranteed by GNMA which would establish the terms and conditions of the securities. The measure would, of course, be self-defeating in terms of its objective of increasing the flow of residential mortgage funds, if these securities compete directly with savings accounts in thrift institutions already channeling the bulk of these funds into the housing market. Such competition would simply shift the sources of mortgage credit, not enlarge them. Thus, it is essential that the new mortgage-backed securities be limited to denominations suitable for acquisition by institutions and other large securities-oriented investors. In addition, maturities, and other terms established by FNMA must be designed to minimize competition with savings accounts.

Two other new programs proposed in the bill deserve special mention, Mr. Chairman.

The new proposed urban insurance program, for the first time, recognizes and seeks to cope with the mounting insurance crisis that faces the property owner and the inner city businessman. Many of these people, although they have well maintained properties, are unable to acquire adequate insurance because they are located in a high risk area or are near deteriorating structures. Without insurance they cannot get financing for property improvements or business inventory. The result is further spiraling deterioration of the whole area.

Under H.R. 17989, the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development would provide reinsurance to insurance companies for losses paid by them as a result of riots and other civil disorders. Reinsurance losses would be shared among the insurance companies, the States, and the Federal Government.

To obtain this reinsurance the private insurance company would have to agree to make insurance available to all property owners through cooperation in a "FAIR" plan.

Another new program also would recognize for the first time our national responsibility to protect homeowners and small businesses from the damages of the floods which periodically ravage our rivers and coasts. The need for Federal assistance in this area is far too long overdue.

Mr. Chairman, another new program in the bill which I believe will have the hearty support of the House is additional aid for the very popular and important college housing program. The present direct loan program which provides 3-percent financing for college housing would be retained but a very substantial backlog of applications which cannot be met from this authorization has built up. As is recognized elsewhere in the bill, the direct loan approach cannot meet all of our needs because of its budget impact. Therefore, the committee has adopted a proposal to supplement the direct loan program with an interest subsidy approach that will make the same 3-percent financing available. Under this approach, the financing will be done by private lenders and the Federal aid will be limited to making up the difference between the market interest rate and the 3-percent rate now available on direct loans. This approach will make it possible to increase the production of college housing not only to meet our present backlog but to be prepared for the anticipated increase in future enrollment, particularly the needs of our returning Vietnam veterans.

Mr. Chairman, this bill is so broad and detailed, I have not attempted to cover all of its provisions. For example, there is substantially increased funding for the water and sewer grant program. These are provisions for improvements and additional funds for advance acquisition of land, neighborhood facilities, open space land, and there are many more important provisions which are completely discussed in the committee report.

In closing, Mr. Chairman, I would remind our colleagues that President Johnson has called this bill "a charter of renewed hope for the American city." I echo his opinion and I submit that we cannot, that we must not, go forward without making this charter a reality.

Mr. JONAS. Mr. Chairman, I make the point of order that a quorum is not present.

The CHAIRMAN. The Chair will count.

Forty-five Members are present, not a quorum. The Clerk will call the roll.

The Clerk called the roll, and the following Members failed to answer to their names:

Accordingly the Committee rose; and the Speaker having resumed the chair, Mr. PRICE of Illinois, Chairman of the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union, reported that that Committee, having had under consideration the bill H.R. 17989, and finding itself with a quorum, he had directed the roll to be called, when 299 Members responded to their names, a quorum, and he submitted herewith the names of the absentees to be spread upon the Journal.

The Committee resumed its sitting.

Mr. WIDNALL. Mr. Chairman, I yield 10 minutes to the gentleman from Ohio [Mr. WYLIE].

(Mr. WYLIE asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. WYLIE. Mr. Chairman, the housing bill, H.R. 17989, before us is undeniably a big and complicated bill. It is both lengthy and costly. There are parts of it that I enthusiastically endorse. There are parts of it that I do not favor.

To adopt the phrase used by the President in signing the omnibus crime control bill, I feel there is more good than bad, and on balance I agree with the distinguished ranking minority member of the committee, the gentleman from New Jersey [Mr. WIDNALL], that the concept of the bill is both necessary and worthwhile.

One of the things, Mr. Chairman, that has bothered me is the dollar authorization in this bill. It would authorize appropriations of approximately $5.3 billion, and that is a tremendous amount of money. It is about equal to the expenditure reduction in the recent tax bill.

The other side of the coin is that the problems of the cities, both the large and the small, are very substantial and very complex.

In this bill the committee proposes to utilize, perhaps more so than in the past, private capital and private management. If some of these programs were to be funded solely with Federal money, the cost to the taxpayer would be truly astronomical, and, frankly, a cost that we simply could not afford at this time.

Last year there were a number of us—114 to be exact—who cosponsored the National Home Ownership Foundation Act. Title I of the pending legislation contains many of the provisions originally in the proposed National Home Ownership Foundation Act.

I think that title I of this bill offers tremendous opportunities to the low- and moderate-income families of the country regardless of where they live—regardless of whether they live in rural areas, in small, or medium size, or large cities.

Homeownership can provide low-income and moderate-income families with a sense of dignity in themselves. These families can have a feeling of pride in their homes and we hope will provide an incentive to become more active participants in the life of their community.

I agree with the gentleman from New Jersey [Mr. WIDNALL] that homeownership as a desirable goal is an ideal deeply rooted in American tradition.

Title I further provides not only homeownership opportunities, but on-the-job training, practical assistance in household management, and will offer greater opportunities for the coordination of public and private programs.

I am also interested in section 104 of this bill, which establishes a special risk insurance fund. This provision had its antecedents in the National Home Ownership Foundation Act. Those of us who sponsored that bill believe that the experience of private pilot programs indicates that well-counseled low-income families are good mortgage risks.

I am also pleased that the bill incorporates self-help provisions and a program of technical assistance to the nonprofit sponsors of low and moderate housing.

The new rental housing program in section 201, Mr. Chairman, has caused many of us some concern. As I understand it, the existing rental housing program under section 221(d)(3) of the National Housing Act will be phased out and replaced by section 201 of the pending bill.

I guess, Mr. Chairman, that my doubts have been resolved on a purely mathematical basis. Section 201 is designed to provide about 450,000 units of low- and moderate-income housing over a 3-year period. The bill would authorize, subject to appropriations, $300 million for this program. If this same volume of housing were to be built under the present (d)(3) program, we were told by Secretary Weaver the cost would run between $5 and $6 billion.

It is true that under the proposed program we are talking about a 40-year mortgage, but we are also talking about a 40-year mortgage under the existing (d)(3) program, and the income limits under both programs would be the same.

There may be other ways of providing low- and moderate-income housing without undertaking a 40-year commitment, but, if so, we are not now aware of them.

Title II of H.R. 17989 would add a sweeping new subsidized rental housing program to the National Housing Act more generous in scope than the existing 221(d)(3) below market interest rate program. While the proposed new section 236 program differs markedly from the 221(d)(3) concept in that subsidies would be in the form of direct payments of interest from the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development to the lender holding the project mortgage—as opposed to Government financing at below-market rates—the practical effect of the proposal would be to create a rental housing program with only an imaginary income ceiling and with subsidies far more generous than those possible under 221(d)(3).

Members of the House of Representatives will want to take a very close look at the provisions of this new program before making their decisions on whether to approve title II in its present form.

Since no income limitations would be imposed under the program, nothing would prevent the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development from increasing income eligibility substantially beyond present administrative ceilings.

It is essential that those charged with the ultimate responsibility of drafting the new rental housing program now contained in title II of H.R. 17989 realize that income ceilings would not exist. The Secretary of Housing and Urban Development is authorized to set limitations with no guidelines whatsoever. In the words of the proposed legislation—page 54, line 18:

> The Secretary is authorized to make . . . interest reduction payments on behalf of the owner of a rental housing project designed for occupancy by low and moderate income families.

A married couple with one child could have earned as much as $7,800 and still be qualified for a 221(d)(3) unit when income limitations were first established for Rockford, Ill., at the end of 1965. Less than a year and one-half later, in April of 1967, this limitation was raised $150 and such a family could earn $7,950 and still qualify. A family of five in Rockford can earn $9,150 and still be eligible for subsidized housing under this section. This is considerably above the national median income. Moreover, there is nothing to prevent the Secretary of Housing from increasing these limitations by any amount he desires. He could, if he felt that a family of three earning $12,000 annually was a moderate-income family, authorize that much of an increase. The Congress needs to exert greater control over levels of income eligibility if the new program is to achieve the goals for which it is intended.

In view of the national housing goals expressed in the bill and by the administration of 6 million units for low- and moderate income families in the next 10 years, it is particularly dangerous to allow the administration to set its own levels of eligibility.

Obviously it costs a great deal more in the way of subsidy to house a family earning $3,500 annually than one earning more than twice that amount. In short, a given amount of dollars would subsidize far more moderate-income families than low-income families. In view of the bold goals set by this bill itself, it is not unreasonable to fear that the administration might seek to accomplish these goals by providing for far more moderate-income units than low-income units. Once goals are set there is a natural desire to see them achieved. It is not suggested that the formulation of specific goals is unwise, but only that Congress needs to regulate more carefully the levels of income eligibility to assure that the limited Federal funds available for housing subsidies go to families that cannot provide standard housing without assistance. This is far more important than meeting the goal itself.

I would like to compliment the distinguished ranking minority member of the Committee on Banking and Currency, the gentleman from New Jersey [Mr. WIDNALL]. The amendments which he proposes to offer will in my opinion greatly stregthen the present bill. I favor his amendment on the utilization of existing housing in the homeownership program which is carried under title I of the bill. As I understand it, this amendment is based upon the highly successful rent certificate program which he sponsored several years ago. Also, I support the amendment to provide more low- and moderate-income housing in urban renewal areas. This is long overdue and his amendment is a needed step in the right direction.

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman from Ohio has expired.

Mr. WIDNALL. Mr. Chairman, I yield the gentleman 1 additional minute.

Mr. WYLIE. Finally, Mr. Chairman, I support his amendment to expand the water and sewer program. In my district, the small community of Urbancrest is finding it very difficult and almost impossible even to provide its 50 percent of the cost of financing a much needed water and sewer project. This community has no hope at all until a larger program is authorized and until the administration requests adequate funds.

Mr. JONAS. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. WYLIE. I yield to the gentleman from North Carolina.

Mr. JONAS. Mr. Chairman, I was interested in the comment about the water and sewer grants. I believe the RECORD will show that the administration is not asking for the amount of funds that heretofore have been authorized for this program, and I for one have never been able to understand why the administration will downgrade this important program that has the sponsorship and support of every congressional district in the United States.

Mr. WYLIE. I thank the gentleman for his comments.

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman from Ohio has again expired.

Mr. BARRETT. Mr. Chairman, I yield 10 minutes to the gentlewoman from Missouri [Mrs. SULLIVAN].

Mrs. SULLIVAN. Mr. Chairman, I rise to join my distinguished and able colleagues, the chairman of the full Banking and Currency Committee and the chairman of the Subcommittee on Housing, in support of this comprehensive and far-sighted bill which offers so much hope toward the solution of the grave problems that face our Nation's cities, both large and small. The distinguished gentlemen from Texas and Pennsylvania have ably explained the main features of the bill so I would like to confine my remarks to two special aspects in which I am deeply interested.

First, Mr. Chairman, I want to endorse in the strongest possible terms the homeownership title of the bill which strengthens existing law in this field and offers the first dawn of hope of homeownership for additional hundreds of thousands of low- and moderate-income families. Until 2 years ago, virtually all of the emphasis in providing housing for lower income families has been on rental housing. While it is true that for many families and elderly single persons rental housing is usually the appropriate solution, I wholeheartedly support any program which will help more lower income families to become homeowners and to be able to retain their homes.

The human and social benefits of homeownership are vital to a stable society. A home is the hub of the family's life. The owner feels a strong stake in the community, develops an interest in civic affairs, and enjoys a feeling of pride and security in the possession of his own home.

It was because of my deep interest in this subject that I sponsored the first pioneering effort to provide a Federal program of assistance for homeownership for low-income families in the 1966 Omnibus Housing Act. In that act we authorized what is called the section 221(h) program under which nonprofit groups, such as chruch groups, or civic organizations, can purchase low- and modest-cost housing, rehabilitate it, and sell the homes to low-income families in the same income brackets as those eligible for public housing. This was made possible by providing 3 percent mortgage loans to the homeowner through special assistance funds from the Federal National Mortgage Association.

Despite the initial misgivings of many who thought it was visionary and impractical, the section 221(h) program has caught hold and the benefits of homeownership are now being made available to low-income families in many of our Nation's cities. I am particularly proud of the eminent success of the program in my own city of St. Louis under the sponsorship of the Bicentennial Civic Improvement Corp., a nonprofit group formed by outstanding civic leaders in my city.

I hope my colleagues will not think me immodest in citing my great pride in this program as we now consider the greatly expanded program of homeownership for lower income families proposed in title I of the bill. The bill before us now would authorize subsidy payments in sufficient amount to bring homeownership within the grasp of an estimated one-half million low- and moderate-income families. Through its subsidy mechanism it would give the lower income homeowner a mortgage with an interest rate of only 1 percent. In this manner it would reach down into very low income levels so that they can meet the mortgage payments on their home.

Mr. Chairman, I hope the homeownership title will receive the overwhelming acclaim of the House.

I would like to point out to my colleagues that the bill and the committee report make it abundantly clear that the present successfully operating 3-percent mortgage finance homeownership program under section 221(h) will continue until the proposed new 1-percent homeownership subsidy payment program is adequately funded and fully operational. Until that time is reached, however, Mr. Chairman, I am pleased that the committee adopted liberalizing amendments which I offered to the present section 221(h) homeownership program, most important of which would reduce the 3-percent interest rate loan to 1 percent if the prospective homeowner cannot meet the monthly payments required at the higher rate.

Now, Mr. Chairman, I would like to turn to the second aspect of the bill in which I have a very special interest. While we all hope that these programs will lead to a great expansion of homeownership among low- and moderate-income families, we must still recognize that there are many families and individuals who are not prepared to undertake the burdens and obligations of homeownership, or who are simply too poor to afford it, even with this assistance. For many families, the low-rent housing program will continue to be the principal or only hope they have of obtaining decent housing. The increased authorizations for the public housing program included in the bill are vital if we are to provide decent housing for our lowest income families who would otherwise be condemned to live out their lives in the slums. The changes made in the rental housing program are particularly important if we are to fulfill our obligations to families displaced by Government action, and also the elderly and handicapped.

Apart from the dollar increases in the program, the bill would improve rental housing programs in several essential ways. First, the increased authorization will make it possible to modernize and improve existing housing projects, where needed. Many of these are now 30 years old and require rehabilitation and modernization. In some, original defects in design must be rectified. These units will continue to be an important part of our housing inventory and deserve to be brought up to current standards.

In this connection, I would like to call the attention of my colleagues, and also of the Department of HUD, to an amendment adopted in committitee designed to prohibit high-rise projects for families with young children unless the Secretary finds that there is absolutely no other way to provide decent housing for them. While there may be cases in some larger cities where there is no practical alternative, the record is clear—elevator apartments are not suitable or desirable for families with young children, and every effort must be made to provide a more suitable home environment for them.

In addition our experience has shown that it is not enough for families who suffer serious social and economic disadvantages to simply improve their housing. They need other aid and encouragement to enable them to become contributing members of the community and to live in dignity. Some of this social upgrading work is being done now, but much more is needed. The additional assistance provided in section 204 of the bill for special community projects, can go far to achieve this goal. These projects involving tenant participation are intended to give them pride and interest in their homes and to improve morale and a sense of responsibility in the housing projects.

In addition to the group activities contemplated under this section, the bill also includes a provision, which I had the honor of sponsoring, to provide limited additional financial aid for the operation and management of public housing projects. At present the Federal contribution is limited to the amount necessary for annual debt service, and the local authority must raise enough money from rents to pay all operating expenses and upkeep. An exception was made to this rule in the case of housing for the elderly, in recognition that their reduced incomes and the fact that their rent paying ability is often so low that a project designed primarily, or entirely, for senior citizens could not operate under such financial restrictions. The Congress therefore authorized an additional payment of up to $120 per year per unit in the case of the elderly where this amount is necessary to maintain the solvency of the project. But we have found that this problem is not confined just to the elderly. As more and more public housing occupants are drawn from welfare rolls or represent broken homes, rental income in the projects, of necessity, has fallen behind the current operating costs.

This problem was thoroughly explored at a meeting held at my request earlier this year which brought together the heads of local housing authorities from all over the country. Their reports and comments were deeply disturbing. Not only has it become impossible for local authorities to do the job we expect from them in some cases, but it has even been necessary for some authorities to turn away families in greatest need simply because their rent paying ability would not cover operating costs. The housing officials who participated in that meeting unanimously urged that we must find some way to improve the financing of projects threatened with insolvency. The committee has done this by the adoption of my amendment to authorize the same $120 a year extra payment per unit, now available in projects for the elderly, to be available also for units occupied by large families—those with four or more minor children—and also for families with incomes so low that they cannot be housed without this additional aid.

Mr. Chairman, these are only a few of many vital subjects dealt with in this bill, which would provide for a broad attack on our many problems in the field of housing and urban development. I urge all of my colleagues to give it their support. We know the extent of the housing crisis in all of our cities; this bill will enable us to meet that crisis as no legislation previously enacted could do.

Mr. WIDNALL. Mr. Chairman, I yield to the gentleman from New York [Mr. REID].

(Mr. REID of New York asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. REID of New York. Mr. Chairman, I rise in support of H.R. 17989, the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968.

In total, the bill would provide about 1.4 million new housing units for low- and moderate-income families over the next 3 years, at a cost of $3.76 billion, plus an additional $1.3 billion for related programs in the bill. This is progress but the inadequate authorizations hardly come close to meeting the need.

In addition to increasing the contract authority for rent supplements to provide 209,000 new rent supplemented units by 1971 and increasing the authorization for low-rent public housing to provide an additional 375,000 units, the bill establishes two important new programs for low- and moderate-income families.

A new section 235 of the Housing Act would authorize a new program of interest subsidies to low- and moderate-income families to purchase their own homes. It is expected that half a million new homeowners would be assisted by this program. This is an important Republican initiative led by Senator PERCY and Congressman WIDNALL.

A new section 236 would authorize a new program of interest subsidies in behalf of low- and moderate-income occupants of rental and cooperative housing, thereby extending new assistance to 450,000 Americans.

Hopefully, these two programs will be effective as alternatives to the inadequate low-rent public housing that has neither met the need to the extent required nor been satisfactory as a social institution. Only about 30,000 units of low-rent public housing have been constructed annually over the last several years and only 680,000 units now exist, with another 55,000 under construction. Yet even these tend to perpetuate ghetto conditions rather than eliminate them.

The Senate bill contained a requirement that 80 percent of the funds for sections 235 and 236 be used for families whose incomes are less than 70 percent of the income limits prescribed by the Secretary. These are expected to be the same as those used in the 221(d)(3) program which go as high as $10,000 in some cities. The effect of the Senate provision is to reserve the bulk of these funds for genuinely low-income families. There are now 13,796,000 families with incomes of less than $5,000 per year, representing 28 percent of all American families. Our first obligation is to meet their housing needs. By eliminating the Senate restriction, the bill before us blunts this emphasis on low-income families and spreads these meager funds over a larger area. It is my understanding that necessary amendments will be offered to correct this situation, and I intend to support them.

Further, the bill establishes a program of Federal reinsurance for private insurance companies to encourage them to write property insurance in areas threatened by riots and civil commotion, thus implementing the recommendations of the President's National Advisory Panel on Insurance in Riot-Affected Areas.

The bill, in these and other particulars, represents the first implementation by the Congress of a portion of the Riot Commission report.

But the authorizations in the bill are at a level that is much too low, that is far short of the Nation's housing needs. Mayor Lindsay has testified that New York City alone needs $50 billion to begin to act on the recommendations of the Riot Commission report, of which $8 billion is needed for housing. Nationally, there are presently some 6 million substandard housing units, affecting 50 million Americans.

The President has proposed that these 6 million units be replaced over a 10-year period, and the Riot Commission has recommended that progress be at a rate that is twice as fast. Yet this bill anticipates construction of about 1.4 million units in the next 3 years, assuming full appropriations. At that rate, we would replace existing substandard units only in 1982—not to speak of those which will decay in the intervening years. This is clearly much too far in the future.

To spend $5 billion on housing over 3 years means that we spend $1.5 billion per year—or about as much as we expend monthly in Vietnam. I believe that this is a clear indication that our priorities are quite out of order, and not in line with the needs of this Nation at this time.

The housing goal of "a decent home and a suitable living environment for every American family," first set in the Housing Act of 1949, and reaffirmed in the bill before us, still remains more than a decade away under this bill. This is too long to wait. Even so, unless we enact this bill, and then vote for full appropriations instead of the 30 to 50 percent of the authorization that this Congress usually allots to urban programs, that goal will be relegated to a yet more distant future.

Mr. GROSS. Mr. Chairman, I make the point of order that a quorum is not present.

The CHAIRMAN. The Chair will count.

Forty-eight Members are present, not a quorum. The Clerk will call the roll.

Accordingly the Committee rose; and the Speaker having resumed the chair, Mr. PRICE of Illinois, Chairman of the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union, reported that that Committee, having had under consideration the bill H.R. 17989, and finding itself without a quorum, he had directed the roll to be called, when 331 Members responded to their names, a quorum, and he submitted herewith the names of the absentees to be spread upon the Journal.

The Committee resumed its sitting.

The CHAIRMAN. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Michigan [Mr. BROWN].

Mr. BROWN of Michigan. Mr. Chairman, I yield 10 minutes to the gentlewoman from New Jersey [Mrs. DWYER].

(Mrs. DWYER asked and was given permission to revise and extend her remarks.)

Mrs. DWYER. Mr. Chairman, by general agreement, this is the single most important piece of domestic legislation that will be considered by the Congress during this second session of the 90th Congress. In many ways, it would break new ground in the continuing effort to implement our national commitment—now nearly 20 years old—to assure a decent home and a suitable living environment for every American. Through the extension of existing housing programs and by means of new ones, it would invest more of our resources and provide for more new jobs than any recent legislation, and therefore it stands as a test of our willingness to pursue a constructive course in rebuilding cities and healing the lives of those who live in them.

For these reasons, I strongly support this housing bill—not blindly or automatically, but selectively and with qualifications. As a member of the Housing Subcommittee and the full Committee on Banking and Currency, I have participated in the development of this bill through many months of lengthy hearings and executive sessions. Like any omnibus bill, it has its good and bad features. It would not please everyone. In fact, because of its size and length and complexity, it could very well be a source of considerable frustration and a tempting target for those who want no housing bill at all. I appeal to our colleagues, Mr. Chairman, to resist this temptation, to consider each of the issues that will be raised on its merits, and to approach this legislation positively, in terms of how we can improve it, how we can make it better serve the people who need its help, and how we can obtain from it more of the results we desire.

I will not take the time of the House to discuss in detail the many provisions of this bill. Let me, instead, simply mention several features which I consider of special importance:

First, the emphasis throughout the bill on increasing home ownership opportunities for low- and moderate-income families, an idea and an accomplishment for which we are all indebted to the distinguished ranking minority member of the committee [Mr. WIDNALL] and the distinguished junior Senator from Illinois [Mr. PERCY];

Second, the use of new financing arrangements under which interest payments would be subsidized rather than entire mortgages, thereby attracting a potentially much larger scale of private investment in both sale and rental housing;

Third, the expanded use of a sliding scale as a basis for determining the amount of subsidy, with families contributing more toward the cost of their housing as their incomes increase;

Fourth, the insistence in the bill that in administering the major housing programs the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development shall require that opportunities in employment resulting from construction and rehabilitation be given to lower income persons residing in the area;

Fifth, the more flexible approach to urban renewal incorporated in the bill's neighborhood development program, which should help reduce the delay and frustration which have become hallmarks of urban renewal;

Sixth, the requirement that a greater proportion of housing units provided under the urban renewal program be designed for low- and moderate-income families;

Seventh, the stimulus given to rehabilitation as an effective means of restoring and preventing slums and improving the stability of declining neighborhoods;

Eighth, the expansion of the basic water and sewer facilities program, surely one of the most needed and popular efforts ever undertaken by the Federal Government for which the demand, especially in suburban areas, far outstrips the supply of available assistance;

Ninth, the recognition in the bill of the growing importance of the urban mass transportation program in the development of transportation systems serving both central cities and suburbs, and the improvements to the program contained in the bill which will make its assistance more useful;

Tenth, the improvements proposed in the so-called rent certificate program, another product of minority initiative within the committee, which will enlarge the utility of a program which has already proved itself to be one of the fastest and most effective ways of moving poor people into decent housing; and

Eleventh, the incorporation of the national flood insurance program in the bill, a step which I heartily welcome as a means of making this long-desired program a reality and of securing protection for millions of homeowners exposed to destruction by the elements; an unfortunately appropriate example of the need for such protection was the flood disaster which struck heavily populated areas of New Jersey this spring and caused more than $150 million in damage, the worst such disaster in our State during this century.

There are other aspects of this bill, Mr. Chairman, which also deserve support, and a number which I hope will be the subject of proposed amendments, for the legislation can stand considerable improvement. I refer our colleagues to the minority views and the views of the ranking minority member printed in the committee report.

In considering such amendments as may be proposed, I shall be guided by the following objectives:

First, to improve the efficiency, effectiveness, and coordination of specific programs;

Second, to assure a greater share of the benefits of housing and urban development programs to low-income families;

Third, to impose limitations and restrictions necessary to assure full responsibility and accountability in the administration of these programs; and

Fourth, to limit authorized expenditures to amounts which can actually be spent, and spent effectively, within the life of the authority.

I have become increasingly disturbed, Mr. Chairman, at three developments in the administration of housing and urban development programs to which I hope this House can give constructive attention. When all available information clearly indicates that the great bulk of substandard housing in the United States, which we are pledged to eliminate, is inhabited by the poor, I cannot understand how we can justfiy providing disproportionate assistance to middle-income people who, by definition, can afford in most cases to obtain adequate housing at going prices. Moreover, I believe we must take special care not to allow the benefits of housing and urban development programs to flow exclusively to those relatively few communities and organizations which possess the staffs of experts necessary to master the complexities of the programs. And finally, unless we are willing to continue wasting taxpayers' money and disillusioning the people who most need hope, we must take extraordinary measures to improve the management and operation of most housing and urban development programs.

Throughout the committee's hearings, a single theme recurred in the testimony of city and State officials, planners, builders, and financiers: redtape, excessive delays, and complex requirements are making a morass of the Federal Government's efforts to help the cities and the suburbs.

As a result, during the marking up of the bill, I proposed to our colleagues on the committee that we take official notice of this very difficult problem and urge the Department to redouble its efforts to correct these inadequacies. I was extremely pleased to receive substantial support from members of both parties, and so the committee report, on page 4, reflects our very real concern. While we recognize that HUD is not the only offender in the Federal bureaucracy, and that housing programs by their very nature are among the most difficult to administer efficiently, we also realize that things cannot go on as they now are and that the Department must place top priority on efforts to improve program management.

For these reasons, Mr. Chairman, I intend to offer an amendment at the appropriate time which would require the Secretary to report to the respective Committees on Banking and Currency each year, beginning with an interim report by January 15, 1969, on those areas of program administration which need improvement and on the steps he has taken and proposes to take to bring them about.

I have every reason to believe that officials at HUD are just as concerned about redtape as we are, but I have found that it is too easy simply to drift along on the tide of good intentions unless specific requirements have to be met. By requiring the Secretary to analyze his operation, identify its weaknesses, and propose corrective actions, we can at least initiate a systematic pattern of attention and action on these most elusive of problems.

Mr. Chairman, I believe that for the great majority of Members of Congress, our commitment to better housing, to more livable urban-suburban areas, and to greater opportunity for all our people is genuine and deep. Within the limits of our resources, and because those resources are limited, we must do more with what we have, we must make every dollar of investment pay off in results. Since we cannot do everything we might want to do, we must make certain that what we do is done well.

Mr. CARTER. Mr. Chairman, I make the point of order that a quorum is not present.

The CHAIRMAN. The Chair will count.

Seventy-two Members are present; not a quorum. The Clerk will call the roll.

Accordingly the Committee rose; and the Speaker having resumed the chair, Mr. PRICE of Illinois, Chairman of the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union, reported that that Committee, having had under consideration the bill H.R. 17989, and finding itself without a quorum, he had directed the roll to be called, when 341 Members responded to their names, a quorum, and he submitted herewith the names of the absentees to be spread upon the Journal.

The Committee resumed its sitting.

Mr. PATMAN. Mr. Chairman, may I make this brief announcement? After conferring with the gentleman from New Jersey [Mr. WIDNALL] on the minority side, it is my belief that if Members will remain in attendance for a quorum until 6 o'clock, we can finish by that time. Does not the gentleman agree with that statement?

Mr. WIDNALL. I agree with the chairman.

Mr. PATMAN. I hope it can be arranged.

Mr. Chairman, I yield 10 minutes to the gentleman from Wisconsin [Mr. REUSS].

(Mr. REUSS asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. REUSS. Mr. Chairman, there is little dispute about the scope and extent of this Nation's housing needs. Nor is there any question that, if these needs are to be met, a massive and comprehensive attack on our housing problem will be required. In the last decade, we constructed in the neighborhood of 14 million housing units. In the next decade, we must almost double that total. This means that during the next 10 years we must build half as much housing as presently exists.

A most important element in this massive building effort will be the provision of adequate housing for low- and moderate-income families. If the housing goals projected by the President in his message on housing and cities are to be met, we must be prepared to assist in the neighborhood of 6 million low- and moderate-income families achieve decent housing at costs they can afford. Now assistance on such a scale cannot, and should not, be undertaken by Government alone. It will require the concerted efforts of Government and private industry, of neighborhood and nonprofit groups and, most important, of the low- and moderate-income families themselves.

The new homeownership program and the rental and cooperative housing assistance program found in titles I and II of this bill should not be considered as simply two more "housing programs." These new programs are carefully integrated into the larger framework of the bill.

They are parts of a larger, coordinated effort which can lead to important institutional changes and to a major breakthrough in housing low- and moderate-income families.

The homeownership program in title I of this bill has resulted from long and careful deliberation by the Banking and Currency Committee. The proposed interest rate subsidy is appropriately flexible; it is linked to the income of the recipient so that the subsidy is based on need. At the same time, the subsidy is administratively simple to operate, and there is a minimum of redtape from the lenders' point of view. The difference between 20 percent of the mortgagor's income and the total monthly payment due on the market rate mortgage is paid directly to the lender, with the maximum subsidy being the difference between the market rate charges and the amount due if the mortgage bore interest at 1 percent.

This lack of redtape, and the FHA insurance, should encourage investment by the private sector, especially since HUD would be authorized to reimburse the mortgagee for any additional costs incurred in handling the mortgage. The benefits of this subsidy are carefully limited to the real needs of the recipient, however, and the mortgagor's income will be periodically recertified, with the amount of subsidy adjusted accordingly.

The companion rental assistance program in title II also links the amount of subsidy to income, and is even simpler in administration from the lenders' point of view. This program is based on interest reduction payments that lower rentals in a project to a basic charge. The tenant or cooperative member either pays the basic charge or 20 percent of his income, if that is a greater amount. The nonprofit, limited dividend, or cooperative mortgagor would make payments as though the mortgage bore an interest rate of 1 percent, with HUD making up the difference between this and the market rate. Rental charges collected by the mortgagor in excess of the basic rental charge would be repaid to HUD for use in making assistance payments under the program.

These new programs are strengthened and supplemented by other parts of the bill. Section 103 of the bill would permit FHA mortgage insurance in older, declining urban areas, without regard to some of the more stringent requirements which normally govern such insurance, if it is determined that the area is "reasonably viable" and the property is an acceptable risk giving consideration to the need for providing adequate housing for low-and moderate-income families in the area. For low- and moderate-income families who cannot qualify for regular FHA homeownership programs because of their credit histories or irregular income patterns, a new experimental program would be established in section 102 of the bill.

This section authorizes the Secretary of HUD to insure mortgages where he finds a family to be a "reasonably satisfactory" credit risk and capable of homeownership with the help of budget, debt management, and related counseling.

Because the mortgages insured under the four new programs I have mentioned would entail greater risks than have been typical in the past, a new special risk insurance fund would be established by section 104 of the bill to handle any losses incurred under them. This fund would not be expected to be actuarially self-sustaining, and appropriations to the fund would be authorized, whenever necessary, to cover losses.

By themselves, these new programs represent a major new effort in the field of low- and moderate-income housing. They make up the most coherent and comprehensive attack on the problem of decently housing low- and moderate-income families ever made.

Mr. ST GERMAIN. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. REUSS. I yield to the gentleman from Rhode Island.

(Mr. ST GERMAIN asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. ST GERMAIN. Mr. Chairman, I rise today to express my support of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968 which I regard to be one of the most important pieces of social legislation which this Congress has been called upon to consider.

This massive and comprehensive housing bill stands as a milestone in our Nation's struggle to provide decent housing for every American and I, for one, am pleased to have been privileged to be intimately engaged in the drafting of this most significant legislative measure as a member of the Subcommittee on Housing.

H.R. 17989, Mr. Chairman, is the product of 2 years of extensive study and recommendations.

Since 1949, we have been saying that the national goal is a decent home and a decent environment for every American family. That goal is affirmed by this legislation which further emphasizes that the highest priority be given to meeting the housing needs of those families for whom the national goal has not become a reality.

Thus, our Nation will live up to its promise of equal opportunity for all our people.

Furthermore, I want to call your attention to the fact that the programs this legislation provides are designed so as to provide employment for lower income persons residing in areas where housing is built with its aids. This is important and timely in a period when jobs must be found for the unemployed—including our unemployed youth—in the core cities.

The main thrust of this legislation is to encourage the greatest possible involvement of the private sector in developing needed housing for the low- and moderate-income market. This is not a new concept. What is new is that for the first time we are with this legislation making it possible for private enterprise to meet the market on the scale that is needed.

Let me point out that this legislation comes at a most timely moment. There is a changed climate in this country; business leaders are also calling for greater involvement in social concerns. The insurance companies of America, are taking up arms against ghetto conditions with a billion-dollar pool to be used to provide housing and jobs.

Support has come from organizations representing every facet of the free enterprise system. For the first time, in our recent history, so far as I know, Americans of every background and all political alinements are in close agreement about the fact that something must be done.

H.R. 17989 points the way. It provides what the Federal Government can contribute to achieving the level of production and the broad and cohesive effort needed to provide American cities and American families with essential housing and facilities. The legislation encompasses:

Homeownership for low- and moderate-income families through a program of interest-rate subsidies. This program would be carried out with FHS mortgage insurance. The family would pay 20 percent of its income on the mortgage. The Federal subsidy would make up the difference between what the homeowner pays and the total cost of the mortgage down to a 1 percent interest.

With the help of a counseling service that would help families with budgeting of income and debt management, we hope and expect this program will make homeownership a reality and not a dream for many families.

Rental and cooperative housing for low- and moderate-income families, also through a subsidized interest rate. The volume of this housing would be increased by tapping a much broader array of private mortgage capital funds. In this housing, the family would pay 20 percent of income in rent; the subsidy would make up the rest down to a 1 percent mortgage interest rate.

This is a natural complement to the homeownership program. The rental program assist families not desiring, or prepared for, homeownership.

Assistance to nonprofit sponsors of low and moderate income housing would include technical assistance with respect to construction, rehabilitation, and operation of low- and moderate-income housing. Up to 80 percent interest-free loans would be available to cover preconstruction costs. Thus, many nonprofit organizations would be encouraged to contribute their services to the total effort to provide housing for needy families.

NATIONAL HOUSING PARTNERSHIPS

This would apply capital, business, and managerial skills to the problems of housing for families of low- and moderate-incomes. Private corporations organized for profit would provide housing and related facilities for families and individuals of low or moderate incomes, with or without the use of Federal assistance.

Let me emphasize that the national housing partnerships, privately administered under Federal charter, are directed toward bringing large-scale capital into the lower income housing field on a private basis. It meets our need to enable large business, with capital to invest, to move into this housing field, using the various Federal aids available, with certain tax protections and benefits to support such a risk for private capital, particularly during nonprofit development stages.

These are the new housing programs in this legislation. It also speaks for the full range of urban needs. It improves and expands public housing, and urban renewal. It expands access to mortgage funds. It extends assistance for supporting community facilities and services and substantial additional funds for the water and sewer program. It improves the effectiveness of housing rehabilitation. It assists in rehabilitating and preserving older neighborhoods, and provides for an essential riot reinsurance program to aid the homeowners and small businessmen to obtain the needed property insurance protection in order to stay in business.

While this bill reflects in large measure the recommendations of the administration with regard to housing and urban development programs, I wish to emphasize, Mr. Chairman, one of the very significant problems in this area to which the Committee on Banking and Currency was particularly responsive.

This concerns the need for rehabilitation money to assist people who are not within urban renewal or code enforcement areas. The homeowner of limited resources—perhaps a widow taking in roomers as a principal source of income—is often unable to obtain adequate financing from private sources when a new roof or new plumbing is needed. At present, such a homeowner is not eligible for Federal loan or grant assistance when the home is outside the renewal or code enforcement area. This problem had not been adequately treated by the administration bill. The committee realized that more was needed.

Accordingly, our proposal expands the section 115 rehabilitation grant program and the section 312 rehabilitation loan program to provide significant loan and grant assistance for the rehabilitation of properties which are not otherwise eligible for assistance under the existing programs. The expansion will serve to improve very substantially the range of needed assistance which we are making available.

We can, Mr. Chairman, by the passage of this bill, do much to provide for the well-being and improvement of our urban areas and for the furtherance of our announced and reaffirmed goal of "the realization as soon as feasible of the goal of a decent home and a suitable living environment for every American family."

Another important change in the administration bill adopted by the committee would expand the range of sponsors who could provide housing for the elderly and the handicapped under the 202 direct loan program. At my suggestion, the committee amended this program to permit limited profit sponsors to qualify for the 90-percent loans. Thus private, profit-motivated businessmen will be able, for the first time, to participate in this important program.

Mr. ANNUNZIO. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. REUSS. I yield to the gentleman from Illinois.

(Mr. ANNUNZIO asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. ANNUNZIO. I thank my distinguished colleague from Wisconsin for yielding.

RIOT INSURANCE SECTION OF H.R. 17989

Mr. Chairman, I rise to express my particular support for title X, the Urban Property Protection and Reinsurance Act of 1968. This pioneer proposal aims to make essential property insurance more readily available in our inner city areas through the operation of FAIR plans. These FAIR plans will, if properly designed, eliminate the practice of "blacking-out" or "red-lining" whole geographical areas in our inner cities and others, excluding the residents, the businessmen and property owners in those areas from access to the insurance market. The workability of these FAIR plans is conditioned upon the goodwill and cooperation of the insurance industry and the various State insurance commissioners. The Federal Government adds additional incentive for the successful operation of the FAIR plans by requiring FAIR plan participation by the industry and the States as a condition of eligibility for the riot reinsurance proposed by the bill.

Mr. Chairman, I supported this legislation when it was introduced, during the hearings before the subcommittee and during the executive sessions of the full committee. Unfortunately, the proposal is deficient in one respect. I feel that it does not deal sufficiently with one of the major insurance problems in our cities today. I refer, Mr. Chairman, to the problem of obtaining crime insurance commensurate with the ability of the policyholder to pay.

At the full committee markup of the bill, I proposed several amendments. I wanted to make sure that the definition of "essential property insurance" as it appears in section 1203(a)(2) specifically included insurance against the perils of robbery, holdup, arson, and such other crimes as the Secretary would designate. My amendments also provided for a plan of direct writing of crime lines insurance in the event the private industry was unable or unwilling to provide such insurance at rates which the policyholder could afford to pay.

The committee did not accept my amendments because during the deliberations of the committee, it was pointed out to me that the terms "burglary and theft" and "fire and extended coverage," as they appeared in the bill, were intended to cover robbery, holdup, and arson insurance. It was explained by the staff that the terms "burglary and theft" and "fire and extended coverage" were not legal terms and, that in insurance company parlance, they included the types of crime insurance which were covered in my amendments. The committee agreed that report language should be written reflecting the committee's understanding that robbery, holdup and arson insurance are included in the definition of "essential property insurance" contained in section 1203(a)(2).

Consequently, pages 79 and 80 of the House committee report contain the following language:

During the executive session, amendments were offered to extend the definition of "essential property insurance" and "standard lines of property insurance" to include protection against arson, robbery, and such other lines of property insurance as the Secretary may determine. The amendments were not accepted because it was explained that the term "burglary and theft", as used in the bill, includes protection against robbery and holdup, and that the "fire" portion of the fire and extended coverage policy includes protection against arson. To make this point clear, it was unanimously agreed to incorporate in the report the committee's understanding that the term "fire and extended coverage" insurance includes insurance against arson. Similarly, the term "burglary and theft insurance", as used in this title, includes insurance against robbery, holdup, and similar crimes.

I want it to be made unmistakably clear to those who will be responsible for the administration and operation of title X that the committee report language means exactly what it says. It means that essential property insurance must be made available to our inner city residents at reasonable cost and this insurance includes insurance against losses from robbery, holdup, and arson.

Mr. Chairman, the action of the committee served only to verify the original intent of this legislation. As the Members of the House are aware, this bill emanated from the report of the President's National Advisory Panel on Insurance in Riot-Affected Areas. On page 10 of its report, the Panel stated its belief that the FAIR plans will, among other things, "secure for all property owners equitable access to all basic lines of property insurance."

The Panel was well aware of this problem of crime insurance. On page 20 of its report, it noted that reported and unreported crime losses to property had been estimated at almost $4 billion a year. The Panel quite rightly observed that "whatever the real magnitude of property losses from criminal activity, crime insurance is viewed by those exposed to loss as an essential protection."

This staggering figure of $4 billion a year losses from criminal activities almost pales into insignificance the $75 million or so 1967 losses from riots. From the very beginning, I have maintained that there is not a single argument in favor of reinsurance for riots that does not equally apply to affording protection from crime losses at reasonable cost. crime insurance is just as important as riot insurance. Just as the industry tells us that riot losses can become catastrophically high, thereby posing a threat to the economic improvement of the community, we know that crime losses are already astronomically high and create the same problems for homeowners and small businessmen in the inner city as riot losses.

The panel also recognized that coverage under burglary and theft policies, as a rule, included coverage for crime losses. The Panel stated the terms "burglary and theft" were insurance company terms and included insurance against crime losses.

On page 89 of its report, the Panel recommended that the FAIR plans should assist property owners in obtaining burglary and theft insurance. In making its recommendation, the Panel stated:

It may be necessary to redesign the crime policies—by appropriate use of deductibles, requirements for protective devices, and other underwriting controls—in order to make such policies economically sound from the point of view of the insurer and the insured.

The Panel recognized the need for more research and experience with crime insurance in the urban core but stressed that the FAIR plans should be able to offer at least a "basic opportunity to those wishing to purchase crime insurance."

The concept of crime insurance coverage under the FAIR plans was carried over from the recommendations of the President's Panel into title X of the present bill. Indeed, the findings and declaration of purpose set forth in section 1002 refer to the plight of responsible owners of well-maintained residential, business and other properties who cannot "obtain adequate property insurance against fire, crime and other perils; the lack of such insurance coverage accelerates the deterioration of these areas by discouraging private investment and restricting the availablility of credit to repair and improve the property therein; and this deterioration poses a serious threat to the economy." Section 1002(a)(4) states that the national interest demands urgent action by the Congress to assure that essential lines of property insurance, including lines providing for protection against riot and civil commotion damage be available to property owners at reasonable cost. Section 1002(b) holds the purpose of the title to encourage and assist the property insurance industry to develop and carry out statewide programs which will make necessary property insurance coverage against fire, crime, and other perils readily available. If the Federal Government, the States, and the industry enter into FAIR plans which do not make provision for the writing of crime lines insurance at a reasonable cost, they will be flouting the very purpose of the act.

I cannot emphasize too strongly that the crime lines insurance must be offered at reasonable cost. By reasonable cost, I mean a premium price which is commensurate with the ability of the property owner to pay. To me, there is no difference between the industry's refusal to write any insurance at all or their willingness to write the insurance rates so high as to be prohibitive.

I am aware that the premium cost of crime insurance presents special problems. Indeed, this is recognized by section 1235 of the bill which calls for special studies of reinsurance and other means to help assure an adequate market for burglary and theft and other property insurance in urban areas. But, if the FAIR plans are not providing crime lines insurance at reasonable cost, then the very structure of the whole act will be threatened. It makes no sense to afford riot reinsurance in order to make essential property insurance available and at the same time continue a situation where crime insurance is unavailable or is available only at extravagantly high rates.

During the last session of Congress, I supported a bill, H.R. 10409, which incorporated H.R. 5584 which I introduced in the House on February 16, 1967. I should like to point out to my colleagues in the House that this legislation was introduced prior to the riots that occurred in Detroit, Newark, Chicago, Washington, D.C., and many other cities all over our Nation. My bill, H.R. 5584, became title III on page 13 of H.R. 10409, which called upon the Small Business Administration to conduct a study and make appropriate recommendations to determine ways that small businesses could protect themselves from criminal activity. This bill was subsequently incorporated into S. 1862, which became law last October 1967. The results of that study are due this fall.

I am confident that the Small Business Administration will make positive and meaningful recommendations for legislation. Such legislation, coupled with effective operation of the FAIR plans, may well be one of the most effective benefits conferred upon small businessmen all over America in recent years.

Mr. KARTH. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. REUSS. I yield to the gentleman from Minnesota.

(Mr. KARTH asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. KARTH. Mr. Chairman, I rise in support of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968—H.R. 17989, a milestone in urban legislation. I am impressed by the scope of its programs directed toward meeting the Nation's growing housing and urban development problems. What is particularly significant, is the emphasis placed on increasing the supply of standard housing for the Nation's ill housed. For one thing, it proposes an entirely new program of homeownership, whereby the poor can become active partners in America and its future. Under this pioneering program, homeownership would be subsidized by a Federal payment to the mortgage lender which would reduce the homeowners monthly mortgage payment. In the field of rental housing for low- and moderate-income families, a companion prgram provides for rental housing with an interest subsidy as low as 1 percent and related to the tenant's income.

Other provisions are designed to increase the volume of housing for low-income families by continuing and expanding the 30-year public housing program, through involvement of private enterprise in construction and even management under the turnkey process. Still another provision in the bill intended to stimulate the private production of housing for low- and moderate-income families authorizes special FHA mortgage insurance for such families who cannot meet regular credit standards, but who are reasonably satisfactory risks with budget and related counseling. A new system of national housing partnerships is also proposed between private enterprise and the Federal Government, with tax incentives to help make the low- and moderate-income market more attractive to private investors.

In the field of urban renewal the bill makes possible the better utilization of funds into projects which will provide more new and rehabilitated lower-income housing.

The bill also expands and continues the new model cities program, which embodies innovative approaches to renewing slum and blighted neighborhoods.

In my opinion H.R. 17989 establishes the timetable if we are to meet the crisis of our cities.

President Johnson said in his message on the cities:

> If the promise of the American city is to be recaptured, if our cities are to be saved from the blight of obsolescence and despair—we must now firmly set the course that America will travel. There is no time to lose.

Your favorable vote on this vital and significant legislation will put America on that course.

Mr. TIERNAN. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. REUSS. I yield to the gentleman from Rhode Island.

(Mr. TIERNAN asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. TIERNAN. Mr. Chairman, I would also like to commend the gentleman for bringing this bill to the floor at this time.

[Mr. TIERNAN further addressed the Committee. His remarks will appear hereafter in the Extensions of Remarks.]

Mr. PATTEN. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. REUSS. Mr. Chairman, I yield to the gentleman from New Jersey.

(Mr. PATTEN asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. PATTEN. Mr. Chairman, I rise to support the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968.

I want to speak particularly about its property protection and reinsurance features which I consider excellent answers to two problems of critical proportions.

The insurance proposals substantially implement the principal recommendations of the President's National Advisory Panel on Insurance in Riot-Affected Areas. The Panel made a thorough study of the problems and of the possible solutions. Their conclusions seem to me to meet the case.

The great need for property insurance in our central cities—a need for fire and extended coverage, for insurance against vandalism and malicious mischief, coverage against burglary and theft; and

The critical need for reinsurance against property loss from riots and civil disorders in all standard lines of property insurance.

Householders and shopkeepers by the thousands in the urban cores of our older metropolitan areas are unable to purchase property insurance. Because these areas frequently have a large proportion of deteriorated, poorly maintained, and old housing and a large number of vacant buildings and stores, the exposure to fire hazard is generally greater. There are in these same areas many good homes and businesses with owners of high responsibility.

Many insurance companies and their agents have maintained maps outlining boundaries within which it is uneconomical to write property insurance policies. This amounts to a blanket ban on entire areas. Insurable risks are not distinguished from uninsurable risks.

The implications of such denials of insurance for an economically depressed area are indeed grave. The area of blight grows larger as homeowners and businessmen, for lack of insurance, leave the area. Without insurance, a homeowner and a businessman cannot get credit from a bank or other lender to repair a structure or carry an inventory.

The insurance proposal before us would remedy the present untenable situation. It would encourage the State commissioners of insurance to cooperate with the private insurance industry in developing statewide plans to make essential property insurance available.

Key features of the plans are inspection facilities and placement facilities which help greatly to surmount the property insurance problems of the many thousands of our citizens who are trying to maintain their homes and businesses in urban core areas.

The insurance companies would operate facilities for inspecting properties to establish whether they are insurable. No property would be denied insurance without an inspection, without cost to the owner, and a determination that the property is not insurable.

Placement facilities would help agents and brokers place insurance with companies after physical inspections establish that a property is insurable.

The other problem which this legislation meets is reinsurance against loss from riots and civil disorders. This is a problem which insurance companies have been encountering in recent years as a result of the riots and the threat of riots.

Most property insurers reinsure against losses from catastrophes with several large reinsurers. For a premium covering a wide range of catastrophe perils—explosions, hurricanes, and riots, among others—insurance companies purchase reinsurance for all their standard lines of property insurance. The property owner of a home, a business, or an industrial plant has coverage not only against loss from an isolated peril such as fire which may accidentally occur on his own premises but also from a catastrophic fire as a result of a riot which engulfs his as well as other property in the area.

Insured losses from riots and civil commotion in recent years—an estimated $60 million in 1967 and already as much as perhaps $75 million so far this year, and a threat of more to come—has impaired the reinsurance market. Reinsurance is becoming as unavailable for the insurance companies as property insurance is for the homeowner or businessman.

The problem of reinsurance is critical because entire metropolitan areas may be affected if insurance companies cannot purchase reinsurance. Policies in a variety of standard lines of insurances—fire and extended coverage, boiler and machinery, inland marine, plate glass, and burglary and theft, to mention only a few—may have to be canceled where there may be a threat of riots or civil disorders. Wholesale cancellations of policies can be a most serious matter for advances of credit by lending institutions which have an insurable interest in mortgages, raw materials, and business inventories. A credit crisis could threaten the economy if such cancellations were permitted to happen.

Title X of this act would meet this critical, national need for reinsurance through the sale of Federal reinsurance against riot and civil commotion losses. The insurance companies would pay for this reinsurance and would also share in the losses along with the States and the Federal Government. This availability of reinsurance from the Federal Government should provide the necessary incentives for the States and the insurance industry to cooperate in developing and operating the statewide plans to make property insurance more readily available.

I strongly urge the enactment of this title.

Mr. BOLAND. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. REUSS. I yield to the gentleman from Massachusetts.

(Mr. BOLAND asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. BOLAND. Mr. Chairman, I rise in support of H.R. 17989, the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968. This is a bill which merits the support of all of us who are vitally concerned with the future of our American cities, regardless of size and geographical location. By passing this measure, we will be affirming a national goal first enunciated in 1949. That goal was "a decent home and a decent environment for every American family."

Almost two decades have passed since the enactment of the Housing Act of 1949. As a member of the House Appropriations Committee for 14 years, sitting on the subcommittee responsible for the funding of these housing programs, I am firmly convinced that the legislation we are considering today at long last puts us firmly on the road to realizing that goal.

True, there have been earlier housing bills addressed to the problems of our cities, and all of them have provided substantial assistance in building a better and stronger America.

Over the years we have been addressing ourselves to housing needs, and urban renewal; rehabilitation; public works; open space and recreation; transportation, and planning as well as other elements of urban growth.

In previous measures we were successful in putting on the books such innovative programs as water and sewer grants, grants for advance acquisition of land and new aids for code enforcement.

We enacted the rent supplement program, and just 2 years ago we passed the model cities program, a most innovative concept of Federal aid to help cities, both large and small, revitalize slum and blighted areas by a massive concentration of Federal aid, as well as State and local resources.

Today, we are considering a bill that extends and makes improvements in many of these earlier bills. H.R. 17989 represents the considered judgments of the respective committees of the Congress, as well as the views of the scores of citizens and organizations who have given these committees the benefits of their views and experience in the field of housing and urban development.

I am firm in my belief that this bill will provide the impetus the Nation needs to move forward in its battle against slums and blight. I am particularly impressed with the emphasis placed on providing a substantial volume of housing for the poor and disadvantaged. Further, I endorse the requirement that in the production of housing for low-income families, opportunities for employment will be given to lower income persons living in the areas where such housing will be built.

TITLE I—LOW- AND MODERATE-INCOME HOUSING

Now, I would like to address myself briefly to some of the more important portions of this bill. Title I provides a new program of homeownership for low- and moderate-income families, with the Federal Government making periodic payments to lenders who make FHA-insured home mortgage loans to these families. This new program would bring homeownership within the reach of thousands of families who otherwise would have to live in unsatisfactory housing. Other significant portions of this title provide special FHA mortgage insurance for low- and moderate-income families who cannot meet regular credit standards, but who are "reasonably satisfactory" risks with budget and related counseling. It also authorizes FHA mortgage insurance for the purchase, repair, rehabilitation, or construction of housing located in an older, declining urban area without regard to the normal requirements of a particular FHA mortgage insurance program, if FHA finds that the area is reasonably viable, and the property is an acceptable risk.

The title also sets up a new special risk insurance fund that would benefit the new special mortgage insurance programs for housing for low- and moderate-income families. It provides special technical assistance and interest-free loans to nonprofit sponsors for the construction, rehabilitation and operation of low- and moderate-income housing to cover certain preconstruction costs under federally assisted programs. A National Home Ownership Foundation would also be authorized to carry out a continuing program of encouraging private and public organizations to provide increased homeownership and housing opportunities in urban and rural areas for lower income families.

TITLE II—RENTAL HOUSING FOR LOW- AND MODERATE-INCOME HOUSING

Title II is especially deserving of your support. It would authorize a new program of Federal assistance to rental and cooperative housing for low- and moderate-income families. The assistance would be in the form of periodic payments to the mortgage financing the housing to reduce the mortgagors' interest costs on a market rate project mortgage. The rent supplement program would be expanded to meet the growing need for housing, and the 30-year-old public housing would be continued and expanded by increasing the authority for annual contributions by $100 million on enactment of the bill and by $150 million on July 1, 1969, and July 1, 1970. Title II also calls for grants to local housing authorities to help finance tenant services in public housing.

TITLE III—FHA MORTGAGE INSURANCE

Title III provides for a series of perfecting and liberalizing changes in existing FHA mortgage insurance programs. One change worth noting allows the cost of major nursing home equipment to be included in an insured nursing home mortgage. Another change increases the loan limitation in the FHA home improvement loan insurance program from $3,500 to $5,000, extends the maturity from 5 to 7 years and permits a small increase in financing charges.

TITLE IV—URBAN RENEWAL

Title IV deals with urban renewal program, and provides a significant change in the program by authorizing Federal financial assistance to neighborhood development programs. Such a program would consist of urban renewal project undertakings and activities in one or more urban renewal areas that are planned and carried out on the basis of annual increments. Financing would be based on the amount of loan and grant funds needed to carry out the activities planned during a 12-month period in each of the urban renewal areas included in a community's program.

The authorization for urban renewal grants would be increased by $1.4 billion on July 1, 1969, and in addition, the authorization for urban renewal grants for projects in model cities areas would be increased by $350 million on enactment. Rehabilitation loans and grants are continued. The title also provides that 20 percent of the housing built in predominantly residential reuse urban renewal areas be for low and moderate income families.

TITLE V—URBAN PLANNING AND FACILITIES

Title V would authorize Housing and Urban Development to make comprehensive planning grants to State planning agencies for assistance to district planning agencies for rural and other nonmetropolitan areas. A grant authorization of $20 million would be provided for these planning grants in fiscal 1969, and the Secretary of Agriculture would be given certain functions with respect to planning grants for districts, including a requirement that he be consulted before any such grant is made.

The Secretary of Housing and Urban Development would be authorized to make planning grants directly to cities within metropolitan areas—without population limit—and to Indian tribal planning councils or other bodies for planning on Indian reservations. Grants would also be authorized for regional and district councils of government, as well as those organized on a metropolitan basis.

Title V also provides for supplementary grants for planned areawide development; advance acquisition of land, and continuation of the interim planning requirements provision of the water and sewer facilities grant program from July 1, 1968 to October 1, 1969. The authorizations for appropriations for the water and sewer, neighborhood facilities, and advance acquisition of land programs would be extended.

TITLE VI—URBAN MASS TRANSPORTATION

The appropriations authorized for grants and other assistance to urban mass transportation would be increased by $190 million for fiscal year 1970, and the amount of funds which could be used for research, development, and demonstration projects commencing July 1, 1968, would be increased by $6 million, with the limit removed commencing July 1, 1969.

TITLE VII—SECONDARY MORTGAGE MARKET

FNMA's present secondary market operation would be turned over to a Government chartered private corporation known as the Government National Mortgage Association—GNMA. The present special assistance and management and liquidating functions would be operated by the new GNMA.

In the interests of time, I shall summarize the remaining titles in the bill, all of which are essential and merit your support.

TITLE VIII—NATIONAL HOUSING PARTNERSHIP—NHP

NHP would join with local investors to mobilize private capital and business skills to build low- and moderate-income housing. Investors as limited partnership have no liability beyond investment; and investors do have possible tax advantage on any partnership losses.

TITLE IX—RURAL HOUSING

Authorizes direct and insured loans in rural areas for low- and moderate-income families and to cooperatives for rental housing where title I or II assistance is not available. Interest supplements are available. Also authorized are grants and loans administered by the Secretary of Agriculture to assist mutual and self-help housing enterprises.

TITLE X—NATIONAL INSURANCE DEVELOPMENT PROGRAM

Authorizes a Federal program of reinsurance against property loss from riots to private insurance companies so as to continue regular line coverage againt extraordinary losses. Losses to be shared by companies, the State, and by the program fund. FAIR plans are also required to assure property owners fair access to property insurance. Rehabilitation loans and grants would be available to property owners to assist them in bringing their property up to insurable standards—amendment in title IV.

Mr. Chairman, drafted to answer a pressing need, the proposed national insurance development program would help provide adequate insurance and reasonable rates for property owners in urban districts highly vulnerable to riot damage. Many industries, businesses, and individuals cannot obtain the kind of insurance they need—or can obtain it only at prohibitively high rates—because their property is situated in areas the insurance companies deem "riot risks." This puts an onerous burden on the shoulders of urban property owners, forcing them to exist without insurance in neighborhoods simmering with social malaise or to pay astonishingly high rates for what insurance they can get.

Other problems—problems or major sociological significance—arise. Ghetto landlords, for example, are relucant to rehabilitate uninsured or inadequately insured buildings for fear their investment may go up in smoke. And urban businesses—the kind of businesses that provide employment in the ghetto—are being driven out of our cities by soaring insurance rates and dwindling insurance coverage.

The insurance companies, of course, cannot be criticized for the problems I have just outlined. These companies merely set rates commensurate with risk. What is needed to attack these problems is the kind of Federal action proposed in this bill—a program of riot reinsurance.

TITLE XI—NATIONAL FLOOD INSURANCE

Mr. Chairman, Title XI of this legislation provides for a national flood insurance program, which I advocated many years ago following the disastrous and ruinous New England floods accompanying Hurricane Diane on August 19, 1955. The bill I filed in the 84th Congress was H.R. 9071. Congress authorized the establishment of the Federal Flood Indemnity Administration in the Housing and Home Finance Agency when it passed the Federal Flood Insurance Act of 1956.

As a member of the Independent Offices and Housing Appropriations Subcommittee, I led the fight on the floor of this House to appropriate funds for the Federal Flood Indemnity Administration. We from New England whose region had suffered so much in lives lost and property damage were not successful, and the flood insurance program died for lack of adequate appropriations. It took a series of natural disasters in all sections of this Nation during the ensuing 12 years to again underscore the urgency and need for this type of insurance.

The Secretary of Housing and Urban Development would be authorized to establish and carry out a national flood insurance program which would enable persons to purchase insurance against loss resulting from physical damage to or loss of real property or personal property arising from any flood occurring in the United States. He would be directed to encourage and arrange for maximum participation in the program by insurance companies and other insurers, and by related agents, brokers and organizations.

The Secretary would be authorized to borrow up to $150 million from the Treasury to carry out the insurance program. A national flood insurance fund would be established for making payments authorized by the bill, including premium equalization payments and reinsurance for losses in excess of losses assumed by insurance company pools formed to provide flood insurance.

TITLE XII—FHA MORTGAGE INSURANCE FOR NONPROFIT HOSPITALS

A new FHA mortgage insurance program would be authorized for nonprofit groups to build and rehabilitate hospitals. The maximum mortgage amount could not exceed $25 million nor 90 percent replacement cost.

TITLE XIII—HOUSING GOALS AND ANNUAL HOUSING REPORT

The Congress reaffirms the national housing goal stated in the Housing Act of 1949 and determines that it should be met within the next decade by the construction or rehabilitation of 26 million housing units, 6 million of these for low and moderate income families.

The Secretary of Housing and Urban Development would be required to submit annually to the President and to the Council of Economic Advisers a report of—

First, his estimate of the number of standard housing units produced through new construction and rehabilitation the preceding year;

Second, his estimate of the number of such units produced for low and moderate income families;

Third, his assessment of whether the 10-year housing goal is being met;

Fourth, his recommendation of the current annual goal to meet the 10-year goal; and Fifth, his recommendations of the legislative and administrative actions necessary to achieve the 10-year goal.

TITLE XIV—MISCELLANEOUS

MODEL CITIES

The authorization for supplemental grants for model cities would be increased by $1 billion for fiscal 1970, and an additional $12 million would be authorized for fiscal 1969 for grants for planning model cities programs. Amounts authorized but not appropriated would be made available for appropriation for any succeeding fiscal year commencing prior to July 1, 1970.

URBAN RENEWAL DEMONSTRATION GRANTS

Urban renewal demonstration grants would be authorized to be made to nonprofit organizations. Under present law these grants are available only for public bodies.

The limit on the amount of urban renewal demonstration grants would be increased from two-thirds of the cost of the undertakings to 90 percent of the cost.

The amount of funds available for the grants would be increased from $10 million to $20 million.

URBAN INFORMATION AND TECHNICAL ASSISTANCE GRANTS

The authorization for grants to States to assist in the provision of urban information and technical assistance would be increased by $5 million for fiscal 1969, and by $15 million for fiscal year 1970.

Amounts authorized for these grants but not appropriated could be appropriated for any succeeding fiscal year commencing prior to July 1, 1970.

ADVANCES IN TECHNOLOGY IN HOUSING AND URBAN DEVELOPMENT

Such sums as may be necessary would be authorized to be appropriated, commencing with fiscal year 1969, for studies of new and improved techniques and methods of applying advances in technology to housing construction and rehabilitation, and to urban development. Three-year contracts would be authorized for such studies rather than 2-year contracts as presently authorized.

COLLEGE HOUSING

Annual grants would be authorized to be made by the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development for college housing. Under present law, the Secretary is only authorized to make loans. The grants would be made to reduce the cost of borrowing for college housing. The grants could be made over a period of not more than 40 years and could be in an amount equal to the difference between, first, the average annual debt service which would be required to be paid, during the life of a loan, on the amount borrowed from sources other than the Federal Government, and second, the average annual debt service which the educational institution would have been required to pay, during the life of the loan, on a Federal loan. The grant contracts could not aggregate an amount greater than authorized in appropriation acts, and the total amount of grants which would be paid in any year could not exceed $10 million, which amount would be increased by $10 million on July 1, 1969. Grants as well as loans would also be authorized to acquire existing facilities which are not in need of rehabilitation or renovation.

HOUSING FOR THE ELDERLY

Limited profit sponsors would be made eligible for Federal loans for housing for the elderly. Loans to such sponsors would be limited to 90 percent of development cost of the housing.

Mr. ROGERS of Colorado. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. REUSS. I yield to the gentleman from Colorado.

Mr. ROGERS of Colorado. Mr. Chairman, I understand there has been a great deal of discussion about the Financial Institution Act that has been reported from the committee on which the gentleman sits, the Banking and Currency Committee. That bill itself is not included in this particular bill, H.R. 17989?

Mr. REUSS. That is correct. It is excluded.

Mr. ROGERS of Colorado. Mr. Chairman, there are, however, some changes made in the Home Owners' Loan Act of 1933, as appears on page 275 of the bill. I direct the attention of the gentleman particularly to lines 16 to 18, which say: "and may issue such passbooks, time certificates of deposit, or other evidence of savings accounts as are so authorized."

Placing the emphasis on "savings accounts as are so authorized," could there be any authorization either by the association or otherwise of any accounts that are not savings accounts?

Mr. REUSS. No, there could not be. These refer entirely to so-called time or savings deposits, not demand deposits. That is, the relationship which banks have to their depositors are not permitted under this legislation.

Mr. ROGERS of Colorado. I take it from the answer of the gentleman that any evidence of savings banks, if so authorized, would not constitute what we commonly refer to as shares or stock of a company?

Mr. REUSS. That is correct. Stock is not included.

Mr. ROGERS of Colorado. On page 276, reference is made to the fact that a minimum term of not less than 30 days may be required before amounts can be withdrawn. May I inquire to what extent the building and loan association or its charter may require as a length of time in which an individual may give notice before he can withdraw the sums from the building and loan association?

Mr. REUSS. I would say to the gentleman from Colorado, this legislation allows the savings and loan association by its charter to place almost any length of time on its withdrawal requirement that it wishes. Obviously a savings and loan association would like to have as long-term money coming in through the incoming window as it can, but it is only commonsense to point out that if it places too long a withdrawal time, it just is not going to get any money coming in.

Mr. ROGERS of Colorado. I take it they are authorized to put whatever limitation they want, and I assume it would have to meet with the requirement of the Board also.

Mr. REUSS. That is correct. The Board may by regulation prescribe.

Mr. ROGERS of Colorado. Directing the attention of the gentleman now to line 15 on page 276, where it says, "Savings accounts shall not be subject to check or to withdrawal or transfer on negotiable or transferable order or authorization to the association," does the gentleman envision the building and loan association will have the right to set up some system to require a means whereby savings accounts will be transferred back and forth?

Mr. REUSS. No, that would be prohibited. The sense of the sentence to which the gentleman from Colorado refers is that a demand deposit, the funding of which passes by check, is prohibited. A savings account may be transferred, but only on a nonnegotiable basis.

Thus, if there is devolution by death, let us say, of course the savings and loan association could provide that the widow succeed to the account.

Mr. ROGERS of Colorado. I direct the gentleman's attention to page 277, lines 14 to 16, authorizing the association to make loans not exceeding $5,000, for the repair, equipping, alteration, or improvement of any real property, including the construction of new structures related to residential use of the property.

My question is: Can this money be used for any kind of equipment in connection with that home?

Mr. REUSS. If it satisfies the statutory definition of equipping or improvement of any real property, I would think it could be, yes.

Mr. ROGERS of Colorado. Does the gentleman believe it is possible for the FHA to guarantee this loan the same as it would guarantee the other loan on the property itself?

Mr. REUSS. I would not think so. The FHA guarantees only real property; it does not guarantee consumer durable goods, for example. In fact, as the gentleman from Colorado undoubtedly knows, savings and loan associations by and large rely on conventional mortgage financing and do not much use FHA, so even on real estate, while FHA probably could be used, it would not in fact be used.

Mr. ROGERS of Colorado. I thank the gentleman for his explanation.

Mr. WIDNALL. Mr. Chairman, I yield 10 minutes to the gentleman from New York [Mr. HALPERN].

Mr. HALPERN. Mr. Chairman, in the introduction of the National Housing Act of 1949, the housing goal for America was spelled out in these words: "a decent home and suitable living environment for every American family."

While we have made some progress, we have sadly failed to reach anything like that goal in terms of today's needs. Our present housing problems sadly reflect the gap between the poverty stricken families who live in substandard housing and the affluent majority.

A paradox exists in our great American cities today. As beautiful new buildings rise to the sky, old ones crumble and decay before our eyes. Today, 56 percent of the Nation's minority families live in central cities, and almost two-thirds of these live in neighborhoods of substandard housing and general decay. For these citizens who must live in the poverty areas of our cities, the goal of a decent home and suitable environment is still only a distant dream.

Because of this contrast, the problems of our cities require new solutions and the success of our housing and urban development programs becomes even more imperative.

I believe that H.R. 17989 offers us much hope. It is one of the boldest and most comprehensive bills in the field of housing and urban development ever proposed. I commend the subcommittee—both the majority and the minority—for their painstaking, productive efforts to offer highly enlightened and meaningful housing and urban programs. And I wish to compliment my colleagues on the full committee for their intelligent, careful scrutiny of the legislation and for their many contributions to the ultimate committee bill which we have before us. Its strengthening of existing programs and progressive new approaches sketches a design to build a new America for the poor citizen who has never known homeownership.

The basic ills of our central cities, large ghettos occupied by the disadvantaged minorities, must be cured. A big step in this direction is included in the provisions of H.R. 17989.

Especially important are those titles of the act which provide incentives for homeownership among low- and moderate-income families. The interest subsidies for home mortgages and the broadening of eligibility for FHA insurance plans will have effects which reach far beyond the provision of a suitable structure in which to live. Along with homeownership goes a real concern for the well-being of a community, and for the maintaining or upgrading of property values. Homeownership also leads to more stable residence patterns, combating the serious problem of student turnover having such a profound effect on urban school systems today. In all, homeownership, as encouraged by the act, offers a true stake in American society to those segments of the population for whom such a stake may not have been possible.

Another innovative section of the act worthy of special note is the jobs-in-housing program, which requires that the human resources of the local community be utilized in construction and rehabilitation of housing projects to the greatest extent feasible. This program directly attacks the problem of urban unemployment, and will involve the community itself in local improvement in a penetrating and meaningful way.

Also important is the urban reinsurance guarantee included in title X, as recommended by the President's National Advisory Panel on Insurance in Riot-Affected Areas earlier this year. This program, which in all probability will never cost the Government a cent, encourages private insurance companies to make insurance available to property owners in ghetto areas without any fear of disastrous consequences. Only by assuring that such insurance is available can we hope to attract business development to the ghetto and break the cycle of ghetto unemployment and low productivity.

An extremely important provision of the bill for turning the blighted ghettos into a decent place to live is the neighborhood development program. The bill would authorize an alternative form of urban renewal under which a community could elect to carry a project on the basis of annual budgeting over the period required for completion, in place of the current lump-sum commitment for the entire project. By freeing the flow of urban renewal funds, this should facilitate more rapid urban renewal development on an effective scale. Under present law the execution of a loan and grant contract often requires a detailed urban renewal plan which in some cases might cover 4 or 5 years' work. Under this new formula, detailed plans could simply be limited to the year ahead, thus allowing more flexibility for future work.

Serving as an aid to housing sponsors, the bill would authorize interest-free loans to cover preconstruction expenses of nonprofit housing sponsors. It would also establish a National Home Ownership Foundation to encourage private and public organizations at the national and local level to provide increased homeownership for lower income families. The foundation would be a central source of assistance designed to meet the needs of private local organizations engaged in developing housing programs for the poor.

Thus, the bill contains new ideas which can lead to a greater and far more effective involvement of the private sector in the solution of our country's housing and urban problems.

Today our domestic programs must be given top priority. The poor and the disadvantaged must be brought into the Nation's mainstream of abundance. Homeownership and decent environments would immeasurably brighten the lives of our ghetto dwellers. Consequently an increased standard of living and greater opportunities for homeownership, as outlined in H.R. 17989, will awaken the dormant values of individual and family pride, ownership, and civic responsibility.

I repeat, Mr. Chairman, this is the most bold and comprehensive legislation in the field of housing and urban development ever offered in the Congress. Naturally, there are some further provisions I would like to see included in the bill and there are some improvements I feel can be made.

I, for one, anticipate offering an amendment to clarify an inconsistency in the act which under present phrasing could prevent rehabilitation loans and grants from being given in those areas where they are most needed. I trust that this House in its wisdom will overwhelmingly approve this much needed and long overdue legislation.

Mr. PATMAN. Mr. Chairman, I yield 10 minutes to the distinguished gentleman from Ohio [Mr. ASHLEY].

(Mr. ASHLEY asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. ASHLEY. Mr. Chairman, the question is not whether or not the Nation is going to undergo enormous urban growth in the immediate years and decades ahead, but rather how well we are going to prepare for growth trends which are unmistakably clear.

The bill before us enlists the creativity and energy of government, both Federal and local, and of the private sector of our economy in this effort. It is a far-reaching, imaginative, and compassionate bill and one which I am confident this House will support.

On a measure of this scope and substance, it is not surprising that there are areas of conflicting opinion. What is surprising, in my view, is that so many of the components of the bill before us have commanded so much bipartisan agreement.

A reading of the minority views contained in the report on H.R. 1798, signed by nine of the 14 minority Members, reveals that they agree that there must be "a major attack on the problems of the poor in the field of housing" and that they "endorse the attempt to establish means of extending home ownership to the Nation's poor."

They also endorse the setting up of a National Homeownership Foundation which, of course, was originally sponsored by the distinguished ranking member of our committee [Mr. WIDNALL] and 108 House Members.

They approve new plans for an alternative form of urban renewal, the neighborhood development program, and they "applaud the emphasis in mass transit and particularly the means taken to implement the raising of the non-Federal share."

They also approve of the return of FNMA to private control and the establishment of a new Government National Mortgage Association.

They regard new urban riot and flood insurance programs as "matters of urgent priority" and they state their belief that mortgage insurance for nonprofit hospitals is most worthwhile.

The minority views also express agreement that expansion of the water and sewer program is long overdue.

What the minority appears to complain about is the idea that the Congress act now to meet the backlog of housing and related problems that now face us and which are certain to become greater in the days ahead. Their advice is to pursue this goal "whenever possible wihin reason" and to ignore both the Kerner Commission recommendation that six million units of housing be produced in 5 years and the administration proposal that the six million units be constructed in the next 10 years.

I cannot agree that the administration target is unrealistic or beyond the reach of our economic resources, taking into account the expected growth of the national economy.

If our gross national product grows as expected from $785 billion in 1967 to an estimated $1,445 billion in 1978, residential construction expenditures would account for less than 4 percent of GNP in the early years of the target decade and would range between 4½ percent and 5 percent of GNP in the latter part of the decade. Labor resources will be available as the labor force grows; materials production does not pose a problem in our highly industrialized society; there is ample land available; and additional savings will be generated by economic growth to provide the necessary financial capital.

The real hang-up in the bill before us, Mr. Chairman, relates to the new section 235 and 236 programs which seek to assist moderate income families—those who earn too much to qualify for public housing and too little to obtain decent shelter on the private market—to buy or rent homes by permitting a subsidy equivalent to a reduction of the interest rate to 1 percent.

I can only say that this is a new and promising approach to a problem which neither public housing nor rent supplements nor the below-market 221(d)(3) program have been able to meet effectively.

I am sympathetic to the proposition that our efforts and resources should be directed primarily to the very poor in our society, but I find this no reason to be unresponsive to the varying needs for assistance of additional millions of American families whose incomes simply are not sufficient to provide decent shelter.

In response to those who protest that these programs would allow assistance to 7 out of every 10 American families, let me simply point out, first, that the aggregate amount of contracts to make payments could not exceed amounts approved in appropriation acts; that is, $75 million per year prior to July 1, 1969, $100 million following that date and $125 million on July 1, 1970, and, second, that preference would be required to be given to displaced families, families which include five or more children, or families occupying low-rent public housing.

My principal disappointment in the bill before us, Mr. Chairman, is that it does not provide for the limited Federal aid to developers of new communities written into the housing bill adopted by the other body. This proposal would authorize the Federal guarantee of bonds, debentures, notes, or other obligations issued by new community development projects which are so badly needed to relieve the growing densities within our core cities.

Certainly we must direct a massive effort to the rehabilitation of existing urban centers, but, if we are to avoid compounding these very problems in our suburbs and rural communities, we must encourage the kind of preventive planning and action adopted in the housing bill passed by the other body.

In closing, Mr. Chairman, let me make it clear that the bill before us carries with it no blank check and opens no Pandora's box. It authorizes the continued life of existing programs which we need to meet our housing needs and it provides new tools to help with this ongoing task.

Mr. PATMAN. Mr. Chairman, I yield 10 minutes to the distinguished gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. MOORHEAD].

(Mr. MOORHEAD asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. MOORHEAD. Mr. Chairman, I rise in support of title X the Urban Property Protection and Reinsurance Act of 1968.

Today the cities of this Nation—indeed the cities of all the world—are facing a crisis the proportions of which we are only beginning to see.

Mr. Chairman, the enactment of this bill or any title of it will not solve the urban crisis.

But, Mr. Chairman, the failure to enact title X of this bill will insure the doom of our cities.

Insurance cannot rebuild our cities but the lack of basic property insurance will insure that nobody will rebuild our cities.

For the past few years it has become increasingly difficult for homeowners and businessmen in center city areas to obtain and retain basic insurance protection.

In the rundown, blighted slum areas of some cities, private insurance companies have determined, in many instances, that it is not economically feasible to provide insurance protection. This determination has led to the practice of "red lining" entire neighborhoods, which results in an almost automatic denial of insurance for reasons of location alone, regardless of the condition of the property. Without insurance coverage against the perils of fire and crime, banks and other lenders cannot and will not extend credit for the purchase and improvement of real property or for the financing of business inventories. Thus, without insurance, property deteriorates and business, particularly small business, stagnates within the affected area. This, in turn, affects adjoining areas. The result of all of this is that the deterioration and stagnation within the area tends to accelerate and the area of blight tends to expand.

Recent civil disorders in many urban areas have aggravated even further the property insurance problem. Property insurance companies generally purchase reinsurance against abnormally high losses from various perils. The unusually large losses on riot and civil commotion coverage recently paid by the property insurance industry have raised the serious question of whether the same reinsurance arrangements will continue to be available. Without this reinsurance, underwriters say that they cannot continue to provide riot and civil commotion protection in the various lines of property insurance, and may seek to cancel policies currently in force or refuse to renew them when they expire.

A story in today's Wall Street Journal tells of a British insurance company that has ordered large scale cancellations of property and business insurance in U.S. cities. Faced with an insurance crisis we in the Congress of the United States can react in one of three ways.

First. We can do nothing and I suppose that some of those who oppose title X would favor doing nothing. But, Mr. Chairman, failure to act will condemn our cities and ultimately our civilization to economic stagnation and deterioration;

Second. We could go to the opposite extreme of doing nothing and put the Federal Government into the regulation and operation of the insurance industry; and Third. We could take those moderate steps which do not violate the traditional State regulatory authority over the insurance industry but which do supply the minimal Federal ingredient essential to insure that the industry and the States will do the job which needs to be done. Title X provides that minimal Federal ingredient.

Title X provides a carrot and stick approach to the problem.

It says to the States "If you will set up plans which will guarantee everyone in your State a chance to get basic property insurance we—the Federal Government—will offer to sell riot reinsurance to those insurance companies which participate in these plans."

Today, theoretically, the States could outlaw "redlining" and require the companies to offer insurance in the uneconomic slum areas. Practically they cannot or will not because the companies point out that the potential that a riot could bankrupt them.

Mr. GROSS. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. MOORHEAD. I yield to the gentleman from Iowa.

Mr. GROSS. Mr. Chairman, does the gentleman not believe that law enforcement would have a very beneficial effect upon these losses that occur in the areas of which he speaks? Is there any provision in this bill to compel some reasonable law enforcement in some of these areas?

Mr. MOORHEAD. Not to compel it, but the fact that the Federal Government might have to come up with money if law enforcement were not carried out would be a strong inducement for there to be the strongest kind of law enforcement. So that the effect of the enactment of title X would be to encourage law enforcement.

Mr. GROSS. Of course, we had a pretty good example of what can happen right here in the city of Washington, much less any other area of the country when the laws were not properly enforced last April, when tremendous losses were suffered on the part of businessmen. Now, the gentleman says that the Federal Government is going to rush to their rescue.

Mr. MOORHEAD. I say the fact that the Federal Government gets to participate in this would be an inducement to calling out the Guard sooner than was done in this case.

Mr. BROWN of Michigan. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. MOORHEAD. I yield to the gentleman from Michigan.

Mr. BROWN of Michigan. I thank the gentleman for yielding.

Does not the gentleman also say that the States will participate in this program so that there is further inducement to the States to make sure that enforcement of the law is maintained?

Mr. MOORHEAD. Yes. The thrust of this is to get the law enforcement agencies of the State government and the Federal Government to have a——

Mr. GROSS. If the gentleman will yield further, is this what the gentleman is saying, with the additional assurances of the gentleman from Michigan, that you have to spend Federal money, or offer Federal money, in order to get law enforcement in this country?

Mr. MOORHEAD. No. If the gentleman will bear with me, I am going to try to show how we have drafted this so that it makes the Federal participation a very remote contingency, so that the first burden of loss must be on the insurance industry, next on the States, and next on an insurance fund, and only very little—and in most unforeseen and unforeseeable situations would the Federal Government enter into it.

I hope the gentleman will bear with me until I complete my statement, and I will try to explain how we will do this. I know the gentleman and I share the idea that we do not want to have the taxpayers' money involved.

Mr. GROSS. But, first off, if the gentleman wants me to vote for this amendment, or whatever it is, I would suggest that he be awfully sure to tell me how remote this Federal money is.

Mr. MOORHEAD. I intend to do this by charts.

I believe perhaps the best way to explain this to the gentleman would be if I should take a typical or a hypothetical riot situation in a given State, and explain how the various layers of loss are inserted before the Federal taxpayers' money is involved.

We have two examples here, and I am not taking an easy one—I am taking the hardest one.

I say to the gentleman from Iowa that here is an example of a riot loss roughly in the Newark category—$10 million. Under the legislation and under the program the first bite in the loss would come from the insurers' retention of losses.

Title X, by providing Federal riot reinsurance would remove that reason or excuse for failure to act.

Representatives of the insurance industry have assured the Banking and Currency Committee that with the enactment of title X the industry will work to ensure that every insurable property will be eligible for insurance.

Title X, therefore, will solve the urban insurance crisis and will do so at the cost of creating a contingent liability of the Federal Government which should mean no cost to the American taxpayers.

The first part of this program would require every insurance company reinsured by the Federal Government to cooperate with the State insurance authority in each State where it acquires reinsurance to establish and carry out statewide plans to assure fair access to insurance requirements, called "FAIR" plans.

The objective of these plans is to improve the market for the availability of essential property insurance—fire and extended coverage, vandalism and malicious mischief, and burglary and theft—for homeowners and businessmen who have had difficulties in buying much needed insurance. The plans should end the practice of denying insurance to property owners by reason of location alone—known in the industry as "red lining."

The purpose of the second part of the program is to give some inducement to encourage the insurance companies to participate in the FAIR plans.

The second part of the two-part program in title X is Federal reinsurance. The availability of this reinsurance should provide sufficient incentive for participation by the companies. The legislation would authorize the Secretary to sell reinsurance to an insurance company or a pool of insurance companies participating in the FAIR plans in a State. Reinsurance would be sold only for property losses resulting from riots or civil disorders. Reinsurance would be sold first only on a package of lines of insurance including fire and extended coverage, vandalism and malicious mischief, other allied lines of fire insurance, burglary and theft, and those portions of multiple peril policies covering perils similar to them. Companies acquiring reinsurance on these lines would then be eligible to purchase reinsurance against riot losses on any other standard line of property insurance such as inland marine, boiler and machinery, and aircraft physical damage.

The insurance companies, of course, would pay a premium to the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development for riot reinsurance. During the first year, premiums would be set at a level aimed at bringing in $75 million, which would have covered insured riot losses in 1967. The companies would also be expected to absorb at least 10 percent of insured riot losses before the reinsurance took effect. The legislation also provides for each State to assume a share of the reinsured losses in its jurisdiction if the State is participating in the reinsurance program. The maximum liability of a State for riot losses in a year would be 5 percent of the premiums earned by all companies doing business in that State from those lines of insurance reinsured by the Secretary.

The legislation would give the States sufficient time for their legislative bodies to authorize the States to pay their share of the riot losses but would also allow the Secretary to cancel reinsurance in those States that do not act within the prescribed time.

After the companies and States pay their shares, the share of losses would be paid out of, next, a national insurance development fund. Insurance premiums from all States and the reimbursements from the separate States would be deposited in this fund. Reinsurance claims as well as administrative expenses would be paid from this fund. If riot losses do not exceed $200 million it is estimated that they can be covered by company retentions, premium income, and State shares. If they are excessive in any year, the Secretary has authority to borrow up to $150 million from the Secretary of the Treasury. Authority to borrow more than this amount would require action by the Congress.

It might be helpful to the Members of this body if I were to give one or two hypothetical examples of how Federal-State-industry sharing in riot-loss reinsurance would operate.

Let us suppose that the total annual preiums earned on reinsured lines by insurance companies operating in State X are $100 million a year. Let us further suppose that, in the first year of the urban property protection and reinsurance program, insured riot losses in State X amounted to, say, $45 million. The insurance companies would share in the losses two ways.

First, by the premiums they would have paid to the national insurance development fund. Let us say this amounts to 2 percent of the $100 million premiums they earned, or $2 million. The companies would also bear a share of the $45 million in insured riot losses. This could be about $7.2 million, if the retention formula for losses to be borne by the companies were, say, 3 percent of the same $100 million in premiums earned, or $3 million, plus an additional 10 percent of the balance of insured riot losses, or $4.2 million—10 percent of $42 million.

The balance of insured riot losses after premiums and retentions by the insurance companies then is $35.8 million—$45 million less $9.2 million.

In this hypothetical example, this balance is shared between State X and the Federal Government. The State comes in for a full share because this balance is greater than the 5 percent of the same $100 million in premiums, the State's maximum. This $5 million is paid by State X to reimburse the reinsurance fund.

There now remains $30.8 million in insured riot losses to be covered by the national insurance development fund. Premiums from 16 other States with the same amount of reinsured business as is written in State X could cover these.

I would like to give another example to show a situation where only the industry and the State shares in insured riot losses, and the national insurance development fund does not share. Let us suppose insured riot losses in the first year of the program in State X amount to $10 million. The industry's first share is the same $2 million in premiums. Retentions of insured losses now amount to $3.7 million: the same 3 percent of $100 million or $3 million plus 10 percent of $10 million less $3 million, or $700,000. Together the industry's share is $5.7 million. There remains to be paid $4.3 million from the $10 million in insured riot losses. Since this amount is less than the $5 million maximum which State X is liable for, the State's share is $4.3 million and there is no Federal sharing in insured riot losses.

Mr. Chairman, under permission I will seek in the House, I will include in the RECORD, at the end of my remarks six charts which show hypothetical riot losses of various sizes which might occur in a particular State during various years of the program.

We have now looked at how title X would operate in a particular State in the first year of operation. Let us now look at the picture nationwide.

This chart shows the national picture based on the assumption that 30 of the 50 States, with average annual premiums of $100 million each on which 2-percent reinsurance premiums are paid, are participating. This chart shows the various layers which must be swallowed up before any taxpayers' dollars would be involved. It also shows how large the losses must be before the funds authorized by this legislation would be exhausted.

If there were riots in one-third of the participating States losses would have to exceed $160 million before any taxpayers' dollars were involved, and would have to exceed $310 million before the total authorization would be exhausted. One hundred and sixty million dollars is more than twice the total losses of the year 1967 and $310 million is more than four times the losses of 1967.

If riot losses amount to this much the Federal Government will be involved financially whether or not we have enacted this title. We in Congress will be called upon for funds to feed, clothe, and shelter the innocent victims of rioting. The only difference is that without this program the Federal Government will be called upon to cover 100 percent of the loss rather than having the opportunity to share this burden on a preplanned, rational basis with the insurance industry and the various States as this program envisages.

Mr. Chairman, I know that the specter of catastrophic riot losses has been held up as a reason for opposing this program. If there were rioting on a broad scale across the Nation, total losses, as this chart shows, would have to exceed $340 million before any taxpayers' dollars would be involved and almost $500 million before the amount authorized by this bill would be exhausted.

Mr. Chairman, if rioting should ever reach this catastrophic level the Federal Government would be financially involved whether or not we enact this title because before this point is reached the United States would be faced with full-scale rebellion and insurrection which would make the issue of property insurance very unimportant by comparison.

Mr. Chairman, this is a carefully worked out program to permit the rebuilding of our cities by making available to homeowners and businessmen the property insurance that is an essential ingredient for such rebuilding.

It is a program designed to achieve this objective without involving the taxpayers' dollars. There are several layers of funds in the reinsurance program, and all of these must be exhausted before there is any taxpayer contribution.

Mr. Chairman, this is a piece of legislation of which all Members of this body can be proud. It originated in the House of Representatives last December. It was modified by the administration after the President's Panel published its report in January, and it was again modified by your Committee on Banking and Currency.

It is a 5-year program, and I am enough of an optimist to believe that in this 5-year period we can root out the causes of the violence that makes it necessary, and that the insurance industry will be able to fill on its own the void that has opened.

But at this time, the programs this title would authorize are essential if we are to give the residents of our inner cities the insurance protection and security in property that most of us take for granted and prevent a credit crisis in the areas of our cities where credit is most badly needed to stem deterioration.

I urge you to support title X of this legislation.

The article and charts referred to follow:

[From the Wall Street Journal, July 8, 1968]

ROYAL-GLOBE FACES QUIZ BY THREE STATES ON VOIDING OF RIOT-AREA POLICIES—KENTUCKY, MICHIGAN, NEW JERSEY REACT TO CANCELLATIONS—INSURER SUSTAINED 5 PERCENT LOSSES IN 1967

At least three states are opening examinations of the Royal-Globe group of insurance companies, following reports the British insurers ordered large-scale cancelations of property and business policies in U.S. cities that have suffered or may be hit by racial violence, the Associated Press said.

The state insurance departments of Michigan and Kentucky announced Friday they would undertake special examinations. In Kentucky, a hearing was ordered for July 17 at which Royal-Globe must show cause why its authority to operate there shouldn't be revoked.

In New Jersey, the state's banking and insurance commissioner, Charles Howell, said he summoned officials of Royal-Globe to a meeting tomorrow to discuss the cancelations and "work something out." Depending "on the cooperation," Mr. Howell added, "we'll have to decide then what the next move will be."

Mr. Howell said that although he "understands" the company's problems, the cancelations were "almost an irresponsible thing for them to be doing in the mass manner they are doing it."

The commissioner last week declared an insurance emergency in New Jersey. Under a new state law, this prohibits companies from canceling policies without 30 days notice to the department.

The British group, which controls Globe Indemnity Co. of New York, sustained sharp losses during the 1967 racial riots. The concern, which writes about 3% of all U.S. property insurance, sustained approximately 5% of the total riot losses, it's estimated.

Officials of Globe Indemnity weren't available for comment over the weekend, but in London, the AP reported, the parent company said it hadn't given specific instructions to refuse to renew a policy because the property is in an area of potential civil disorder. It said, however, that all British concerns are asking U.S. agents to review policies when they are due for renewal, and it added that the chance of riot damage would have to be considered in reassessing premiums.

According to the Michigan insurance department, the AP said, Royal-Globe canceled at least 318 property insurance policies in the Detroit area, where it was a heavy loser in last summer's riots. Russell Van Hooser, administrative assistant to Michigan's insurance commissioner, said Royal-Globe notified the state of the cancellations last Tuesday.

Mr. Van Hooser said the department hopes to find out this week exactly how many policies are involved, their values and the reasons for the cancellations. The examination "will determine what further action is called for," he said, adding, "I think there are some legal steps that could be taken, but I wouldn't want to speculate on that until we have all the facts in hand."

The Kentucky insurance department said Royal-Globe officials told the agency the cancelations were part of a nationwide effort to cut down high risks, the AP reported. Although only fire insurance is involved in the Kentucky examinations, all Royal-Globe business in the state would be affected if the group's certificate of authority is revoked.

In St. Louis, a local Royal-Globe agent said the company will cancel a $52.4 million fire insurance policy on five St. Louis public housing authority projects on Aug. 10 unless it can get other insurance companies to assume 80% of the policy.

William W. Fetner, chairman of Lawton Byrne Bruner Insurance Agency Co., which handles the policy for Royal-Globe, also said that company had "instructed us it has canceled all of its property insurance in East St. Louis (Ill.)," a predominantly Negro area. A local insurance expert estimates this coverage in excess of $50 million. Mr. Fetner said his agency had handled 10 Royal-Globe policies in East St. Louis totaling about $1 million.

Of 20 companies he had contacted to get them to pick up as much as 5% apiece of the St. Louis housing authority projects, Mr. Fetner said, "four or five have so far said they will do so and an equal number have declined."

Irvin Dagen, executive director of the St. Louis housing authority, called the threatened cancelation "shameful." "Insurance companies," he said, "are the only companies that can play around like this. The circumstances haven't changed from a year ago when Royal-Globe bid on the contract. They should have been aware of conditions then."

Mr. PATMAN. Mr. Chairman, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from New York [Mr. RYAN].

(Mr. RYAN asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. RYAN. Mr. Chairman, I rise in strong support of this legislation, H.R. 17989. Almost 20 years have passed since Congress established, in the Housing Act of 1949, the goal of a decent, safe, and sanitary home for every American. We seem no closer to that goal today than we were then. The backlog of dilapidated housing has grown; in 1960, at the time of the last housing census it was estimated to be 15.5 million units; the housing shortage has not decreased. Especially in our large urban centers the scarcity of moderatey priced, attractive housing is very great indeed.

Too many of our traditional housing programs, although enlightened in intent, have been reactionatry in effect. Urban renewal too often has served as a boon to the real estate developers and a bane to the low-income communities it destroys and fails to replace. Too often public housing has been unimaginative and sterile.

In recent years the Congress has enacted new, creative housing legislation. The Housing Acts of 1961 and 1965 provided new now- and moderate-income programs. The rent supplement program offered a new approach to low-income housing. The model cities program enacted in 1966 provided the basis for the comprehensive regeneration of entire neighborhoods. Yet these programs are today starved for funds. In order to fulfill the pledge of 1949 it is necessary both to fully fund these important programs and to round them out by adopting the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968, which is before us today. This is indeed landmark legislation which will complement the major housing legislative achievements which have already been enacted, and will stand in history along with the Housing Act of 1937 and the Housing Act of 1949.

I should like to commend the chairman of the subcommittee, the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. BARRETT], and the chairman of the full committee, the gentleman from Texas [Mr. PATMAN], and all members of the committee for having brought this legislation before us.

The heart of H.R. 17989 is in the two new programs authorized in new sections 235 and 236—sections 101 and 201 of H.R. 17989—will provide for interest reduction payments to be made with regard to private mortgages for moderate income individually owned, rental, and cooperative housing. The payments would reduce the effective mortgage interest rate to 1 percent. Beneficiaries of the programs would be required to pay the unsudsidized cost, or 20 percent of their income, whichever is less.

H.R. 17989 also increases the authorizations for model cities, urban renewal, public housig, rent supplements, mass transit, and several other existing programs.

In addition, it makes several policy changes, especially with regard to urban renewal, which are highly beneficial. It requires that at least 50 percent of housing units to be built in a residential urban renewal area be low or moderate income housing. Throughout my service in Congress I have introduced legislation to prohibit subsidized luxury housing under title I—H.R. 1224; however, the 50 percent requirement is a recognition of the need to reorient urban renewal toward low- and moderate-income families and a step in the right direction.

Another modification of the urban renewal program establishes a "neighborhood development program" which would afford a more rapid and efficient implementation of programs. The slow pace of urban renewal has been a failure of the existing program.

Also encouraging are the provisions which facilitate the use of rehabilitation in urban renewal areas. Section 311 provides mortgage insurance for housing in urban renewal areas rehabilitated by local public agencies. Section 403 increases the maximum rehabilitation grant from the present $1,500 to $3,000. And section 404 removes the current 5 percent ceiling on the use of urban renewal funds for rehabilitated housing.

As the sponsor of H.R. 14034, the Cooperative Rehabilitation Housing Act, I heartily endorse the various measures in this bill to facilitate the provision of urban homeownership through rehabilitated cooperative housing.

There are other sections of this bill not related to urban renewal, which also facilitate cooperative housing. The bill permits the sale of 221(d)(3) and section 236 rental housing to cooperatives; it also broadens the existing law to permit the sale of any suitable public housing unit to the tenants. For years I have made a similar proposal—H.R. 14561.

Section 303 also promotes the condominium form of ownership by authorizing FHA insurance for the purchase of individual units in a condominium of 11 units or less, regardless of whether the condominium was originally FHA insured. I have proposed a similar program in H.R. 1220 and H.R. 1223. Unfortunately, under the pending bill the size of the condominium is limited to 11 units, and no similar FHA insurance is made available for the acquisition of a cooperative apartment.

Another important provision to promote cooperative low-income housing is section 313 which would authorize FHA mortgage insurance for supplementary loans for cooperative housing where the housing was acquired from the Federal Government, such as the Parkchester cooperative in the District of Columbia, which was formed through the purchase from the Federal Government by the tenants of a section 608 wartime project on which the previous owner had defaulted.

These are welcome additions, which will do much to encourage the formation of low-income cooperatives and condominiums, which I believe hold out the best hope for the elimination of absentee landlordism and the opportunity for homeownership for the low-income city dweller.

It is highly pleasing that the Committee on Banking and Currency accepted my amendment which will make State and municipally financed housing such as as New York's Mitchell-Lama housing eligible for assistance under the new section 236 interest-subsidy program.

A similar amendment incorporating a proposal which I advanced as H.R. 1234 would make Mitchell-Lama type housing eligible for rent supplement tenants. This was also accepted in committee.

These amendments would be of benefit to Connecticut, Illinois, Massachusetts, Michigan, New Jersey, New York, and Pennsylvania which have direct-loan programs.

The New York State and City Mitchell-Lama programs have been stalemated because of the increasing spiral of site, construction, and interest costs. It has reached a point where recent Mitchell-Lamas can no longer truthfully be considered "moderate income." Recently, the New York City Board of Estimate approved a Mitchell-Lama project that will rent for $48 per room per month. Without some sort of subsidy, the program will continue to be priced out of the reach of low- and moderate-income New Yorkers.

My amendment will make it possible for new Mitchell-Lama housing to get 1-percent financing. The rates are now in the area of 5 percent. An interest-rate reduction to 1 percent will reduce rentals to about $30 per month. It should promote increased construction of Mitchell-Lama housing at lower rentals. I regret that existing Mitchell-Lama housing is not included in the interest subsidy amendment. Nevertheless, the interest subsidy amendment will be of great benefit to Mitchell-Lama projects which are not yet completed.

One such project of great interest is the East River urban renewal project, which has been sponsored by Local 1199 of the Drug and Hospital Workers Union. This union is fully interracial and has deep roots in Harlem. The developer-builder is the Douglass Development Corp., named after the great leader who rose from slavery, Frederick Douglass.

Many members of Local 1199 earn in the area of $100 per week. Today an unsubidized Mitchell-Lama project would require rentals of at least $40 per room per month and would thus be priced out of the reach of most members of the union. But the new section 236 program will make it possible for prospective tenants to afford this decent housing.

Section 3 of H.R. 17989, the "jobs in housing" provision, will be of enormous benefit to low and moderate income urban residents. With respect to new sections 235 and 236, public housing, 221(d)(3) and rent supplements programs it provides:

> The Secretary of Housing and Urban Development shall require that, to the greatest extent feasible, opportunities for employment arising in connection with the construction or rehabilitation of projects assisted under such programs be given to lower income persons residing in the area of such projects.

A similar requirement is already in force with respect to model cities programs.

This requirement at the annual level of new construction in H.R. 17989—600,000 units per year for 10 years—will generate some 500,000 new construction jobs for low-income persons, according to a study by the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

The credit for the "jobs-in-housing" proposal belongs to the National Committee for a Confrontation With Congress and its leaders, James Haughton, and Timothy Cooney. They generated a genuine grassroots lobby, which spent many hours with Members of Congress to promote the idea. As a cosponsor of H.R. 16266, the original "jobs-in-housing" bill, I can attest to their diligence.

Title X provides for urban property protection and reinsurance against fire, crime and civil disorders. One of the greatest factors contributing to the further decay of high crime neighborhoods is the general unavilability of insurance at reasonable rates. Following the civil disorders of last summer, I introduced H.R. 11896, to compensate insurers for losses due to major civil disorders. At that time, I spoke of the general need for reasonably priced insurance against all types of losess, and not solely losses due to riots. While I support title X, I regret that Federal liability has been limited to $150 million. The Senate figure of $600 million is much more realistic, and ideally, there should be no fixed ceiling.

Let me also note title VIII, national housing partnerships. This program will bring together the necessary capital with the necessary technical expertise to assemble the low- and moderate-income housing projects which can take advantage of these various subsidized programs. This will help overcome the red-tape which has plagued too many Federal housing programs. There remains a need, to which the committee has wisely addressed itself, to generally simplify procedures and reduce the complexity which has frightened away many potential sponsors of low- and moderate-income housing projects.

While I am in general support of H.R. 17989, I regret that certain problems in the area of housing and urban development were not dealt with fully.

One excellent program which was eliminated in committee was the new program of guarantees for obligations incurred in the financing of new communities. This has been included in the Senate bill, and I hope it will be retained in conference.

Another proposal which I have proposed for years—H.R. 1232—and which was also proposed in the omnibus bill of Congressmen REUSS, MOOREHEAD, and ASHLEY, would prohibit a landlord who fails to adequately maintain his structure, or who is in violation of local health and safety codes, from benefiting from tax depreciation allowances. This was not included in the bill.

H.R. 17989 also fails to improve relocation procedures, which are presently inadequate with respect to both efficiency and size of relocation payments. I have introduced several bills to deal with this problem—H.R. 1225, H.R. 1226, H.R. 1227, H.R. 16953—the most comprehensive of which is H.R. 16953, the Relocation Assistance Act of 1968. This would establish in the Department of Housing and Urban Development a central Relocation Assistance Bureau, which would supervise relocation requirements and make payments to relocatees with respect to all Federal programs.

As important as sections 235 and 236 are, by subsidizing market interest rates down to 1 percent, they necessitate a subsidy equivalent to six points of interest on the principal. If, instead, as I have proposed in H.R. 1222, a revolving fund based on Treasury borrowings were established, with a rate of between 4 and 5 percent, the cost of subsidy would be substantially less, and subsidy funds would "stretch" much further.

Another proposal of mine, H.R. 16053, would permit a deduction of $200 per minor dependent from the income on which the rental for a rent supplement tenant is based. Although the $200 deduction has been accepted with respect to the sections 235 and 236 mortgage-subsidy programs, I believe it should apply to rent supplements as well.

I also believe the limitations on the funds which can go to any single State with respect to public housing and urban renewal should be repealed. These programs should be directed to the areas where the need is greatest—without artificial geographical limitations. I have introduced H.R. 1228 and H.R. 1233 to accomplish this.

Let me say in conclusion that, while I have cited certain omissions, I strongly support this legislation. It provides a goal of 6 million low- and moderate-income housing units over the next 10 years—10 times the rate of the previous decade. During the next 3 years, it would authorize 375,000 units of low-rent public housing, increased by 50 percent the total number of public housing units which have been constructed in the last 30 years.

It would provide an urban renewal authorization of $1.4 billion for fiscal year 1970, greatly reducing the backlog of applications which is now pending.

It would increase the model cities authorization by $362 million in fiscal year 1969 and $1 billion in fiscal year 1970.

It would increase mass transit authorizations by $190 million, a sum which is minimal when compared with our mass transportation needs.

It is urgent that this legislation not be destroyed with reductions in authorizations or crippling amendments. Having shortchanged the cities for so long, it is necessary to make up for lost time. The 600,000 units of low and moderate income housing per year specified in this bill is the level suggested by the report of the National Advisory Commission on Civil Disorders. To save our cities from continued decay and disorder, we must enact—and fully fund—massive programs to rebuild them and to provide decent, safe, and sanitary housing for all of our citizens, a goal which has languished for 20 years.

In order to set forth in greater detail my views on necessary housing legislation, I include the testimony which I presented on April 3, 1968, before the Subcommittee on Housing of the Committee on Banking and Currency:

STATEMENT OF HON. WILLIAM F. RYAN, A REPRESENTATIVE IN CONGRESS FROM THE STATE OF NEW YORK, APRIL 3, 1968

As the year 1949 recedes further into the past, the congressional declaration of the goal of a decent home and suitable living environment for every American family seems almost as remote as it did then.

In that declaration of the Housing Act of 1949, the Congress set forth on the task of eliminating the slums of this country. That act authorized the construction of 810,000 public housing units for low-income families. It established a slum clearance and community development program now known as the urban renewal program.

The proponents of the urban renewal program expressed strong feelings that the people in slum areas should be assured good housing. "Any slum clearance which fails to assure adequate housing for the families who presently live in slums would be merely forcing them into worse conditions. This applies with particular force to families of minority races for whom the problems of relocation are particularly difficult," the Housing subcommittee stated. (H. Rept. 590, p. 16.)

These were the good intentions and fine congressional declarations. But what has happened since 1949?

First, to this day the authorized 810,000 public housing units have not been built. Less than 700,000 units have been built since 1949. What Congress did with its authorizing hand it struck down with its appropriating hand. Even the widely acclaimed Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965 authorized only about 35,000 units a year. As I said to the Housing Subcommittee in 1965, "How will 35,000 units for 4 years make a dent in the need for new housing?"

The National Advisory Commission on Civil Disorders has recommended a level of 600,000 units of low- and moderate-income construction next year and a total of 6 million such units over the next 5 years. The Commission called for more public housing, more funds for rent supplements, and home-ownership, which in urban centers means cooperative or condominium ownership; the Commission also called for a reorientation of urban renewal programs.

Second. Urban renewal has failed to meet the goals of the 1949 act. It has not succeeded in providing adequate housing for those who live in the redevelopment areas. More than 200,000 persons have been displaced from urban renewal sites to make way for new housing and commercial developments. However, most of the new housing is at a cost clearly out of reach of most of the persons displaced.

The noble intentions of the Housing Act of 1949 have not been translated into an effective program of obliterating the slums

In fact, we face an unprecedented housing crisis, a housing crisis that lies at the roots of America's urban malaise. Substandard housing is surely one of the primary components in the picture of the bleak deprivation of our urban poor.

In 1960, the Census Bureau counted about 15.5 million substandard housing units in the United States. Sixty percent of the substandard rental units in 1960 were occupied by families earning less than $3,000. Thirty-four percent of the unsound owner-occupied units had families in them with incomes under $3,000.

Secretary Weaver of the Department of Housing and Urban Development testified before the Housing and Urban Affairs Subcommittee of the Senate Banking and Currency Committee that the demand for additional public housing units has been running at the rate of about 140,000 units per year.

With this indisputable connection of poverty and bad housing, is to certainly possible to make some correlation between the fact of living in poor housing and the social attitudes and behavior of the one-fifth of our citizens who are ill-housed.

First, reputable studies have confirmed that the education of badly housed children is impeded. Often these children are unable to study for lack of space and privacy. Frequently, parents are not there to give guidance. Doctors describe the high rates of illness and death. In New Orleans, a study found that 44 percent of the incidence of tuberculosis in that city was concentrated in slum sections covering only 25 percent of the residential area of the city.

The provision of decent and safe housing is a key requirement in our attack on urban poverty. One-fifth of our Nation is still ill-housed.

Major Federal housing programs administered by FHA have thus far benefited mostly upper-middle-income families. Commendable as is the Federal Government's record in stimulating the housing market by means of Government-insured mortgages, standard FHA insurance is not designed to meet the housing needs of poor families. The average cost of the FHA insured home is around $16,000.

The model cities program, which Congress passed in 1966, is insufficient to meet the critical housing problems of the poor.

The administration has requested appropriations of $500 million for fiscal year 1969 for the model cities program and proposed $1 billion additional for each of the fiscal years 1970 and 1971. As I remarked before the Housing Subcommittee in 1966: "We must think in bolder terms, in terms of larger amounts of Federal expenditures."

And the mayor of New York City told the subcommittee that perhaps $600 million would make a dent in a single neighborhood. With between 60 and 70 cities participating in the first round of the model cities program, New York City can reasonably expect to receive about $50 million a year.

It is estimated that more than 1.5 million persons in New York City live in poverty-stricken households. Furthermore, nearly 290,000 of the city's 3 million housing units are substandard. Since 1949, New York has been allocated only about $368 million in Federal funds for urban renewal, a program for which more than $5 billion has been spent nationwide. Incidentally, New York City has only used about $172 million.

Clearly, $50 million a year for the model cities program in New York City will not result in dramatic improvement in life in our slums.

During my service in Congress I have introduced a number of legislative proposals designed to fulfill the promises of the Housing Act of 1937 and the Housing Act of 1949. On past occasions I have testified concerning their specifics and will do so again today.

In this Congress, my housing package consists of some 18 bills, which are intended to provide a far more adequate housing programs for all Americans. I believe the housing crisis, which was exacerbated by the catastrophic decline in housing starts in 1966, and the very slow recovery thus far, must be met head on with bold new programs to release the millions of low- and moderate-income families from deprivation and despair. We need new programs, and we need to redirect some present policies—and my bills will, if passed, open up new opportunities to many citizens locked in urban ghettos.

H.R. 15624—The administration bill:

Let me begin by making comments on H.R. 15624, the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968, which is the administration's bill. In general, the administration's bill makes useful and necessary extensions and modifications of existing programs.

However, there remain pressing problems to which it is not addressed; and in many areas the increases in the rate of new construction will still not be sufficient to meet the need. Specifically:

There is a need to increase allocations for public housing and rent supplements beyond the levels proposed in H.R. 15624.

Relocation procedures must be improved and made more equitable.

There should be a uniform relocation statute providing for a central relocation bureau which would administer a uniform relocation policy for all direct Federal and federally assisted construction.

Housing construction in slum areas should be a means not only to build homes but to provide jobs to local residents. The provisions of the Model Cities Act—sections 101 and 103—which require model cities funds to generate employment of target-area people, should be extended to other federally assisted housing programs. Reports in the press last week suggest that the requirements of the Model Cities Act may not be fully carried out. This will require the continuing scrutiny of the Congress to insure that congressional intent is being followed.

More assistance should be provided to cooperative and condominium housing as the most feasible form of low- and moderate-income homeownership in urban areas.

Present FHA programs are only of benefit where an entire cooperative or condominium is constructed through an FHA loan. If an individual wishes to buy into a cooperative or condominium, there is no FHA program to benefit him. Nor is there any FHA loan program for persons acquiring non-FHA cooperatives or condominium houses.

Section 304 of H.R. 15624 would make available FHA insurance for loans to purchasers of condominium units in non-FHA projects of 11 units or less. This is a start, but it should be extended to all economically viable cooperative and condominium housing.

Section 204 of H.R. 15624 authorizes $20 million for management assistance and tenant services in public housing. This is a welcome initiative. However, it should emphasize transferring actual management functions to tenants, associations, and it should not be restricted to public housing, but should be available to all low- and moderate-income federally subsidized housing programs, including rent supplements. Also, the authorization should be larger.

The neighborhood development program proposed in section 501 of H.R. 15624 should make the operation of urban renewal more efficient. Instead of the present practice under which funds are backlogged in the pipeline for many years, the Secretary may allocate funds for only a year in advance. Although financing on an annual basis may streamline the operation of urban renewal, it does raise questions which I call to the attention of the Subcommittee on Housing:

First, will the workable program have to be in effect throughout the period of assistance or only during the first year? The workable program requirement should be utilized effectively and be in force throughout the period of assistance.

Secondly, the neighborhood development program proposes to accelerate processing time. How does the Department of Housing and Urban Development propose to reconcile this with the citizen-participation requirement?

Let me endorse section 504 of H.R. 15624, which would permit expanded acquisition of residential property by an urban renewal agency for rehabilitation purposes. This could provide the basis for cooperative resident ownership proposed in my bill, H.R. 14034.

Sections 101 and 201 of H.R. 15624 would provide a mortgage subsidy program for middle-income home ownership and rental housing. The rental housing program—new section 236—supersedes the 221(d)(3) below-market-interest-rate program and substitutes a direct subsidy of private market loans for FNMA takeout. This change has provoked much discussion.

There is a danger that, by agreeing to directly subsidize market loans, the program may push interest rates still higher.

Second, the differential between the subsidized rate and the market rate will always be greater than the differential between the subsidized rate and the Treasury borrowing rate or the participation certificate rate.

In effect, by directly subsidizing market loans, Federal subsidy funds do not stretch as far, and each loan is more costly to the taxpayer than the present system.

On the other hand, the administration claims that the direct subsidy approach has the advantage of permitting flexible degrees of subsidy, keyed to income. It is also claimed that direct subsidy obviates the growth of the FNMA portfolio unwieldy levels, and gets around paper budgetary problems.

I would agree that there are problems and benefits with both FNMA takeout and with direct subsidy. It seems to me that the clearest way to achieve the benefits of both is to establish a direct loan program with a revolving fund capitalized through Treasury borrowing. Where desired, rates keyed to income could be further subsidized through annual appropriation.

Direct Government loans could be offered where private mortgage funds are not available at reasonable rates. The existence of such a fund would result in a great easing of the credit squeeze. It would affect the supply and demand balance of the private mortgage market and lower rates generally. In a period of high rates, rents could be kept low by increased subsidies.

I do not promise unanimous support for this proposal from the fraternity of mortgage bankers, but it is the most economical and most direct means of financing moderate-income housing. I have proposed such a direct loan program in H.R. 1222 modeled on New York State's Mitchell Lama Law. A description of the bill follows:

MIDDLE-INCOME HOUSING

H.R. 1222 would establish a new revolving loan in the Department of Housing and Urban Development to assist in the construction and rehabilitation of middle-income housing. Although my bill pertains to rental housing, it could encompass moderate-income homeownership.

This bill would be a step forward in eliminating the gap between the prices on the private housing market and the rents established for public housing, which makes it difficult for middle-income families to live in decent housing.

A task force study on middle-income housing in the New York area concluded that rental housing constructed by unaided private enterprise, despite the best efforts of capable developers and builders, cannot be built at the present time at a rental rate of less than $30 to $40 per rental room, depending upon the type of construction and the location. Yet this same study found that New York's middle-income families need housing that costs no more than $17 to $29 per room a month.

Congress established the 221(d)(3) program in 1961 to grant loan insurance for the provision of housing for moderate-income families. But only a little over 40,000 units have been provided under this program in the entire country. And the fact is that the 221(d)(3) program has hardly helped in New York City. Land and construction costs are too high to keep the rents "moderate."

H.R. 1222 will go far toward relieving the deficiencies of the middle-income housing market and will create a program of long-term, low-interest, Federal loans for mortgages on rental or cooperative housing projects and for rehabilitation, giving private enterprise the necessary means and incentive to erect and repair housing that can be made available at a moderate cost.

This new loan program will be administered by the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development with a self-liquidating revolving trust fund. Annual appropriations by Congress will not be necessary since the funds for the revolving fund will be borrowed from the Treasury.

Loans extended to middle-income housing sponsors will be entirely repaid and the administrative costs of the program met by interest charges insofar as possible. This bill also requires that reasonable reserves be set aside for insurance purposes and will hold losses to a minimum by provisions which require that borrowers have adequate security and an acceptable credit rating in order to qualify for a loan.

The financial assistance proposed by this legislation can make a necessary and important contribution to the middle-income needs in the urban core of all American cities. Specifically, H.R. 1222 authorizes Federal mortgage loans to cover 90 percent of the certified development cost of a middle-income housing project.

This bill offers cooperatives, nonprofit housing associations, local public housing authorities, and limited dividend corporations loan funds for the conservation, repair, alteration, and rehabilitation of middle-income housing and housing for the elderly.

A home improvement loan under this program would be limited in amount to the actual cost of the work on that which, in the opinion of the Secretary, is needed to furnish suitable housing for middle-income and elderly persons.

Although borrowers under these programs may obtain part of the necessary funds from other public loan sources or private credit facilities, the total indebtedness acquired for either mortgage or home improvement loan purposes may not exceed the maximum limits established in this bill. This last provision will prevent undue speculation.

The terms for these loans have been made as reasonable as possible in order to give the most financial assistance to eligible developers of middle-income housing and, at the same time, keep the revolving loan fund on a self-supporting basis. The Secretary is authorized to set the interest rates for these mortgage and home improvement loans at levels no higher than necessary to cover the cost of the funds borrowed from the Treasury, and maintain reasonable reserves. One-half of 1 percent is added to this rate to cover the overhead administrative costs of the program.

H.R. 1222 also specifies long amortization periods for repayment of these loans in an effort to keep the costs of middle-income housing at the lowest possible level. Borrowers of mortgage funds under this program may take as long as 50 years to repay. A mortgage loan may also be refinanced for an additional period of no more than 10 years at the discretion of the Secretary, provided that such refinancing would not endanger the stability of the housing project by permitting an excessive income in the rents for its dwelling units.

The home improvement loans provided by H.R. 1222 may be amortized for periods of no more than 40 years or three-fourths of the remaining economic life of the structure, whichever is less. A borrower may extend this repayment period for 3 years.

To insure that this liberal financing will give asistsance where it is most needed, my bill calls for an estimate by the Secretary of the need for middle-income housing in each market in the country. Appropriate shares of the loan funds are to be allocated on the basis of the findings. Furthermore, no loan will be given to a builder or housing sponsor who cannot show an existing need for middle-income housing or housing for the elderly in his area.

Legislation of this type is vitally needed to close the gap in the housing supply which exists between low-income public housing and high-rent luxury apartments.

It is time to admit that our low- and middle-income housing problems will not be solved by a strict adherence to the present FHA approach. It is understandable that Congress has been hesitant to endorse direct loans. However, the need for loans has not been met from private sources.

Congress recognized this when it provided for direct loans for senior citizens housing in 1959. This program was designed to house our senior citizens whose income is too low to participate in the private housing market, or even take advantage of liberal FHA insurance programs. Both the necessity and the popularity of this program speak for themselves. There are thousands of middle-income Americans without a decent home who have precisely the same need as the elderly whom we have rightly sought to help.

A program of low-interest, long-term Federal loans, such as I propose in H.R. 1222, is necessary if we really intend to meet the middle-income housing need in this country.

Another of my bills, H.R. 1223, would also benefit moderate income families—those who choose to live in cooperatives. H.R. 1223 would amend title II of the National Housing Act to provide FHA mortgage insurance for individuals acquiring dwelling units in cooperative housing projects in the same way that such insurance is provided for individuals purchasing other single-family residences.

This bill would heighten the probability of low-income public housing occupants and middle-income persons becoming homeowners. Through long-term, low-interest loans insured by FHA, cooperative apartments could be made available, thus promoting the concept of homeownership.

PUBLIC HOUSING

Let me turn to public housing. I have introduced seven bills to strengthen and improve the public housing program.

After years of inadequate funding of public housing, the administration has proposed H.R. 15624 to build 775,000 public housing units over a 5-year period. This is finally a realistic level of effort, although it is still not sufficient.

There are many in and out of Government who hope for a gradual demise of the low-rent public housing program. Some continue to have a sublime faith in the ability of private enterprise to build housing for low-income families. Others believe the rent supplement program will gradually replace public housing.

These supporting the private enterprise route are blind to the experience of the last 20 years—private builders go where the profit is, and that is in luxury housing. The rent supplement program could complement public housing—if Congress would appropriate sufficient funds and if the rentals could be adjusted to reflect more accurately the budgetary needs of low-income families.

The fact is that public housing remains the most effective means of reaching low-income families. It must be improved and expanded.

For a number of years I have introduced legislation amending the Housing Act of 1937 by removing the existing limit on the amount of annual contributions which may be contracted for by the Housing Assistance Administration.

In the 90th Congress, it is H.R. 1229, I have felt that this is a much better way to deal with public housing than through repeated efforts to increase the existing authority.

In the last analysis, the control of the amount of public housing that can be put into effect in any one year lies with the appropriation, not with the authorization. Would it not be better to let the Department of Housing and Urban Development gage the annual need for public housing by the number of applications it has processed?

Given the tremendous backlog—about 135,000 applications are pending in New York alone—I think the 300,000 annual figure over a period of 10 years, proposed by H.R. 14244, or the level of 500,000 a year for 4 years, proposed by H.R. 16266, represent a more appropriate order of magnitude, I have cosponsored both bills.

H.R. 16266 is significant in that it recognized the connection between an enlarged program of housing construction in slum areas and the generation of jobs for slum-dwellers. In this way, the circle of poverty is cut in two places simultaneously.

Another bill of mine, H.R. 1228, would remove the current 15-percent ceiling on the amount of assistance which may be provided for public housing in any one State. Public housing should be built where the need is greatest, and not on the basis of an artifical quota system.

I have introduced H.R. 1230 to raise the per-room limitations on public housing projects by $1,000. This is needed to counter the rising cost of housing construction, which will otherwise virtually eliminate the possibility of building adequate and attractive public housing. Since 1946, the consumer price index has increased by about 60 percent, but the residential construction cost index has gone up by more than 90 percent.

Clearly, we are experiencing an increase in this sector of the economy out of proportion to overall cost-of-living increases. If we fail to raise the cost limitation on public housing, we will be forever plagued by the argument against unattractive, institutional structures.

One additional point about the public housing cost limitation. Per-room construction limitations are established by statute. In addition, limitations on overall per-unit development costs have been established administratively. In a high-cost area, the only way projects can be built within the overall per-unit limitation is by restricting the number of rooms.

In effect, the act thereby induces local public housing authorities—especially in high-cost areas—to build units with few rooms. In this way, public housing fails to adequately provide for the needs of large families.

We should make it clear to HUD, either through legislation or committee recommendation, the intent of Congress that a sizable proportion of low-rent public housing units should be constructed to accommodate large families and that any administrative per-unit limitation should take this objective into consideration.

I have introduced H.R. 1231 which will add the concept of due process of law to the procedures for the eviction or removal of a tenant from his home in a low-rent public housing project by providing that a tenant in a public housing project may not be evicted without a public hearing. This is consistent with American ideals of justice and asks only that a public hearing be given a tenant regarding his proposed eviction, that the decision of the public housing agency be based on the record of the hearing, and that such decision be subject to judicial review in the courts. It is hardly necessary to state that it is only fair that public housing tenants be accorded the same standards of justice that exists for those more fortunate.

Homeownership for low-income families is an idea whose time has come. For years, I have urged cooperative and condominium ownership as a means of offering homeownership to low- and middle-income urban families. One way to promote this concept is to permit public housing tenants to purchase the units in which they reside.

My bill, H.R. 14561, amends the Housing Act of 1937 to authorize occupants of dwelling units in low-rent public housing projects to purchase such units. It would also make possible for all or part of a public housing project to be converted to a nonprofit cooperative housing corporation or trust formed by occupants of the project. I have introduced legislation to accomplish this objective since my election to Congress. It is encouraging that the administration's bill, H.R. 15624, includes a provision—section 205—permitting local housing authorities to sell low-rent housing units to tenants.

EXTENSION OF RENT SUPPLEMENTS

The rent supplement program was presented as a major innovation designed to provide low-income housing through private enterprise. It will not have a fair test until it is adequately funded. Thus far, only $42 million has been appropriated for rent supplements. This translates into 42,773 units presently under contract, a pitifully small amount.

The administration bill proposed to increase the authorization for contract authority by $40 million for fiscal year 1970, and an additional $100 million in each of the fiscal years 1971, 1972, and 1973. This increase will provide a total increase of about 375,000 units over 4 years. By contrast, H.R. 14244 proposed an additional 200,000 rent supplements yearly for the next 10 years. I support the higher figure proposed in the Full Oportunity Act, H.R. 14244, which I have cosponsored.

One difficulty with rent supplements has been the fixed requirement that the tenant pay 25 percent of his income for rent. This may be equitable for a couple with one child; but, as one local housing administrator has expressed it, a family of six, in order spend one-fourth of a $4,000 yearly income on rent, would virtually have to forego eating.

I have introduced legislation, H.R. 16053, which would amend the rent supplement program by providing a deduction of $200 for each minor or non-income-producing adult member of a family, other than the head of the family or his spouse, from the income upon which the 25 percent is computed.

A couple without children earning $4,000 per year would pay 25 percent, or $1,000. But a family with four children and an income, of $4,000 a year would be able to deduct $200 for each child, or $800. Its income base would therefore be $3,200, and 25 percent of that would be $800. So, instead of paying 25 percent of its real income, that family would be paying $800 out of an income of $4,000, or 20 percent.

Another bill of mine which would permit a more flexible rent supplements program is H.R. 1234. This bill would amend the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965, to make eligible for the rent supplement program housing financed either directly or indirectly by States and municipalities.

President Johnson called the rent supplement program "the most crucial new instrument in our effort to improve the American city." But this program will never begin to meet the needs of our low-income families if it remains largely tied to the 221(e)(3) below-market-rate interest loan program.

Rent supplements could greatly stimulate housing financed by States and municipalities. If H.R. 1234 were adopted, Connecticut, Illinois, Massachusetts, New York, and Pennsylvania, for example, could use rent supplements for their State housing projects.

In New York State, projects financed under the limited-profit, middle-income, Mitchell-Lama program, which are privately constructed, owned, and operated exactly like those projects now eligible for rent supplements, are not eligible. They have direct loans from the city or the State. My bill would allow the 35,000 units built under this New York State program to have rent supplement tenants. This would be an important step toward making the rent supplement program truly a crucial new instrument.

THE COOPERATIVE REHABILITATION HOUSING ACT

I wish to bring to the special attention of the Subcommittee on Housing, H.R. 14034, the Cooperative Rehabilitation Housing Act, which I introduced last November 15. I believe this measure offers new approaches to attacking the syndrome of absentee-owned slum housing.

My bill recognizes that many urban buildings which have fallen into disrepair are structurally sound and capable of rehabilitation. The difficulty is that economic and psychological disincentives built into absentee ownership of slum buildings, where profits are high and investments marginal, discourage even careful maintenance, let alone efforts at rehabilitation.

H.R. 14034 would encourage the rehabilitation of such dwellings through their conversion to cooperative ownership by their residents. It provides a low-interest, revolving loan fund for acquisition and rehabilitation.

It enables the tenants to negotiate a sale directly with a private owner, or to acquire the dwelling from a municipality. There are also incentives for municipalities to acquire, through condemnation or otherwise, dwellings which are in repeated violation of local building and health codes, for the purpose of eventually transferring them to resident cooperatives.

I note that section 504 of the administration housing bill, H.R. 15624, would facilitate the acquisition of residential buildings by a local urban renewal agency, for purposes of rehabilitation, by removing the current limitation of 5 percent.

My bill also provides a technical assistance service in the Department of Housing and Urban Development to facilitate the organization and management of such cooperatives.

Existing Federal programs to promote rehabilitation of urban housing are limited to public housing, nonprofit sponsorship, or loans to private owners.

The economics of slum housing make it unlikely that absentee landlords will take advantage of rehabilitation loans. Similarly, the new section 221(h) nonprofit sponsor rehabilitation program has hardly begun and part of the difficulty is the scarcity of suitable nonprofit sponsors.

Rehabilitated public housing forms the greatest single category of successful rehabilitation efforts. Approximately 20,000 rehabilitated public housing units are currently under contract. The average development cost was $12,822 per unit in fiscal year 1966, substantially less than comparable new construction. As successful as the experience in rehabilitated public housing may have been, it has none of the advantages associated with ownership.

Cooperative ownership has numerous advantages. It gives an organizational focus for community action by the residents. The familiar effects of pride of ownership improve maintenance and reduce costs. One successful example of a rehabilitated housing cooperative is the Parkchester cooperative in Southeast Washington. This was formerly a 292-unit, badly deteriorated, section 608, wartime project which had reverted to FHA after its owners had defaulted on the mortgages.

With the assistance of the United Planning Organization, Southeast Neighborhood House, and the Cooperative Housing Service Corp., a cooperative was organized which arranged to purchase the Parkchester development. Many of the tenants assisted in the renovation work, and Parkchester now operates as a resident-owned cooperative with units costing about $80 monthly to coop members. The rehabilitation work is proceeding well, and it is estimated that the cost to tenants will be about 15 percent less after rehabilitation than comparable units cost when the project was privately owned.

After considerable negotiation with FHA, a loan was arranged under the 221(d)(3) program; however, it is recognized that 221(d)(3) is not an ideal vehicle for this kind of effort, since it is generally aimed at a higher income bracket, and many of its requirements were waived in this case under section 223, which permits the Commissioner to set the terms for disposing of FHA-held properties.

H.R. 14034, unlike the existing 221(d)(3) program, is directed specifically at the conversion of existing older units into cooperatives. The sections of the bill are summarized as follows:

"SUMMARY OF RYAN BILL, H.R. 14034, THE COOPERATIVE REHABILITATION HOUSING ACT

"SEC. 1: TITLE. Cooperative Rehabilitation Housing Act.

"SEC. 2: FINDING. That wider home ownership in low-income urban areas is highly desirable as a means of preventing or arresting urban decay. That absentee ownership encourages or perpetuates slums. That many existing buildings could be rehabilitated, but the economics and psychology of absentee ownership discourage it. Act encourages home ownership by low and moderate income multi-family housing dwellers.

"SEC. 3: LOAN AUTHORIZATION. Secretary of Housing and Urban Development authorized to make loans to tenants' groups for acquisition and rehabilitation of housing acquired either from present landlord or municipality after condemnation. 100% loans at a rate not higher than the current rate on the public debt, and not lower than 2%. Priority of membership in cooperative to be given to present residents of building. Average income of cooperators at the time of loan must be within 221(d)3 limits, excluding the highest income one fourth. Average monthly payments to cooperative must not exceed 20% of average tenant income. The interest rate on the loan is adjusted to as low as 2% to comply with this condition. All inhabitants must be members of the cooperative; cooperative cannot sublet for profit.

"SEC. 4: INTERIM LOANS. A loan may be made to a municipality for acquisition and rehabilitation of a structure, if the building and the loan obligation will be transferred to a tenant cooperative at the earliest possible date following completion of the work.

"SEC. 5. GRANTS TO MUNICIPALITIES. Grants for up to 50% of the administrative costs to a municipality in acquiring title to a building and conveying it to a tenant cooperative.

"SEC. 6: TECHNICAL ASSISTANCE. Technical assistance service in the Department of Housing and Urban Development includes initial organization of tenants' groups, assistance in the acquisition of buildings, arranging the loans, contracting for the rehabilitation work, instructions in management. Certain of these functions may be contracted to non-profit groups which specialize in assisting cooperatives.

"SEC. 7: REVOLVING FUND CREATED ON THE BOOKS OF THE TREASURY.

"SEC. 8: POWERS OF THE SECRETARY.

"SEC. 9: LABOR STANDARDS. Laborers, contractors and subcontractors must be paid at prevailing rates, but Secretary may give permission for members of the cooperative to help in the rehabilitation. In the awarding of contracts, the local contractors shall have priority. Local residents shall be employed to a maximum feasible extent in the rehabilitation work. Funds for necessary training.

"SEC. 10: ANNUAL APPROPRIATIONS. Annual appropriations to cover the subsidized interest rate, and other administrative costs."

Let me say to the distinguished members of the subcommittee that I am not committed to every last comma of this particular bill, but rather to the concept. I would hope that the subcommittee will carefully consider this proposal, and I would welcome the opportunity to work with the subcommittee on any modifications which the subcommittee deems desirable.

To note one area in particular, H.R. 14034 proposes a direct loan fund. I have long held the belief that direct loans are insufficiently utilized in Federal housing programs. The success of New York's Mitchell-Lama law demonstrates that direct loan programs are able to meet the needs of middle-income housing. Although I would prefer the direct loan approach, I am aware that this is the year for mortgage subsidy programs, and that mechanism of financing would not impair the basic purpose of my bill.

URBAN RENEWAL

Let me now discuss the major program which the Housing Act of 1949 established to help rescue the slumdweller—urban renewal.

A glance at title I of that act clearly shows that its authors conceived of it as a program of slum clearance and urban redevelopment—a program to uplift the poor and upgrade their housing.

Yet, too often, the bulldozer has come in and removed the residents—mostly minority groups—and then build costly luxury apartments or commercial structures.

The Renewal Assistance Administration reported that as of June 30, 1966, out of a total of 1,155 urban renewal projects with contracts authorized, only 497 were exclusively, or even primarily, residential, while 658 were exclusively or primarily nonresidential.

In New York City, for example, between January 1, 1960, and June 30, 1965, the Renewal Assistance Administration approved three residential projects totaling $25.4 million, and two nonresidential projects totaling $32.1 million. The conclusion is inescapable that urban renewal is not providing enough housing for the urban poor.

President Johnson has said that—

"The Federal program of urban renewal is today our principal instrument for restoring the hope and renewing the vitality of older cities and wornout neighborhoods."

But I second his stricture that—

"Despite existing programs assisting families and persons displaced by urban restoring the hope and renewing the vitality of older cities and wornout neighborhoods."

The human problems surrounding the urban renewal program must be resolved. Too often both the executive branch and the Congress seem only interested in how many units are produced—not what happens to the people.

Over 200,000 families have already been displaced by urban renewal projects. Who can say how many lives will be disrupted? Some estimates run as high as 1 million.

To put the urban renewal program on the right track—the track set by the Housing Act of 1949, I have introduced five bills:

1. H.R. 1224, to prohibit the construction of luxury housing in the redevelopment of urban renewal areas;

2. H.R. 1225, to require the establishment of more effective procedures for the relocation of individuals, families, and business concerns displaced from urban renewal areas;

3. H.R. 1226, to provide that individuals, families, and business concerns displaced by an urban renewal project shall have priority of opportunity to relocate in the project area after its redevelopment;

4. H.R. 1227, to provide more adequate relocation payments for individuals, families, and business concerns displaced from urban renewal areas; and

5. H.R. 1233, to remove the 12.5-percent limit on the amount of grant assistance which may be provided for urban renewal in any one State.

Many times during the last three Congresses, I have spoken about the construction of high-rise luxury apartments on land that formerly housed poverty-stricken slumdwellers. I have called attention to the Manhattan town scandal, where Webb & Knapp produced luxury housing on urban renewal land with rents beginning at $49 per room; the high profits the Zeckendorf companies have realized from New York urban renewal projects; and the Washington Square Village development where apartments rent for as much as $246 per room per month.

In addition to these New York projects, the Southwest Development in Washington, and the Capitol Hill project in Nashville offer concrete examples of the luxury type of housing that is often constructed on urban renewal sites. This practice must be stopped if the low-income housing problem in the urban core of our great cities is to be solved.

This land was cleared in order that slums might be eliminated and those formerly living in them be housed in decent quarters. The subsidization of high-rent property should not be sanctioned while thousands of middle- and low-income persons remain ill-housed.

A recent study by the Detroit City Planning Commission goes a long way toward explaining why more and more high-rent apartments are being built on urban renewal sites.

This study discloses that land formerly of mixed residential status, when turned into single-family dwellings, more than doubles in assessed value. This is impressive, but even more impressive is the further observation that, when the same land is used for apartment houses, the increase in assessed value jump more than fivefold.

This has an obvious appeal to city fathers who are often thinking about the future magnificence of their cities rather than the degradation of the unhoused. As the London Economist has pointed out, luxury apartments may "please city governments by yield ing higher rates but they do not help the ejected slumdwellers."

In order to stop this neglect of the slumdweller, I hope the Congress will pass H.R. 1224.

Another failure in the urban renewal program—relocation—can be improved by the other bills of mine which I have listed.

H.R. 1225 protects site residents by requiring local public agencies to complete effective relocation in safe and sanitary housing before disposal of property within the urban renewal area. It also eliminates the present unsatisfactory practice of "farming out" relocation to some private organization. H.R. 1225 requires the local public agency to exercise this responsibility through a central relocation agency. In this way, the actions of the local public agency will remain under the scrutiny of the Renewal Projects Administration to insure that the stipulations of the Housing Act of 1949 regarding relocation are being carried out by the recipients of the grant.

H.R. 1226 will reduce the effects of the dislocation of businesses and the disruption of longstanding community relationships by requiring the local public agency to give priority of opportunity to relocate in the project area after its redevelopment to those displaced by the project. It is only fair that economic and social relationships be taken into consideration and that neighborhood characteristics be preserved as much as possible in order to minimize the social cost of progress.

H.R. 1227 provides more equitable relocation payments. Displaced people have more at stake than property. Many of them had lived in their familiar surroundings for most of their lives. They have friends, relatives, associations, and fond memories, that cannot be replaced in terms of money. Businessmen who have built up a regular trade over a period of many years cannot be compensated for the loss they suffer from relocation.

H.R. 1227 makes provision for payment of the difference in rent between prior quarters and the relocation site for one year. Under my proposal, the payment would be tied to existing rents rather than to income, and would cover the first year when the hardship is the greatest.

Recognizing the validity of compensation for loss of profit due to relocation, it provides for 1 year's payment of the amount of such loss. Finally, H.R. 1227 extends relocation protection to those businessmen who are unable to find a relocation site within 1 year by requiring payment for the fair and reasonable market value of their trade or business if they hve not been granted a priority of opportunity to purchase or lease substitute facilities to be constructed or provided in connection with the development project.

Another inequity in the urban renewal program is the limitation of 12.5 percent grant assistance to any one State. New York City alone reported 2.6 million occupied housing units in the last complete census, 1960, of which approximately 550,000 were "deteriorated, dilapidated, or lacking in essential facilities."

A million and a half New Yorkers live in this substandard housing. Therefore, imposing an arbitrary limit is unjust, for it prevents urban renewal from reaching the urban centers of greatest need.

My bill, H.R. 1233, would remove the arbitrary limitation.

Adequate Maintenance of Low-Income Rental Property:

Another of my bills, H.R. 1232, is designed to take the profit out of slums—a proposal President Johnson made in the fall of 1966 in his speech at Syracuse. H.R. 1232 would remove the incentive that presently exists for slumlords to fail to adequately maintain their property. It would amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1954 to "require the owner of an apartment building or other multifamily structure to establish and utilize a repair, replacement, and maintenance reserve as a condition of the allowance of a depreciation deduction with respect to such structure."

The purpose is to eliminate the benefit that slumlords gain from depreciation of improperly maintained property. I am pleased that my colleagues on the Housing Subcommittee, Representatives Reuss, Moorhead, and Ashley, have advocated a similar provision in title XII of H.R. 12142.

My bill further requires demonstration by the taxpayer that the reserve fund is being used for the intended purpose. In this way, landlords will be discouraged from making a profit from permitting the deterioration of homes in which low-income people must live.

CONCLUSION

President John F. Kennedy once said:

"The cities—their needs, their future, their financing—these are the great unspoken, overlooked, underplayed problems of our times."

I propose that in 1968 we make the problems of the cities the great spoken issues of our times. If the American city is to achieve excellence, then we must not rest with the unfulfilled promise of 1949 or even with the most recently enacted program—for they are far too meager.

Rather, we must embark upon a massive housing program which will create both jobs and shelter for urban residents. One million low- and moderate-income housing units annually for the next 10 years, as proposed in the Full Opportunity Act, H.R. 14244, is an attainable goal which can be achieved by strengthening public housing, expanding the rent supplement program, promoting urban cooperative and condominium ownership, taking the profit out of slum landlordism, and a new direct loan program for the construction of middle-income housing.

Only then will we begin to solve this Nation's housing crisis.

Only then will the city, in Aristotle's words, exist for "the sake of the good life, and not for the sake of life only."

I believe that passage of my housing bills will be in part a redemption of the promise made by Congress in the Housing Act of 1949.

I want to thank all of you gentlemen for your patience in having listened to me, and I am happy to answer any questions which you may have.

I hope that with the assistance of committee counsel, all of these bills will be looked at very carefully in an attempt to enact into law my proposals which I think are of crucial importance in terms of the problems confronting us in our major urban centers.

Mr. PATMAN. Mr. Chairman, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Maryland [Mr. MACHEN].

(Mr. MACHEN asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. MACHEN. Mr. Chairman, at the appropriate time I shall offer an amendment to the Omnibus Housing Act of 1968 in an effort to close a glaring loophole in the Federal mortgage insurance programs involving high-density development.

The existence of this loophole permits the Federal Government to assist in mortgage insurance for housing projects for low- and moderate-income persons—projects that in highly density development have fantastic impact on schools and other local public services—without any consultation or cooperation with local governing bodies. The existence of this loophole is in direct conflict with many other Federal-aid housing programs, including at least two in this omnibus housing act, that require that local government be brought into the picture to prevent the national government from placing under hardship on local govrenment in these housing projects.

Mr. Chairman, my amendment would require the Secretary of the Department of Housing and Urban Deveolpment to notify local government when an application is received for Federal insurance mortgage covering a housing project of more than five dwelling units per acre. This is not now required, nor practiced. My amendment then would have HUD request the local government where the project is to be located to provide a statement on the impact on schools and other public services of the proposed project and on its conformance with locally-adopted master plans. This is not now required.

The Secretary is then authorized to tentatively approve the application for Federal mortgage insurance, if it meets existing .statutory requirements, after the Secretary receives the statement on impact and master planning. If tentative approval is granted, the Secretary must then notify the local government to that effect. From the date of notification, the local government has 90 days to either approve or disapprove the Secretary's tentative approval, and forward to him a statement of its reasons.

If, however, the local governing body disapproves, the Secretary may grant final approval to the application if he finds that the housing project is consistent with comprehensive planning and locally adopted master plans, and that the project will not cause an unreasonable burden on schools and other public services provided by local government. This is highly important.

Mr. Chairman, I will offer this amendment in order to involve local government in the process of Federal mortgage insurance where high-density housing projects are proposed. There is ample precedent for this requirement.

Many Federal housing programs such as urban renewal, model cities, and others require that local government be directly involved. There is good reason for this. It is the local government that must bear the burden of the impact of these projects. If a proposed project is going to require extra public services that local government cannot provide, then everybody loses and nothing is gained. At least two provisions in H.R. 17989 which we are considering—rehabilitation and neighborhood conservation housing insurance and the National Homeownership Foundation—require that local governing bodies be directly involved in order that necessary public services will be provided, or that the projects will not cause any undue hardship on existing public services.

There is another aspect of this problem that makes the loophole particularly acute. Local government is responsible for the orderly growth and development of private property. There is no way it can meet this responsibility if the Federal Government aids private developers in high-density developments without any cooperation with local government. The local government is left holding the bag, local public services get the extra burden and are, in many cases, strained beyond belief.

Mr. Chairman, section 221(d)(3) has no requirement for direct involvement by local government in federally insured mortgage housing projects. The lack of such a requirement is a license to build high-density development without any consideration for impact on schools and other local public services. It is a license my amendment will revoke.

Last week we had an excellent demonstration of the disastrous effect that this loophole can have. It was announced that a 2,000-person high-rise, high-density housing project for moderate-income people under section 221(d)(3) will be built at New Hampshire Avenue and Ray Road in Chillum, in my district. The newspaper announcement was the first I had heard of it, and the first our county school board had heard of it. When the property in question was rezoned for apartments in 1963 it was estimated that they would generate 30 to 40 new students. Now, 5 years later, the school board is estimating from 200 to 300 new students from this project. The two elementary schools in the neighborhood simply cannot accommodate this load. There is no land available for a new school. There is little available to expand the existing schools. Our school board and our county government have been left holding the bag in this situation, and who is going to bail them out?

They were not involved at all in this project. There was no consultation with the school board at all. But the school board has had a crisis dumped on it and I suspect that the Department of Housing and Urban Development, which approved this Federal mortgage insurance, could care less. They did not care enough to contact the appropriate county officials because the law does not require it in section 221(d)(3) projects.

That is why I am going to offer this amendment to simply bring the county government into the picture in Federal mortgage insurance for high-density projects. It is not too much to ask; it is being done already in most other Federal housing projects, and it is the least the Federal Government can do to insure that these projects will benefit all parties. I urge my colleagues to support my amendment when I offer it.

Mr. ROGERS of Colorado. Mr. Chairman, I rise today to discuss a recommendation contained in the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968 which fills an existing vacuum in our urban legislation—a vacuum which results in untold hardship and financial loss to many of our citizens through no fault of their own. I refer to title X of H.R. 17989 entitled "the Urban Property Protection and Reinsurance Act of 1968"—popularly known as riot insurance.

President Johnson with great wisdom had this to say of the proposed legislation:

> Insurance protection is a basic necessity for the property owner. But for the resident of the city's inner core and the local businessman who serves him, protection has been difficult to obtain.
>
> This program will assist the insurance industry and the States to offer adequate property insurance for the inner cities. Through reinsurance, the program can help the States provide for the contingency of any large emergency losses.

Title X would authorize the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development to carry out a cooperative Federal-State-industry program for expanding the availability of essential property insurance coverage in the Nation's urban areas. This program would be directed toward encouraging private industry to write insurance in neighborhoods and sections of cities where it has been difficult to obtain. Companies participating in this program would be entitled to purchase reinsurance from the Secretary to protect them from extraordinary losses they might suffer from riot or civil commotion damage under their regular insurance contracts.

Enactment of this legislation will serve two important objectives: First, it will make basic property insurance—fire and extended coverage, vandalism and malicious mischief, burglary and theft—more readily available to homeowners and businessmen in the center core areas of the Nation's cities. Second, by making riot-loss reinsurance protection available to insurance companies themselves, it will help prevent any restriction of the insurance market in areas threatened by possible civil disorders.

This title before us has an impressive history and has all the elements of a good program. The bill has the benefit of a special study by a Presidential Commission, months of work by representatives of the Department of Housing and Urban Development, State insurance commissioners, and all segments of the property insurance industry. In addition it has benefited from the expertise of the distinguished gentleman from Pennsylvania who anticipated the major recommendations of the Commission's report in a bill he sponsored at the close of the first session of this Congress. Indeed, the substance of that bill, H.R. 14623, is strikingly similar to title X of the bill before us today. The distinguished gentlemen of the subcommittee and the full committee, and this body, owe a debt of gratitude to the gentleman from Pennsylvania, WILLIAM S. MOORHEAD, for his special help in making this legislation provide a practical solution to the complex problem of meeting the insurance crisis of our cities.

The problem was described in testimony before the subcommittee and it may be summarized as follows:

The rebuilding of our cities is being thwarted by the deterioration of their inner city areas. Responsible owners who want to maintain their properties and businesses are unable to obtain adequate property insurance against fire, crime, and other perils.

Many private insurance companies have found it uneconomic to continue to offer this protection. There has developed the practice of "red lining" whole areas within a city and an almost automatic denial of insurance to property owners there for reasons of location alone, regardless of the condition of the property.

Without insurance protection against the perils of fire and crime, banks and other lenders cannot be expected to extend credit for improvement or purchase of real property or to finance business inventories. Without insurance, property cannot be repaired or improved and business cannot operate. As a result, property deteriorates and business, particularly small business, stagnates.

Riots and civil disorders in our urban areas in the last few years have aggravated this property insurance problem. Property insurance companies customarily reinsure against abnormally high losses from various perils, including riots and civil commotion, with organizations specializing in reinsurance. The unusually high levels of losses which reinsurers have paid on riot and civil commotion claims has seriously impaired the market for this reinsurance. The implications of this situation are critical to the national economy. Without reinsurance, insurance companies cannot continue to provide riot and civil commotion protection in the various lines of property insurance. To protect themselves against the lack of reinsurance, they may seek to cancel policies currently in force, as some companies already have, or refuse to renew them when they expire. The consequences of the unavailability of reinsurance are as serious for the insurance company as is the unavailability of insurance for the homeowner and businessman. Without reinsurance our economy cannot properly function.

Insurance is vital to the rebuilding of our cities. This is of special concern to the Department of Housing and Urban Development in its efforts to stem the forces of deterioration and revitalize older areas. The ready availability of property insurance is not only crucial to the on-going programs of FHA mortgage insurance but also to those proposed in other titles of this legislation that would operate to rehabilitate housing for sale or rental for lower income families.

I sincerely urge that the House enact this title.

Mr. KYROS. Mr. Chairman, in 1949, the Congress established as a national goal, "a decent home and a suitable living environment for every American family." In February 1968 the President proposed legislation designed to mobilize both public and private resources to achieve that goal within the next decade. Without question, a bill designed to achieve such an enormous task can be considered nothing less than landmark legislation. Such a bill is worthy of our most careful consideration, not only because of the greatness of the goal it is designed to achieve, and the scope and comprehensiveness of the means it would use to reach that goal, but also because the national needs, and deficiencies, to which it addresses itself have become so critical.

I would like to address my remarks to the two new housing programs which this bill would create. Both are, in my view, soundly conceived programs which will be essential if we are to obtain the full participation of private enterprise and the involvement of the low- and moderate-income families we seek to assist. Without such participation and such involvement, I do not see how the promise made in the Housing Act of 1949 will ever become a reality.

Section 101 of this bill would establish a new program of homeownership assistance for low- and moderate-income families. The assistance would take the form of periodic payments on behalf of such families to mortgage lenders in an amount necessary to make up the difference between 20 percent of the family's monthly income and the required monthly payment under a market interest rate mortgage for principal, interest, taxes, insurance, and mortgage insurance premium. In no case, however, would this assistance payment exceed the difference between the required payment under the mortgage and the payment that would be required for principal and interest if the mortgage bore an interest rate of 1 percent. By making the maximum assistance payment authorized under this section, it would be possible for a family with an income as low as $3,600 a year to afford a home with a $12,000 mortgage.

Section 201 of the bill would authorize an approach in the area of rental and cooperative housing similar to that found in the homeownership program.

FHA insurance of market rate mortgages given by nonprofit, cooperative or limited dividend mortgagors would be authorized. To enable these mortgagors to provide housing for low- and moderate-income families, the mortgagor would make monthly payments of principal and interest, as if the mortgage bore an interest rate of 1 percent. The difference would be paid periodically by HUD to the mortgagee on behalf of the mortgagor.

The mortgagor would establish a basic rental charge for each unit based on the cost of operating the project with a 1-percent mortgage. Each tenant or cooperative member would then be required to make a monthly payment equivalent to 20 percent of his monthly income. This payment could not be less than the basic rental charge, nor more than the fair market rental for the unit, computed on the basis of operating the project of the market interest rate set out in the mortgage. Charges collected by the mortgagor in excess of the basic rental charge would be repaid to HUD for use in making assistance payments under the program.

This program is a natural complement to the new homeownership program. It provides rental housing for those families not desiring, or prepared for, homeownership. Both programs rely upon the private sector for mortgage financing, both have identical 1-percent interest floors for subsidy purposes—which means they should be able to supply reasonably equivalent housing costs for the families they serve—and both require the assisted family to pay a set percentage of its income toward the cost of the housing. Also, under each program there is a requirement that a family's income be periodically recertified with the amount of assistance payment adjusted accordingly. This recertification requirement means that the amount of a family's payment will increase as its income rises until, eventually, it is able to pay the full amount due.

I stated earlier that no major housing program can hope for success without the full participation of private enterprise and the active involvement of the low-and moderate-income families being assisted. These new programs meet both these criteria. The mortgage funds required for these programs will be drawn from the private sector rather than the Treasury and market interest rates and the availability of Federal mortgage insurance should make investment in these programs attractive to private business. The families assisted will have an incentive to improve their economic status, they need not fear eviction from their dwelling as their income rises and, in the homeownership program, there is provision for their contributing their own labor as "sweat equity" toward the purchase of their own homes.

These programs have been well thought out. They are supported and strengthened by other provisions in the bill. Given sufficient funding and an effective administration, I believe they will prove a real breakthrough toward decently housing the 20 million Americans that now live in substandard dwellings.

Mr. BINGHAM. Mr. Chairman, the magnitude and seriousness of housing problems for low- and middle-income families in this country demand an immediate renewal and expansion of Federal assistance. The House Banking and Currency Committee, of which I am a member, conducted 4 weeks of open hearings and met in numerous executive sessions to consider the nature and extent of these problems, and to consider proposed legislation in this area. The Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968 now before the House as reported by the committee contains provisions and programs that will, I am confident, enable us finally to reverse the slow but steady downward trend in the supply of adequate housing for low- and moderate-income families, and in the deterioration in the conditions of our urban areas.

The Housing and Urban Development Act contains many provisions—each of which, as the Washington Post noted in its lead editorial today, "would stand on its own as major legislation."

The legislation will permit the construction of 300,000 new public and publicly assisted housing units in the first year. This is well below the 740,000 new units that I and several of my colleagues in the House have felt accurately reflects the immediate housing need and which we proposed in the "jobs in housing" legislation I introduced last March. Nevertheless, the 300,000 new units provided for in this legislation for fiscal year 1969 represents the largest housing assistance effort undertaken since the Congress announced its intention in the 1949 Housing Act to help "provide a decent home and a suitable living environment for all Americans."

The heart of the jobs-in-housing legislation was the idea that an extensive Federal commitment to provide better housing and urban conditions could also provide useful jobs for thousands of unemployed and underemployed persons—construction jobs which pay well and which do not exclude slum residents who have minimal educational attainment and technical training. I am gratified that the Housing and Urban Development Act now before the House contains language, already approved by the Senate, instructing the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development, to the greatest extent possible, to give opportunities for employment arising in connection with the construction or rehabilitation projects assisted under the programs contained in the legislation to "lower income persons residing in the area of such projects."

This legislation also substitutes a new and substantially better program of mortgage interest subsidies to replace existing programs like the article 221(d)(3) housing program for low- and moderate-income families, and the article 202 housing for the elderly program. These earlier programs, which will be gradually phased out, required the Federal Government to purchase mortgages which were then held at 3-percent interest rates. The new mortgage interest subsidy program contained in this legislation would permit the Government to subsidize interest payments rather than entire mortgages, greatly stretching available funds and stimulating more extensive private investment in the home mortgage market.

The legislation also establishes a National Homeownership Foundation to make loans and grants and give other assistance to private and public groups that wish to provide rental and homeownership opportunities for low income families. It seeks to stimulate private investment in housing through national housing partnerships that would pool public and private funds to build housing on a limited dividend basis.

In addition to these new programs, this legislation contains new authorizations for existing programs—the model cities program, the urban renewal program, the mass transportation program, and the water and sewer facilities program—all vital if we are to make our cities liveable again. Even with more and better housing, residents of our cities need an environment in which they can work and play near their homes away from blight and pollution.

I have long urged greatly increased Federal assistance to build and upgrade mass transportation facilities in our cities, and I have sponsored legislation that would permit the states to elect to use a portion of the funds they receive from the highway trust fund for mass transportation improvements instead of for roads. In the "jobs-in-housing" bill which I sponsored, I urged that a total of $5 billion be authorized over the next three fiscal years for mass transportation assistance. The housing and urban development legislation currently before us authorizes $190 million to be added to the $190 million already authorized for mass transportation in fiscal year 1970. While this $380 million in authorizations for 1970 does not approach the amount that could profitably be invested and that eventually must be invested in mass transportation, it does represent a significant increase in the funds available for this important aspect of urban development.

Finally, Mr. Chairman, this legislation contains critically needed provisions that will improve the insurance protection available to property owners in urban areas by providing for joint State-Federal reinsurance of risks taken by private insurance companies on property in blighted or ghetto areas. It contains incentives that will stimulate insurance companies to develop statewide plans to provide fair and equal access to property insurance for anyone, anywhere in the State, who wishes to be insured. I have received an increasing number of letters, as I am sure many of my colleagues have, from constituents who own or rent business places and dwellings in urban areas. They complain with justification that it is increasingly expensive and difficult—if not impossible—to obtain insurance on their property in certain parts of the city. The Federal-State reinsurance plan provided for in this legislation would permit these property holders to continue to obtain insurance essentially at current costs. If urban businessmen and residents cannot obtain insurance on their property at reasonable cost and without fear of cancellation, they will be forced either to assume the risk themselves or to abandon their holdings and move elsewhere—neither of which is an acceptable alternative.

This legislation marks the beginning of what the President has defined as a 10-year commitment to build and rehabilitate some 6 million living units to accommodate the estimated 20 million Americans who are now tolerating substandard housing. I view this bill as a creditable and impressive beginning to this longer range commitment. It provides somewhat less in new authorizations than some groups genuinely feel is needed to provide enough jobs and housing with sufficient speed. It comes before the Congress at a time when expenditures are being cut back to conform to the spending limitations passed by the Congress and signed into law by the President as part of the tax surcharge legislation, threatening many vital programs like this one. But it is far from a modest or half-hearted effort. It is designed to create housing in all forms at a rate 10 times faster than has ever been attempted in the past. We can afford to do no less than to approve this ambitious legislation.

Every effort must be made to opposed any attempts to weaken this legislation by restricting its coverage, reducing its authorizations, or removing any of its several programs. I wish to congratulate the distinguished chairman of the Banking and Currency Committee, the able chairman of the Housing Subcommittee, and my fellow Members of the Committee, for their dedicated work in bringing this valuable legislation to the floor.

Mr. GONZALEZ. Mr. Chairman, I am pleased to support H.R. 17989, one of the most significant bills recommended by the Committee on Banking and Currency in the last 20 years. I am especially pleased with the emphasis placed in the bill on housing for low and moderate income families. The bill contains a package of legislative provisions which, if adequately funded and effectively administered, can result in a true breakthrough toward the provision of decent housing for these families. I would like to describe briefly some of the major proposals in the bill directed toward the provision of low- and moderate-income housing.

Section 101 of the bill would allow the Government to help reduce the housing load on a low- and moderate-income family by paying up to a maximum of all but 1 percent of the interest charges on the mortgage loan on their home or cooperative dwelling unit. Only low or moderate income families would be eligible for this subsidy and each family would be required to pay 20 percent of its income for housing costs. The maximum mortgage amount that could be covered under this section would be $15,000, except that, in high cost areas, the maximum could go to $17,500. In addition, these ceilings could be raised to $17,500 and $20,000, respectively, in the case of a large family.

To further assist low or moderate income families become homeowners, section 102 of the bill would authorize the FHA to qualify for assistance under its home mortgage programs families that, under existing law, would be turned down because of marginal credit experience or irregular income patterns but who, it is found, are a satisfactory credit risk and would be capable of homeownership with proper counseling.

To make more low- and moderate-income housing available, section 103 of the bill would authorize the FHA to insure mortgages for families in the run-down neighborhoods of our cities without regard to economic soundness requirements and other limiting restrictions. FHA could insure such mortgages if it determines that the areas concerned are "reasonably viable," giving consideration to the need for providing adequate housing for families of low- and moderate-income in the area and that the properties are an acceptable risk in view of this consideration.

It is clear that these new programs will entail greater insurance risks than have been typical in past FHA programs. Recognizing this, the bill provides in section 104 for the establishment of a new "special risk insurance fund" out of which claims would be paid on mortgages insured under the three programs I have mentioned and also on the new section 236 program.

This section 236 rental and cooperative housing program is similar in approach to the new homeownership program found in section 101 of the bill. Instead of homeownership, it provides rental opportunity for low- and moderate-income families by providing interest subsidy assistance to rental projects for the benefit of such families. A nonprofit, cooperative, or limited dividend mortgagor would make payments on a market rate mortgage as though it bore interest at a rate of 1 percent with HUD making up the difference to the mortgagee. This would allow the mortgagor to establish a basic rental charge for each unit based on his cost of operating the project with a 1 percent mortgage. Each tenant or cooperative member would then be required to make a monthly payment equivalent to 20 percent of his monthly income except that this payment could not be less than the basic rental charge. As the tenant's income increases, so would his monthly payments until he is paying the full economic rent under the market rate mortgage. All rental charges collected by the mortgagor in excess of the basic rental charge would be returned to HUD for further use in the program.

Finally, but not least important, sections 202 and 203 of the bill include authorizations to extend the rent supplement and public housing programs through fiscal year 1971. These programs would benefit the very poorest families in our Nation whose incomes are so low that the new homeownership and rental assistance programs are not sufficient.

The only word to describe this legislative package is "comprehensive." Each of the legislative tools I have mentioned will be needed if the problem of providing decent housing for low and moderate Americans is to be attacked effectively on a broad front. I congratulate the Banking and Currency Committee on presenting this body with a coherent and well thought out bill that accurately reflects the size and scope of the housing problems this Nation faces and provides an effective response to those problems.

Mr. HATHAWAY. Mr. Chairman, I wish to focus my remarks on one of the innovative features of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968; namely, the interest rate assistance for mortgages to finance both sales and rental housing for low- and moderate-income families.

Heretofore, the formulas for housing assistance have involved either below-market interest rates for privately owned housing or annual contribution contracts for public projects. Because these aproaches are locked into the Federal budget for financing the total capital investment, they necessarily limit the volume of housing that can be produced for low- and moderate-income families. However, the proposed interest rate assistance plan breaks these shackles by creating mortgages which will be attractive to private investors and by limiting Federal support to the difference between market and low-interest levels.

Market interest rates on mortgages necessarily respond to conditions in the capital markets, which in turn are influenced by both monetary and fiscal policy and the state of the economy at large. Through the years, capital market conditions have often moved from ease to tightness and back again, causing the yield requirements on both bonds and mortgages to rise and fall. While these cycles in the cost of money are attributes of economic growth and stabilization efforts, they play havoc with housing production. And the impact has been most severe on low- and moderate-income families.

In titles I and II of this bill we have a plan that will shelter the financing of low and modern be income housing from the vagaries of the capital markets by recognizing the public responsibility for the price of fiscal and monetary policies. Also, the bill goes one step further and recognizes that by further reduction in interest charges, the monthly payments or rents can be reduced to levels which low and in moderate income families can realistically afford.

In comparison with other approaches to financing the volume of housing needed so desperately to supplant urban and rural slums, the budgetary cost of the interest assistance plan will be small—and it will be clearly measurable. This has not always been true in other assistance programs. The amount of assistance received by each family will be in proportion to its need, with increased house payments or rent as incomes rise.

The provision of good housing for a family living in a slum is often a kind of economic bootstrap, particularly for the young and upward mobile families. Pride, self-confidence, good health, and ambition stem from good housing. Higher incomes reduce the budget burden through smaller subsidies and at the same time increase the amount of tax collections, not alone from the aided families, but from the entire community as a result of the greater contribution made to national output.

We cannot make substantial headway in the attainment of our national housing goals until we unlock the private capital markets so that funds will flow into mortgages to finance housing for low and moderate income families. The key to this unlocking is interest rate assistance which makes the yield on such mortgages competitive with other investments.

By all past experience, the terms of titles I and II of this bill will usher in a new era in meeting the Nation's housing needs. I am confident that before another decade has past, our action on this bill will be viewed as having been a clear turning point and that we will have reached the goal, set by President Johnson in his housing messages of 1968, of eliminating substandard housing in this Nation.

Mr. BROWN of Michigan. Mr. Chairman, we have no further requests for time.

Mr. PATMAN. Mr. Chairman, we have no further requests for time.

Mr. Chairman, I ask that the Clerk read.

The CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will read.

The Clerk read as follows:

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That this Act may be cited as the "Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968".

Mr. PATMAN. Mr. Chairman, under the rule, the bill is to be read by titles. I ask unanimous consent that the first title be considered as read, printed in the RECORD, and open to amendment at any point.

The CHAIRMAN. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Texas?

Mr. GROSS. Mr. Chairman, I object.

The CHAIRMAN. Objection is heard.

The Clerk will read.

The Clerk read as follows:

DECLARATION OF POLICY

SEC. 2. The Congress affirms the national goal, as set forth in section 2 of the Housing Act of 1949, of "a decent home and a suitable living environment for every American family".

The Congress finds that this goal has not been fully realized for many of the Nation's lower income families; that this is a matter of grave national concern; and that there exist in the public and private sectors of the economy the resources and capabilities necessary to the full realization of this goal.

Mr. GROSS. Mr. Chairman, I make the point of order that a quorum is not present.

The CHAIRMAN. The Chair will count.

Mr. PATMAN. Mr. Chairman, I move that the Committee do now rise.

The motion was agreed to.

Accordingly the Committee rose; and the Speaker having resumed the chair, Mr. PRICE of Illinois, Chairman of the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union, reported that that Committee, having had under consideration the bill (H.R. 17989) to assist in the provision of housing for low and moderate income families, and to extend and amend laws relating to housing and urban development, had come to no resolution thereon.

GENERAL LEAVE TO EXTEND

Mr. PATMAN. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days in which to extend their remarks on the bill under consideration, H.R. 17989, and to include therein extraneous matter.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Texas?

There was no objection.

PERMISSION TO FILE CONFERENCE REPORT ON H.R. 9063, AMENDMENT TO INTERNATIONAL CLAIMS SETTLEMENT ACT OF 1949

Mr. ZABLOCKI. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that the managers on the part of the House may have until midnight tonight to file a conference report on the bill, H.R. 9063.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Wisconsin?

Mr. HALL. Mr. Speaker, reserving the right to object, what is the bill in reference to?

Mr. ZABLOCKI. It is the bill amending the International Claims Settlement Act of 1949 to provide for the timely determination of certain claims of American nationals.

I may advise the gentleman from Missouri that all the Senate amendments are germane.

Mr. HALL. And the conference has acted and the committee is in fact ready to file and the report has been agreed upon?

Mr. ZABLOCKI. Yes.

Mr. HALL. Mr. Speaker, I withdraw my reservation of objection.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Wisconsin?

There was no objection.

CONFERENCE REPORT (H. REPT. NO. 1648)

The committee of conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendments of the Senate to the bill (H.R. 9063) to amend the International Claims Settlement Act of 1949, as amended, to provide for the timely determination of certain claims of American nationals, and for other purposes, having met, after full and free conference, have agreed to recommend and do recommend to their respective Houses as follows:

That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendments of the Senate numbered 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, and 20, and agree to the same.

Amendment numbered 8: That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 8, and agree to the same with an amendment as follows: In lieu of the matter proposed to be inserted by the Senate amendment insert the following:

"(b) The Commission shall receive and determine, or redetermine, as the case may be, in accordance with applicable substantive law, including international law, the validity and amounts of claims owned by persons who were eligible to file claims under the first sentence of subsection (a) of this section on the date of enactment of this title, but failed to file such claims or, if they filed such claims, failed to file such claims within the limit of time required therefor: Provided, That no awards shall be made to persons who have received compensation in any amount pursuant to the treaty of peace with Italy, subsection (a) of this section, or section 202 of the War Claims Act of 1948, as amended."

And the Senate agree to the same.

STATEMENT

The managers on the part of the House at the conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendments of the Senate to the bill (H.R. 9063) to amend the International Claims Settlement Act of 1949, as amended, to provide for the timely determination of certain claims of American nationals, and for other purposes, submit the following statement in explanation of the effect of the action agreed upon by the conferees and recommended in the accompanying conference report:

The following Senate amendments made technical, clerical, clarifying, or conforming changes: 1, 2, 4, 5, 6, 7, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, and 20. With respect to these amendments the House recedes.

Amendment No. 3: This Senate amendment contained language intended to eliminate certain inequities in the present law by permitting the return to persecutees and non-enemy nationals of the proportionate share in the vested assets of corporations of Bulgaria, Hungary, and Rumania in which they hold interests. According to its legislative history, the amendment will affect four stockholders, or their heirs, of the Chinion Chemical & Pharmaceutical Works, Ltd., a Hungarian firm. The claimants dealt with here have never been American citizens but were persecuted by their own governments during World War II. Similar legislation was approved by the Senate on three occasions since 1960, and its enactment is supported by the Executive Branch.

The House recedes.

Amendment No. 8: This Senate amendment contained language proposing to reopen the Italian claims program to two groups of claimants: (1) persons who were American nationals at the time when their claims arose during World War II but who did not file timely claims under the original Italian claims program; and (2) persons who were not American nationals at the time of loss but became such nationals by August 9, 1955, and did not file claims under the Italian claims program.

The House recedes with an amendment substituting new language for the above-described provisions of the Senate amendment. The substitute language would authorize the reopening of the Italian claims program only to those persons who were American nationals at the time of loss and at the time of the enactment of title II of the International Claims Settlement Act of 1949, and who did not file timely claims under that program. The new language further provides that no awards shall be made to persons who have received compensation in any amount pursuant to the Treaty of Peace with Italy, subsection (a) of section 304 of the International Claims Settlement Act of 1949, as amended, or section 202 of the War Claims Act of 1948, as amended.

THE BLACK UNITED FRONT STATEMENT

(Mr. SCHERLE asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. SCHERLE. Mr. Speaker, the Reverend Walter E. Fauntroy, District of Columbia City Council Vice Chairman and board member of the extremist Black United Front, has balanced on the tightrope between violence and law and order long enough. It is time for him to choose between his membership in the District of Columbia City Council and his membership in the Black United Front.

By his silence, Reverend Fauntroy has in effect endorsed the flammatory, irresponsible, and outrageous statement issued Friday by the front, which describes the slaying of a District policeman attempting to arrest a robbery suspect Tuesday night as "justifiable homicide."

The statement continued to state:

The methods of self-defense used by the family charged with the alleged slaying of the honky cop is justifiable homicide in the same sense that police are allowed to kill black people and call it justifiable homicide.

Reverend Fauntroy has refused to condemn the statement, he even refused to discuss it. The front adopted this statement unanimously. There was no disagreement.

Earlier this year, Reverend Fauntroy defended his membership in the front by saying that he was "unqualifiedly committed to the welfare of all the people of the District of Columbia and attendance at meetings of the Black United Front is part of that commitment."

His "commitment" as mediator, however, was of no apparent help to the law-abiding people of Washington when they close to home markets. The minimum wage in Ciudad Juárez is $2.55 a day. In El Paso, Tex., across the Rio Grande, wages run about $7.50 a day—three times the Mexican rate.

Moving into the border area are U.S. firms such as the Kayser-Roth Corporation, maker of wearing apparel, Fairchild Camera and Instrument Corporation, Litton Industries, and the Raytheon Company.

Foreign ventures are no novelty to these firms. Some already have plants operating in Hong Kong, Taiwan and elsewhere in Asia. Now they're finding reasons to locate in their own back yard.

Actually, the wages along Mexico's border are higher than these same U.S. firms are paying most workers in Asia. But there are compensations in Mexico's location.

Mexico offers political tranquillity. Asia is becoming less attractive to American businessmen in the wake of some violence fomented by Communists.

The fact that Mexico is so close to the U.S. market—Tijuana is just 30 minutes by truck from San Diego—means a great saving in transportation costs. The short distances also make it easier for American executives to keep tabs on border operations.

Incentives in the law. Mexico, in addition, offers special incentives to foreign firms. Plants registered under the border-industrialization program are permitted to import, duty free, all raw materials, parts and machinery as long as the finished product is exported. The only duty an American manufacturer pays is on the value added to the finished goods as a result of Mexican labor.

So far, this labor is involved mainly with assembly, putting together components brought in from the U.S.

Most of these assembly plants are small, with 20 to 30 workers, mostly women. Capital investment is low, but it is rising as the border program appears to gain momentum.

Probably the worst impediment to this momentum is the opposition of organized labor in the U.S.

Union leaders see the American businessman's eagerness to move part of his operations to the border as simply a scheme to get around relatively high U.S. labor costs.

One such labor leader, James D. Givens, secretary general of the El Paso Central Labor Union (AFL–CIO) puts it this way:

"The program is just another dodge by American employers to continue their source of cheap labor."

At this point the operations are quite small, and a visitor often has to search for any sign of the new industries. The U.S. border plants often are found in unmarked sheds at the ends of dirt roads.

Mexican labor leaders are delighted with the movement. Mexico needs all the industry it can get in this region, where unemployment is the No. 1 problem.

The Mexican population is exploding at the rate of 3.6 per cent a year—highest of any major country in Latin America—and the cities along the U.S. border are especially overcrowded. For example:

Tijuana had 20,000 residents in 1940; now it has 366,000. Mexicali had 150,000 in 1950; now it has 367,000. Ciudad Juárez grew sevenfold in the last 30 years and now has about 442,000 inhabitants.

Still not enough. Even the rapid growth of the new industries has failed to open up enough jobs for these masses of people.

Right now, unemployment is estimated to be far higher along the Mexican side of the border than elsewhere in Mexico.

A large number of the jobless are those braceros, or day laborers, no longer permitted to cross the border to work on farms and orchards in the U.S.

Joining the braceros in the search for work are hundreds of peasants from the Mexican interior who still arrive daily at the border. The prospect of jobs enticed them. Most often, there are no jobs.

Mr. Speaker, at this point, I would comment on the strange logic of our Nation's free trade and foreign policy experts. We permit our industries to move into Mexico to give jobs to Mexican braceros and others who are refused jobs in the United States by congressional action. Why did Congress refuse to allow the migration of braceros into our Border States? Simply because we could not afford the loss of jobs.

Congress might as well have stayed at home. Our Government completely negated congressional action by letting the jobs migrate across the border, making it possible for the Mexican to save the cost of coming to the United States. We also lost the economic impact of the production facilities, loss of taxes, revenue to utilities, and revenue to our merchants as well as professional and other services necessary to service a production facility and its workers.

Our Government's answer, which follows, is even more damaging to our economy than the original decision to allow the migration of our jobs across the border.

The U.S. Government proposes relief for the workers, out of the Treasury, public facilities loans to the depreciated and injured communities, grants and loans to the educational system, and the final insult—job training programs for workers for jobs that will also be moved across the border if and when they are created.

How did this all start? Why did it start? the following analysis gives the answer. Mexicans needed jobs and we decided to give the jobs by allowing our industries to dodge the wage-and-hour laws passed by Congress. At the same time they can bring back their products to the United States to compete with American based producers complying with our laws to their disadvantage, with our higher cost labor based upon government mandated wage-and-hour standards.

We forbid the transportation of goods across State lines unless the fair labor standards laws are complied with. However, no restrictions are imposed on goods produced across the river and shipped into the United States.

Mr. Speaker, I shall introduce legislation forbidding the transportation of Pronef produced goods from being shipped from one State to another under the provisions of existing law.

The Mexican Government is looking after its own interest and so are the American runaway industries. American labor, American communities, and the American Treasury is paying the price. Maybe we can afford it. Personally, I do not believe we can, especially after hearing the testimony before our own committee recently by Mexican Americans from the U.S. side of the Rio Grande who were part of the Poor People's March to Washington.

The U.S. News & World Report story gives some light on the beginning of this program and certainly points out the future:

To help relieve this unemployment, Mexico in May, 1965, announced its program to attract foreign industry to a 12-mile strip along the border. This is one of many steps Mexico has taken to develop industry in the region.

Many U.S. food processors and other companies have moved into the border area, but are not licensed under the 1965 plan. That drive just now seems to be picking up impetus.

"Even though the program is only just beginning," says Luis Bravo Aguilera, director general of industries for the Ministry of Industry and Commerce, "we consider it successful." He adds:

"Other companies, not only in the U.S., are waiting to see how the pioneer industries make out. We are convinced that the experience of the pioneers will have the effect of bringing new industries into the program."

You will note that the Mexican birth rate is causing the border cities to explode with the influx of both children and adults from the interior. This of course will get worse and we can never hope to provide the jobs to meet the needs of the Mexican cities along the border. Three border cities alone. Tiajuana, Mexicali, and Ciudad Juarez, have grown from 235,000 population to over 1,175,000 persons.

How many American plants must move, how many American jobs will be exported, how many millions of dollars will it cost U.S. taxpayers to keep our people fed, our communities alive, and our industries competitive?

The Mexican program called Pronef has proven beyond a doubt that our double talk to our poor is just that—double-talk. We tell our poor they cannot get jobs because they are unskilled, unprepared, uneducated, and yet, our industries take on the Mexican untrained workers without too much crying for Federal funds to cover their training costs.

To add insult to injury, we find that the Mexican Government forbids the sale of any of the products produced in the restricted Pronef territories within the Mexican borders. How can anybody in his right mind permit such a condition to exist?

Summed up, this is the program we are engaged in with the Mexican Government. We send our jobs and our industries across the river into Mexico. We give our industries a tax and low-labor-cost haven. We then accept the products back into this country to compete with our higher cost, higher taxed industries, and Mexico gets our jobs, gets our wages, gets our industry, and gets our taxes but refuses the products of their own labor, thereby protecting its own domestic industries against competition.

How can we win? And how can Mexico lose.

PENSION GRAB

(Mr. GROSS asked and was given permission to extend his remarks at this point in the RECORD.)

Mr. GROSS. Mr. Speaker, I regret to say that the Members of this body shortly will be called on to consider H.R. 16903, legislation that pads—and pads heavily—retirement benefits for Members of Congress.

Proponents of the bill are hoping fervently that it will slip by with as little notice or fuss as possible.

In order to shed light on this subject so that the people of this country have a chance to learn about this outrageous business, I am inserting in the RECORD my remarks before the Rules Committee during its consideration of the bill:

STATEMENT BY MR. GROSS

Mr. Chairman, it is difficult to describe the Congressional arrogance and affront to the American taxpayers that is represented by the Congressional retirement provisions of the bill, H.R. 16903, which your Committee has under consideration.

By any objective standards it should be denied a favorable rule. Coming as it does late in the final session of the 90th Congress, with its proponents apparently hoping that in the drive toward adjournment its implications will be overlooked, we are supposed to turn our heads while it passes silently with no record votes. Yet, every Member knows that this proposal, granting unconscionable increases in retirement benefits for Members of Congress, is inappropriate at this time.

There are so many reasons why the bill, H.R. 16903, should be rejected—at least those provisions related to Congressional retirement benefits—that it is difficult to know where to begin.

In the first place the bill is being brought to you from a Committee which has no experience or background with the Civil Service Retirement Fund of which the Congressional Retirement System is a part.

Under the Rules of the House, and based upon the Legislative Reorganization Act of 1946, legislation dealing with the Civil Service Retirement System should emanate from the Post Office and Civil Service Committee. The Post Office and Civil Service Committee has not yielded jurisdiction of this legislation to the House Committee on Foreign Affairs. While Chairman Dulski and Congressman Daniels, Chairman of the Retirement, Insurance and Health Benefits Subcommittee, did advise the Foreign Affairs Committee that they had no objection to the Foreign Affairs Committee considering amendments to the Civil Service retirement laws, the matter was not directed to the attention of the full Committee on Post Office and Civil Service, nor did our Committee of 26 members have an opportunity to vote on this matter.

Congressional retirement legislation should be referred to the Post Office and Civil Service Committee, and the approval of a bypassing move by two Members of the Committee is not sufficient to change the Rules of the House.

Furthermore, since the enactment of the Congressional Retirement laws, every amendment to those laws has been considered by and approved by the Post Office and Civil Service Committees of the Congress. It is therefore difficult to understand why, and so suddenly, Congressional procedure is being violated with respect to this particular legislation.

Another objection to this legislation is the precedent which it creates, from the standpoint of orderly Congressional procedure, as well as from the standpoint of enacting loose provisions to the Congressional retirement laws which may require equal treatment for all other Federal employees covered by the Civil Service Retirement Act.

If you approve the precedent established by H.R. 16903, are you saying: "In the future all amendments to the Civil Service Retirement Act related to Congressional retirement shall emanate from the Foreign Affairs Committee?"

If you approve the liberal provisions of this bill, are you saying: "The Post Office and Civil Service Committee shall, in the future, adopt similar provisions for all other participants in the Civil Service Retirement System?"

In my judgment, Mr. Chairman, and members of the Rules Committee, this is a serious matter which deserves more than passing consideration.

As a matter of fact, an almost identical situation arose in the Senate on June 4, of this year, when the Senate was considering S. 1316, a bill to amend the Bankruptcy Act and the civil service retirement law with respect to the tenure and retirement benefits of referees in bankruptcy.

I refer Members of the Rules Committee to pages S. 6791, S. 6792, and S. 6797 through S. 6802 of the Congressional Record dated June 4.

The bill, S. 1316, was reported by the Senate Judiciary Committee because a portion of it sought to amend the Bankruptcy Act, while the rest of the bill amended the Civil Service Retirement Act. Objection was raised on the Floor of the Senate by a number of Members on the basis that, while the Bankruptcy Act came under the jurisdiction of the Judiciary Committee, certainly the amendments to the Civil Service Retirement Act did not come under the jurisdiction of the Judiciary Committee.

Senator Carlson offered an amendment striking out language in S. 1316 relating to amendments to the Retirement Act. After some debate, Mr. Carlson's amendment was agreed to, by a Roll Call vote of 42 to 27, on the grounds that the jurisdiction of the Judiciary Committee did not extend to amendments of the Civil Service Retirement Act and that such legislation properly belonged under the jurisdiction of the Post Office and Civil Service Committee.

Those who opposed striking the language, offered the same arguments for the bill that are being made here today by the proponents of this legislation; namely, that the impact on the retirement fund is minimal and that only several hundred Federal officials are involved. But, the other Body recognized the necessity of maintaining jurisdiction over the Civil Service Retirement Act and Fund by the Committee which knows it best; namely, the Post Office and Civil Service Committee.

Another reason this legislation should be refused a rule is that the Congressional retirement provisions of H.R. 16903 are not in the public interest. In the past few years there has been some effort exerted on the part of the Government to halt price increases and to hold down costs of spiraling wages and fringe benefits in order to prevent inflation. By providing excessive retirement benefits for Members of Congress we do not act in the public interest toward this objective. In fact, we say to management and labor throughout the Nation: "Come, follow us and grant higher fringe benefits to all of your top officials." This in turn creates pressures on labor unions to seek similar benefits. And Federal employee organizations will seek retirement benefits similar to those which are now proposed for Members of Congress.

Despite the attempts in the bill to keep the costs at the present levels, these liberal provisions for retiring Members of Congress will increase the deficit of the Retirement Fund.

Mr. Chairman, I say this will be creating a poor example for this Country. I say a veil cannot be pulled over this action in the hope the American people will not notice what is being done.

In view of the recent votes by Congress to cut $6 billion from expenditures and additional reductions in obligational authority, and in view of the fact that only yesterday the House approved a Health, Education, and Welfare appropriation bill of more than $3 billion above the spending for the same general purposes in this fiscal year, an increase in benefits to members of Congress cannot be justified.

It will readily be recalled, for a number of members of this Committee voted for it, that there was an increase yesterday of $100 million for the so-called underprivileged and poverty stricken. Under these circumstances, how many members of the House want to publicly make a case for the urgency and necessity of immediate enactment of H.R. 16903, giving themselves special benefits?

The merits of the Congressional retirement provisions of this bill are nonexistent. It is proposed to increase retirement benefits for Members of Congress by 33⅓ per cent, to increase survivorship benefits by nearly 20 per cent, and to compute a Member's annuity based upon his final month's pay rather than on his highest 5-year average pay.

While there is a token 2½ per cent increase in a Member's retirement deductions, the Civil Service Commission estimates that the cost of the foregoing provisions will be about $14 million.

It is ironical that for more than a year a subcommittee of the Post Office and Civil Service Committee has been engaged in a study of how to cope with the present $52 billion retirement fund deficit. Most proposals to liberalize civil service retirement benefits have been sidetracked until that problem is solved.

Yet, the Foreign Affairs Committee, by its action in approving H.R. 16903, seems unconcerned about the ever-increasing retirement fund deficit.

It is reasonable to inquire how the Post Office and Civil Service Committee can be expected to act effectively and equitably in the future with respect to any retirement legislation in the face of this proposal by the Foreign Affairs Committee.

Therefore, Mr. Chairman, this bill must be indicted on six counts.

The Rules of the House have been violated with respect to the jurisdiction of the appropriate Committee for its consideration.

It lacks merit.

It creates bad precedents.

It is not in the public interest.

Its presentation to the Rules Committee is untimely.

It is too costly and it is contemptuous of the taxpayers.

Under these conditions I urge the Committee on Rules to refuse a favorable rule with respect to this bill.

As I have stated before, in my opinion it is as much the responsibility of the Committee on Rules to withhold approval of poor legislation as it is to grant a favorable rule on desirable legislation.

And, Mr. Chairman, H.R. 16903 is an example of poor legislation.

HOUSING: 10-YEAR GOAL

(Mr. BARRETT asked and was given permission to extend his remarks at this point in the RECORD and to include an editorial from the Washington Post.)

Mr. BARRETT. Mr. Speaker, under leave to extend my remarks in the RECORD, I would like to include the following article from the Washington Post for July 8, 1968, entitled "Housing: 10-Year Goal":

HOUSING: 10-YEAR GOAL

The Administration's mamouth $5-billion omnibus housing bill, surely one of the most important pieces of social legislation to be considered by the 90th Congress, reaches its final and critical stage in the next two days on the floor of the House of Representatives. Designed to create housing in all forms at a rate ten times faster than has ever been attempted in the past, the bill is the first phase of what President Johnson promised in February as a ten-year effort to eliminate all substandard housing in the United States. The President, Secretary Weaver of Housing and Urban Development and others have said that if this country is to accommodate the housing needs of its growing population, construction and rehabilitation must reach two million new living units per year. According to the Census Bureau, only 1.1 million such units were finished in 1966; 1.3 million in 1967. This bill, if it is adopted as it was passed by the Senate in May and by the House Banking and Currency Committee last month, will signal the beginning of the massive upgrading in standards of living so badly needed in our cities and countryside.

The bill's major home-ownership and rent-supplement programs call for a new and unique financing arrangement by which the government would subsidize interest payments rather than entire mortgages. Those benefitting from the programs would pay, on a sliding scale basis, a certain percentage of their income for housing. Thus, as a low-income family's earnings increase, their share in the Federal program increases proportionately. By providing Federal subsidy at established market interest rates instead of the below-market rates of the present system, the programs should entice private enterprise to participate to a far more significant degree than under current mortgage operations.

Amendments to the housing bill are in the offing, however, which could effectively cripple the impact of this important legislation. One move brewing among House conservatives is to eliminate the rental program altogether. Another is to narrow the income levels to which the bill would apply. Both attempts must be defeated, and defeated soundly. To remove the rent supplement program would be to cut the entire housing program in half, in all probability doubling the time it will take to catch up with the country's housing needs. Equally dangerous is the plot to tamper with the eligibility scale, for to do so would effect the whole scale.

The Housing Bill is, as the Administration calls it, omnibus. Tucked away in the miscellany in the last of its fourteen titles is the billion dollar model cities program, critical if the original concept of that program is to be carried out. Seventy-five American cities have already been granted Federal planning funds for massive rehabilitation, and another 75 will qualify before the billion dollars is due to be spent in fiscal 1970.

The bill also encompasses comprehensive programs for riot re-insurance, for flood insurance, for urban mass transport, for urban planning activities, for mortgage insurance on non-profit hospitals, and for a private consortium to bring new involvement in the housing market from areas of private enterprise not traditionally involved. Had each of these items been introduced as individual bills, each would stand on its own as major legislation. Together, they represent a monumental undertaking.

So far, the omnibus bill has survived its journey through the legislative halls virtually intact. Now, however, it faces new and real dangers. Attempts will be made to cut down on its authorizations. Those attempts will be dealt with one way or another today, with a final vote from the full House Tuesday.

If the House follows the example of the Senate and its own committee, there will be little beyond technicalities to settle in a joint conference committee before the bill is sent to the President. If, on the other hand, the House deals this bill a mortal blow, the work which should begin in the Nation now will be postponed indefinitely.

INDEPENDENCE DAY GREETINGS TO MALAWI

(Mr. O'HARA of Illinois asked and was given permission to extend his remarks at this point in the RECORD and to include extraneous matter.)

Mr. O'HARA of Illinois. Mr. Speaker, for myself and as chairman of the African Subcommittee of the Committee on Foreign Affairs, I extend warm congratulations to President H. Kamuzu Banda and the people of Malawi on the occasion of the fourth anniversary of the Independence of Malawi and the second anniversary of the declaration of a republic.

Even before the independence of Malawi on July 6, 1964, the United States displayed its interest in that country with a small assistance program. Relations have grown closer since independence. President Banda, who received much of his medical and other education in the United States, has paid a number of visits to this country since assuming leadership of Malawi.

I wish to take advantage of this occasion to add a personal word of greeting to Dr. Banda, whose deep commitment to the steady advancement of his people is so well known to me personally from our several meetings and discussions in past years.

I hold Dr. Banda in the endearing folds of a long and a warm friendship and at the University of Chicago, which is in the district I have the honor to represent, he is justly placed among the most distinguished alumni of that great university and is fondly remembered by faculty members and fellow students of his college years.

(Mr. O'HARA of Illinois asked and was given permission to extend his remarks at this point in the RECORD and to include extraneous matter.)

NATIONAL COUNCIL FOR A RESPONSIBLE FIREARMS POLICY PRESENTS 1 MILLION SIGNATURES FOR STRICT GUN CONTROL LEGISLATION TO SPEAKER JOHN W. McCORMACK

(Mr. RYAN asked and was given permission to extend his remarks at this point in the RECORD and to include extraneous matter.)

Mr. RYAN. Mr. Speaker, this afternoon James V. Bennett, former Director of the U.S. Bureau of Prisons and currently president of the National Council for a Responsible Firearms Policy, presented to the Speaker of the House over 1 million signatures on petitions calling for controls on the sale, possession, and use of all firearms.

This petition campaign represents one of the most spontaneous, grassroots waves of national sentiment seen in many years. It is the result of a national feeling of revulsion and grief at the murders of our most inspired leaders. It is a demand only for the safeguards on lethal weapons common to other civilized nations.

This is a people's lobby. It speaks for no economic interest; it is not subsidized by the Federal Government. The petition calls simply for registration of the sale and transfer of firearms, licensing of possessors of firearms, and a ban on mail-order sales, sales to minors, and out-of-State purchases. This is essentially the Gun Crime Control Prevention Act which Senator TYDINGS introduced in the Senate and which I introduced in the House—H.R. 17879.

Later this week the House will debate one part of this proposal—H.R. 17735—subject to the granting of a rule. That measure provides for a ban on mail-order sales and sales to juveniles of rifles and other long guns. We must speedily enact this legislation, and the other parts of the Tydings-Ryan bill, which now carries the endorsement of the administration.

The National Council for a Responsible Firearms Policy deserves the gratitude of the Nation for coordinating this citizen campaign for effective gun controls. I include the statement made today by James V. Bennett to the Honorable JOHN W. McCORMACK, Speaker of the U.S. House of Representatives, as well as the petition which has been signed by over 1 million people.

STATEMENT OF JAMES V. BENNETT, PRESIDENT OF THE NATIONAL COUNCIL FOR A RESPONSIBLE FIREARMS POLICY, TO THE HONORABLE JOHN W. McCORMACK, SPEAKER OF THE U.S. HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES, JULY 8, 1968

I am James V. Bennett, President of the National Council for a Responsible Firearms Policy. In the year and a half since it was organized, the Council has been working vigorously for firearms policies that adequately serve the total public interest. On behalf of the Council, I today respectfully present to the Congress of the United States well over one million signatures on petitions circulated by members of our organization and by many others cooperating with us in support of strong and effective gun control measures.

The petitions come from virtually every state in the Union. Petitions were collected in various ways. Some secured signatures by placing them in elevators in their apartment buildings. Others set up booths in shopping centers. Some canvassed their neighborhoods house to house. Many churches made them available after worship services.

These are the signatures of deeply concerned Americans, dedicated to their country's best interests. They are deeply concerned over the dangerously permissive proliferation of guns into the hands of persons who are not technically or otherwise qualified to use them responsibly. The people who have signed these petitions want firearms policies the protect the overall public interest. They believe these policies should be strict, reasonable, and effective, embodying three basic principles:

1. the prohibition of interstate shipments of all kinds of guns except among Federally licensed dealers;

2. registration of all guns for better law enforcement; and

3. the licensing of all gun acquisitions, in accordance with basic Federal standards.

A huge majority of the public-at-large wants such controls. It wants them now. It wants essential Federal legislation along these lines before this Congress adjourns for the summer. A solid majority of responsible gun owners agree basically with this position. The massive expression of public opinion reflected in these petitions is tangible evidence of what reliable polls have shown over and over again—that over 80 percent of the American people, including nearly two-thirds of the legitimate gun owners, want strict gun control laws in the public interest.

The petitions are still coming to our office. Some are being sent directly to members of Congress. And a huge wave of supporting letters has not been far behind.

I want to emphasize that these signed petitions have all been secured in the less than a month since we organized this nationwide campaign. The overall outpouring of public sentiment on this issue may well turn out to the largest demonstration of public feeling in the shortest time on any issue in the history of our country.

I also want to emphasize that this massive demonstration is not a panic response to a widely and deeply felt national tragedy. It is the latest stage of a slowly growing national awareness of the rapidly rising number of murders and other crimes committed with firearms. Many of us associated with the National Council have devoted years of effort to awakening the American people to this growing menace.

Organizations that participated in our petition campaign include, for example: the National Council of Churches, the Episcopal Church, the United Methodist Church, the National Women's League of the United Synagogue of America, the Society for the Advancement of Judaism, the National Council of Catholic Men, the Transportation Workers Union, the United Steel Workers Union, the American Advertising Federation, the Kennedy Action Corps, the United World Federalists. Countless individuals from Massachusetts to California have worked very hard in this effort. The signatures cover the broadest imaginable spectrum of our population. Some random examples are the staff of a major national news magazine, the crew of a ship in New York harbor, many of the residents of Resurrection City, and the whole cast of the Broadway play "You Know I Can't hear You When the Water's Running."

I respectfully present to the Congress today a mountain of petition signatures to be added to the mounains of evidence the Congress has been accumulating for many years on a problem whose growing size has shocked and shamed the nation.

We respectfully urge this Congress to lead the way in enacting essential Federal legislation to help bring this escalating problem under the kind of responsible control that meets the needs of our country in the closing decades of the 20th century.

A PETITION FOR GUN CONTROL NOW

To: The President, Members of Congress, and state government officials.

We, the undersigned, favor immediate action to control the sale, possession and use of handguns, rifles and shotguns.

Such federal and state legislation should include the following:

1. Regarding rifles and shotguns, there should be a ban on mail-order sales to individuals, on sales to those under 18, and on out-of-state purchases.

2. All firearms possessed, sold, or transferred should be registered at the state and/or national level.

3. States should require that gun purchases be made only through permits calling for adequate identification and a waiting period for a police check.

This we urge in the name of President John F. Kennedy, Senator Robert F. Kennedy, Dr. Martin Luther King, the 6500 others killed annually, and in the name of a more civilized and less violent United States society.

ELECTRONIC SURVEILLANCE VERSUS ORGANIZED CRIME

(Mr. POFF asked and was given permission to extend his remarks at this point in the RECORD and to include extraneous matter.)

Mr. POFF. Mr. Speaker, in 1965, the Justice Department began a sharp deemphasis of its efforts to combat organized crime. The results of that deemphasis are reflected now in statistics recently released by the Justice Department for fiscal year 1967.

According to figures furnished previously to a House Committee by Assistant Attorney General Fred Vinson, organized crime convictions by the Federal Government reached an all-time high of 594 in 1964. There was a sharp drop to 410 in 1965 followed by a slight rise to 477 in 1966.

Now, according to the report of the Attorney General for 1967, convictions last year dropped further to 400, 19 percent less than 1966 and 32 percent lower than the peak year of 1964.

We believe that racketeer convictions are an accurate measure of the success of the Justice Department's program against organized crime. Attorney General Ramsey Clark has already stressed this success with the observation that more racketeers "are being hurt in auto accidents than by the Government" and now the figures bear him out.

Thus, the Johnson administration has admitted and has demonstrated substantially decreasing effectiveness in fighting organized crime. The President has said that he will not use the electronic surveillance provisions of the omnibus crime bill against organized crime. I find this "de facto" veto all the more bewildering and distressing in light of this new evidence that the Justice Department is losing ground against the racketeers. I urge the President to reconsider this very unwise decision.

LEAVE OF ABSENCE

By unanimous consent, leave of absence was granted to:

Mr. MCMILLAN (at the request of Mr. ASHMORE), for an indefinite period, on account of death in the family.

House of Representatives

TUESDAY, JULY 9, 1968

The House met at 12 o'clock noon.

The Chaplain, Rev. Edward G. Latch, D.D., offered the following prayer:

I will lift up mine eyes unto the hills, from whence cometh my help? My help cometh from the Lord, who made heaven and earth.—Psalm 121: 1, 2.

Eternal Father, who hast made us for Thyself so that our hearts are restless until they find rest in Thee, we, Thy children, come to Thee for help which Thou alone canst give.

Be Thou our fortress in the hour of temptation and give us the power to master ourselves. Be Thou our light when the way is dark and we do not know which way to turn. Be Thou our strength when the flesh is weak and the spirit is depressed. Be Thou our courage in the time of trouble and help us to walk in right paths. Be Thou our hope when our own hopes fail and but for Thee we would give way to despair.

Be Thou our help at all times and in all places and enable us to take from Thy hands the gifts of courage and strength and peace we need for this day in which we live.

Bless Thou our President, our Speaker, every Member of this body, and all who work with them. By Thy spirit lead us all into a greater allegiance to Thy purposes for mankind and may we become increasingly walking centers of good will in our world.

In the Master's name we pray. Amen.

THE JOURNAL

The Journal of the proceedings of yesterday was read and approved.

MESSAGE FROM THE SENATE

A message from the Senate by Mr. Arrington, one of its clerks, the message also announced that the Senate had passed with amendments in which the concurrence of the House is requested, a bill of the House of the following title:

H.R. 12120. An act to assist courts, correctional systems, and community agencies to prevent, treat, and control juvenile delinquency; to support research and training efforts in the prevention, treatment, and control of juvenile delinquency; and for other purposes.

The message also announced that the Senate agrees to the report of the committee of conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendments of the Senate to the bill (H.R. 9063) entitled "An act to amend the International Claims Settlement Act of 1949, as amended, to provide for the timely determination of certain claims of American nationals, and for other purposes."

The message also announced that the Senate had passed bills of the following titles, in which the concurrence of the House is requested:

S. 2159. An act to establish the Fort Point National Historic Site in San Francisco, Calif., and for other purposes;

S. 3456. An act to provide that the prosecution of the offenses of disorderly conduct and lewd, indecent, or obscene acts shall be conducted in the name of and for the benefit of the District of Columbia; and

S. 3671. An act to provide for the striking of medals in commemoration of the 200th anniversary of the founding of Dartmouth College.

EFFECTIVE CONTROL OF VIOLENT CRIME

(Mr. WRIGHT asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks and include extraneous matter.)

Mr. WRIGHT. Mr. Speaker, today I have introduced a companion bill to the measure introduced earlier by our colleague, the gentleman from Texas [Mr. CASEY].

The bill would stipulate a mandatory prison sentence for anyone convicted of using a deadly firearm in the commission of robbery, assault, murder, rape, burglary, kidnaping, or homicide other than involuntary manslaughter.

Each of these is a felonious offense in all of our States. The bill which the gentleman from Texas [Mr. CASEY] and I have introduced would superimpose upon conviction a Federal offense for the use of deadly firearms in committing any such felony.

For the first such offense, there would be a mandatory sentence of not less than 10 years. For any subsequent offense committed by the same person, the sentence would be not less than 25 years imprisonment.

It seems clear to me that the only really effective way to strike a hard blow at the appalling growth in crime and violence is to confront the offender with sure and stringent punishment.

Each of the other gun control measures which have been recommended to Congress, while valuable in a limited way, contains certain deficiencies when considered as a deterrent against the hardened or career criminal.

Licensing of gun dealers and prohibiting the sale of firearms to minors and through the mails, while undoubtedly meritorious, will not actually prevent deadly weapons from coming into the hands of those seriously bent upon crime.

The same can be said for the very worthwhile suggestion of a waiting period for the purchase of such weapons. While this may deter a first offender or an impulse buyer, it cannot really prevent the acquisition of a gun by a person seriously intent on crime.

A registration law undoubtedly would be respected and adhered to by the decent and law abiding. But I fear that it would be flaunted and evaded by those whose activities we need most desperately to curb. A person who is willing to assume the risk of punishment for murder or armed robbery most likely will not blanch at evading registration.

PERMISSION FOR SUBCOMMITTEE ON TRANSPORTATION AND AERONAUTICS, COMMITEE ON INTERSTATE AND FOREIGN COMMERCE TO SIT DURING GENERAL DEBATE TODAY

Mr. ALBERT. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that the Subcommittee on Transportation and Aeronautics of the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce may sit during general debate today.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Oklahoma?

There was no objection.

CALL OF THE HOUSE

Mr. BROOMFIELD. Mr. Speaker, I make the point of order that a quorum is not present.

The SPEAKER. Evidently a quorum is not present.

Mr. ALBERT. Mr. Speaker, I move a call of the House.

A call of the House was ordered.

The Clerk called the roll, and the following Members failed to answer to their names:

[Roll No. 235]

Adair	Green, Oreg.	McMillan
Ashley	Halleck	Passman
Bell	Hanna	Rarick
Blanton	Hansen, Idaho	Resnick
Brademas	Hardy	Satterfield
Cederberg	Hawkins	Teague, Tex.
Conyers	Heckler, Mass.	Tunney
Corman	Jones, Mo.	Van Deerlin
Evins, Tenn.	Karsten	Waggonner
Gardner	Landrum	Willis

The SPEAKER. On this rollcall 401 Members have answered to their names, a quorum.

By unanimous consent, further proceedings under the call were dispensed with.

PERMISSION FOR COMMITTEE ON WAYS AND MEANS UNTIL MIDNIGHT, JULY 11, TO FILE A REPORT ON H.R. 18299, INTERNATIONAL COFFEE AGREEMENT, 1968

Mr. MILLS. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that the Committee on Ways and Means may have until midnight Thursday, July 11, to file a report to accompany H.R. 18299, to carry out obligations under the International Coffee Agreement, 1968.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Arkansas?

There was no objection.

PERSONAL EXPLANATION

Mr. DULSKI. Mr. Speaker, I missed rollcall No. 228, recommittal of the District of Columbia revenue bill. Had I been present and voting, I would have voted "nay."

CORRECTION OF ROLLCALL

Mr. DULSKI. Mr. Speaker, on rollcall No. 234, on July 8, a quorum call, I am recorded as absent. I was present and answered to my name. I ask unanimous consent that the permanent RECORD and Journal be corrected accordingly.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from New York?

There was no objection.

CONCERNING ENFORCEMENT OF FIREARMS CONTROL MEASURES

(Mr. CONABLE asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. CONABLE. Mr. Speaker, with the current debate over firearms control I think it is important to consider the record of the Johnson administration on the two Federal statutes already on the books which deal with firearms; these are the National Firearms Act of 1934 and the Federal Firearms Act of 1938. The record indicates the administration has been less than diligent in enforcing the laws already existing.

The U.S. Treasury Department has the responsibility for investigating violations of the existing firearms statutes. According to figures furnished to the Senate Judiciary Committee in August 1967, a total of 2,294 criminal cases involving violations of the firearms statutes were prepared by Treasury during the 5 fiscal years from 1963 to 1967.

According to the annual reports of the Attorney General, however, during these same 5 years only 1,192 firearms prosecutions were undertaken in Federal courts by the Justice Department. Thus, almost half of the cases which were prosecutable and ready for trial in the view of the Treasury Department resulted in no action by the Justice Department. This is hardly a record of vigorous enforcement.

It is interesting to note also a comparison with the Eisenhower administration. In the last 7 years of President Eisenhower's administration firearms convictions were 21 percent greater than they have been during the comparable 7-year period since 1960. Instead of an increase there has been a decrease from 1,570 to 1,297 Federal convictions.

On the basis of this record it is obvious that the current concern of the Johnson administration over firearms control is not matched by any record of achievement. This record of underachievement prompts serious questions about the validity of the administration's present demands for still more legislation in this field.

HOUSING AND URBAN DEVELOPMENT ACT OF 1968

Mr. PATMAN. Mr. Speaker, I move that the House resolve itself into the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union for the further consideration of the bill (H.R. 17989) to assist in the provision of housing for low and moderate income families, and to extend and amend laws relating to housing and urban development.

The SPEAKER. The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Texas.

The motion was agreed to.

IN THE COMMITTEE OF THE WHOLE

Accordingly the House resolved itself into the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union for the further consideration of the bill H.R. 17989, with Mr. PRICE of Illinois in the chair.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The CHAIRMAN. When the Committee rose on yesterday, the Clerk had read down to and including line 6 on page 2 of the bill.

The Clerk will read.

The Clerk read as follows:

The Congress declares that in the administration of those housing programs authorized by this Act which are designed to assist families with incomes so low that they could not otherwise decently house themselves, and of other Government programs designed to assist in the provision of housing for such families, the highest priority and emphasis should be given to meeting the housing needs of those families for which the national goal has not become a reality; and in the carrying out of such programs there should be the fullest practicable utilization of the resources and capabilities of private enterprise and of individual self-help techniques.

Mr. PATMAN. Mr. Chairman, the bill is being read by title, under the rule. I ask unanimous consent that the first title be considered as read, printed in the RECORD, and open to amendment at any point.

The CHAIRMAN. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Texas?

Mr. GROSS. Mr. Chairman, I object.

The CHAIRMAN. Objection is heard.

The Clerk will read.

The Clerk read as follows:

JOBS IN HOUSING; EMPLOYMENT OPPORTUNITIES FOR LOWER INCOME PERSONS IN CONNECTION WITH ASSISTED PROJECTS

SEC. 3. In the administration of the programs authorized by sections 235 and 236 of the National Housing Act, the below-market interest rate program under section 221(d)(3) of such Act, the low-rent public housing program under the United States Housing Act of 1937, and the rent supplement program under section 101 of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965, the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development shall require that, to the greatest extent feasible, opportunities for employment arising in connection with the construction of rehabilitation of projects assisted under such programs be given to lower income persons residing in the area of such projects.

IMPROVED ARCHITECTURAL DESIGN IN GOVERNMENT HOUSING PROGRAMS

SEC. 4. The Congress finds that Federal aids to housing have not contributed fully to improvement in architectural standards. This objective has been contemplated in Federal housing legislation since the establishment of mortgage insurance through the Federal Housing Administration.

The Congress commends the Department of Housing and Urban Development for its recent efforts to improve architectural standards through competitive design awards and in other ways but at the same time recognizes that this important objective requires high priority if Federal aid is to make its full communitywide contribution toward improving our urban environment.

The Congress further finds that even within the necessary budget limitations on housing for low and moderated income families architectural design could be improved not only to make the housing more attractive but to make it better suited to the needs of occupants.

The Congress declares that in the administration of housing programs which assist in the provision of housing for low and moderate income families, emphasis should be given to encouraging good design as an essential component of such housing and to developing housing which will be of such quality as to reflect its important relationship to the architectural standards of the neighborhood and community in which it is situated, consistent with prudent budgeting.

Mr. PATMAN. Mr. Chairman, I renew my unanimous consent request that we dispense with the reading of title I, that it be printed at this point in the RECORD, and be open to amendment at any point.

The CHAIRMAN. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Texas?

There was no objection.

TITLE I—LOW AND MODERATE INCOME HOUSING

HOMEOWNERSHIP FOR LOW AND MODERATE INCOME FAMILIES

SEC. 101. Title II of the National Housing Act is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new section:

"HOMEOWNERSHIP FOR LOW AND MODERATE INCOME FAMILIES

"SEC. 235. (a) For the purpose of assisting low and moderate income families in acquiring homeownership or in acquiring membership in a cooperative association operating a housing project, the Secretary is authorized to make, and to contract to make, periodic assistance payments on behalf of such homeowners and cooperative members. The satisfy eligibility requirements prescribed payments to mortgagees holding mortgages meeting the special requirements specified in this section.

"(b) To qualify for assistance payments, the homeowner or the cooperative member shall be of low or moderate income and satisfy elegibility requirements prescribed

"(1) the homeowner shall be a mortgagor under a mortgage which meets the requirements of and is insured under subsection (i) or (j)(4) of this section: Provided, That a mortgage meeting the requirements of subsection (i)(3)(A) of this section but insured under section 237 may qualify for assistance payments if such mortgage was executed by a mortgagor who is determined not to be an acceptable credit risk for mortgage insurance purposes (but otherwise eligible) under subsection (j)(4) of this section or under section 221(d)(2) or 234(c) and accepted as a reasonably satisfactory credit risk under section 237; or

"(2) the cooperative association of which the family is a member shall operate a housing project the construction or substantial rehabilitation of which has been financed with a mortgage insured under section 213 and which has been completed within two years prior to the filing of the application for assistance payments and the dwelling unit has had no previous occupant other than the family: Provided, That assistance payments may be made with respect to a dwelling unit in an existing cooperative project which meets such standards as the Secretary may prescribe: Provided further, That a preference shall be given in contracting to make periodic assistance payments under this section to a family which qualifies as a displaced family as defined in section 221(f), or a family which includes five or more minor persons, or a family occupying low-rent public housing: Provided further, That the amount of the mortgage attributable to the dwelling unit shall involve a principal obligation not in excess of $15,000 ($17,500 in any geographical area where the Secretary authorizes an increase on the basis of a finding that costs levels so require), except that with respect to any family with five or more persons the foregoing limits shall be $17,500 and $20,000, respectively.

"(c) The assistance payments to a mortgagee by the Secretary on behalf of a mortgagor shall be made during such time as the mortgagor shall continue to occupy the property which secures the mortgage: Provided, That assistance payments may be made on behalf of a homeowner who assumes a mortgage insured under subsection (j)(4) with respect to which assistance payments have been made on behalf of the previous owner, if the homeowner is approved by the Secretary as eligible for receiving such assistance. The payment shall be in an amount not exceeding the lesser of—

"(1) the balance of the monthly payment for principal, interest, taxes, insurance, and mortgage insurance premium due under the mortgage remaining unpaid after applying 20 per centum of the mortgagor's income: Provided, That, in determining a mortgagor's income for the purposes of this paragraph, there shall be deducted an amount equal to $200 for each minor person who is a member of the immediate family of, and living with, the mortgagor, and the earnings of any such minor person shall not be included in the income of such mortgagor; or

"(2) the difference between the amount of the monthly payment for principal, interest, and mortgage insurance premium which the mortgagor is obligated to pay under the mortgage and the monthly payment for principal and interest which the mortgagor would be obligated to pay if the mortgage were to bear interest at the rate of 1 per centum per annum.

"(d) Assistance payments to a mortgagee by the Secretary on behalf of a family holding membership in a cooperative association operating a housing project shall be made only during such time as the family is an occupant of such project and shall be in amounts computed on the basis of the formula set forth in subsection (c) applying the cooperative member's proportionate share of the obligations under the project mortgage to the items specified in the formula.

"(e) The Secretary may include in the payment to the mortgagee such amount, in addition to the amount computed under subsection (c), (d), or (j)(7), as he deems appropriate to reimburse the mortgagee for its expenses in handling the mortgage.

"(f) Procedures shall be adopted by the Secretary for recertifications of the mortgagor's (or cooperative member's) income at intervals of two years (or at shorter intervals where the Secretary deems it desirable) for the purpose of adjusting the amount of such assistance payments within the limits of the formula described in subsection (c).

"(g) The Secretary shall prescribe such regulations as he deems necessary to assure that the sales price of, or other consideration paid in connection with, the purchase by a homeowner of the property with respect to which assistance payments are to be made is not increased above the appraised value on which the maximum mortgage which the Secretary will insure is computed.

"(h) There are authorized to be appropriated such sums as may be necessary to carry out the provisions of this section, including such sums as may be necessary to make the assistance payments under contracts entered into under this section. The aggregate amount of contracts to make such payments shall not exceed amounts approved in appropriation Acts, and payments pursuant to such contracts shall not exceed $75,000,000 per annum prior to July 1, 1969, which maximum dollar amount shall be increased by $100,000,000 on July 1, 1969, and by $125,000,000 on July 1, 1970.

"(i)(1) The Secretary is authorized, upon application by the mortgagee, to insure a mortgage executed by a mortgagor who meets the eligibility requirements for assistance payments prescribed by the Secretary under subsection (b). Commitments for the insurance of such mortgages may be issued by the Secretary prior to the date of their execution or disbursement thereon, upon such terms and conditions as the Secretary may prescribe.

"(2) To be eligible for insurance under this subsection, a mortgage shall meet the requirements of section 221(d)(2) or 234(c), except as such requirements are modified by this subsection.

"(3) A mortgage to be insured under this subsection shall—

"(A) involve a single-family dwelling which has been approved by the Secretary prior to the beginning of construction or substantial rehabilitation, or a two-family dwelling one of the units of which is to be occupied by the owner if the dwelling is purchased with the assistance of a nonprofit organization and is approved by the Secretary prior to the beginning of substantial rehabilitation, or a one-family unit in a condominium project (together with an undivided interest in the common areas and facilities serving the project) which is released from a multifamily project the construction or substantial rehabilitation of which has been completed within two years prior to the filing of the application and assistance payments with respect to such family unit and the unit has had no previous occupant other than the mortgagor: Provided, That the mortgage may involve an existing dwelling or a family unit in an existing condominium project if the dwelling or family unit meets such standards as the Secretary may prescribe, or if assistance payments have been made on behalf of the previous owner of the dwelling or family unit with respect to a mortgage insured under subsection (j)(4): Provided further, That a preference in extending mortgage insurance under this subsection shall be given to a mortgagor who qualifies as a displaced family as defined in section 221(f), or a family which includes five or more minor persons, or a family occupying low-rent public housing: Provided further, That the mortgage may involve a dwelling unit in an existing project covered by a mortgage insured under section 236 or in an existing project receiving the benefits of financial assistance under section 101 of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965;

"(B) where it is to cover a one-family unit in a condominium project, have a principal obligation not exceeding $15,000 ($17,500 in any geographical area where the Secretary authorizes an increase on the basis of a finding that cost levels so require), except that with respect to any family with five or more persons the foregoing limits shall be $17,500 and $20,000, respectively; and

"(C) be executed by a mortgagor who shall have paid (i) in the case of a displaced family as defined in section 221(f), at least $200, or (ii) in the case of any other family, at least 3 per centum (or such larger amount as the Secretary may require) of the Secretary's estimate of the cost of acquisition, in cash or its equivalent, which amount in either instance may be applied for the payment of settlement costs and initial payments for taxes, hazard insurance, mortgage insurance premiums, and other prepaid expenses.

"(j)(1) In addition to mortgages insured under the provisions of subsection (i), the Secretary is authorized, upon application by the mortgagee, to insure a mortgage (including advances under such mortgage during rehabilitation) which is executed by a nonprofit organization to finance the purchase of housing, and the rehabilitation of such housing if it is deteriorating or substandard, for subsequent resale to low or moderate income home purchasers who meet the eligibility requirements for assistance payments prescribed by the Secretary under subsection (b). Commitments for the insurance of such mortgages may be issued by the Secretary prior to the date of their execution or disbursement thereon, upon such terms and conditions as the Secretary may prescribe.

"(2) To be eligible for insurance under paragraph (1) of this subsection, a mortgage shall—

"(A) be executed by a private nonprofit organization, approved by the Secretary, for the purpose of financing the purchase (with the intention of subsequent resale), and rehabilitation where the housing involved is deteriorating or substandard, of property comprising one or more tracts or parcels, whether or not contiguous, consisting of (i) four or more single-family dwellings of detached, semidetached, or row construction, or (ii) four or more one-family units in a structure or structures for which a plan of family unit ownership approved by the Secretary is established; except that in a case not involving the rehabilitation of deteriorating or substandard housing the property purchased may consist of one or more such dwellings or units;

"(B) be in a principal amount not exceeding the apraised value of the property at the time of its purchase under the mortgage plus the estimated cost of any rehabilitation;

"(C) bear interest (exclusive of premium charges for insurance and service charge, if any) at not to exceed such per centum per annum (not in excess of 6 per centum), on the amount of the principal obligation outstanding at any time, as the Secretary finds necessary to meet the mortgage market;

"(D) provide for complete amortization (subject to paragraph (4)(E)) by periodic payments within such term as the Secretary may prescribe; and

"(E) provide for the release of individual single-family dwellings from the lien of the mortgage upon their sale in accordance with paragraph (4).

"(3) No mortgage shall be insured under paragraph (1) unless the mortgagor shall have demonstrated to the satisfaction of the Secretary that (A) the property involved is located in a neighborhood which is sufficiently stable and contains sufficient public facilities and amenities to support long-term values, or (B) the purchase or rehabilitation of such property plus the mortgagor's related activities and the activities of other owners of housing in the neighborhood, together with actions to be taken by public authorities, will be of such scope and quality as to give reasonable promise that a stable environment will be created in the neighborhood.

"(4)(A) No mortgage shall be insured under paragraph (1) unless the mortgagor enters into an agreement, satisfactory to the Secretary, that it will offer to sell the dwellings involved, after purchase and upon completion of any rehabilitation, to low or moderate income individuals or families meeting the eligibility requirements established by the Secretary under subsection (b).

"(B) The Secretary is authorized to insure under this paragraph mortgages executed to finance the sale of individual dwellings to low or moderate income purchasers as provided in subparagraph (A). Any such mortgage shall—

"(i) be in a principal amount not in excess of that portion of the unpaid principal balance of the blanket mortgage covering the property which is allocable to the individual dwelling involved;

"(ii) bear interest at the same rate as the blanket mortgage; and

"(iii) provide for complete amortization by periodic payments within a term equal to the remaining term (determined without regard to subparagraph (E)) of such blanket mortgage.

"(C) The price for which any individual dwelling is sold under this paragraph shall be in an amount equal to that portion of the unpaid principal balance of the blanket mortgage covering the property which is allocable to the dwelling plus such additional amount, not less than $200 (which may be applied in whole or in part toward closing costs), as the Secretary may determine to be reasonable.

"(D) Upon the sale under this paragraph of any individual dwelling, such dwelling shall be released from the lien of the blanket mortgage. Until all of the individual dwellings in the property covered by the blanket mortgage have been sold, the mortgagor shall hold and operate the dwellings remaining unsold at any given time, in such manner and under such terms as the Secretary may prescribe, as though they constituted rental units.

"(E) Upon the sale under this paragraph of all the individual dwellings in the property covered by the blanket mortgage and the release of all individual dwellings from the lien of the blanket mortgage, the insurance of the blanket mortgage shall be terminated and no adjusted premium charge shall be charged by the Secretary upon such termination.

"(5) Where the Secretary has approved a plan of family unit ownership, the terms 'single-family dwelling', 'single-family dwellings', 'individual dwelling', and 'individual dwellings' shall mean a family unit or family units, together with the undivided interest (or interests) in the common areas and facilities.

"(6) For purposes of this subsection, the terms 'single-family dwelling' and 'single-family dwellings' (except for purposes of paragraph (5)) shall include a two-family dwelling which has been approved by the Secretary if one of the units is to be occupied by the owner.

"(7) In addition to the assistance payments authorized under subsection (b), the Secretary may make such payments to a mortgagee on behalf of a nonprofit organization which is a mortgagor under the provisions of paragraph (1) in an amount not exceeding the difference between the monthly payment for principal, interest, and mortgage insurance premium which the mortgagor is obligated to pay under the mortgage and the monthly payment for principal and interest such mortgagor would be obligated to pay if the mortgage were to bear interest at the rate of 1 per centum per annum.

"(k) The Secretary shall from time to time allocate and transfer to the Secretary of Agriculture, for use (in accordance with the terms and conditions of this section) in rural areas and small towns, a reasonable portion of the total authority to contract to make assistance payments as approved in appropriation Acts under subsection (h)."

(b)(1) Section 221(d)(2)(A) of the National Housing Act is amended—

(A) by striking out "not to exceed (1) $12,500" and inserting in lieu thereof "not to exceed (1) $15,000 (or $17,500, if the mortgagor's family includes five or more persons)"; and

(B) by striking out "not to exceed $15,000" in the second proviso and inserting in lieu thereof "not to exceed $17,500 (or $20,000 if the mortgagor's family includes five or more persons)".

(2) Section 221(d)(2)(B) of such Act is amended—

(A) by inserting ", in cash or its equivalent" before the semicolon after "acquisition cost" in the first proviso; and

(B) by inserting before the semicolon after "appraised value" at the end thereof the following: ": Provided further, That, if the mortgagor is the owner and an occupant of the property, such mortgagor shall to the maximum extent feasible be given the opportunity to contribute the value of his labor as equity in such dwelling".

(c)(1) Section 221(h)(5)(B)(ii) of such Act is amended to read as follows:

"(ii) bear interest at the same rate as the principal mortgage or such lower rate, not less than 1 per centum, as the Secretary may prescribe if in his judgment the purchaser's income is sufficiently low to justify the lower rate, and provide for complete amortization within a term equal to the remaining term (determined without regard to subparagraph (E)) of such principal mortgage."

(2) Section 221(h)(4) of such Act is amended by striking out "$20,000,000" and inserting in lieu thereof "$50,000,000".

(3) Section 221(h) of such Act is further amended by adding at the end thereof the following new paragraph:

"(6) In addition to the mortgages that may be insured under paragraphs (1) and (5), the Secretary is authorized to insure under this subsection, upon such terms and conditions as he may prescribe, mortgages which are executed by individuals or families that meet the income criteria prescribed in paragraph (5)(A) and are executed for the purpose of financing the rehabilitation or improvement of single-family dwellings of detached, semidetached, or row construction that are owned and occupied in each instance by a mortgagor who has purchased the dwelling from a nonprofit organization of the type described in this subsection. To be eligible for such insurance, a mortgage shall—

"(A) be in a principal amount not exceeding the lesser of $15,000 or the sum of the estimated cost of repair and rehabilitation and the Secretary's estimate of the value of the property before repair and rehabilitation, except that in no case involving refinancing shall such mortgage exceed such estimated cost of repair and rehabilitation and the amount (as determined by the Secretary) required to refinance existing indebtedness secured by the property;

"(B) bear interest (exclusive of premium charges for insurance and service charge, if any) at 3 per centum per annum or such lower rate, not less than 1 per centum, as the Secretary may prescribe if in his judgment the mortgagor's income is sufficiently low to justify the lower rate;

"(C) involve a mortgagor that shall have paid on account of the property at the time of the rehabilitation such amount (which shall not be less than $200 in cash or its equivalent, but which may be applied in whole or in part toward closing costs) as the Secretary may determine to be reasonable and appropriate under the circumstances; and

"(D) contain a provision that if the low-income mortgagor does not continue to occupy the property, the interest rate shall increase to the highest rate permissible under this section and the regulations of the Secretary effective at the time of commitment for insurance of the mortgage; except that the increase in interest rate shall not be applicable if the property is sold and the purchaser is (i) a nonprofit organization which has been engaged in purchasing and rehabilitating deteriorating and substandard housing with financing under a mortgage insured under paragraph (1) of this subsection, (ii) a public housing agency having jurisdiction under the United States Housing Act of 1937 over the area where the dwelling is located, or (iii) a low-income purchaser approved for the purposes of this paragraph by the Secretary."

(4) The purchase of any individual dwelling, sold by a nonprofit organization pursuit to the provisions of section 221(h)(5) of the National Housing Act after the date of enactment of this section, may be financed with a mortgage insured under the provisions of section 235(j)(4) of such Act, but such mortgage shall bear interest at the rate provided in section 235(j)(2)(C) of such Act.

(d) Section 212(a) of such Act is amended by inserting "or section 235(j)(1)" after "subsection (h)(1)" each place it appears.

(e) The Secretary of Housing and Urban Development is authorized to provide, or contract with public or private organizations to provide, such budget, debt management, and related counseling services to mortgagors whose mortgages are insured under section 235(i) or 235(j)(4) of the National Housing Act as he determines to be necessary to assist such mortgagors in meeting the responsibilities of homeownership. There are authorized to be appropriated such sums as may be necessary to carry out the provisions of this subsection.

CREDIT ASSISTANCE

SEC. 102. (a) Title II of the National Housing Act is amended by adding after section 236 (as added by section 201 of this Act) the following new section:

"SPECIAL MORTGAGE INSURANCE ASSISTANCE

"SEC. 237. (a) The purpose of this section is to help provide adequate housing for families of low and moderate income, including those who, for reasons of credit history, irregular income patterns caused by seasonal employment, or other factors, are unable to meet the credit requirements of the Secretary for the purchase of a single-family home financed by a mortgage insured under section 203, 220, 221, 234, or 235(j)(4), but who, through the incentive of homeownership and counseling assistance, appear to be able to achieve homeownership.

"(b) The Secretary is authorized upon application by the mortgagee to insure under this section any mortgage meeting the requirements of this section.

"(c) To be eligible for insurance under this section, a mortgage shall—

"(1) meet the requirements of section 203, 220(d)(3)(A), 221(d)(2), 221(h)(5), 221(i), 234(c), or 235(j)(4) except as such requirements are modified by this section;

"(2) involve a principal obligation (including such initial service charges, and such appraisal, inspection, and other fees, as the Secretary shall approve) in an amount not to exceed $15,000: Provided, That the Secretary may increase the amount to not exceed $17,500 in any geographical area where he finds that cost levels so require: Provided further, That no mortgage meeting the requirements of section 203(h) or 203(i) shall be eligible for insurance under this section if its principal obligation is in excess of the maximum limits prescribed in such section;

"(3) be executed by a mortgagor who the Secretary has determined, after a full and complete study of the case, would not be an acceptable credit risk for mortgage insurance purposes under section 203, 220, 221, 234, or 235(j)(4), because of his credit standing, debt obligations, total annual income, or income characteristics, but who the Secretary is satisfied would be a reasonably satisfactory credit risk, consistent with the objectives stated in subsection (a), if he were to receive budget, debt management, and related counseling: Provided, That, in determining whether the mortgagor is a reasonably satisfactory credit risk, the Secretary shall review the credit history of the applicant giving special consideration to those delinquent accounts which were ultimately paid by the applicant and to extenuating factors which may have caused credit accounts of the applicant to become delinquent; and the Secretary shall also give special consideration to income characteristics of applicants whose total income over the two years prior to their applications has remained at levels of eligibility (as required under paragraph (4) of this subsection), but who, because of the character of their seasonal employment or for other reasons, have not maintained continuous employment under one employer during that time; and

"(4) require monthly payments which, in combination with local real estate taxes on the property involved, do not exceed 25 per centum of the applicant's income, based on his average monthly income during the year prior to his application or the average monthly income during the three years prior to his application, whichever is higher.

"(d) The Secretary shall give preference in approving mortgage insurance applications under this section to families living in public housing units, especially those families required to leave public housing because their incomes have risen beyond the maximum prescribed income limits, and families eligible for residence in public housing who have been displaced from federally assisted urban renewal areas.

"(e) The Secretary is authorized to provide, or contract with public or private organizations to provide, such budget, debt management, and related counseling services to mortgagors whose mortgages are insured under this section as he determines to be necessary to meet the objectives of this section. The Secretary may also provide such counseling to otherwise eligible families who lack sufficient funds to supply a downpayment to help them to save an amount necessary for that purpose.

"(f) The aggregate principal balance of all mortgages insured under this section and outstanding at one time shall not exceed $100,000,000.

"(g) There are authorized to be appropriated such sums as may be necessary to carry out the provisions of subsection (e) of this section."

(b) Section 226 of the National Housing Act is amended by inserting "235(i), 237," after "234,".

RELAXATION OF MORTGAGE INSURANCE REQUIREMENTS IN CERTAIN URBAN NEIGHBORHOODS

SEC. 103. (a) Section 223 of the National Housing Act is amended by adding at the end thereof a new subsection as follows:

"(e) Notwithstanding any of the provisions of this title except section 212, and without regard to limitations upon eligibility contained in any section of this title, the Secretary is authorized, upon application by the mortgagee, to insure under any section of this title a mortgage executed in connection with the repair, rehabilitation, construction, or purchase of property located in an older, declining urban area in which the conditions are such that one or more of the eligibility requirements applicable to the section of this title under which insurance is sought could not be met, if the Secretary finds that (1) the area is reasonably viable, giving consideration to the need for providing adequate housing for families of low and moderate income in such area, and (2) the property is an acceptable risk in view of such consideration. The insurance of a mortgage pursuant to this subsection shall be the obligation of the Special Risk Insurance Fund."

(b) Section 203(1) of such Act is repealed.

SPECIAL RISK INSURANCE FUND

SEC. 104. (a) Title II of the National Housing Act is amended by adding after section 237 (as added by section 102 of this Act) the following new section:

"PAYMENT OF INSURANCE—SPECIAL RISK INSURANCE FUND

"SEC. 238. (a)(1) Any mortgagee under a mortgage insured under section 235(i), 235(j)(4), or 237 shall be entitled to receive the benefits of the insurance as provided in section 204(a) with respect to mortgages insured under section 203. The provisions of subsections (b), (c), (d), (g), (j), and (k) of section 204 shall be applicable to mortgages insured under section 235(i), 235(j)(4), or 237, except that all references therein to the 'Mutual Mortgage Insurance Fund' shall be construed to refer to the 'Special Risk Insurance Fund', and all references therein to section 203 shall be construed to refer to section 235(i), 235(j)(4), or 237, as may be appropriate.

"(2) Any mortgagee under a mortgage insured under section 235(j)(1) or 236 shall be entitled to receive the benefits of insurance as provided in section 207(g) with respect to mortgages insured under section 207. The provisions of subsections (d), (e), (h), (i), (j), (k), (l), and (n) of section 207 shall be applicable to mortgages insured under section 235(j)(1) or 236, except that all references therein to the 'General Insurance Fund' shall be construed to refer to the 'Special Risk Insurance Fund' and the premium charge provided in section 207(d) shall be payable only in cash or debentures of the Special Risk Insurance Fund.

"(3) In lieu of the amount of insurance benefits computed pursuant to paragraph (1) or (2) of this subsection, the Secretary, in his discretion and in accordance with such regulations as he may prescribe, may (with respect to any mortgage loan acquired by him) compute and pay insurance benefits to the mortgagee in a total amount equal to the unpaid principal balance of the loan plus any accrued interest and any advances approved by the Secretary and made previously by the mortgagee under the provisions of the mortgage.

"(b) There is hereby created a Special Risk Insurance Fund (hereinafter referred to as the 'fund') which shall be used by the Secretary as a revolving fund for carrying out the mortgage insurance obligations of sections 223(e), 233(a)(2), 235, 236, and 237, and the Secretary is hereby authorized to advance to the fund the sum of $5,000,000 from the General Insurance Fund established pursuant to the provisions of section 519. Such advance shall be repayable at such times and at such rates of interest as the Secretary deems appropriate. Premium charges, adjusted premium charges, inspection and other fees, service charges, and any other income received by the Secretary under sections 223(e), 235, 236, and 237, together with all earnings on the assets of the fund, shall be credited to the fund. All payments made pursuant to claims of mortgagees with respect to mortgages insured under sections 235, 236, and 237 or pursuant to section 223(e) or 233(a)(2), cash adjustments, the principal of and interest paid on debentures which are the obligation of the fund, expenses incurred in connection with or as a consequence of the acquisition and disposal of property acquired under such sections, and all administrative expenses in connection with the mortgage insurance operations under such sections shall be paid out of the fund. There is authorized to be appropriated such sums as may be needed from time to time to cover losses sustained by the fund in carrying out the mortgage insurance obligations of sections 223(e), 233(a)(2), 235, 236, and 237. Moneys in the fund not needed for current operations of the fund shall be deposited with the Treasurer of the United States to the credit of the fund or invested in bonds or other obligations of, or in bonds or other obligations guaranteed by, the United States. The Secretary, with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury, may purchase in the open market debentures which are the obligation of the fund. Such purchases shall be made at a price which will provide an investment yield of not less than the yield obtained from other investments authorized by this section. Debentures so purchased shall be canceled and not reissued."

(b) Section 224 of such Act is amended by striking out "or section 233" and inserting in lieu thereof "section 233, or section 238".

(c) Section 519(e) of such Act is amended by inserting after "section 213(k)" the following: ", or the provisions of sections 223(e), 233(a)(2), 235, 236, and 237".

CONDOMINIUM AND COOPERATIVE OWNERSHIP FOR LOW AND MODERATE INCOME FAMILIES

SEC. 105. (a) Section 221 of the National Housing Act is amended by adding at the end thereof two new subsections as follows:

"(i)(1) The Secretary is authorized, with respect to any project involving a mortgage insured under subsection (d)(3) which bears interest at the below-market interest rate prescribed in the proviso of subsection (d)(5), to permit a conversion of the ownership of such project to a plan of family unit ownership. Under such plan, each family unit shall be eligible for individual ownership and provision shall be included for the sale of the family units, together with an undivided interest in the common areas and facilities which serve the project, to low or moderate income purchasers. The Secretary shall obtain such agreements as he determines to be necessary to assure continued maintenance of the common areas and facilities. Upon such sale, the family unit and the undivided interest in the common areas shall be released from the lien of the project mortgage.

"(2)(A) The Secretary is authorized, upon application by the mortgagee, to insure under this subsection mortgages financing the purchase of individual family units under the plan prescribed in paragraph (1). Commitments may be issued by the Secretary for the insurance of such mortgages prior to the date of their execution or disbursement thereon, upon such terms and conditions as the Secretary may prescribe. To be eligible for such insurance, the mortgage shall—

"(i) be executed by a mortgagor having an income within the limits prescribed by the Secretary for occupants of projects financed with a mortgage insured under subsection (d)(3) which bears interest at the below-market rate prescribed in the proviso of subsection (d)(5);

"(ii) involve a principal obligation (including such initial service charges, and such appraisal, inspection, and other fees, as the Secretary shall approve) in an amount not to exceed the Secretary's estimate of the appraised value of the family unit, including the mortgagor's interest in the common areas and facilities, as of the date the mortgage is accepted for insurance;

"(iii) bear interest at a rate determined by the Secretary (which may vary in accordance with the regulations of the Secretary promulgated pursuant to the last sentence of paragraph (4) of this subsection) but not less than the below-market rate in effect under the proviso of subsection (d)(5) at the date of the commitment for insurance; and
